PRACTICE PUCK FOR PASSING — A special hockey puck being used to develop strength and better passing is lined up by forward Miles Desharnais of University of British Columbia Thunderbirds beside a normal puck. The practice disc measures five inches in diameter and is two inches thick, compared to regulation three-by-one puck. Coach Bob Hindmarch believes the oversized puck, used in practice, helps the players' accuracy. (CP Photo)

Jockey Charged In Death of Horse Trainer

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—A New Brunswick jockey and an Ontario paving company were charged Monday in connection with last Wednesday's death of a horse trainer in a car-truck crash near this town 16 miles west of Oshawa.

Jockey Noel Turcotte, 22, of Grand Falls, N.B., was summoned to appear in court Jan. 25 on a charge of careless driving and a charge of passing a vehicle within 100 feet of an intersection.

Ashmore Asphalt Paving Co. of nearby Brooklin, the truck owner, also was summonsed to appear Jan. 25 on a charge of permitting an unsafe vehicle on the road.

Trainer John Wilfred Waters, 31, of Toronto, a passenger in Turcotte's car, was killed in the crash on Highway 7 north of here. Turcotte suffered minor injuries.

Alberta Wildlife Experts Critical Of Opening Mackenzie to Hunters

By DON MacLACHLAN

EDMONTON (CP)—Two Alberta wildlife experts say the federal government should have taken a better look before plunging into opening the trophy game country of the Mackenzie ranges to non-resident hunting.

Al Oeming, zoologist and owner of the Alberta Game Farm, and Edgar T. Jones, president of the Alberta Wildlife Foundation, maintain the government should have first made a proper survey of the northern area's game population.

But, says Don Flock, Canadian Wildlife Service biologist who recommended the Northwest Territories area be opened this year: "We don't believe that's necessary. There is game there adequate to hunt."

Oeming and Jones say the rugged 50,000 square miles between the Mackenzie River and the Yukon - N.W.T. boundary was the last unlavaged big game area in North America.

The 500-mile strip of timber and mountain is the home of record-book Dall sheep, caribou, moose, goat and grizzly bear. Outfitter-organized safaris costing up to $100 a day when it opened this fall.

WILL HUNTS INCREASE?

Seventy hunters went out this year but where will it stop when "rich Americans" are prepared to jump at the chance of hunting in virgin territory? Oeming asks.

"Who can tell what the human influx into that area will be in 10 years? and we don't even know how much game there is in there. Did anyone do a comprehensive survey?"

Not by a lengthy, costly and "practically impossible" headcount of animals, Flock admits. But he worked for four years at Fort Simpson on the Mackenzie River and "we've got a pretty good picture."

"We're certainly quite confident that the area is not overhunted," Flock says. "In fact, it's been under-hunted by Indians and trappers and, since 1960, by territorial residents."

"Besides, most of that country is almost inaccessible. There are only a few lakes . . . where planes can land and most of the hunting will be confined to within 10 miles or so of the lakes.

"I find it a little hard to believe . . . there will be a slaughter. There are animals back there in the hills that are dying of old age without ever seeing a hunter."

CHARGES GUESSWORK

Oeming, who has made several trips into the Mackenzies to trap animals for his game farm near Edmonton, says that statement is typical of the "guesswork" behind the opening of the area.

"How does Flock know that? I wonder if Flock hasn't forgotten the cruel winters that preclude animals from reaching old age. Does he know? For God's sake, let's find out what there is in there."

Flock flew over the Mackenzies for a week in 1963 on a survey for the N.W.T. council. The "not very meaningful" survey counted about 150 Dall sheep, 30 moose, 30 caribou scattered head of other game.

"It was just as indication of what we saw in there," Flock says. "I could just as well have left it out of the report. . . . I've seen, and so have other people, herds of caribou in the thousands."

Such non-comprehensive surveys are hardly an adequate base on which to recommend opening the area to "Americans who don't care what they spend," says Jones, a naturalist-photographer who has just completed 12 years of work on a movie of Canadian wildlife.

SPEND HEAVILY

"The Americans will be in there by the thousands; they'll spend anything . . . up to $1,000 a day."

And inaccessibility won't worry them either, he says. "They'll use helicopters. They can afford it."

He suggests northern affairs and N.W.T. officials will be "very sorry" if the Dall sheep population is "shot out" because the region was opened before anyone knew how many sheep there were in the hills.

But, says Jean - Marie Malfair, assistant superintendent of game for the Mackenzie district: "We anticipate no change . . . And we'll be keeping a constant check on what's killed."

Malfair, based at Fort Smith, N.W.T., says that if hunter tallies show too many young animals are being killed "we can restrict the number of licences or . . . shut it off right there."

With hunters restricted to one animal of each species—and for most species that's limited to a male—there is "no chance of depleting the population," he says.

Another factor is that outfitters are employing Indian guides and cooks, thus contributing to the northern economy, Malfair says, adding that this could reach perhaps $100,000 a year.

CBC Plans to Expand Flow of News Between English, French Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC plans to expand the flow of news, public affairs and entertainment programs between English and French Canada to promote understanding.

In a 40-page brief being submitted today to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, the CBC says it is urgent to bridge gaps in Canadians' knowledge and appreciation of each other.

"In some respects Canadians are given more information about the world than they are about Canada."

The publicly - owned agency says it plans a "carefully staged" increase in Canadian television and radio programming during the next five years to coincide with centennial celebrations.

More American and foreign TV shows were included in this winter's English schedules than the CBC considered desirable, but to replace U.S. series would increase production costs, and advertising revenue and "perhaps" result in a loss of audience.

PLAN CHANGES

Programming changes were planned for the immediate future to step up news about Canada, documentaries that can be used on both English and French networks with different sound tracks, and programs stressing economic and historic factors uniting Canada.

Such programs would "widen the sense of Canadian nationhood," but they would require support in public funds and the moral support of Canadian leaders and the public.

The CBC says one of its objectives is to develop "a direct and Canada-wide access to both official languages," but this would take a long time to achieve.

This is an apparent reference to frequent demands in briefs to the commission that the CBC's French TV and radio networks be extended from coast to coast.

The CBC gives a flat "no" to frequent demands by Ukrainian groups for special programs in Ukrainian and other languages other than English and French.

Parliament recognized only two official languages, added costs would be incurred and network programs in a third language would be impractical since the audience would be spread thinly across the country.

The brief suggests that private TV and radio stations are "better situated" to carry third - language broadcasts in areas where the affected ethnic minority is sufficiently concentrated.

CITE EXCEPTION

There was one exception to the rule against third languages however. The CBC's northern service used Indian and Eskimo dialects in its broadcasts as well as English and French.

The CBC says 32.6 per cent of its head office staff in Ottawa is French - speaking but French-Canadians qualified for senior posts were reluctant to transfer to Ottawa from Montreal.

The same situation probably applied to the civil service.

The reason was that a French - Canadian working in the capital was prevented from a maximum participation in French cultural life. He could expect to speak English and work in an English atmosphere most of the time.

"Ottawa schools compare unfavorably with those in Quebec since bilingual schools are not truly French and involve the payment of higher taxes.

The brief says French-Canadians have every right to occupy middle- and upper-bracket public service jobs in Ottawa.

"The corporation and the nation are the loers because of the fact that it is relatively difficult to get able French-Canadians to work outside their own province."

'In Search of Man' Large Order for Hour's Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—ABC's In Search of Man Monday night was an hour's tribute to the good guys, to men of goodwill, the builders, the creators and the believers.

It was a pretty large assignment for only 60 minutes and sometimes it seemed the show was racing as it zipped from prehistoric cave drawings to open walking in space.

There were impressive Arctic shots of an Eskimo family, smiling and snug in their igloo while the head of the family was out hunting for food.

Then we moved on to Senegal and the holy Ganges River to be shown a religious ceremony and a cremation by Hindus.

There was a portrait of care-free, affectionate family life on a Pacific island paradise. This contrasted with the spirited, determined life of an Israeli kibbutz whose young people concentrated on bringing to green life a parched corner of the Negev—ringed with barbed wire against hostile men.

NBC's Huntley-Brinkley news show Monday night produced a startling film shot in a South Viet Nam field hospital where a badly wounded U.S. marine colonel was being given first aid between gasps of pain as he described the action in which he had been hurt.

The televised censors wisely permitted the colonel's strong language to remain on the sound track vividly illustrating the dreadful aspects of war.

On the happy side was Andy Williams' Christmas program, also on NBC. Andy's two-year-old daughter, Noelle, was much more interested in trying to kiss her baby brother than listening to her father sing.

-Recommended tonight:

Young People's Concert, CBS 7:30-8:30 EST, with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra demonstrating "the sound of an orchestra."

Blonde Bibi Makes Switch From Sweden to Wild West

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's a long distance from the explicit dramas of Sweden to an American western. Bibi Andersson has made the transition with what appears to be highly satisfactory results.

Bibi is the striking blonde who achieved fame as leading lady in Ingmar Bergman films, some of which have run afoul of American censors. Producer-director Ralph Nelson admired her work and cast her with James Garner and Sidney Poitier in Duel at Diablo, which was made entirely on location near Kanab, Utah.

Westerns have progressed beyond the era when the cowboy star kissed only his horse.

"Four men try to tear my clothes off in one scene," reported Bibi. "But of course this is a western, and the hero rescues me before they can succeed."

I asked if a European version was filmed, in which the hero arrived late. No, she said, expressing interest in the practice of some American producers to franker or nuder versions for the overseas trade.

"We do the same thing in Sweden; we make American versions," she said. "For the version here, the girl wears jeans and a bra."

PLAYS BOTH WAYS

Such are the divergent cultures. Bibi Andersson seems capable of playing them on both sides of the ocean. Her English is flawless. She admitted enjoying the action, gruelling though it may have seemed.

"For the first eight weeks the sun shone," she said. "Since I am from Sweden, that's all I needed to keep me happy. Later it rained, and I was not so happy. But I managed to keep my spirits up."

Even on a rugged location, filming in the United States is easier than in Sweden, she said.

"In Sweden we have no standins," she commented. "The actors have to stand under the hot lights until the scene is ready, and that is very tiring.

"My stand-in on Duel at Diablo was so good she was going half my part. She is an excellent rider, and she performed the action scenes. I got worried that she would take my part away from me."

Bibi had been joined by her husband, professor-writer Erland Grede, for a brief vacation before returning to Stockholm.

Long Legs Won Model Role In Film by Howard Hawks

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How does a young girl—even one as beautiful as Diana Rigg—get cast in the feminine lead of a Howard Hawks movie starring John Wayne and Robert Mitchum?

"I got carried there with my seven-league legs," says Canadienne, who also has life face and eyes to go along with her long, shapely pins.

In the movie she plays a role—despite its 1870 locale in the old West—that will show off her legs, and her dramatic ability.

"I play the owner of the Broken Heart Saloon, a siren who cuts the cards with one hand and dances with the boys," she says. "My working costume is a deep-cut wasp-waist corset and opera hose clear up to here."

But what she doesn't know is that she has one of the meatiest dramatic parts of the year. It's no neap that Hawks hasn't lost the heart to tell her how demanding it is.

PICTURE STARDOM

"It's best just to let her take it day by day—and she's coming through," says the veteran director. "She'll be a major star."

Charlene was a fashion model. Her modelling career took her to Paris, Rome, London, Zurich, Rio de Janeiro, the Dutch and British colonies and other far-away places.

Hawks saw her on a television commercial one night and sent her a ticket to make her acting debut opposite John Hudson in Man's Favorite Sport.

"Modelling is a good way to get pictures," says Charlene. "It teaches poise and grace and gets your face around where producers can see it."

Most models have their eyes on the movies and study acting on the side, as I was doing when Mr. Hawks paged me.

"But even if it doesn't get you pictures, it's an exciting life and quite profitable. I made $50,000 a year as a model.

"And almost any long-legged girl with a presentable face and good figure can do it. Now that's a tip."

RCAF Rink Wins H.J.McFarland Trophy

PICTON — Second annual Men's Invitational Bonspiel held at Prince Edward Curling Club, Picton, on Saturday, Dec. 11. Sixteen rinks competed, three from Picton and thirteen from the surrounding area. The ice was fast and play was of very high standard with most games being very close. Results were:

The Harvey J. McFarland trophy for high three-game winner—Trenton RCAF, Manny Powers; Gerry Couillard, Cecil Clark, Ken Clark skip.

Runner-up—Marmora Curling Club—Alex Fraser, Dave Bendera, Roy Smith, Ben Henry skip.

Runner-up—Trenton RCAF—Jean Duquet, Ron Thorbourne, Ollie Therein, Paul Smith skip.

Over all arrangements for the spiel were in the hands of Dan Keeler and Al Pearce, who stated they were very encouraged with the response to the annual event and the calibre of curling in evidence. The ice was fast and true and enabled the skips to go for draw or take out at any time. It was noted that while Cross Canada Curling was on, more people were watching the ice than the television.

Kiwanians Hold Party For Children

PICTON (Staff) — Some 45 needy children from the County of Prince Edward Monday night attended the Kiwanis Club's annual children's Christmas party. Each year Santa "flies" these children at the Royal Hotel, where he distributes presents of clothing, toys, apples and candy to each child. Each boy or girl personally met Santa Claus, who has his or her gifts and the wide - eyed children provided much gratification to their jolly members of the Kiwanis Club. One member was heard to remark "this is one Kiwanis event of the year I would never miss." The look of excitement and expectation on the faces of the youngsters as they waited to meet Santa more than justified the efforts put forth by the service club.

In past years Picton Kiwanians have treated the children to a turkey dinner with all the trimmings however last year they found the children appreciated that simple fare and this year the menu remained the same. Children were treated to ice cream and hot dogs which the children relished with gusto. Members of the Picton Kiwanis Club and their wives acted as hosts helping them in serving their dinner. Kiwanians moved throughout the meal with carols and Christmas songs ringing in the air.

Most Kiwanians felt that this year's party was a greater success than ever evidenced by the manner in which the small fry moved away their hot dogs and milk.

Metro Workers Say MSB's Lack Pensions Information

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of Metropolitan Toronto's 20,000 municipal workers say there is a lack of information among Conservative backbenchers in the legislature in connection with pensions for municipal employees.

The spokesmen followed a private meeting Monday night with 15 members of the legislature from three parties. Five cabinet members were invited but did not attend.

Mrs. Grace Hartman, president of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), said they appeared to be a lack of liaison between the cabinet and backbenchers.

Another union representative commented: "They just didn't know what it was all about."

Nine Conservative backbenchers were at the meeting. Their spokesman, Robert Macaulay, member for Toronto York Mills, said he felt the meeting was useful and that he would convey what was said to Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner.

OBJECT TO PLAN

The dispute over pensions centres on the government's announced policy of integrating current municipal pension schemes with the Canada Pension Plan Jan. 1.

Many provincial civil servants and municipal levels are opposed to this, preferring to let the national plan as a separate entity. This would add to the cost of premiums but would provide greater benefits at retirement.

The employees say they will lose $25,000,000 in benefits and their right to negotiate will be denied under the government's Ontario municipal employees retirement system.

The CUPE unions representing 8,000 Ontario Hydro workers and 4,000 employees of Metropolitan Toronto are seeking Ontario Supreme Court injunctions against integration of the plans.

VOTE TONIGHT

The 4,000-member Civic Employees Union (Inc.)is to vote tonight on whether to support its stand on non-integration of pension plans.

Don Reade, president of CUPE Local 767, representing 200 employees of the Ontario Housing Corp., said his workers will strike unless the government reverses its stand.

At Monday night's meeting called by CUPE, there were two Liberals and four members of the New Democratic Party including NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald.

Liberal Leader Calls Premier Robarts' Handling Of Pensions "Repulsive"

TORONTO (CP)—Faced with the threat of strike action by 20,000 municipal workers in metropolitan Toronto, Premier Robarts stood his ground Tuesday by announcing that municipal pension scheme would be integrated Jan. 1 with the Canada Pension Plan.

Mr. Robarts said demands by some municipalities for "stacked" pensions, whereby CPP contributions would be deducted from employees pay cheques in addition to existing pension plans, necessitated Tuesday's statement of government policy.

At retirement this would mean up to $104 a month extra for employees earning up to $5,000 a year.

But the premier noted employers would have to match employees' contributions of 1.8 per cent of wages. The government decided neither the municipality nor the employee could afford this amount in addition to other pension contributions.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said the Robarts government policy statement was a "serious denial of one of our basic freedoms" and the Liberals would fight any restrictive legislation forced on the province.

He termed the premier's statement "dictatorial" and "dangerous" and said the manner in which the pension issue was handled was "repulsive."

Donald MacDonald, Ontario's New Democratic leader, said his party will protest the government policy but doubted the combined NDP-Liberal opposition of 31 members would deter the Conservative government's 77 members.

Meanwhile, the independent local 43 representing 4,000 outside civic workers employed by metropolitan Toronto voted Monday to defer strike action until there is a court ruling on the legality of Mr. Robarts' proposed integration.

Local 43 joined members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC), firemen and police who represent the rest of the metro area's 20,000 municipal employees, in awaiting the court's ruling.

William Allen, chairman of metropolitan Toronto, said Tuesday the existing law will not prevent the city from bargaining with the unions to stack pensions.

However, Mr. Robarts indicated Tuesday that if the government does not already have the power legislation will be passed at the forth-coming sitting to make integration retroactive.

The government policy, announced at a press conference, applied to the Ontario Municipal Employees Retirement System and all other government-approved pension plans.

Mr. Robarts read the 11-page statement which gave a chronological rundown of municipal pension history in Ontario. He said integration of the pension schemes is in the public interest.

If the plans were stacked on top of one another, he said, the additional cost in premium contributions to metropolitan Toronto alone would be about $1,500,000 a year.

Sees China A-Power In 2 Years

(From AP-Reuters)

PARIS (CP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said today China may have a small stockpile of nuclear weapons in two years and hopes to have a ballistic missile to deliver them.

Reuters also quoted an inforced source as saying that McNamara disclosed that the Chinese Communists now have a ballistic missile submarine that may be armed with missiles by 1967-68.

McNamara told ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the European mes bers of the alliance should plan not to meet a Chinese threat to their own security within five years.

He said the Chinese were determined to become a major nuclear power. China exploded its first nuclear device in October, 1964.

By 1976, he predicted, the Chinese probably would not only have developed but also deployed intercontinental ballistic missiles. Such missiles presumably would reach targets all the way from San Francisco to Berlin and cities in between.

He said the Chinese have set their sights on building up a major nuclear force within the next two years.

The U.S. defence secretary said Peking is attempting to de-

Dramatic Sky Hunt Underway

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Gemini 6 astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford rocketed into orbit today and stalked the Gemini 7 spacecraft through the skies, aiming for the first rendezvous of orbiting vehicles.

The spine-tingling space start started from Cape Kennedy with the thundering blast off of a 90-foot Titan II rocket. It soared skyward exactly on schedule at 8:37 a.m. EST and propelled Gemini 6 into space.

Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell were about 185 miles high, some 200 miles south of the cape, at the time of the launch, nearing the end of the 11th of their planned 14 days in space.

Six minutes later, when ignition control announced Gemini 6 was in orbit, Gemini 7 had streaked 1,200 miles ahead of Schirra and Stafford and the chase was on—featuring a record cast of four U.S. astronauts.

The dramatic pursuit was to cover about 185,000 miles during which Schirra and Stafford were to make a series of orbit-

U.S. Jets Strike First Blow At North Viet Nam Heartland

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief jets blasted a major power plant today 14 miles northeast of Hialphong, North Viet Nam's major port. It was the first American strike in the north's industrial heartland in the Red River delta.

Pilots of the American F-105s reported that they hit the heart of the Uong Bi steam power plant and many secondary explosions followed. A U.S. spokesman said the raid knocked out the plant, which he said supplies 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electric power and is the primary power source for the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

One plane was shot down but the pilot was rescued.

The escalation of the air war against the north came as U.S. military spokesmen announced that U.S. combat dead climbed last week to 91, the second highest weekly toll of the Viet-namese fighting. Seven others were captured and 116 Americans were reported missing or wounded in the seven-day period that ended at midnight Saturday.

The Viet Cong, meanwhile, carried the war to South Viet Nam's heartland with three hit-and-run attacks on police posts on Saigon's outskirts, killing two policemen and wounding seven.

Heavy South Vietnamese losses were reported in an outbreak of fighting in southern Quang Ngai province. Reports said a company of militia was nearly wiped out.

A flight of F-105s, usually four to six planes, carried out the attack on the power station near Haiphong despite bad weather and heavy anti-aircraft fire, a U.S. spokesman said.

Since the U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam began last Feb. 7, American planes have avoided strikes against either Hanoi or Haiphong. The spokesman noted that only the power plant was hit and not the industrial centre it served.

Canada Wants Stress On Conventional Forces

PARIS (CP) — Canada is ready to endorse United States plea for a five-year blueprint of North Atlantic military force goals but wants more expansion in fast-moving, peace-restoring conventional groups than in nuclear stockpiling.

A spokesman said Canadian Defence Minister Paul Hellyer will make this point today as the defence leaders take their turn before the NATO council to review NATO's military power in terms of future needs.

Hellyer's theme, the spokesman said, will be "realism"—that NATO members should bear the brunt of the cost of defence and to make use of what is militarily and politically attainable, rather than strain to meet the idealistic goals of the military chiefs.

He believes there are more than enough nuclear warheads stockpiled in Europe.

Canada's own military role may undergo drastic change in the next few years, giving more emphasis to conventional mobile forces and less to tactical nuclear power.

The big Canadian concentration, it was learned, is on the possible European use of the new CF-5 twin-engined ground attack aircraft which may come off Canadian production lines in 1967. This plane has only a conventional role and some consid-

Rail Employees Uneasy Over Grievance-handling

OTTAWA (CP)—A railway union leader says there is a growing uneasiness among railway employees in Canada and blames it on a general breakdown of grievance-handling procedures.

W. P. Kelly, a vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC), says the wildcat strikes of recent years can almost all be attributed to the lack of grievance communication between local union groups and local railway superintendents.

Writing in the current issue of Trainman's News, the BRT's Canadian monthly newspaper, Mr. Kelly says that for decades the railways had a smooth and efficient procedure for handling local complaints by employees. He contends that over the last 10 years this system has been gradually eroded by management policies and now is almost totally ineffective. Local problems had piled up into an explosive backlog of employee discontent.

Mr. Kelly says the railways, particularly the CNR, have manned regional offices with labor relations specialists who are instructed to "keep our jump ahead of these union people."

Stick to Pledge Tanzania and Guinea Break With Britain

DAR ES SALAAM (CP) — Tanzania joined Guinea today as the only two countries which have announced a diplomatic break with Britain over the Rhodesian independence issue.

President Julius Nyerere announced that Tanzania will sever relations with Britain at midnight tonight.

Tiny Black Guinea, one of the smallest independent states in Africa, gave formal notice that it will go through with the break.

The 36 nations of the Organization of African Unity voted two weeks ago to sever relations with Britain unless it crushed the Rhodesian white-minority regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith by today.

But as the deadline arrived, only Guinea and Tanzania gave notice of the break. British sources said Algeria will do the same.

The United Arab Republic urged another OAU meeting on Dec. 21 to reconsider the situation, and the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, which usually speaks for President Nasser, said the U.A.R. has postponed announcement of its break with Britain.

In the Rhodesian crisis, the United Nations already has voted for oil embargo against the rebellious colony, but Britain said it would not apply it unless it could be made effective. Such a move might go a long way toward appeasing African states who are demanding that Britain put down the Rhodesian rebellion by armed force.

It was reported that Britain is planning now to announce an oil embargo against the Rhodesians later this week, and it is expected it will come when Prime Minister Wilson addresses the UN assembly Thursday.

President Sekou Toure of Guinea made the announcement of the breaking of relations with Britain effective early today. Guinea is not a member of the Commonwealth-like Tanzania.

Tanzania's Nyerere said he had been told of new British moves against Rhodesia, but these did not satisfy him and he was going ahead with the diplomatic break.

But Prime Minister Sir Abubekar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria told reporters in London that Nyerere has agreed to attend a conference of Commonwealth African countries in Lagos Jan. 10 to draft a program against Rhodesia. Canada supports such a conference.

The Nigerian prime minister met with Wilson Tuesday and urged him to attend the conference. Tafawa Balewa said his country would not break with Britain.

Wilson Flies to U.S.

Will Talk to LBJ on Viet Nam, UN on Rhodesia

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson left for the United States today to talk with President Johnson and to address the UN General Assembly. South Viet Nam and Rhodesia are expected to be his chief topics.

Wilson's aides said he may announce tougher sanctions, including an oil embargo, against Rhodesia's rebel white minority regime when he speaks to the UN assembly Thursday.

Such an embargo would need the support of the United States to airlift oil to landlocked Zambia, Rhodesia's Negro - ruled northern neighbor.

Wilson-Johnson Parliament Tuesday night he will discuss prospects for peace in Viet Nam with the U.S president. He said if North Viet Nam indicates it will come to the conference table if the United States halts its bombings, then Britain "would want to pursue" the suggestions. But he added that Hanoi so far has not indicated it is willing to negotiate.

(Only a few hours before Wilson's departure, U.S. planes for the first time carried their bombing attack to the outskirts of Haiphong, North Viet Nam's major port.

Other issues likely to come up in the Western leaders' talks are NATO nuclear-sharing problems, an East-West treaty on non - dissemination of nuclear weapons, Malaysia and international economic troubles.

It was thought here that Wilson would make a renewed plea in his General Assembly maiden speech for the Rhodesian situation to be left in the hands of British alone. The British colony seized independence Nov. 11.

Wilson hopes to address the Security Council as well Thursday and perhaps again Saturday if it is still discussing Rhodesia.

London newspapers stressed the importance of the opportunity afforded to the prime minister to present his views to the American president at this time, but disagreed on just how the opportunity should be used.

The Guardian says Wilson has the responsibility to speak frankly at the White House.

"He can hardly fail to tell President Johnson with what anxiety even those least tainted with anti-Americanism watch the American warfare in Viet Nam. . . ."

The Daily Sketch says Wilson should take to Washington the message of continuing British support, without strings, for American action in Viet Nam.

"Mr. Wilson should resist pressure from his left wingers for Britain to chicken out," the right wing newspaper says.

The Times says while the U.S. should not be left with the impression that if is preserving world peace single-handed, its allies cannot give unconditional support for policies with which they do not agree entirely.

The Vietnamese war cannot be abandoned, the Times says.

"But the somewhat thankless task of potential intermediary, which Britain has tried before, is not necessarily a hopeless one. The right circumstances for it could still arise."

1965 Springboard to Future Says Mayor's Year-end Survey

Bill Lafferty, right, director of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, presents a cheque for $200 to Murray Atkinson, Chairman of the TB Seals Committee. The money was raised through the Kinsmen Club's social evenings.

The year 1963 has been a springboard for the city of Belleville in getting things under way.

In fact the year could go down in history as being more notable for the projects started than for the number of projects completed.

This is the way which Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis sums up in his year-end report on the various accomplishments which have taken place during 1963.

In his year-end report Mayor Ellis gives full credit to members of the city hall administration staff for a job well done and lists the various projects either completed or initiated during the year. They range all the way from repair of the city hall clock to the rebuilding of Pinnacle street, and commencement of an eight million dollar hospital building project.

Among the accomplishments listed by the mayor, not all of them the result of council action, are the completion of the Park Dale public school, the new utilities commission hydro sub-station on Reid Street, completion of the new city police headquarters and the hospital auxiliary opportunity shop.

Mayor Ellis refers to the rebuilding of the old city hall clock as being one of the most noticed accomplishments, although not the most costly.

WORKS DEPT. BUSY

It has been a busy year for the city works department which in the past year has seen completion of a number of projects, among them the first phase of the rebuilding of North Front Street.

This, according to Mayor Ellis, will give residents a preview of what the street will look like when the second phase of rebuilding is completed to 401 highway next year.

A sheltered-type garage was built at the public works yard to protect the city's equipment investment; an active sidewalk replacement program has been carried out as well as a sewer reconstruction program.

Services have been extended to the site of the city's fourth high school in West Belleville, a major contract has been let for tying in of all underground services in the College Heights, East Moira Street area, together with installation of a number of storm sewers and replacement of all underground services on Pinnacle Street prior to repaving.

New traffic lights were installed at the intersection of Coleman and Moira Streets and were an overnight hit on the part of motorists.

FINISH TREE PROGRAM

The year also saw the completion of the city's five year tree program. A number of trees, both dead and diseased, were cut down, together with others destroyed because of road and sewer construction.

But in order that Belleville may continue to be known as a "City of trees", tree planting outpaced tree destruction and in the next five years all tree program funds will be spent on planting.

Mayor Ellis said 1965 had been a year of surveys, with reports received from consulting firms on various traffic problems.

A final report from Damas and Smith indicates that a start on the Dundas Street bridge project and the building of a bridge over the CPR tracks at No. 14 highway should be the first moves toward carrying out recommendations of the city's 1960 traffic survey report.

Tied in with this over-all scheme was the rebuilding of Pinnacle and Church subways. It got off to a late start due to engineering and various governmental problems, will be completed to a stage to allow traffic during the winter, with final completion by June of 1966.

PRAISES STAFF

Mayor Ellis said that "tremendous progress" was made by city hall administration staff for preparation of the city's capital works budget which, he said, had been received and adopted without comment by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Two debenture issues, one for approximately $1,000,000 and the other for $500,000 for $2,000,000 sold in United States at the best possible interest rate, had much bolstered the good credit position of the city.

Among projects started this year included the 40 low rental housing units, while 37 senior citizens housing apartment units will be underway in the winter or early spring on Turnbull street.

The Utilities Commission started the construction of its garage and storehouse at the corner of Sidney and College streets.

HOSPITAL STARTED

Ground was finally broken for the $8 and $4 million dollar hospital complex. It is anticipated that some of the rooms will be ready for use in 1967, when completion of the entire building by early 1968.

The new storm sewer has been laid on Dundas Street West, in preparations for the construction of a new four lane traffic route. Due to the heavy works department work overload construction of the way will have to wait until the spring.

Steps have been taken toward application to the Ontario Water Resources Commission for the addition of a centennial treatment to the water pollution control centre and for enlargement of the plant to take care of city growth.

Turning to the parks department Mayor Ellis noted that steps had been taken toward the building of a portion of Zwicks Island as a centennial project.

Other city parks, including the Alexandra and Corby's Park, had come in for attention, while a new wading pool had been built in Park Dale.

During the year the city had become a partner through the County of Hastings in the proposed new four-county central detention unit to be built in the Napanee area. A new director for the Social Services Planning Council, in the person of Mr. Robert Porter, had been hired.

FIRST SUCCESS

The city's industrial commission after a hard long year had finally achieved its first success with the locating of the Canadian H. W. Gossard Company, and is confident that this is the first of many new plants which will come to Belleville. On recommendation of the commission, city council has agreed to the purchase of a number of Highway Department acres intended for industrial sites.

Mayor Ellis said that Mr. Ernst Kneisel as industrial commissioner, had gained the respect and confidence of various government bodies, banks and developers.

Since last winter's serious fire in downtown Belleville, arrangements have been completed for an emergency fire route over private property to the west of Front Street and it is expected that a permanent route will soon be provided.

Mayor Ellis said one of the most heart-warming experiences on city council during the year had been the presentation of the new Maple Leaf Flag by the A.N.A.F. and Canadian Legion.

During the year the city played host to a number of conventions.

The mayor said he was particularly proud of some of the legislation emerging from the mayor's office this year. Among the legislation was the two year term for all elected bodies in the city, which, together with a reduced council and voluntary reduction of school boards, should lead to more streamlined efficiency.

PLUMBING WORK

A plan to accelerate the establishment of an official plan for the city had been placed before city council, when completed in 1966 will be of great assistance in the future planning of the city.

The mayor was especially complimentary of the various civic departments and their activities during the year, noting the increased work load in purchasing, engineering, in the welfare department which was performing more and more services for the city, and the clerk's department.

And with still possibly some room for a good word of appreciation by the taxpayer is that last spring council was able to reduce the mill rate slightly. And a small surplus at the year end is expected.

Legion Will Elect Officers On Monday

TRENTON—Trenton Branch 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion will hold its annual election of officers on Monday, December 20, with an advance poll being held on Saturday, December 18, from 12.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. at the Legion Hall.

A nominating committee, and nominations from the floor, have picked the following names in contest for various positions on the executive: Russell King, (last year's president) from Brighton, 2nd vice-president; George B. Grainfoth for first vice-president; Louis Knab for second vice-president; F. Levere for secretary; M. McLaren, W. Farrell and P. Wilkinson for treasurer; W. Willman, C. Potter and J. Howe for sgt. at arms. Members on the service bureau officer; W. Davidson, A. Collette and G. Leeman as trustees.

For the executive, the following names have been submitted: R. Barnes, E. Black, C. Clegg, R. Cunningham, A. Collette, W. Frayn, A. Ray, C. Shepherd, C. Shenael, J. Spencer and W. Latour.

Stanley Sears, 1965 service bureau officer, reported this week during the year he had handled upwards of 200 cases to do with veterans affairs. Mr. Sears made numerous visits to veterans, both to them and out of town and to the widows of veterans in the course of his duties, as well as suggesting letters from veterans or dependents.

Pink Elephants Safe

TRENTON — A check of Trenton stores reveals that they are selling plastic water coolers, in the shape of pink elephants, but all except one dealer said they were manufactured in Toronto. One dealer did have coolers made in Hong Kong, but has now removed these from his shelves. A U.S. report suggests these coolers contain contaminated water.

Hockey Clubs Get Reduction In Guarantee

TRENTON — The Trenton Community Gardens' Commission met on Monday and voted to reduce the guarantee from the intermediate "B" club, the Iroquois and the Intermediate "C" club, the ROAF Flyers from $60 to $40. Both clubs said the guarantee was too high in view of this year's small attendances at games. The gardens shares the take from both clubs' games on a 50-50 split arrangement, after expenses are taken off the top, but must have a certain guarantee.

The 1966 budget figures are being revised and should be ready for presentation to the commission before the end of the year.

P-L Felix Walker, recreational director at ROAF Station Trenton, was welcomed as the ROAF representative who will replace P-L Ed Aiko, who has retired from the RCAF.

Erie Makes Parts For Gemini Control

TRENTON — Gemini Six got airborne today for its planned rendezvous with Gemini Seven. Trenton had a part in the orbital flights, as Erie Technological Products supplies components for the flight control centre at Houston.

Teachers Must Continue Supervision

KINGSTON (CP)—The separate school board of Kingston has ruled that its teachers must continue school ground supervision of pupils.

The board voted unanimously on Tuesday night to continue the system of teacher supervision for pupils a half-hour before school begins and 15 minutes after dismissal.

The issue arose after three separate school principals stated that teachers were hampered in preparing work for classrooms because of the need to keep an eye on pupils in the school grounds.

One principal said it needs "baby - sitters" out of the teachers.

War in Viet Nam Pivot of U.S. View

By ARCH McKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The arrival President Ayub Khan of Pakistan signals a new phase in President Johnson's leadership and one of vital international significance.

Within a week Johnson will have met Ayub Khan, Prime Minister Wilson of Britain and Chancellor Erhard of West Germany.

The following weeks and months will make clearer the Johnson brand of foreign policy as head of the major Western power. The primary characteristic is expected to be a toughness in which the war in Viet-Nam more than ever is the pivot of the American view.

American and other officials here in the diplomatic world caution against anticipating any dramatic results other than those implicit in the menace of a much wider war in Southeast Asia.

PROBLEMS UNYIELDING

They say the unyielding nature of most problems facing the U.S. or other nations makes this a logical assumption.

The point is that President Johnson is expected to be much more actively involved.

He has been criticized to some extent at home and abroad on grounds of failing in his first full year as elected president to provide strong Western initiatives and leadership.

However, there was a design in Mr. Johnson's preoccupations this year, his supporters argue, pointing to the well-laid foundations for a far-reaching legislative program.

That was done despite foreign preoccupations, not the least being of the war in Viet Nam to the Dominican Republic intervention. Or even the decision to name American support for a future effective United Nations, triggered somewhat by the Indian-Pakistani war.

The current NATO talks in Paris produced the stiff attitude the U.S. plans to take on foreign issues in 1966

NATO's internal problems have been sidetracked, mainly because of the French elections, and most politicians seems to have been put on shortrations on support for the U.S. in Viet Nam.

URGES A PAUSE

The Johnson-Ayub Khan conversations are expected to center direct bearing on Viet Nam. Pakistan is not in favor of the American stand that Peking urge another pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam—a gesture which the U.S. is hoping in to serve more to pacify world opinion than to hopes it will work.

At stake, even Pakistan's relations which never have been worse and the future involves further U.S. aid, the question of closer Pakistani ties with China and the prospect of settling Pakistan's Kashmir dispute with India in which Pakistan has taken a more moderate line than India.

For Wilson, Rhodesia is the only other element and U.S. support toward breaking the rebels seems certain to continue. But there is the question of continuing costly British military commitments east of Suez, continuing support for the U.S. in Viet Nam and perhaps sacrificing reluctance to see West Germany get closer to nuclear arms in NATO.

Erhard, arriving at the week-end, is anxious for political and prestige reasons to get more of a say in NATO's nuclear structure and the problem is whether recent U.S. proposals to fob him off with less will be successful.

BAN POLITICAL LEGACY

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Political parties cannot be heirs, an appeals court ruled, preventing the Italian Communist party from inheriting an estate willed to it. A lawyer who died five years ago left the estate to the Communists to "fight against religious prejudice." The court decided an individual but not a party could be a legal heir.

Medical Team Will Be Sent To Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, winding up talks today with Pakistan's President Mohammad Ayub Khan, has offered to send a team of medical teachers and scientists to Pakistan.

Johnson made the offer Tuesday night at a White House dinner honoring Ayub.

He said the medical team would be led by Dr. Donald F. Hornig, White House science adviser.

Raising his glass in a toast to Ayub, Johnson proclaimed a need to find peace in the world. He called for efforts to conquer "the curses of poverty, hunger, disease, illiteracy, the human and physical problems."

Ayub, in his toast to Johnson, thanked him for the offer of the medical mission and acknowledged that "our relations have to a certain extent been sore." He attributed this to misunderstanding" and said the friendship between the United States and Pakistan "can be—must be—maintained."

After the dinner, Johnson and Ayub had a 35-minute conference in the security quarters of the White House. They were joined by Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Earlier Tuesday, the two presidents had what Ayub described as a frank but friendly private talk about the Pakistan-India Kashmir dispute and Viet Nam.

The White House made known that the Ayub - Johnson talks were closely connected with the forthcoming Tashkent meeting between Ayub and India's Prime Minister Shastri on the viet soil and the Shastri-Johnson meeting to be held here Feb. 1-2.

Pakistan sources said the Tashkent meeting was unlikely to bring any abiding decisions. It would emphasize, however, that the soviet Union has a role. It would like to play in Asian affairs.

Air Agreement To Be Signed Next Month

OTTAWA (CP)—A new Canada-United States air agreement giving Canadian carriers longer and more profitable routes into the U.S. south and west Canada will be signed next month, informants said today.

"The big stumbling blocks are out of the way and only a few small details remain," one informant said.

Negotiations on the agreement began in April, 1964, initiated by Prime Minister Pearson and the late president Kennedy. They decided that the old air principle of limited short hops across the border should be scrapped for a "continental approach."

Within a year negotiators had agreed on 99 per cent of the items, including Air Canada direct flights to Miami, and Los Angeles. Canadian Pacific Airlines would get its first access to U.S. markets with a Vancouver-San Francisco run.

But final signing bogged down when the teams hit a deadlock over routes involving Winnipg, Chicago and Toronto-Montreal services.

Present Canada - U.S. routes were negotiated in 1949 before the coming of long-range jets. They gave U.S. lines access to every major market in Canada but shut Canadian lines out of the growing Miami and western traffic.

New Branches Added by Bank Of Commerce

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce continued to expand its service to customers, and had a "gratifying" increase in the number of savings depositors during the past year, L. G. Greenwood, chief general manager, said Tuesday.

There was a net increase of 41 new branches and banking offices, Mr. Greenwood told the annual meeting of shareholders. The total was 1,375 on October 31, the Bank's year end, including 1,335 in Canada and 40 in other countries.

Total deposits rose by 13.4 per cent to $5,637,000,000.

The Bank's 33 per cent increase in total loans to $2,950,000,000 was distributed through practically all categories of borrowers, both large and small, and reflected the active pace of the economy throughout the year."

The Bank's 90th annual statement showed record highs in all major areas of the Bank's business. Total assets exceeded $6 billion...for the first time to reach a new peak of over $6,208,000,000.

Balance of profits for the year, after provision for income taxes, was $23,203,858, an increase of 8.9 per cent over last year. Earnings per share were $2.64 compared with $2.07 in 1964 and dividends were paid at the rate of $2.45 per share as compared with $2.25 last year. The amount of divided payments increased by $1,393,600 to a total of $17,071,600.

The profit statement, in an item-by-item Canadian bank, showed the main sources of revenue and expenses.

No Problems In Integrating Pension Plans

No problems or requests from civic employees have arisen locally in connection with the introduction of the Canada Pension Plan scheduled for the beginning of the year.

Mr. Les. Jobey, personnel officer at city hall, said today that the Canada Pension plan would be integrated with the present CHERS plan into which employees are now paying.

"The decision is not ours to make," Mr. Jobey said, "the province has decided that the pension plans will be integrated."

Richard Kirby Again Heads Legion Branch

'A Call to Leadership' Theme of Kiwanis Year

President-elect Friedel Bellstedt of Trenton was held his organizational meeting yesterday, outlining the objectives of the club for 1966 and the duties of its members.

"Kiwanis' objectives have been crystallized into a theme," Mr. Bellstedt said, "That theme is "A Call To Leadership."

A large banner behind the speaker carried the new theme in giant letters.

"We have a great reputation of service. The Call To Leadership means we should start filling the outstanding resources we have in being responsible community leaders."

The objectives for 1966 were decided into eight leadership categories, Mr. Bellstedt outlined them:

"The first objective is Leadership for God. To strengthen our belief in God — accord honor and recognition to His principles by the implementation of the human and spiritual values of life in our daily living.

"Our second objective is Leadership for Peace. To reaffirm our dedication to world peace by law, understanding and example.

"Third, Leadership for Freedom. To guarantee every citizen his inherent constitutional rights by enriching our personal heritage of freedom. To regenerate programs which reinforce and magnify the hallowed principles upon which free men have excelled.

"Fourth, Leadership for Country. To participate in community, provincial and national affairs, thereby strengthening individual ideals of democracy as an example to mankind. Support policies protecting American and Canadian sovereignty, security and independence, and maintaining an adequate defence.

"Fifth, Leadership for Government. To understand the principles of Constitutional government, including the rights and obligations of individual states and provinces; and encourage and recognize citizen involvement.

"Sixth, Leadership for Youth. To build for leadership and develop each to his full capacity through the home, church, school, Key Club, Circle K and other worthwhile youth organizations.

"Seventh, Leadership for Free Enterprise. To demonstrate that private enterprise is an integral part of the over-all strength and success of our nations; to oppose all acts and persons advocating surrender of individual responsibility and to observment regulation and dictation.

"Eighth, Leadership for Kiwanis. To expand community service; to enlarge service - minded membership and to develop programs founded on Kiwanis ideals."

The president - elect handed out informative booklets and thanked each committee chairman individually for taking on their respective responsibilities.

"If you challenge to you," he said, "is that 1966 be every Kiwanian's year."

Forty-two candidates were presented to the Bishop by the rector, the Rev. J. A. Dunlop, to receive the laying on of hands. Following the confirmation service the Bishop, assisted by Mrs. J. Utley and Miss Jessie Dobson, presented life membercards to four ladies from St. Margaret's Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. Donald Leeming, Mrs. William Mrees, Mrs. Russell Babcock and Mrs. J. A. Dunlop. The large congregation heard an inspiring sermon by the Bishop to the members of the confirmation class. During the offering the choir sang the Anthem, "Fight the Good Fight," under the direction of Mr. Scott Bradford.

Father Praises Teen-age Daughter for Saving 3 Smaller Children From Fir

BRIGHTON — A father, saddened by the fire of unknown cause that severely damaged the family's home and destroyed all clothing and much of the contents Saturday evening, is grateful for the courage of his teenage daughter in saving three smaller children; the generous help of neighbors and that he can rebuild the site of his home.

Brighton firefighters rushed to the alarm that sounded just before 5 o'clock in the midst of the Christmas Shopping Mall, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Balles Sherman, 42 Harbor Street.

Four of the Sherman children, Donna, 19; Mark, 5; Denis, 4 and a month-old baby Leo were in the home. All three small children were upstairs for their afternoon nap. Donna heard an unusual sound, rushed upstairs, saw the smoke and flames starting, calmly carried the baby, just home from being treated in hospital for pneumonia outside and left them in a car. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman were in Brighton shopping at the time. Heard the alarm and rushed home.

Meanwhile, Donna went back into the house, quickly filled pails with smoke and saved five-year-old Mark. Neighbors arriving saved some of the Sherman belongings but all of their clothing and much of the furnishings of the first floor. Mr. Sherman built largely himself are either charred or smoke damaged.

Mrs. Sherman made an fun-extinguisher attempt to get upstairs and says $250 in cash she had to turn back because of the flames. Despite heavy smoke that poured out of the upstairs, and with flames bursting out the front door, the damage to the frame house was limited to the upper storey.

TRIED TO QUELL FIRE

An older son, Michael, 18, was hunting at the time and as Mr. Sherman went about the disconnecting the electricity from the water out of the basement and starting to clear up the debris inside, he displayed a quiet pride in the acceptance of what had happened Monday. "It could have been worse," he remarked. "Thank goodness all the children got out without being hurt."

After she had taken the children to safety outside, and phoned the Fire Department, Donna filled the bathtub and tried to put out the fire upstairs with pails of water but it had much too headway. She escaped with only singed hair.

Brighton Police Chief Robert Thomson assisted in re-directing traffic and in getting the baby to a neighbor's home quickly as possible.

At present, the Shermans are staying with a cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Lynwood Cooper. The plan soon to move into a home on Armad Dale on the Canal Road, nearby, while Mr. Sherman works on rebuilding the fire damaged house. There was insurance on the house but none on the contents.

Theatre Guild Plans Spring Production

The Belleville Theatre Guild will be producing "Separate Tables" in the early spring in Belleville. Casting for this play will take place shortly and it is hoped that it will be in production before long.

Mrs. Deirdre Warren is to be the director, bringing to the Guild years of experience in every phase of theatre, having acted, directed, produced, designed and even adjudicated.

In Kingston she directed several plays for the Royal Military College and the Domina Players, while previously in England she directed a professional repertory company.

"Separate Tables" is a full length play by Terence Rattigan. It has received sparkling popularity and will present an interesting challenge to the three men and eight women actors and should prove a delight to Belleville theatre - goers.

TOO MUCH WRONG WORK

His number and the newspaper's are the same, so local people get him when they forget to dial the long distance prefix.

Investing in Canada

Premier Robarts spoke some home truths when he addressed more than 1,000 leaders of the food industry from both Canada and the United States in Toronto the other day.

He said Canadians have no one but themselves to blame for the fact that Canada, one of the world's leading industrial and agricultural nations, is an importer both of manufactured products and foodstuffs.

The Ontario premier said it is "symptomatic of the weakness of the Canadian character" that we let others invest in our country and refuse to take risks necessary to develop Canada ourselves.

No truer word has ever been spoken. We are not a people given to taking more than average risks. True, we risk life itself on the highways—but that is only because of a blind love affair with the automobile. But few risk large sums of money in some enterprise that might bring rich returns both to the investor and the country at large. So we leave it to the Americans . . . and it is no use kidding ourselves that they can afford such risks any more than we can. They cannot, but they will take the risk just the same. And if they should lose, they simply start again.

The modern Canadian is obsessed with security, pensions and all the other paraphernalia of the easy life.

Mr. Robarts put it in similar terms. "The Canadian investor," he said, "too often looks for security and is reluctant to take a risk."

And yet, he added, this same investor is disturbed at the thought that someone from outside Canada "is willing to take risks in our country to develop industry or our material resources."

We would not want to see this country becoming completely self-sufficient, even if it were possible. We need imports to balance our own exports, and because the imported product may be preferred to its counterpart manufactured at home. Food products are a good example.

However, so long as the risk-taking, and a preponderance of the investing, is left to the Americans and to a lesser extent European interests, so long will Premier Robarts' claim hold true that Canadians are unable or unwilling to invest in their own country.

Trade Pact

The announcement that Britain and the Irish Republic are going to merge their economies in a free trade area should make for better relations all round between the two.

After three centuries of political strife, the old animosities are fading. The new trading pact is merely the logical conclusion of steadily improving relations between London and Dublin.

Since agriculture is the base of the Irish economy, policy-making will naturally will figure prominently in whatever arrangements are being made between the two countries.

Industrially, too the republic has been making rapid strides. As in Northern Ireland, overseas investment is being encouraged. The establishment of new factories has helped the steady loss of manpower that accrued from large-scale emigration. Others, who had already emigrated, have returned to the homeland as new plants and jobs became available.

Ireland, even today, suffers from its old image of poverty and backwardness. North Americans still cannot rid themselves of the pigs-in-the-parlor image of the Emerald Isle. They are surprised even to find Irish homes have electricity and running water, but too often their worst suspicions are confirmed when they visit some remote rural region and ignore the development that is taking place in towns and cities.

In any event, the new link between Britain and the Irish Republic will mean new prosperity for both. And that is all to the good.

Winter Recreation

The Toronto Boulevard Club is one of several clubs in Ontario which are spearheading a drive to provide winter recreation and exercise for community youngsters.

Every weekend more than 50 youngsters, ranging in age from nine to 16, turn out at the Boulevard Club to receive professional coaching in badminton. However, before they get to play a game, the young people limber up with 15 minutes' trotting around the court. This is followed by instruction in footwork and handling of the racquet.

Coach Jim Cameron, a former RCAF physical education instructor, feels that badminton is one of the best conditioners in the sports world, and points to the fact that more than 1,200 Toronto-area youngsters are learning the game.

Three other Toronto clubs, as well as clubs in Oakville, Orillia and Niagara Falls, where instruction is being given, testify to this renewed interest in winter recreation for Canadian youngsters.

To Your Good Health

Bed-wetting Results From Various Causes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A magazine article described the use of a drug for the treatment of bed-wetting. Do you think this is safe for a 9 year-old boy? — Mrs. A. P.

The drug you named in your letter is a tranquilizer, and other kinds of tranquilizers could be useful, too — if the particular case requires such treatment.

I certainly won't say dogmatically that this is the right treatment for a 9-year-old boy, because I don't know the boy. You have to let your doctor decide that, and the dosage, if any. However, a recent report of a rather limited number of children treated in this way, showed that quite a few were helped.

Keep in mind, though, that bed-wetting has numerous causes, some anatomical, (see next question) some due to infection, or to nervous disorders, or psychological factors — anger, rejection, resentment, etc.

The problem can be vexing for both child and parents, and lead to a vicious circle of scolding and blubbering while makes the whole situation worse.

In exactly the right case, tranquilizers may relax tissues, but if something other than emotional tension is the cause, they obviously won't help.

For a grasp of, the various approaches, read my booklet, "Enuresis — 101 Ways to Stop Bed-Wetting." For a copy, send 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Doctor: When we were stationed overseas, the chief of pediatrics examined our boy who is five and found him to be normal but a bed-wetter nonetheless. He explained that doctors are coming to a conclusion that this cause isn't always psychological but that a small bladder can be a factor. Would you comment on this? — J. H.

So I repeat: It isn't always the same cause. Yes, a "small bladder," or one that has not yet "learned to expand," can be a factor. Considerable study in this direction has been made, and in that type of case, training brings results. The child is urged to retain urine as long as possible before voiding. The amount voided is measured and recorded.

A capacity of 10 to 15 ounces should be achieved, but it may take weeks or even months, of effort, depending on the severity of the problem. The training requires co-operation and patience on the part of both child and parents, but in time the child's capacity for retention increases until presently there is no difficulty at night.

At risk of being a bore, let me say yet once again: The various perfectly good answers to this problem succeed only when the right ones are applied to the corresponding causes.

You may need expert diagnosis to reveal which cause is present.

Dear Dr. Molner: An article from Japan said recently that the bust now can be increased in size in a matter of minutes by injection of plastic. I am any additional information you have on this type of procedure. — Mrs. H. D.

From the standpoint of both economy and safety, I suggest conventional methods instead: Correct posture, putting on a bit of weight, padding if you still so desire. The procedure, as done in Japan, is duplicated by plastic surgeons in this country. But I want a lot more information about it before I will consider recommending it. What happens later in life as weight and figure change? What effect, in time, can there be from continued presence of abnor m al material in the tissues? If women choose to take the risk, it will have to be on their own responsibility, and not with my compliance.

Sleep in whichever way is most comfortable.

Atomic War Is Always a Possibility

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader in California wants to know what I meant by a passing reference in a recent column to the "Nth Country Problem." This is a term widely used by scientists and technicians in discussing the possibility of atomic war breaking out. The "Nth Country Problem" means that the probability of any nation using atomic devices increases as more countries become able to make these devices.

If two autos, for instance, are alone on a highway, the chance of an accident between them is slight. It becomes greater with three or four or five cars; finally with enough cars on the highway, accident becomes statistically inevitable. This is the "Nth Country Problem" in atomic warfare.

How is it possible to dissuade or prevent more and more nations from making the bomb? It is only a matter of time and money before most of them will be able to do so; the scientific knowledge is common property. There are no "atomic secrets," because science is international and cares nothing for flags or ideologies or borders. Given the technical resources, there is no country which cannot stockpile its own supply of atomic bombs.

In this precarious "peace" under which the world lives, from day to day, it is obviously vital (in the true sense of the word) that the smaller nations be restrained from the use of force — because the accidental spread of small wars can easily lead to a large-scale nuclear confrontation which would involve all of us.

But how can the larger nations counsel the smaller ones to refrain from force, and use UN peace machinery, when the larger ones don't heed their own advice? How can a parent or teacher of a child not to strike out in anger when the parent or teacher himself is striking out at the same time?

When U.S. advises Israel and Jordan to stop bickering, or when Russia attempts to mediate the conflict between India and Pakistan, those countries tend to be skeptical and scornful of peace-making efforts. If a show of force is "right" for the big powers, then the smaller powers cannot be dissuaded from strong-arm methods.

The annual cost of world armaments has soared to $120 billions — which is 50 percent higher than a UN estimate of three years ago. The U.S. and Russian account for more than four-fifths of the world's military spending. All the other nations put together spend only 20 percent as much as we and the Russians do for arms. How can we keep the "Nth Country" off the road while the first and second countries are speeding down the highway to death?

Poor Winter In Prairies

Winnipeg Tribune

This winter's got off to a bad start.

Although there have been fairly consistent snowfalls, the quality of the stuff is poor. It's soft and moist like the cheap snow one finds in the Laurentians and Switzerland.

No. 1 Prairie Snow should be hard, crisp and squeaky.

The frost level is disappointing too. So far we've only managed to register about 40 degrees of freezing. This damages our image abroad and eliminates us from the front page of the Miami Herald which likes to inform our expatriates that it's "minus 60 in Winnipeg."

At this rate we won't have any expatriates for there will be nothing to boast about in the deep South.

It took us generations to perfect central heating, storm windows, anti-freeze, booster batteries, moccasins and kids' parkas . . . and now the weather lets us down. This is a severe test for the remnants of our pioneer spirit. We've just got to hang on and hope that one of these days we'll get some real old-fashioned winter. Of course, we'll be running out of gas to run the cars, and we've got only six months left.

A Hell of A Situation!

Detroit Free Press

—The consensus wasn't complete, but prevailing opinion at the Midwest Faith at Work Conference held in Royal Oak was that a man can say "hell" or "damn" and still be a good Christian.

In fact there was some support for a view that a slight sailing of the language can be desirable. The gist here was that there is such a thing as being too prissy for the good of either man or his cause.

One thought contributed was that "hell" and "damn" are more slang than profanity, anyway.

Here we would demur. As commonly used, the words are more in the punctuation than slang particularly the exclamation point.

In any case, we are with the conference in its view that a discriminating use of the debated words doesn't undermine a man's Christian posture. It did, the Christian faith would have damned few members in good standing.

Dakotas Just Go on and on

Watertown Times

Remember the ancient C-47 Dakota transport? Thirty years ago as the DC-3 she was the last word in airline travel. Twenty-five years ago she began a fabulous career of carrying everything from paratroops to supplies across everything from the Burma hump to the Alaskan panhandle.

By all rights, she probably should be in the Smithsonian Institution. But she isn't. Rather, 20 of these planes, all completely overhauled and painted in motley drab green and beige camouflage — the way they were dressed in World War II — are now the "latest" attack planes of the U.S. air force in the Viet Nam war. And guess what is their fire-power consists of? Three machine guns, each with a revolving cluster of barrels, similar to the weapon designed by R. J. Gatling nearly a century ago.

The 20-plane squadron, which has been in the process of formation for nearly a year, will be used throughout South Viet Nam to supplement strike aircraft and to provide long - endurance escort convoys. The pilot zeroes in by dipping a wing of his lumbering aircraft toward the target, squints through a World War II type gun sight; wrestles the cumbersome C-47 into position; and presses the gun button on his control wheel.

Then things start happening. Three exteriorated 10th century Gatling machine guns spew out 7.62 mm. rounds of ammunition at the rate of 6,000 a minute.

The major disadvantage of this aged C-47 is that it is vulnerable because of its slow speed. Therefore, it must remain at least above the 2,000-foot level. But the key advantage is that she can carry a tremendous amount of ammunition and remain airborne far longer than any fighter.

If the air force can be so successful with these relics of World War II aircraft, don't be surprised if you hear the navy is utilizing a rejuvenated vessel of the era of the Monitor and Merrimack.

In Praise of Modern Youth

Victoria Times

He says that the young people of today, widely criticized as they are by their elders, may turn out to be the finest generation ever.

"This generation is giving a new quality to mankind," he says. "They have basic beliefs of what is right and wrong and they have the courage to support these beliefs.

"They are operating from basic principles rather than the emotionalism that has decorated much of the young prankisterism in the past."

The adult critic of that point of view can immediately cite innumerable instances in which individuals in the "Beatnik" generation of youngsters have conducted themselves in a way that parallelizes them entirely from membership in "the best generation ever."

Schools Retain the Strap

Hamilton Spectator

When the board of education decided the other day to retain the strap in Hamilton schools, trustees took a step in the direction of some alternative means of keeping discipline, but sometimes the strap was the only way.

This probably sums up the feelings of the majority of intelligent people. No one would want to go back to the hard, long-ago days when the sound of the paddle and yells of the victim made the rest of the class tremble with fear.

The old delimma remains: How to maintain order when authority is stripped of potential powers of reprisal, except those which are mean and petty? To put a teacher in the invidious position of having reasonable power without authority is not only unjust, it is unrealistic. If schools exist only to teach, and produce the same effect. How, for example, a teacher should deal with an insolent, bullying 15-year-older imbued with the sneering "Who cares?" attitude?

The board of education acted wisely in retaining the strap, not as a weapon of terror for the well-behaved — they do not need it — but for the minority where reason fails and authority must make a firm gesture.

Group Studying Advisability Of Disbanding City Boards Hears Parking Body and PUC

The special committee of city council appointed to inquire into certain city boards and commissions will report to council next week, but is not expected to make any recommendations at this year.

This was indicated by Alderman Geo. J. Soden, chairman of the special committee, at the conclusion of a meeting held at city hall when submissions for and against disbanding of the parking authority and other boards were heard.

Ald. Soden said there were still other boards and commissions to hear from and these would be investigated before any recommendations was made to council. However, a report would be made to the next Monday's meeting of council.

Other members of the special committee were Alderman Ben Corke, who several weeks ago in council brought up the subject of disbanding the parking authority, and Ald. Thomas Carruthers.

At last night's meeting submissions from the city parking authority and from the Public Utilities Commission were heard urging retention of both boards.

All three members of the parking authority along with several members of the Downtown Merchant's Association spoke in favor of retaining the parking body.

BEING MADE GOAT?

One speaker claimed the parking authority was being made the "goat" of the inquiry.

In support of this claim an address by Mr. Casey, general manager - development; and G.N. Scott, general manager - credit.

Established as a new Montreal division, with D. R. Peters as general manager, and G. A. Rhoades as assistant general manager, was also announced.

Queen Salote Of Tonga Dies, Was Diabetic

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) Queen Salote of Tonga died here today. She was 65.

The queen arrived in Auckland early last month for what was said to be an annual medical checkup.

She was arrived in Auckland, the towering, 280-pound queen was lowered from the plane by a forklift truck. She was admitted to a private hospital earlier this week.

The Tonga government's agent in Auckland, H. F. Reynolds, said the queen's original illness was diabetes. A later condition in a leg which was diagnosed as a type of cancer came to light and she was flown to Auckland for treatment.

Last Sunday she was admitted to the hospital because of chest complications and pleurisy, he said.

Six-foot-three-inch Queen Salote Tupou became almost a legend in the Tongan or Friendly islands after she succeeded her father on the throne in 1918.

Queen Salote was largely unknown to the outside world until she attended Queen Elizabeth's coronation in June 2, 1953. Huge crowds cheered the beaming Queen as she drove through the rain with the top of her coach down so all the people could see her.

Tonga, in the southern Pacific, some 300 miles east of Fiji, has an area of 269 square miles and a population of about 67,000.

"And I suggest it never should be," he said.

SAID A MODEL

He said the Belleville Parking Authority had established itself as a parking authority, claiming that only generalities had been presented.

Alderman Corke, whose motion to disband the parking authority several weeks ago touched off the investigation, said there were times when he felt boards and commissions did not represent the feelings of the taxpayers.

COUNCIL DIMINISHED

City council, he said, was elected by the governing body of the city but over the years authority had been delegated [illegible] tion said his organization felt the parking authority had done a fine job, and urged that it be retained.

He said it was important that the public be provided with the best off-street parking possible.

Presenting the brief of the Belleville Utilities Commission, Chairman Gerald Hyde claimed that hydro commissions over the years had proven themselves efficient operating bodies and that they should be retained "for all time."

He said if utilities commissions were taken over by the city there would be the danger of councils increasing hydro and water rates in order to get more tax revenue.

Mayor J. R. Ellis outlined the reasons for formation of the special investigating committee, which, he said, was being asked to report back to council and the general membership.

The mayor quoted excerpts from the Beckett legislative select committee which he said had stressed the importance of councils having complete jurisdiction. This committee recommended the abolishing of public utilities commissions and other boards.

NO LOCAL CRITICISM

At the same time Mayor Ellis stressed that there was no local criticism of the Utilities Commission, Parking Authority and other boards which, in his opinion, had done a good job.

However, he said he was concerned about the principle council appointed boards having the power to spend tax money raised by elected councillors.

Alderman - elect Dr. J. Russell Scott, told the meeting that it was possible for appointed boards and commissions to become remote from the taxpayers and urged that where legal a city alderman sit on all boards. This he said, would result in council having more control over expenditures.

Although he was not present at the meeting, a brief from Alderman Don Jose was read supporting the idea of disbanding appointed boards and commissions.

Alderman Don Whalen asked for specific reasons for disbanding the parking authority, claiming that only generalities had been presented.

Alderman Corke, whose motion to disband the parking authority several weeks ago touched off the investigation, said there were times when he felt boards and commissions did not represent the feelings of the taxpayers.

Would Cut Canada's Force In Gaza Strip

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada's force in the Middle East would be cut by 131 men under a money-saving proposal aimed at reducing by 5% the total strength of the UN emergency force patrolling the Gaza Strip.

The reduction of the force, now totalling 4,579 from seven nations, was recommended in a survey team report which Secretary-General U Thant presented Tuesday to the General Assembly.

The reduction would be part of a streamlining of the Gaza Strip operation and could result in a saving of about $3,500,000 annually, said the report.

The force was sent to the Middle East in the 1956 Suez crisis to separate the invading British and French forces, from Egyptians and to serve as a buffer between the hostile forces of Israel and Egypt.

Canada's contingent in the Middle East has remained practically unchanged in number in the last three years. The emergency force had a peak strength of 6,815 men from 10 nations.

Canada now has 982 men in the emergency force. Under the proposed changes, the Canadian contingent would consist of 851.

Goldie Again On the Lam From Zoo

LONDON (Reuters) — Goldie the golden eagle, which intrigued Londoners with its antics for 12 days after escaping from a zoo in February, is on the lam again.

As Goldie's keeper was leaving the cage today, the male bird flew to freedom in an escape which was almost a carbon copy of his first break-out.

Moments after his flight today, the eagle was stretching his six-foot wingspan to nearby Regent's Park, one of his favorite haunts and the scene of the final act of his first breakout when he was lured into the hands of his keepers with a tempting rabbit breakfast.

Swiss Women Not All Agreed They Should Have Right to Vote

By EDITH FUCHS

ZURICH (Reuters) — Swiss women are fighting one another over whether they should have the right to vote.

The century - old controversy has flared up anew in the rich, modern canton of Zurich, in the north of the country.

It was brought back into the limelight earlier this year by women themselves, members of the Alliance of Swiss Women's Clubs.

The clubs, chief campaigners for equality of women with men, submitted a resolution to the cantonal government urging it to give voting rights to the women in its population of 253,000.

At present women may vote in only three of Switzerland's 22 cantons — Geneva, Vaud and Neuchatel, all in the French speaking West.

The Zurich cantonal government replied that it would pass on the resolution to the cantonal parliament for discussion this fall.

Then the opposition raised its voice.

The Association of Swiss Women Against Women's Suffrage, in opposition to the Alliance of Swiss Women's Clubs, said the alliance's resolution was not supported by all its member clubs. Many of these, they added, were just social, sports, cultural and other organizations, and did not favor votes for women.

The anti-suffrage association then asked the cantonal government to ask women in the canton to see if they really wanted the voting right before imposing it on them.

The anti-suffrage women argue the vote would simply mean an additional burden on women, especially as Switzerland's constitutional structure is liable to call citizens to the polls every few weeks to decide some issue. Women, in any case, they add, exercise an influence in politics indirectly through their husbands, sons and brothers.

As for Swiss men, they have decided in some 20 cantonal referendums since 1920, by an overwhelming majority, that they do not wish to share their political privileges with the country's more than 2,000,000 women.

As long ago as 1833, the women of the canton of Bern were granted the right to vote if they had independent possessions. But in 1887, the right was withdrawn on the ground that it discriminated against women of no riches.

Switzerland's constitution does not specifically exclude women from the voting. It merely mentions "all citizens"—which has traditionally been interpreted as "men only."

Ten years ago, the women of Zurich were asked whether they really wanted the right to vote. The result showed that 28.8 per cent favored full voting rights, 30.7 per cent only wanted to vote on matters of particular interest to them, such as education, and 19.3 per cent said they did not want to vote.

This result has become a strong argument for those opposed to votes for women.

Reports Given At Hastings Manor W.A.

On Monday of this week the Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings Manor met for the monthly business meeting and birthday party.

The president, Mrs. A. Daniels, conducted the business with all committee reports given. The secretary Mrs. M. Nobes gave her annual report on the activities of the auxiliary during the past year. Mrs. Gilburn also presented the yearly treasurer's report which showed a gratifying financial balance.

It was unanimously decided to have a New Year's party for the residents on December 29th as has been the custom in the past. It is requested that as many ladies as possible attend and make this evening a happy one for the residents.

The birthday cake and lunch for the month of January will be provided through the kindness of the Soroptomist Club. They will also send out the annual birthday cards to the residents for that month.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the members met with the residents in the dining room for their birthday party. The tea table was attractively decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and a few carols were sung with Mrs. Prentice at the piano.

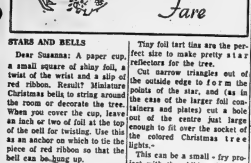
The ladies formed the customary circle around the guests and sang the birthday song. The beautiful cake was cut by the eldest guest present, Mrs. Mary Bremner who was celebrating her 92nd birthday, and pictures were taken.

Tea was poured by Mrs. F. G. Reed and Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson while everyone enjoyed lunch and a social time.

MISS PHYLLIS MAY, DIRECTOR

Choral Group Will Present TV Program

Music lovers of Belleville are soon to have another opportunity to enjoy a performance by the Belleville Choral Society. Elliott Motors (Belleville) Ltd. are sponsoring the choir in a half hour program to be televised over C.K.W.S. - T.V. Kingston on December 21st, at 5.30 p.m.



The Belleville Choral Society, under the direction of Miss Phyllis May and Mr. S. Alec Gordon as accompanist, will sing selections in keeping with the Advent Season. The assistant soloists are Mrs. R. Riedel, Mrs. J. Smerdra and Miss R. Robertson.

An aura of excitement envelops their members not only as they look forward to their T.V. debut but they will be appearing in the Choir's "official costume" for the first time.

The Belleville Choral Society was founded by its Director, Miss Phyllis May, in 1958 and has presented fine performances of Handel's "Messiah" and Mendelssohn's "Elijah" as well as a sacred recital.

This season's T.V. performance marks another interesting diversion for the choir.

Susanna's Family Fare

STARS AND BELLS

Dear Susanna: A paper cup, a small square of shiny foil, a twist of the wrist and a slip of red ribbon. Result? Miniature Christmas bells to string around the room or decorate the tree. When you cover the cup, leave an inch or two of foil at the top of the roll for twisting. Use this as an anchor on which to tie the piece of red ribbon so that the bell can be hung up.

It may be necessary to drive a small nail into the plaster here or there when decorating, but first of all, cover the spot with a transparent tape, and then drive the nail right through the centre of the tape. This will usually keep any plaster from cracking.

Tiny foil tart tins are the perfect size to make pretty star reflectors for the tree.

Cut narrow triangles out of the outside edge to form the points of the star, and (as in the case of the larger foil containers and plates) cut a hole out of the centre just large enough to fit over the point of the colored Christmas tree lights.

This can be a small - fry project with the child making his own design. One variation is to bend the alternate star points backwards or forwards to make a petalled flower effect.

Just watch how mischief-eyed he will get when you turn on the lovely lights and he sees the beauty of his handiwork.—Mrs. C. Chambers.

Church Groups

ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.L.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Joseph's C.W.L. was held in the parish hall on Monday. The president, Mrs. D. Dunjois, welcomed the ladies and Msgr. Carley opened the meeting with prayer. In keeping with the Christmas spirit a beautiful manger scene and Christmas tree decorated the stage.

A short business meeting took place, at which time the president on behalf of St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League presented Msgr. Carley with a cheque for the parish funds. He thanked the ladies for their co-operation and many hours of work in the interests of the parish.

Mrs. Beirne introduced Mrs. P. Wall, an accomplished pianist, who rendered several selections on the piano and led the members in the singing of Christmas carols.

A jolly Santa handed out the gaily wrapped Christmas gifts after which the ladies enjoyed playing bingo.

Yule Decor Displayed At Meeting

An informal discussion of the making of Christmas decorations and novelties formed the program for the December meeting of Belleville Horticultural Society held Monday evening at Moira Secondary School.

A display of favorite Yuletide decorations made by Society members was displayed and the construction of each was explained by its maker. Decorations exhibited included home-crafted candles, Christmas trees made of tree boughs and tooth-pick studded Styrofoam balls, driftwood arrangements decked for the holiday season with angel hair snow, and an old glass kerosene lamp fitted with a candle and filled with small Christmas tree balls instead of oil.

Posters submitted by members of the junior section were judged by a committee appointed at the meeting. Winners in the senior class, "the story of a tree" were Walter Watson, Eilen Puch, Stephen Bokko and Stephen George. Awards in the Junior class, "the life of a flower" were won by Donna Mae Cowan and Jim Watson.

Ann Landers' Attachment to Momma's Boy Not Normal

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I married a man eight years my junior. After four years of trying desperately to make him happy, our marriage is on the rocks. Our daughter is two now and I'm hoping to save the situation for her sake.

We didn't have a fight. He simply told me he was taking his clothes to his mother's house and wasn't coming back. When I asked him why, he replied, "I am too immature to face the responsibilities of marriage. I want to live with my mother."

ANN LANDERS

That was three months ago. He telephones every few days and comes to dinner every Sunday. I have refused support money because I am financially independent. I love him and I need him. Please tell me how to make this marriage work. — MRS. P.R.E.

DEAR MRS. P.R.E.: You can't force a mama's boy to be a husband. This juvenile has told you he wants no part of marriage and if you're smart you'll take his word for it.

Since you are financially independent, spend some of your money on a psychiatrist and find out why you love this loser. A normal attachment this isn't.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just learned that the armed services will not take a man who has a prison record and I'm burned up. Why should the undesirable characters enjoy privileges of living in this great country and not have to sacrifice anything?

My sons both served in World War II. The older boy was wounded at Normandy. The younger boy picked up shrapnel in the South Pacific. When I think of the sacrifices made by millions of fine young men while the ex-cons sat out the war at home and made big money, it makes me furious. And now, it's happening again.

What do you have to say about this? — M.M.M.

DEAR M.M.M.: Serving one's country is a privilege, not a punishment. When a man is convicted of a felony he loses many of his rights as a citizen and the privilege of wearing the uniform is one of those rights.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the past two years I have sent you four well-written letters. Not one of them was published in your column.

I am sick of writing letters to you and not seeing my letters in the paper. This letter will be my last. — A DISGUSTED READER FROM MULBERRY POINT.

DEAR DISGUSTED: I am glad you wrote one more time because it gives me the chance to say something I would like to get across, not only to you, but to others who have similar complaints.

My column is not a billboard for people who want to tell off their friends and/or relatives. You say you are disgusted with me because I did not print your letters. Experience proves you did not really want advice, you just wanted to get your side of the story in the paper.

The primary purpose of my column is to offer service. Every week thousands of people who want help send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and they receive personal replies in the mail. Be my guest.

Confidential to SICK OF BEING STOOD UP: Some people accept invitations in good faith but when the time comes they are not up to going. It is best not to count on a person who has "folded out at the last moment on three occasions" as a fourth for bridge or a dinner partner for an extra man. But do be compassionate and continue to invite her to your larger parties.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Maxwell, R.R. 1, Stirling, announce the engagement of their daughter, Beverly Ann, to Mr. Donald John Hendrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hendrick, Foxboro. The marriage will take place on Saturday, January 15, at 12.00 noon, in Grace Chapel, Stirling.

Mrs. E. Baragar, Octavia Street has returned home from hospital having recently undergone surgery.

Mrs. Clayton Burkitt of Springbrook is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital pending surgery.

Mrs. Henry Maracle is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Ladies' Club Views Films Of Europe

The Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club held the regular monthly meeting recently at the Recreation Centre with an attendance of 26 members and four visitors.

The president, Mrs. Baird, opened the meeting and all joined in the singing of a favorite Christmas carol.

Several were unable to be present due to illness and these included Mesdames Kaiser, Sharpe, McCoy and Dempsey. Letters, of thanks were read by Mrs. Pierson from Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Cunningham. Plants and chocolates will be sent to the shut-ins. A $5 donation will be given to Mrs. Pierson to be used in her work as corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Bedell's Mrs. Trumpour's group will conduct the January meeting. Minutes of the November meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Mitchell, and the financial report was given by Mrs. L. Dye, treasurer. A donation of $15 by a special collection was given to Hoadley Farmer, and Mrs. Bernat of the Salvation Army, who were present at the meeting.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Farnsworth introduced Brigadier Bernat and Mrs. Burnett who are in charge of Salvation Army work in Belleville. During the Second War, Mr. Bernat served with the Canadian Auxiliary Forces. Many interesting pictures of the Centenary Gathering held in London, England, were shown. The guests had attended this function last summer and later went on a tour of Europe. Attending also were Salvationists from 46 countries united in spirit if not in language.

A number of pictures were shown among which were the International Staff Joy Strings Band; scenery while on a boat trip on the Thames River, scenes of London Bridge; the Tower of London; Big Ben and the Houses of Parliament.

The speaker also said that while there they attended the unveiling of a bust of the founder of the Salvation Army, Commander William Booth. This was performed by his grandson exactly 100 years after its founding.

Mrs. Baird and Mrs. Bedell both expressed thanks to Brigadier Bernat and Mrs. Bernat for the showing of pictures and the excellent commentary.

All enjoyed the potluck luncheon provided by the members. A pleasant social time followed.

REGINA (CP)—There is the usual festive tree, bright decorations and tasty-wrapped parcels but Christmas at the Perkin's home here this year just won't be the same.

Barbara Perkin is having a difficult time trying to make Christmas the usual happy time for her five children—Leslie, 12; Jack 10, Janet 6, Gilbert, 5, and two-year-old Albert.

Two months ago Mrs. Perkin received word her husband, Cpl. Vernon J. Perkin, 37, one of three Canadians serving with the International Control Commission in Vietnam, was missing when a courier aircraft disappeared while on a flight from Vientiane to Hanoi.

"It's hard to make plans for Christmas" Mrs. Perkin said in an interview. "I'm not looking forward to it but we must do our best for the children."

Mrs. Perkin now has only faint hope that her husband survived.

CHILDREN 'BOUNCED BACK'

The children took the news badly but they "bounced back quickly as children do," Mrs. Perkin said.

Cpl. Perkin, who served with the Black Watch Regiment, was transferred here three years ago from Camp Gagetown, N.B., after spending 10 years in the Maritimes.

Financially, the family is not suffering. Cpl. Perkin's pay is coming regularly and the family is staying on indefinitely in the home, provided for army personnel.

"The evenings are the hardest part of the day. It's the time when the children are asleep, the housework is done and when one is left alone with one's thoughts."

Women May Attempt to Avoid Rules

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal government plans to make housewives look after Canada Pension Plan contributions on behalf of their help generated enough steam to blow the head off a pressure cooker Tuesday night, it was reported by the Province, Vancouver's morning newspaper, indicated women may attempt to avoid the rules.

The regulations say that anyone hiring cleaning women, baby-sitters, gardeners and the like, must deduct 1.8 per cent of the employees pay and contribute a like amount to the plan if the domestics earn more than $1.45 a week.

Mrs. Theresa Galloway, former president of the Provincial Council of Women commented "We'll wiggle out . . . it will be cheating . . . but the whole thing is silly."

Mrs. Alex Forst, wife of the West Vancouver recve, called the regulations "a sneaky way of finding out how much the domestics earn."

Mrs. J. A. Balfour, wife of a doctor, said the law is "unthinkable" and would be circumvented by hiring two cleaning women instead of one.

Mrs. Carrie Cates, mayor of North Vancouver, said the government is having "all these pension plan troubles . . . but this is simply ridiculous."

Rebekahs Are Hosts At Party

Quinteа Rebakah Lodge was host at a Christmas party for family and friends of the officers and members on Tuesday evening.

The hall was decorated with the traditional Christmas tree and with tall white standards of holly and Christmas flowers.

The program consisted of carols led by the officers dressed in Biblical gowns. Pupils of the Brenda Branscombe school of dancing provided several numbers.

Following the program, a pot-luck supper was served in the upper hall.

A large outdoor Santa Claus figure was on display. A draw was held on the figure and proceeds will go to the Cancer, Polio and Tuberculosis Fund. Brother Norris Easton held the lucky ticket.

Those in charge of arrangements for the evening were thanked by Sister Jill Empey, Noble Grand.

Now is the time to use your star-shaped mould for Emerald Star Salad. Today Mary Moore gives you the recipe for it and Christmas Creole Turkey to serve at a party.

CHRISTMAS BUFFET SALAD

Slightly hysterical laughter accompanied the opening of the mail. "I am planning a Christmas buffet . . ." "Would you give me a menu for a different buffet party for Christmas . . ." "Mary help! I have run out of ideas for a Christmas party for our crowd."

Today's buffet ideas are for these hostesses and others planning festivities.

EMERALD STAR SALAD

1 6-oz. package lime jelly powder (or two 3 oz.), 2 cups boiling water, 2 cups cold water, 1 teaspoon plain gelatine, 1 4-oz. package white cream cheese (room temperature), ¼ cup finely chopped walnuts or pecans, 1 11-oz. can Mandarin oranges, well drained, 1 cup thinly sliced inner celery.

Soak the plain gelatine in ¼ cup of the cold water 5 minutes. In a medium-large bowl dissolve jelly powder in boiling water. Stir in soaked gelatin until dissolved. Stir in remaining 1¾ cups cold water. Chill in refrigerator until partially set. In a small bowl cream the cheese. Using 1 teaspoon as your measure, form cheese into balls rolling between your palms. Then roll in chopped walnuts. Gently fold cheese balls, drained Mandarin orange sections and celery into partially set jelly. Turn into 12-quart star-shaped ring mould and chill. If desired, serve with

Fruit Cream Dressing

(Could be in glass in centre of ring mould), 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 cup canned pear or pineapple juice, juice and grated rind 1 lemon, 1 cup 32% cream, whipped. Mix all but cream, and stir over boiling water until thick. Chill. Just before serving fold in whipped cream.

CHRISTMAS "CREOLE TURKEY" (or chicken, serves 8)

½ cup butter, 1 onion, thinly sliced, 1 green pepper, cut in thin strips, ¼ cup thinly-sliced celery, 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, one 20-oz. can tomatoes, 1 6-oz. can of tomato paste, ½ teaspoon horseradish, drained, 2 cups cut-up cooked turkey or chicken, 1 10-oz. can sliced mushrooms, drained (or ½ lb. sliced, scrubbed mushrooms sauteed 2 minutes in 2 tablespoons butter).

Melt butter in large saucepan. Add onion, green pepper and celery; fry gently until limp but not brown. Stir in flour, salt and paprika. Gradually stir in tomatoes and tomato paste; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Add and mix in horseradish. Stir in turkey and drained mushrooms and reheat. Delicious served on fluffy parsleyed rice.

BAN SMOKY SONG

MANCHESTER (CP) — The Roulettes pop group has been banned from singing their latest hit on a television show because the song is about smoking. Cigarette advertising has been banned on British television and the show's producers say they are just following company rules because the Roulettes' theme is "so much like a cigarette commercial."

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Baked Ham Slice; Parsleyed Potatoes; Creamed Cauliflower; Individual Bowl Salads; Sliced Cucumber, Sliced Green Pepper, Carrot Sticks, Radish Roses; Canned Pear Halves filled with Lemon Sherbet; Tea.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Yule Banquet

MARMORA — The Senior Citizens of Marmora and District held a Christmas dinner in the Memorial Hall on Thursday, when around 40 members and guests attended.

Tables were beautifully decorated and a dinner complete with turkey and traditional Christmas fare was served. Ladies of St. Andrew's U.C.W. waited on table. Miss Miriam Savage represented the village and brought season's greetings.

A program followed the dinner when Mrs. Florence Flake led Mrs. Peter Brawley on to a humorous skit. Christmas carols were sung and readings were given by Mrs. John McKeown, Mrs. F. Sweet and Mrs. Fluke Sr.

Exchange of gifts followed and a collection of gifts was sent to Belleville to be distributed to mental hospital patients.

Successful Living

Should Sleepwalker Consult Psychiatrist?

DEAR DORIS: I'm at my wits' end. I talk in my sleep, sit up, walk, laugh and moan in my sleep. My husband thinks I should see a psychiatrist. He feels there is something troubling me. What do you think?

Another question is, what do you think of a person who yells at you to stop smiling and when you don't smile yells at you for not? This is my employer. I work as a receptionist and was told to be pleasant and cheerful, but how can I when he is like this?

He has no manners whatsoever. If I'm typing at my desk he would come and perpetually push me into the typewriter without even saying excuse me. — BEWILDERED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR BEWILDERED: If the sleepwalking is not related to eating pickles — could it be pickle-face that's eating you?

Digestive troubles cause restless slumbers; and so do disagreeable humans, especially if they have some authority over us!

Get a diagnosis from your own doctor first. I'd say a new job was indicated, rather than a psychiatrist.

DEAR DORIS: Is there any deodorant which can be used for the feet which helps in the prevention of odor? Besides washing your socks, nylons, and feet regularly, is there anything which will help? I also wash my sneakers. — STINKY FEET.

DEAR S.F.: One thing, the sneakers aren't helping any, as rubber soles tend to make feet perspire. Pure glycerine may serve as an anti-perspirant, or an application of a 5% solution of formalin in water, to harden the skin.

Dusting powder in stockings and shoes is also worth trying.

This presumes that perspiration is at the root of the unseemly scent. But your doctor might find some type of foot trouble which is causing the odor — and he should be consulted.

DEAR DORIS: I am 20 and am going around with a guy 27. He has told me he was serious about me more than once. He doesn't seem to be interested in other girls because he doesn't date any other girls that I know.

I went to a party with him the other night and he was with me about a quarter of the time. The rest of the time he was going around drinking. So he is the way home he got sick.

I feel if he likes me he should have enough respect for me to spend more time with me. Should I have it out with him? — HURT.

DEAR HURT: By all means. Some people are just plain thoughtless, and some don't know their manners; others are incurably inconsiderate. He deserves to know how you feel and a chance to improve; you deserve to know what kind of a man you are dating.

DEAR DORIS: Please tell me the proper way to congratulate a couple just married. — ETTA KETT.

DEAR ETTA: To the man, you say, "Congratulations!" To the lady: "I hope you will be very happy." You don't congratulate the lady because this might imply that you were patting her on the back for running after her man until he caught her.

* * *

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

PARIS (Reuters)—The wives of President Charles de Gaulle and Francois Mitterrand, his left-wing challenger in the final ballot of the French presidential election Dec. 19 keep strictly out of the political limelight.

So do the president's son and daughter, the Mitterrand children are still at school.

Here are portraits of the ladies behind the two presidential contenders:

Petite Mme. de Gaulle, affectionately nicknamed Aunt Yvonne, first met Charles de Gaulle when he upset a cup of tea over her dress in a tearoom. He was a young officer. They were married a few months later, in April, 1921.

Mme. de Gaulle, blue-eyed, short and plump, looks even smaller than she is when she stands beside her immensely tall hulband.

Born Yvonne Vendroux, she was the daughter of a Calais cookie manufacturer.

In the dark days of the Second World War, she escaped to Britain in a cargo boat to join General de Gaulle in London, where he raised the flag of the Free French Movement. She went with him to Algiers for the North African campaign and returned to Paris with him at the liberation.

Mme. de Gaulle, now 63, helps her husband entertain and makes a gracious appearance at state functions, wearing classic two-piece suits or evening clothes of conservative color and cut, with little makeup.

But she seldom accompanies the president to official ceremonies. A devout Roman Catholic, she busies herself with charities, schools and hospitals. Otherwise, she prefers to spend her time with family and personal friends.

SIMPLE STYLE

She runs the domestic side of the Elysee Palace with the same provincial simplicity as the de Gaulle country home at Colombey - les - Deux - Eglises in eastern France.

The de Gaulles' son, Phillipe, is a naval commander and their daughter, Elizabeth, is the wife of Gen. Alain de Boissieu, commandant of Saint-Cyr Military Academy. Following their mother's example, they have played no part in his political campaigns.

When Francois Mitterrand told his wife he was competing in the French presidential election, she replied "what are you doing this for?"

Her only role in the campaign has been that of chauffeur. She has frequently driven her husband's car. A tall attractive brunette in her forties, she dresses smartly and drives fast.

But Mrs. Mitterrand prefers overalls to fashionable clothes. She does them for her hobby—bookbinding, which she practises in a top floor maid's room in the Mitterrands' left bank apartment overlooking the Luxembourg gardens. She bound the golden book presented to Queen Elizabeth on her last visit to France.

Born Danielle Gouze, she is the daughter of a Verdun school principal. She met Mitterrand while acting as a contact in the French resistance during the war, and married him in 1945.

Her sister is a well-known movie producer, Christine Gouze - Renal, responsible for some of Brigitte Bardot's pictures.

The Mitterrands have two schoolboy sons, Gilbert, 16, and Jean Christophe, 13. The household has a pet dachshund named Lipp.

Canada Wants

eration is being given to the possibility that it may eventually succeed the Starfighter in Canadian European forces.

Hellyer wants to see greater NATO co-operation in production-sharing to prevent costly duplication of weapons production. He also wants to see greater standardization of weapons and equipment to help reduce costs.

FLANKS WEAK

He is reported to believe European defense is strongest at the centre and weakest at the flanks where NATO's elite mobile force, including Canada's Black Watch Battalion, is designed to operate. Hellyer wants more attention to build-up of this force, recalling U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara's statement that the U.S. has more than 5,000 nuclear warheads in Europe and plans a 25-per-cent increase during the next five months.

McNamara has mounted a drive to get NATO members to agree to a five-year military planni g program, with annual adjustments, rather than a lumpy year-to-year calculation that involves bickering and prevents cost reductions available through long - range planning. Hellyer is reported ready to give McNamara full support.

ARREST CAPTAIN

REYKJAVIK (Reuters) — Authorities arrested the captain of the British trawler Ross Stalker Tuesday for fishing three miles inside Icelandic territorial waters. The 564-ton trawler is out of Grimsby, England.

Polls taken in advance of the first-round voting Dec. 4 proved highly accurate. The second round became necessary when none of the six candidates then standing won an over-all majority.

De Gaulle, 75, who got 44.6 per cent at the vote in the first round, and Mitterrand, who got 31.7 per cent, appeared on television in separate half - hour broadcasts Tuesday night for the third consecutive night.

De Gaulle's manner in his television appearances of the campaign for round two has been relaxed, conversational and informal as he answered questions put to him by Michel Droit, editor of the weekly Le Figaro Litteraire.

But at Rennes in Britanny Tuesday former premier Michel Debre, out campaigning for de Gaulle, was howled down at a public meeting after an hour-long struggle to make himself heard.

De Gaulle, discussing foreign affairs on television, said France's position as "the only country in the world on good terms with all other countries" made it the only country in a position to establish and foster international co-operation.

He denied that he is anti-American.

De Gaulle said he has been labelled anti-American because he disagreed with U.S. policy in Asia. "But you see where the truth lies," he added.

Mitterrand attacked the picture of the French domestic situation painted by de Gaulle the previous night.

LIFE GOES ON IN WAR ZONE — School children and market women head home from Ben Cat to their villages on road lined by alert 1st Division soldiers searching for Viet Cong. The soldiers avoided the centre of the road for fear that it had been mined. The battalion of the 28th Regiment moved into the heavily-dominated Viet Cong area along Provincial Route 7 between Ben Cat and village of Xuan Mien in a search and destroy operation. Britain, Ireland Sign Trade Pact

LONDON (AP)—Britain and the Republic of Ireland agreed Tuesday night to sweep away all tariff barriers between the two countries in a further move toward ending centuries of bitter hostility.

Prime Ministers Wilson of Britain and Lemass of Ireland signed a free-trade pact which Wilson called a "significant and satisfactory development" in relations between the two countries.

The agreement comes into force July 1 and provides for the gradual elimination of all import duties by 1975. It will open Ireland to British industrial products and further ease the import of Irish farm produce into Britain.

Canada Accepts Invitation To Commonwealth Parley

PARIS (CP)—Canada has accepted an invitation to participate in a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference on Rhodesia to take place in Lagos Jan. 10, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Tuesday.

Martin told reporters he believed this would be the first prime ministers' conference outside London.

The conference was proposed by Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria as a number of African countries threatened to break diplomatic relations with Britain because London is allegedly not taking sufficiently tough action against the outlawed Rhodesian white regime.

Martin said the Canadian acceptance was sent by Prime Minister Pearson.

He hoped the decision to hold the conference would cause any Commonwealth country which had threatened to break relations with Britain to reconsider their decision.

CLASH KILLS FIVE

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government charged Wednesday that armed Thais attacked a Cambodian patrol Dec. 11 in Srok Samrong province 3½ miles from the frontier with Thailand, killing two Cambodians and wounding four. The Cambodian statement claimed that three Thais were killed in the attack.

Health Officials Test Plastic Ice Cubes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Health authorities in Ontario centres continued to take no chances Tuesday as samples of plastic "ice cubes" were picked up for testing because of possible contamination.

In Windsor, a laboratory report on samples was expected today.

Dr. John Howle, medical health officer and director of the Essex County health unit, said tests on the plastic globes and cubes were made Tuesday.

In Brantford, samples sold in stores were submitted to the health department in Woodstock. Cubes sold in Brantford were made in Canada, said health officer Dr. Arnold Dunton.

Angus Millar, director of Peterborough city council's health unit, said water in two samples of spheres made in Hong Kong were contaminated.

Mr. Millar said complete results will not be available for several days, but preliminary tests on several samples showed a "definite bacteria growth."

Tests in Ontario started after six United States cities and three states banned sale of the drink coolers.

The imitation ice cubes are re-usable, meant to be frozen in a refrigerator, used to cool drinks, and then refrozen.

Some of the cubes are made in Canada, but complaints from the U.S. centred on cubes made in Hong Kong and Japan.

The Arkansas health department said cubes sold in that state were found to contain four kinds of bacteria that could cause intestinal ailments.

But a spokesman for the U.S. public health service in Atlanta, Ga., said no illness has been traced to the cubes.

No illnesses from the cubes have been reported in Ontario.

BONN (AP)—West Germany is preparing an alleged multi million dollar fraud case involving an art collection that vanished during the Second World War. Held as chief suspect is Dr. Hans Deutsch, an Israeli lawyer, publisher and philanthropist under suspicion of having fraudulently obtained $4,400,000 in claiming restitution from the Bonn government. Deutsch is alleged to have submitted false evidence that the Nazis in 1944 stole 700 French impressionist paintings and 650 prints collected by Baron Ferenes Hatvany, prewar "sugar king" of Hungary.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westfall and Mr. and Mrs. George Billham attended the D.C.A. banquet at the Country Club in Trenton on Saturday evening. A social evening followed and each woman received a silver coffee spoon.

Messrs. Fred and Bud Tobin of the Maritimes spent an evening with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones before they left by plane for duty in the army in Germany.

On Thursday evening Kathy Jones and Debbie Wilker assisted in a Scottish dance at the Brighton church hall following a banquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barr attended the Firemen's banquet at the fire hall, Trenton, on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mallory and Mrs. Harry Robee attended the funeral of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Judd Mallory, in Toronto on Tuesday.

If all goes right, the rendezvous will take place at 2:36 p.m. today. At that time, the two spacecraft should be within 100 feet of each other, zipping along at 17,500 miles an hour 185 miles above the Marianas Islands in the western Pacific.

The Titan, which was frustrated the last second in an attempt to get off the pad last Sunday, performed perfectly today and, as it rose into the sky, flight director Chris Kraft told Schirra and Stafford by radio:

"You're right down the line, Gemini 6."

Schirra replied, "We are go here, too."

ON ITS WAY

When Gemini 7 was informed that Gemini 6 was on its way for a visit, Borman replied: "Wonderful!"

Mission control reported Gemini 6 was in an orbit ranging from 101 to 185 miles high. Almost precisely what was sought and well within the required limits for the rendezvous.

Gemini 7 at the time of launch was in a new circular orbit ranging from 183 to 186 miles.

In the lower orbit, Schirra and Stafford required less time to circle the globe and thus gradually would gain on Borman and Lovell.

If they remained in their initial orbit, Schirra and Stafford would catch up at the rate of about 340 miles an hour. However, they planned two major orbit changes during the second and third revolutions to raise the low point of their course so they would be in a near circular path about 165 miles high.

FLY IN FORMATION

At the start of orbit No. 4, about five hours after launching, they were to be 11 miles below and 39 miles slant range behind the target spacecraft.

At this point, Gemini 6 was to fire its jets to begin a terminal phase that is to end 40 to 50 minutes later with the two spacecraft close together.

The two space ships initially were to meet nose to nose, and then fly in formation perhaps only a few feet apart about six hours. They were to practise numerous manoeuvres to determine the best means of conducting space rendezvous.

Success would push the United States past another significant milestone on the road to the moon and give it a lead over Russia in the final rendezvous phase of the man-in-space race.

If everything goes as planned today, Schirra and Stafford will return to earth at 10:06 a.m. Thursday. Otherwise, they will stay up a second day.

Borman and Lovell are in confinse on their record shattering flight until Saturday, dashing back to earth at 9 a.m.

ECONOMIST DIES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold G. Moulton who helped organize the Brookings Institution, and served 25 years as its president, died Tuesday in hospital. He was 82. An economist, he developed the non-profit study corporation in programs for current evaluation of economic, governmental, international and social problems.

Plant Hires New Workers At Peterboro

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — More new employees may be hired today as a result of a strike by members of the Textile Workers of America (CLC), Harold Pammett, personnel manager at Tilco Plastics Ltd., said Tuesday

Mr. Pammett said 12 new employees were hired to keep the plant operating after union members went on strike early Tuesday.

The strike involves retroactive pay. Starting rate at the plant now is $1 an hour, increasing to up to $1.17 depending on a worker's category.

Shortly after the strike started, two women picketers reported they were struck by a car that crossed picket lines carrying workers into the plant.

Rita Brioux, 28, a member of the bargaining committee, and Bertha McKenzie, 28, both of Peterborough, were not injured.

velop a medium range ballistic missile which may be ready by 1967.

McNamara spoke on the second day of a NATO ministerial meeting, He spoke behind closed doors. His statements were relayed by an American spokesman.

WEST SHOULD PREPARE

McNamara said the fact that China did not today have a nuclear device that could be deployed as a weapon should not blind the West to future problems.

The Chinese, he said, already had exploded two nuclear devices and during the next two years could produce enough fissionable material to conduct a modest test program—and perhaps produce even a small number of fission weapons.

He said it was estimated they probably could deploy several missile launchers by 1968-69 and there could be several dozen of them by 1976.

China today was not a great power able to challenge the Western alliance, McNamara said. But at some point along the road it might well be able to do so, he warned.

McNamara gave the NATO chiefs a detailed rundown on the conventional power of China and called on the ministers to consider the long-range implications of the growth in Chinese military might.

LARGEST ARMY

The Chinese army, with 2,300,000 men, was the largest in the world, McNamara reported.

He said its air force was considerable, although its striking power was reduced through obsolescence and vulnerability. It had more than 1,500 MIG fighter jet planes.

McNamara also reassured the NATO allies the U.S. will not lower its military guard in Europe, despite its commitment in South Viet Nam.

The United States did not plan to redeploy major combat units from Europe to Southeast Asia, he said.

DISCUSS READINESS

The NATO foreign ministers and military leaders were discussing a progressive buildup of NATO preparedness over the next five years.

Before this conference sources reported, were two main aims:

1. To blueprint NATO military manpower and financial targets for a five-year period—instead of the present year-to-year review.

2. To further develop at the suggestion of the U.S. the special "fire brigade" force at constant readiness to stamp out limited flareups on the alliance's northern and southeastern flanks.

trusteeship dispute involving the Toronto local might prejudice the union's negotiating stand.

He said negotiations will come first in all union locals, including Toronto, where trusteeship was imposed last Friday by international president James Hoffa.

The trusteeship was an issue secondary to negotiations and "we washed our hands of it and told them to get their locals cleaned up," the Windsor president said.

He said he called the meeting out of concern over the Toronto situation which resulted in Kenneth McDougall, Toronto president, being re-appointed to the Toronto executive board by Mr. Hoffa's trustee, Raymond Greene.

The trusteeship came as a result of a power struggle within Mr. McDougall's local and demands for his resignation on the grounds he had not been strong enough in negotiations and had misused union funds.

Mr. Sefton said the companies would face a united front in the union's demand for a reduction from 48 to 40 hours in the work week. The companies have proposed a 43-hour work week.

Discuss Increased Tourism For Land O'Lakes District

TWEED — The December meeting of the Land O'Lakes Steering Committee was held at the Land O' Lakes Motel, Arden. The following members of the executive were present: James Arbuckle, Hugh Hillier, Jeanette Whitfield, Stan Walter, Don Forsyth, Ted Courneyea and John Savigny. Mr. Garth Reid of the Department of Tourism and Information sat in on the meeting as an observer.

Mrs. Jeanette Whitfield, chairman of the brochure committee, gave a report on the brochure for 1966. She mentioned that pictures of fish, deer and bear are needed for the new brochure.

There was considerable discussion about the new brochure and the possibility of developing added tourist attractions for the area. Rock hounding, bird watching and the development of hiking trails were all discussed as potential attractions. It was generally agreed that this area presents a fertile field for rock hounds.

Mr. Reid of the Department of Tourism and Information gave a talk on what is being done in other areas, the future of the tourist business and the centennial in 1967.

A report on the November 17th meeting in Toronto with the Hon. James Auld, minister of the Department of Tourism and Information and the Hon. J. R. Simmonett, minister of Department of Energy and Resources management, was given by the president, James Arbuckle. After considerable discussion by the members of the executive it was felt that the Toronto meeting had been quite successful, but the executive felt that they would not take any immediate action on proposals made by the department representatives in regards to boundry changes until the matter can be taken up with the members at a general meeting.

The executive directed the secretary - manager, Mrs. Jeanette Whitfield, to write all townships within the Land O' Lakes area and request some financial assistance from them to further the tourist industry in the area.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new tobacco tax will go into effect at the start of the year, but no change in price to the smoker is anticipated.

The government has removed the three-per-cent sales tax from cigarettes and replaced it with a quantity tax of one-twentieth of a cent a cigarette.

The new tax works out almost to the same amount as the old one, but the change makes it far easier for the provincial treasury to collect the money.

The three-per-cent sales tax on cigarettes is collected from about 35,000 retailers in the province. But the new quantity tax will be collected instead from the manufacturers and, in some cases, the manufacturers.

Here's how the new tax works: On a 20-cent carton of 200 cigarettes the tax will be one-tentieth of a cent a cigarette, or 10 cents.

WAS 9.6 CENTS

The old three-per-cent tax amounted to 9.6 cents, or in round figures 10 cents, on the same-priced carton. So there should be no difference to the consumer.

There will, however, be one chore for stores that now sell cigarettes and remit the tax to the treasury. They'll have to take an inventory of their cigarette stocks on Dec. 20 and remit the tax on the whole world.

After that when they purchase cigarettes from the wholesalers the tax will be included in the price, and the wholesalers will turn it over to the treasury.

Legislation providing for the new tax will be formerly presented within the next few days. It was passed at the 1965 session of the legislature.

The new administrative machinery will allow the government, if it wishes, to increase the tax on cigarettes at some later session without altering the general three-per-cent rate.

MADE HEAD SCOUT

OTTAWA (CP)—L. H. Nicholson, Ottawa's top Mountie, has been named international commissioner of the Boy Scouts of Canada, it was announced Tuesday. He succeeds Earle T. Moore of Montreal who has held the office since October, 1953.

Federal Civil Servants Favorable to Extension Of B and B Within Ranks

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's capital is a parochial English-only town where French-Canadians feel like unwanted exiles, the University of Ottawa says in a brief to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The brief, submitted today, adds that many French-speaking government officials are fleeing to Quebec because they can no longer stand the "obdurate unilingualism" of Ottawa city council.

Ottawa is not really a national capital because its "parochial mentality" is "decidedly foreign" to 3,000,000 Canadians of French expression.

URGES ACTION

The university urges the royal commission to recommend measures to the city and the Ontario government to turn Ottawa into a truly bilingual capital.

"Should the municipal and/or provincial administrations refuse to co-operate in this undertaking, let the commission recommend the creation of a federal district."

The bilingual university also recommends that French be recognized as a language of instruction in all subjects in primary and secondary schools in all provinces, especially Ontario.

The city is criticized harshly for refusing to use French more in municipal affairs, tourist bureaus and traffic signs.

LOSING PERSONNEL

"... The federal government, like the university, is losing many of its present French-speaking personnel who are eager to breathe once again the invigorating air of their native province. ...

"So long as bilingualism is restricted to federal buildings and a few places of business, and Ottawa will remain an Ontario provincial town. ...

"Canada will be bilingual and bicultural or it will cease to be. Our two cultures will march hand in hand from sea to sea or they will both disappear."

Ottawa's lack of bilingualism also is criticized in a brief from Francis Flaherty, a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery, who publishes a business newsletter.

He suggests that the national capital region—Ottawa, Hull and neighboring municipalities — be turned into a bilingual, 11th province, combining provincial municipal and educational powers. He also urges equal taxes for separate and public school supporters.

39 CENTRES INVOLVED

The Ontario Association of Social Workers, with 1,100 members, says official and voluntary social agencies in Ontario should provide full services in French and other languages wherever these languages are spoken by significant numbers. There were more than 30 communities in this category.

The group says social agencies should recruit more bilingual social workers, including some from ethnic minorities who could help people in their respective groups.

DETAIN DEPUTY

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Senator Albert Kalonji, deputy leader of ex-premier Moise Tshombe's Conaco party, has been refused permission to leave The Congo, the government press agency said Tuesday. President Joseph D. Mobutu "does not wish to see both Conaco leaders Tshombe and Kalonji out of the country at the same time," the agency said. Tshombe has announced plans to go to France, Belgium, Germany and Switzerland in a few weeks.

Tax Upheld By Que. Court Of Appeals

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Court of Appeal has upheld the constitutionality of the 1956 excise tax on periodicals under which the Canadian Reader's Digest was assessed an estimated total of $835,000.

The federal statute, which remained in force for only 18 months, levied a tax of 20 per cent on the value of advertising matter in non-Canadian periodicals published in Canada and of which at least 75 per cent of the editorial material was the same as that of their non-Canadian counterpart.

The Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Ltd. and Selection du Reader's Digest (Canada) Ltee. had sought to have the statute declared outside Parliament's powers and to receive a tax refund of $33,755 which they paid on the basis of advertising in their issues of February, 1957.

Resentment Against Soviet Union Runs High in Communist China

Alessandro Casella, European scholar, linguist and journalist went to China in 1966 and again visited it last summer. In this first of two articles he explores the Chinese-Soviet rift, Chinese resentment against Russians and distinctions Peking makes between the American people and the Washington government.

Written for The AP
By ALESSANDRO CASELLA

Popular resentment against the Soviet Union runs high in Communist China.

Hatred of Americans basically is directed against the U.S. government rather than the American people.

Although there is no anti-Russian campaign and press coverage of the Chinese-Soviet rift runs mostly along ideological lines, I have found a great personal resentment against the Russian people.

The reason lies in the fact that while America is essentially an abstract enemy which has never really been seen, there have been numerous personal contacts between Chinese and Russians.

Thousands of Soviet experts worked for years side by side with the Chinese. When the Soviet-Chinese rift came to light, the Russians left practically overnight. The resulting temporary chaos created among the Chinese a strong resentment.

DON'T HATE PEOPLES

The Chinese make an effort to demonstrate they do not hate foreign peoples, but have resentment only for foreign governments. Americans are depicted as friendly. Demonstrations in America against current U.S. policy in Viet Nam are heavily publicized.

The actual state of relations between the two countries, plus the Chinese ideological posture, has resulted in misrepresentation of America.

The Watts riots in Los Angeles were given extensive coverage by Peking television and were depicted as an uprising by oppressed Americans against what was called Washington's capitalistic policy. Another misrepresentation concerns morale of American troops in Viet Nam. In China I have been asked repeatedly whether I did not think that American morale over Viet Nam was crumbling.

Emotional involvement in what is, geographically, a foreign war, has reached such a high level that it has become an essential part of Chinese domestic policy. The whole of the country is being swamped by propaganda pictures and slogans about the war in Viet Nam.

PRODUCE POSTERS

In the factories, workers compete in producing crude posters depicting American losses and Viet Cong victories. In the streets the news bulletins and photographs which attract the greatest crowds all deal with Viet Nam.

While the over-all picture seems to be one of a country on the verge of war, psychosis, a closer analysis reveals a somewhat more subtle state of affairs.

In fact, there are today in China three levels of opinion: The official press for internal consumption; the attitude and reaction of the population; and the attitude of the government.

Official news for internal consumption is extremely bellicose. The press portrays the U.S. as only waiting for a suitable occasion to escalate the war and attack China.

In the factories workers have weekly rifle target practice on models of American airplanes. Civil defence posters are prominent everywhere. Bridges are guarded, as are factories and all official buildings.

IN ALERT STATE

The whole of South China is reported in a state of alert, and travel by foreigners has been curtailed on the grounds there is a war situation.

Popular reaction to these campaigns is far less violent than one would expect. The average Chinese is much more worried than he is aggressive, and there is surprisingly little hatred against Americans as such.

The government has been careful to avoid getting itself into a situation where it might be forced by public opinion to intervene against its will in Viet Nam.

Recollections of China's intervention in Korea raised the possibility of intervening in Viet Nam. However, the situations are profoundly different.

In Korea, China not only enjoyed Soviet support but also considered her vital interests in Manchuria were being threatened.

In Viet Nam, Russian support is lacking. And since North Viet Nam still acts as a buffer state, it is reasonable to assume that as long as U.S. commitments do not increase to the point of threatening China's vital interests, China will not intervene.

Moscow Short of Small Coins

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A shortage of coins, especially small denominations, is now problem in commerce at the street-a-day level in the Soviet capital.

Give a taxi driver a one-ruble note and there's a good chance he won't be able to make change for a short cab ride.

Either you slip into a store for change or forgo the small change and settle for what you can get in larger coins.

And what complicates the problem is that Soviet taxi meters click off every kopek of a ride instead of registering the cost in units of five or 10 as in most Canadian cities.

Even more surprising is an incident that occurred at the telegraph desk of the Ukraine, the largest hotel in the Soviet Union.

We handed over 40 rubles to pay for a 32.93 cable. In change we got back seven rubles, one kopek and a six-cent stamp. The girl at the desk didn't have the 93 six kopeks.

At intermission at the Bolshoi Theatre dozens of persons stood in line to buy ice cream. When our turn came we ordered two dishes at 28 kopeks each. In change from a one-ruble note we got 43 kopeks, one less than the correct amount. The girl had plenty of paper money piled up on the table but little coinage.

PAID IN CANDY

Even at one of Moscow's sprawling "dollar stores"—places where you can buy choice goods for convertible currency at relatively low prices—such things occur.

The cashier there makes change in matches, cigarettes, chocolates or whatever you will except from a nearby small-goods counter when she hasn't the required coinage, as is frequently the case.

"What am I to do?" she asked pleasingly when a customer insisted on getting change in convertible currency. He had given her $25 for a bill that came to $24.7. In lieu of the 8 cents he was willing to settle for two shillings but she didn't have either.

Finally she found a 25-cent piece, a one-cent piece and a big 5-ruble medallion made of paper mache and supposedly worth two cents. The customer took the change and let her keep the medallion. He owed her 4 cent from a previous transaction, anyway.

Such inexactness in financial matters afflicts innumerable branches of the Soviet economy at the consumer level. Premier Alexei Kosygin has said the government plans to broaden cost-accounting relations between individual enterprises.

This means that something is to be done at higher levels. In the end it may also mean Russians will have to pay more attention to their small change as well.

OLD EMPIRE CHANGES

The Commonwealth has a population of about 700,000,000 people, of whom 90 per cent have attained independence since the Second World War.

VISITOR NOTES TENSION IN SOUTH AFRICA—Johannesburg, the gold-rich capitol of South Africa, seems to have an air of tension to the first-time visitor. South Africa, the most highly industrialized nation of Africa, pursues an official policy of apartheid or racial separation. Many white South Africans are aware of the injustice and inconsistency of apartheid but can see no solution which would not wreck their own lives. (CP Photo)

White Man's View

Costs Too Much to Touch a Black, Apartheid Works Without Any Fights

Apartheid, the South African government policy of race separation, is favored by a majority of the republic's 3,235,000 whites. But it is not a simple pro-and-con issue. A Canadian Press reporter discusses the mixture of feelings.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—The white taxi driver, aware that his fare was a foreign visitor, volunteered replies to questions before they were asked.

"That's the railway station on your right—this side for the blacks, the other side for the whites," he said.

"It works fine. No fights, no arguments. It costs me £10 if I touch one of them. It's not worth it for £10. A few bob (shillings), maybe.

"We see them as children. You don't play with them. You're not too nice to them. They like it their way and we like it ours."

This man, like the majority of South Africa's white people, supports Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's racial policy of apartheid, an Afrikaans word meaning "separateness."

Verwoerd and his lieutenants, however, would deplore the taxi driver's contemptuous terms—and perhaps also his conversational use of pounds and shillings, now displaced by Rand currency in South Africa.

It is the sort of anecdote that irritates many South Africans, who feel that foreign observers blacken the name of their country by relating only superficial and sensational aspects of apartheid.

The country's population of 17,473,000 is made up of 11 national groups—eight Bantu, or African, divisions totalling 11,915,000, a Colored (mixed blood) group of 1,703,000, 520,000 Asians and 3,235,000 whites.

The official line is:

"Each group has a distinct identity of its own and a way of life determined by its language, culture, heritage, outlook and environment. Each group has evolved in its own way, according to its stage of development and particular way of life.

"South Africa's answer to the problem of the peaceful coexistence of these different people is seen in the policy of separate development which makes it possible for the various groups to enjoy the full privileges of a free society each in their own area, unhampered by the strains imposed by a multiracial society."

The Nationalist government's view is that the early Dutch settlers advanced into virtually empty country, eventually colliding with tribes migrating southward from Central Africa. The term Bantu derives from the related languages spoken by the tribes.

"The pattern of settlement in separate homelands, established in the early years, has been perpetuated up to the present day," says the government, noting that as far back as 1913 "traditional homelands" were reserved for the Bantu by statute.

White men made their own "homelands" the most highly-industrialized country in Africa but the Bantu preferred a subsistence economy, so that ultimately, as Verwoerd has said, the black man came to his palefskinned countrymen for "employment, food and the good things of life." In such circumstances, the whites became "guardians" of the blacks.

"Insofar as separate development involves continued control by the guardian over the wards, it is of a transitional nature only," says the government. Control would fall away as the Bantu advanced.

The grand strategy is the development of eight Bantu homelands and the first of these, the Transkei, opened for business at the end of 1963 with some internal self-government. The plan is that eventually the 7,500,000 Bantu now living in white areas will be drawn off to the homelands which would give a measure of equality with the white fatherland.

"It is foreseen that the eventual relationship between the Bantu and the European will develop into a Commonwealth pattern and, economically, into a form of South African Common market—in other words, political independence and economic interdependence."

Critics describe the whole thing as a sham or a fantasy, stating that the Bantustans, often fragmented, comprise less than 14 per cent of the country's territory. Black population in white areas, deprived of rights, is increasing, not decreasing, because means of livelihood are lacking in the homelands.

Why was the policy adopted? The government quotes from a book by a former prime minister, the late Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, who said only separate development could ensure public order and save the "natives" from being swamped.

Also, "the mixing of two such alien elements as white and black leads to unhappy social results — racial miscegenation, moral deterioration of both, racial antipathy and clashes, and in many other forms of social evil."

The program is accompanied by the growth of what has become known as "petty apartheid," notably in Johannesburg, the biggest city, where there are 711,600 Bantu out of a total population of 1,223,000.

At one end of the apartheid scale is the Group Areas Act, which segregates whites and blacks in different residential districts, and at the other end the law stipulating that the whites' clothing must be laundered separately from those of the blacks.

As one resident put it, "There are countless reminders for the black man that so long as he remains in the white man's territory, he will be a hewer of wood and drawer of water."

The first-time visitor, having read about the killing of 67 Africans at nearby Sharpeville in 1960 and other brutalities, may expect to find Jack-booted police with rifles patrolling the streets.

This gold-rich city did seem to have a tense air to one visitor arriving from black-African countries. However, the symbols of apartheid were not seen in tough cops but in numerous black-and-white signs stating in both official languages: whites, blankes, non - whites — nie blankes, and, occasionally—on elevators — "non - Europeans and goods." Many white South Africans wince when they are asked about these restrictions.

Because apartheid is government policy, the signs are most apparent on government buildings, such as post offices, where the races are served at different counters. Apologists say separate queues save Africans from being jostled aside by arrogant whites.

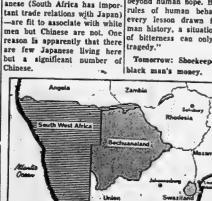
A two-man work team passes on a half-ton truck. A white pulls driver; a black—man sits back on the dirt load.

"Petty apartheid is not just trivial, not just mean, not just unnecessary, it is plumb crazy," said an editorial in the Johannesburg Sunday Express.

"Amused Onlooker" wrote in a letter to the editor: "In the shops the Europeans are jostled left, right and centre by the non-Europeans. Then they go to separate bus seats. Perhaps they should walk along separate, marked lines after leaving the buses, too.

"It is items like this that make this country the laughing stock of the European world—lack of consistency. When Adam goes to market, quite often her African servant sits in luxury at the back of the car, while she drives.

"Non-European servants are employed, carry European infants on their backs—do they have a board placed between them and their charges?"



But heartbreak, not laughter, is often the companion of apartheid.

An African woman, widow of a colored man, was prevented from living with her daughter, on whom she was dependent. An official of the Institute of Race Relations gave this example:

"If a white man marries a colored woman, he is classed as colored. But if she dies, he becomes white again. This can have great consequences on the children."

The official added: "The main objection to the whole thing is that it simply won't work. Sometimes it reaches fantastic lengths."

Authorities decided that Japanese (South Africa has important trade relations with Japan) —are fit to associate with white men but Chinese are not. One reason is apparently that there are few Japanese living here but a significant number of Chinese.

SOUTH AFRICA PURSUES SEPARATION—The Transkei, first of eight Bantu homelands, opened for business in 1963 with some internal self-government. The Nationalist government of South Africa plans to have 7,500,000 Bantu now living in white hreas drawn off to these homelands. Two native enclaves within the borders of South Africa are still under British control. One is Basutoland, the other Swaziland.

Russia Backs British Boycott Of Rhodesia

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet government has assured Britain that it will stop buying tobacco from Rhodesia, reliable sources said Tuesday.

The assurance, at diplomatic level, is the first practical sign of Soviet support for British sanctions against the breakaway regime of Ian Smith in Rhodesia.

Western statistics show Russia bought tobacco worth $700,000 from Rhodesia last year.

Sukarno Fires Top Deputy

JAKARTA (Reuters) — President Sukarno has fired Foreign Minister Subandrio as his deputy supreme commander of the Supreme Operations Command (KOTI), it was disclosed Tuesday.

President Sukarno is the supreme commander of KOTI, the country's highest executive body.

Subandrio as foreign minister was closely identified with Indonesia's policy of closer friendship with China. Since crushing an abortive coup Oct. 1 and assuming greater power, the army has carried out a stern anti-Communist drive throughout Indonesia.

Subandrio has publicly denied that he was associated with the plot.

FAVOR METRO

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa area municipalities favor introduction of a metro-style government similar to Toronto's, Mayor Don Reid said at a press conference Monday. He said the capital's neighboring communities are all but unanimously for such a plan and laid the groundwork for its introduction during a series of private discussions.

Editors, Publishers of Two Language Groups Have Strong Ties Says CP Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — Since the founding of The Canadian Press in 1917, its news service has served as a medium of exchange of ideas and information among all regions of Canada, the national news co-operative says in a brief today to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

This has been achieved "not only through transmission of news but also as a result of the meet g-ground it provided for editors and publishers of the two lang ge groups among whom there are many strong ties."

It is hard to estimate precisely the value of what CP accomplishes "by daily exchange across cultural boundaries of honest news at a cost within reach of all the dailies, even the smallest, whether published in English or in French."

SEEP" HIGH STANDARDS

The brief says CP has never distributed news for the sake of sensation. It always takes great care in every aspect of its news stories, making its high standards a credit to Canadian journalism.

"(The Canadian Press) acts on behalf of a cross-country newspaper community that represents a variety of opinion and for that reason allows no consideration other than the public interest to determine its selection and writing of news. The result of this policy is that the integrity of CP news reports has never been seriously questioned."

CP represents the co-operative effort of more than 100 daily newspapers to give Canadians news of the world and of Canada in two languages, the brief says. Its operation, as a co-operative association of the country's French- and English-language daily newspapers, reflects the needs of both groups. REPORTS ALL FACETS

It reports the general and everyday problems of each group to the other—as well as their common problems. This it achieves through exchange of news reports on current events in all regions of the country along with background articles on news situations. It circulates opinion as well through an exchange of editorials between English and French-language newspapers.

In 1917, CP's 102 charter members included six newspapers publishing in French, all in Quebec. In 1965, 10 of its 103 members publish in French in three provinces.

From its beginning, each member newspaper had one vote in association affairs and election of directors.

The brief says CP's members have always regarded it as essential that French-language newspapers be fairly represented. In 1954, when French-language dailies numbered 10 of CP's 91 members, the associa- tion bylaws were amended to increase to three from two the number of French-language directors on the 13-member board.

Of the 30 presidents since 1917, three have been of the French tongue.

CP recognized from its beginning the disadvantage to French-language members of receiving news in English. Problems created by the difference in number of papers published in each language were approached with friendly understanding.

In 1928, it was agreed cost in each French-language member should be reduced by one-quarter as a "translation grant," making allowance for the fact that French-language members incur costs in use of CP news not faced by English-language members.

In 1964, CP directors agreed as a matter of policy that news should be delivered in French at the same assessment rates as in English, subject to agreement on details among French-language members.

Following a number of meetings to discuss details, French-language newspapers joined in 1961 in a French service. At its official inauguration at Montreal Louis St. Laurent, then prime minister, described the service as a major event in Canada's development.

The service kept pace with development of modern techniques and now CP provides its service both in English and in French for automatic typesetting. CP's French teleprinters, delivering news with accented letters, represent a pioneering advance not yet duplicated.

Canada's first news service in French was for broadcasting stations. It was established by CP in 1945, four years after CP decided to make its news available to radio stations. CP then served 40 privately - owned broadcasting stations in Canada and the United States with its inception went to five stations.

Now Broadcast News, CP's broadcasting arm, serves 275 stations and its service in French goes to 51 stations in Quebec, three in Ontario and one in New Brunswick.

CP's French-language staff is growing more rapidly than any other part of the service. Of the total staff of 200, 54 are French speaking.

Every effort is made to obtain in original French source copy of news from French-speaking areas, at home or abroad. All CP stories from the Quebec legislature are written originally in French, then translated into English for English - language newspapers.

A French - language correspondent, writing in French, works in Ottawa. Important meetings in French, anywhere in Canada, are covered by French-writing reporters. Outside Canada, special arrangements are made to obtain French source copy.

This year the world news wire of Agence France-Presse, the French news agency, was obtained, in addition to the world services of Reuters and The Associated Press provide only available.

"Thus it is inaccurate to say that CP's service in French is simply a translation service. Translation from English to French is carried out but CP also translates its own French copy as well as that of its French members for English newspapers. Translation is not a Canadian phenomenon. It is done everywhere in the world in transmission of news between peoples using different lan- guages."

OSC Director Said Planning To Resign

TORONTO (CP)—John Campbell planned to resign as director of the Ontario Securities Commission after the Windfall excitement died down late in 1964 OSC chairman John Kimber testified here Tuesday.

Mr Kimber was testifying at the preliminary hearing of two charges of breach of trust against Mr. Campbell.

Evidence given earlier at the Royal Commission inquiry earlier this year into the affairs of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. showed that Mr. Campbell dealt in Windfall shares while he was director of the OSC.

The shares rose to $5.00 from 50 cents and zagged again to 90 cents in 17 hectic trading days on the Toronto Stock Exchange in July, 1964.

The rise was caused by rumors that Windfall had pulled a rich drill core from its Timmins-area property. When the rumors proved false the stock plunged more than $3 overnight.

AWAIT TRIAL

George and Viola MacMillan, president and promoter of Windfall, await trail on fraud charges arising out of the Windfall inquiry.

Mr. Campbell was suspended by Attorney - General, Arthur Wishart in August, 1964, and resigned a month later.

Mr. Kimber said Mr. Campbell told him of his plan to resign earlier in August

"I told Mr. Campbell I had been informed that Mrs. MacMillan had given him 3,000 shares of Windfall," he said.

"I asked him if this was true and he said it was true and that it had been on his mind and a matter of concern to him.

"He said he planned to resign when he felt the excitement over Windfall had died down, and that it would be appropriate to resign on the anniversary of his appointment."

NOTHING IN ACT

Norman Cox, chief investigator for the OSC, testified earlier Tuesday that there is nothing in the Ontario Securities Act prohibiting an OSC employee from trading in stock.

Mrs. MacMillan testified that she gave Mr. Campbell 3,000 Windfall shares as a loan to cover his wife's short position in the stock.

She said she gave him the share certificates on the understanding they would be returned in a few days.

She said she got them back about a month later, on Aug. 6 or 14.

At the time of the loan the shares were worth between $2 and $4 on the exchange. When they were returned they were worth less than $1 each.

400 Day-shift G. E. Workers Are Suspended

BARRIE (CP) — Canadian General Electric Co. Tuesday suspended 400 day-shift workers who staged a sympathy work stoppage on behalf of 30 fellow employees suspended for an earlier sitdown strike.

The workers are members of local 545 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Ind.).

The union and company both advised night-shift workers to report for work as usual and it did. The plant employs 800 workers.

Robert Fleetham, the company's industrial relations manager, said the stoppages were violations of the collective bargaining agreement between company and union. He said the initial work stoppage arose from a dispute involving incentive allowances.

C. V. Coulson, union representative in Barrie, said the workers are unhappy because their incentive allowance has been gradually cut by more than 70 cents.

The first 30 employees were suspended until Friday, while the others were suspended until Thursday.

IS CHIEF CONDUCTOR

LONDON (AP)—Colin Davis, 38, Tuesday was named chief conductor of the BBC Symphony. He is the youngest to hold the post and will take up his duties September 1967. Davis now is conductor of the Sadler's Wells orchestra.

Russia Takes Major Step Toward Economic Realism

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has taken a major step toward economic realism.

Budget and development plans for 1966 adopted by the Supreme Soviet (parliament) last week indicate an intention to correct an imbalance created in the Stalin era between industry and agriculture.

The announced plans suggest the U.S.S.R. hopes to be able to concentrate on internal development instead of the danger of a new world war.

Despite a hard-sounding line on Viet Nam and other East-West questions, new budget increases in military spending are regarded as only in proportion to the increase in total spending.

An apparent slowdown in the rate of growth of the Soviet economy does not mean it is failing to develop rapidly. It has become so big that it is more difficult to increase the growth rate.

The planned rate for 1966 will be 6.7 per cent, a drop from a claimed rate of 8.5 per cent this year and the lowest since the 1946 postwar recovery year.

An attack on chronic agricultural problems also is a factor in slowing down the overall rate of growth.

BUY WHEAT ABROAD

Crop failures in 1963 and again this year impelled Russia to buy wheat abroad. Meat and dairy products remain in short supply.

The leadership has decided to invest 42,000,000,000 rubles (845,500,000,000) in agriculture in the 1966-70 five-year plan. This is as much as was invested in the previous 15 years.

The 1966 plan alone calls for a 15.6-per-cent increase in agricultural investment.

Stalin left agriculture to stagnate—and thus eventually failed to feed an expanding population adequately — because he demanded concentration on heavy industry.

But building a massive econ-

French-Canadians Feel Like Unwanted Exiles Says University Brief

OTTAWA (CP) — Spokesmen for 120,000 federal civil servants were appearing before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism today to express their views about the government's bilingual program.

Three civil service groups were submitting briefs generally favorable to an extension of bilingualism in their ranks, but expressing several qualifications.

The briefs say language courses for civil servants are fine provided they are on government time or financed completely by the government of Service.

CBC DISCUSSED

Tuesday's hearing was dominated by discussion of the operations of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

The CBC said it plans to open about 50 television outlets and about 90 radio outlets during the next five years in areas now unserved.

CBC President Alphonse Ouimet said the five-year expansion will bring broadcasting service to about 95 per cent of the population of Canada.

Extension of services to unserved regions would take precedence over the expansion of the French networks outside Quebec, which would prove costly and reach only a small audience.

Mr. Ouimet said the cost of providing total coverage of Canada in both languages is prohibitive. Perhaps this goal could be reached in about 15 years through the use of earth satellites like Early Bird.

The CBC planned to step up its news, public affairs and cultural programming about Canadians, but there was no intention to broadcast bilingual programs. Experiments in that direction had proven highly unpopular with both language groups.

The French networks had appointed news correspondent in Toronto and Moncton to cover Ontario and the Maritimes, starting next Jan. 1. Other French - speaking correspondents would be posted shortly in Winnipeg and Vancouver to cover the West. Similarly, the English networks planned to appoint a national reporter in Montreal Jan. 1.

The CBC brief said a greater exchange of information is needed between French- and English-speaying Canadians to improve relations.

Mr. Ouimet was questioned closely by Commissioner Frank Scott, former law dean at McGill University, about the high content of American series in prime evening CBC programming.

The broadcasting official said American programs take up roughly half the prime time on the English TV network this season. This was a higher ratio than the CBC considered desirable but it was dictated by economic factors.

Mr. Ouimet said it costs the CBC less than $4,000 a season to purchase rights to an American program while domestic productions are much more costly and reduce advertising revenue.

CITES PROBLEM

The CBC would use more Canadian talent if the government provided enough public funds.

At present commercial factors dominated CBC programming.

Marcel Ouimet, head of the French networks, told the commission he hopes the Board of Broadcast Governors will relax its Canadian content regulations in relation to programs imported from France, Belgium and other French - speaking countries.

At present, programs imported from Commonwealth countries counted as 100 per cent Canadian content, but imported French programs counted as 50-per-cent Canadian only.

How to Keep Them in Mines Problem for Changing North

By JOHN McLEAN

ELSA, Yukon (CP)—How to keep them up in the mines is becoming at great a problem as keeping them down on the farm.

The problem concerns oldtimers in the North as they watch the changing world being created by mining and construction companies developing the vast resources of Canada's sub-Arctic.

"We have to provide as much in the way of entertainment and good living as we possibly can or the men just won't stay," says Baxter Goss, an official of the United Keno Hill Mine here.

Mill manager Hal Pawson says it's especially difficult to keep married men on the job because their wives "get fed up" with wilderness conditions.

United Keno is near Mayo, a growing community located about dead-centre of the Yukon Territory. The town is connected by road with Dawson to the northwest and Whitehorse to the south. There is a hospital, school and churches. And there are bars.

Mine officials agree the bars are the greatest attraction for the men who dig out the rich silver deposits at United Keno in the Potato Hills.

"Some of these men are making more than $1,000 a month," said Mr. Goss. "They work all day all week and then, on the weekend, there's nothing to do but drink beer."

So on Saturday night the 30-odd miles of winding road between Elsa, where the mine is located, and Mayo, where the beer is located, is dusty with cars.

GIRLS ARE THERE

Mayo, says Mr. Pawson, "is where the girls are, too."

The problem of keeping men on the payroll is universal in the North and the big corporations are taking steps to lick it.

Where miners once lived in log shacks, modern trailer homes are being provided at subsidized rent for the men and their families. In many cases, two trailers have been joined together to form an airy, three-bedroom home with panelled walls, built-in bunks for the kids and efficient kitchens and other facilities.

The women struggle to make things grow in little gardens which aren't quite discouraged by the barren soil. Babies' playpens perch on rough bed-rock and older children play their games after a day at neat little schools.

The single man, and husbands who leave their wives at home in cities in the south, share dormitory-like quarters. Some are built on the spot and resemble giant bunkhouses. Others are created from strings of linked trailers.

There are recreation halls, sports fields and hockey rinks. At United Keno, the men have built themselves a ski run which swoops down from the mountains almost to the campsite.

FARMERS GROW MORE

Magic Chain Can Change Dog's Mind Even About Cats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A cat raced across the sidewalk in front of D'Ors Prince Ygor, Barbara Singleton's platinum-blonde Russian wolfhound.

Ygor started to bolt after the cat. Miss Singleton, a television model, clinked a chain in her hand and spoke: "Come, Ygor."

Ygor halted as if thunderstruck. "Heel!" said Miss Singleton. Ygor trotted obediently to her side and they walked on.

Ygor has never been to dog-training school. But like 200 other elite canines, Ygor has had psychotherapy. He was a patient of Dr. Dare Miller, who describes himself as "Los Angles' only dog psychologist.

Dr. Miller brainwashes the dogs, then shapes their will with conditioned response.

"In five minutes, said Dr. Miller, JR. "I can teach a strange dog to come to me on command."

A chain, the sort Barbara Singleton clinked to halt Ygor, does the trick. The chain is made of a special bronze-phosphorous alloy. Hanging on it is a tiny tuning fork. Explained Dr. Miller:

"The fork and the chain when rattled, vibrate at 34,000 cycles per second, in the uppermost range of a dog's hearing. It doesn't hurt his ears; it just interrupts anything the dog is thinking.

"If the dog is going to do something bad, it changes his mind.

"If you give the dog a command simultaneously with the clink of the chain, the command is impressed in the dog's thinking, and on his memory.

"By repeating the process, the dog can eventually be taught to respond to the owner's word alone, without the chain."

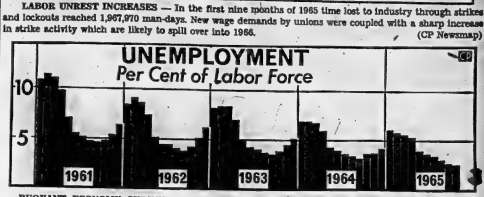
Hits Hunter Pulling Deer

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A Vancouver hunter from the area saw a deer moving through the bush. He lifted his rifle to his shoulder and fired at it.



He missed the deer, but he got hunter John Edward Russell, 44, in the right leg.

Mr. Russell had already shot the deer and was pulling the carcass through the bush to his car when the other hunter fired at it.

Mr. Russell, from Richmond, near Vancouver, was recovering in hospital here Monday.

LABOR UNREST INCREASES — In the first nine months of 1965 time lost to industry through strikes and lockouts reached 1,967,970 man-days. New wage demands by unions were coupled with a sharp increase in strike activity which are likely to spill over into 1966. (CP Newsmap)

BUOYANT ECONOMY SHRINKS JOBLESS ROLLS — Unemployment in Canada reached an eight-year low in 1965. The jobless rolls declined steadily all year reaching 2.4 per cent of the labor force in October. For the first 10 months of the year unemployment was a shade over four per cent, the lowest since 1957. (CP Newsmap)

Labor Scene Is Dominated By Declining Unemployment And Mounting Union Unrest

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Declining unemployment and mounting union unrest dominated the Canadian labor scene in 1965. Both situations are likely to spill over into 1966 with possibly dramatic results.

The buoyant economy produced record employment levels and shrank jobless ranks to an eight-year low. Skilled workers were in heavy demand in every region and acute labor shortages developed in key industrial cities.

But coupled with this was a notable rise in union militancy, sparking some of the highest wage demands in more than a decade. Most of them were met, but not without a sharp increase in strike activity.

In the first nine months of 1965 the time lost to industry through strikes and lockouts totalled 1,967,970 man - days. This compared with 904,790 man days in the same period of 1964.

Where only two years ago wage gains of 10 and 15 cents an hour were the rule, many new union contracts in 1965 were in the 50-cent bracket. A wave of construction industry strikes early in the year produced gains of up to $1 an hour spread over two or three years.

Early in November the major railways were presented with hefty demands by their 100,000 non-operating employees. They ranged from 55 cents to $1.32 an hourly.

In their last round of bargaining in 1963 the non-ops settled for 21 cents, bringing their average hourly earnings to $2.21. This time railway union leaders have said a much larger settlement will be required to avert strike action.

A crisis will develop in the railway dispute in three or four months when the whole problem will undoubtedly be tossed to the federal cabinet. The big question is whether it can be resolved without a crippling strike.

In many cases the militant attitude of labor has swelled up from the rank and file. Union leaders have been forced to adopt tougher attitudes at the bargaining table to put down discord. Wildcat strikes in several key industries were symptoms of this trend.

The new federal labor code was approved by Parliament in the spring and became law July 1, setting a minimum wage of $1.25 hourly and a 40-hour work week with a limit of eight hours on overtime.

SOUGHT BEFERMENT

Most of the federally-controlled industries covered by the new code applied for exemptions, however, and thereby gained automatic deferment until their applications are dealt with.

Because of the enormous backlog and a lack of staff, only a handful of decisions has been completed so far and the labor code has thus had little real effect. The problem is that separate investigations are required to deal with each application.

The brightest development of the year was the steady drop in unemployment with every month showing more people at work and fewer jobless than the same month of 1964.

At mid-January 408,000 persons were unemployed, representing six per cent of the labor force. The figures declined in every successive month, reaching 171,000 and 2.4 per cent in mid-October.

For the first 10 months average unemployment, after adjustment to discount seasonal variations, was a shade over four per cent. It was the lowest average since 1957.

Mexican Braceros Troubled

By RICHARD DAW

MEXICO (AP)—What do you do when you've made your living for 20 years as a bracero and suddenly the doors between Mexico and the United States are closed to you?

If you're Rodolfo Montenegro, you spend every morning sitting in "out of the bracero contracting office, try every afternoon to find an odd job that will pay enough for a bite to eat, and pray hard every night that those closed doors will soon open again.

"We know the farmers in the United States want us and need us, and that sooner or later things will be worked out so we can go up there to work like we always have," says Montenegro.

This 42-year-old Mexican is typical of those left idle by the expiration Jan. 1 last of an international agreement under which Mexican migrant workers —commonly called braceros— were hired by U.S. farmers.

About 200,000 worked on U.S. farms each year during recent years, and the number was far above that at the program's peak. But this year only about 18,000 were hired, under special conditions. The mass exodus of previous years is no more.

Some of the braceros went to the United States only once, some on various occasions, and many, like Montenegro, became what they call professionals.

CAN'T FIND JOB

"For 20 years I was a good field hand," Montenegro says with an air of pride. "It's the only work I know how to do. Get a job here? Where? Who's going to train an old man like me, even to be a janitor?"

The few braceros hired under the agreement's end were in U.S. areas where domestic labor couldn't be found.

The Mexican government would like to see the program resumed. But it says its initiative must come from the United States, and opposition to the program from U.S. labor unions is still firm.

Unemployment among farm workers is the last thing Mexico needs. It already has 2,000,000 landless peasants clamoring for even a tiny tract of their own, and no prospect of satisfying even half of them.

Industry, although developing at a steady pace, can't begin to absorb the over-supply in the labor force, which continues to swell as the population grows by more than three per cent a year.

HASLEMERE, England (CP) It was the driver's fault when Death held up the 8:45 commuter train to London. Bob Death was the driver, and he refused to budge when he found the whistle was out of order, because British Rail regulations forbid moving a whistle - less train. It took half an hour to instal a new one.

"There'll come a day when we will beat the hell out of your best, call them pros, amateurs or what you will."

They didn't say it exactly that way—but that was the consensus of remarks made by a couple of likeable Russky cuskys.

They were "Sol and Treg," two of the Soviet Union Hockey Club stars who, an hour or so before had gone down to a 3-1 defeat at the hands of the Belleville McFarlands, the ultimate world champions.

That was back in 1959 and Sol and Treg who smattered their Russian with gobs of English were quaffing Czechoslavakian tea, compliments of the management of the Prague stadium-de-glace.

They were a likeable pair of lovariches, who mixed well with their hockey counterparts from a half-dozen nations. Both were sturdily built packshearers who could toss a torso into an opponent with the best of their western ice foemen.

They were the only Russians who were friendly enough to invade the Canadian dressing room and they proved very likeable chaps. Even Billy Reay, the Mess' manager, admitted they were "good guys" while the rank and file of the Canadian team showed admiration.

All but one or two whose names won't be mentioned. They merely shrugged the Reds off with "We beat the hell out of them, so why put them on the back?"

When the Russians made their statement with smiles crossing their rugged features Coach the Hilderbrand, Big Bill Dewsbury, "Lamary" Lamirande (whose favorite activity in hockey was bouncing Czechs) and other former pros exchanged glances.

I asked Ike Hilderbrand.

Hilderbrand uncoiled his 154 pounds and stretched to his full five-foot-ten.

"There's a lot in what those guys said," he remarked—and the popular coach was never more serious. "If they continue to improve the next half dozen years like they have the past six sessions, they'll be ready to meet our National League clubs."

"They're learning fast," agreed Billy Reay, "right now they can hook, chop and slash with the best of them. Those things behind their shoulders are stout pads and a helluva long way from being angel wings, regardless of what the 'colosse' says. (The colonel was the Russian coach Parsaev, who yearly adds verses to his hymn of hate of what he calls Canadian rough play.)

Reay was particularly anxious to defeat the Russians. Once while the Mess were playing an exhibition game in Germany, he noticed two big guys wearing jack boots, long overcoats and fur hats, standing behind the Canadian goal getting down notes.

It was plain they were Red scouts covering the plays of the western foreigners.

After the game was over Billy stamped angrily up to the pair. "Who the hell is paying you to do this?" he demanded.

One did not look up. His pencil was flying. His buddy managed a scowl and replied just as snappily, "We not get pay. We do it for Soviet."

The point of this piece is that many Canadians who scoffed at the idea of the Russians meeting and perhaps beating our top pro clubs have straightened out their faces.

Not too long ago Conn Smythe said he would not ice the Toronto Maple Leafs against a Russian club.

Now, perhaps the pro minds are changing.

When a hockey authority no less than the Montreal Canadiens Samuel Pollock admits that the time is not far distant when the Russians will equal our pro best, and goes on to prophesy a possible international professional league, there must be a little fire where the smoke was.

Nuff sed.

Waterloo Star Leads Score Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A five-point performance in University of Waterloo Warriors' 11-4 triumph over McMaster University Marlins last week boosted left-winger Jerry Lawless into the lead in the Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association Hockey League scoring race.

The 22-year-old Kirkland Lake native has scored seven goals and six assists for 13 points in three games to give him a two point margin over Larry Jones of Queen's Golden Gaels and Ghislain Delage of University of Montreal Carabins.

Jones also has seven goals while Delage has five.

Hank Monteith of University of Toronto Blues and Bob Pond of Queen's share fourth place with 10 points each.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs' combination of Garry Bonney and Ray Reeson tops the goaltending department, having allowed a combined average of 2.33 goals per game.

Ranger Leads Central

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Right-winger Paul Andrea of Minnesota Rangers retained a narrow margin in the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race for the fifth consecutive week.

The 24-year-old native of North Sydney, N.S., has 11 goals and 15 assists for 26 points, one more than Bill Inglis of Houston Apollos and Art Stratton of St. Louis Braves.

Inglis, a native of Ottawa, has 14 goals and 11 assists while Stratton has scored six and assisted on 19.

Jim Peters of Memphis Wings, Andre Lacroix of Tulsa Oilers and Jim Johnson of Minnesota share fourth place with 24 points apiece, one more than Bill Inglis of Houston Apollos and Art Stratton of St. Louis Braves.

Inglis, a native of Ottawa, has 14 goals and 11 assists while Stratton has scored six and assisted on 19.

Jim Peters of Memphis Wings, Andre Lacroix of Tulsa Oilers and Jim Johnson of Minnesota share fourth place with 24 points apiece, one more than Bill Inglis of Houston Apollos, Champagne eight and Johnson six.

Wayne Rutledge of the Rangers is tops in goaltending with a 2.79 average. Carl Weisel of Houston leads in shutouts with three.

Leafs Will Play Russ

"Any Time, Any Place"

TORONTO (CP)—John Bassett, chairman of the board of Maple Leaf Gardens, says Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League are ready to play the Russian national team "any time, any place."

Bassett, in an interview here, said it is not the NHL which is holding up such a game.

"It is Bunny Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation. He will not allow the Russians or any other amateur teams to play a professional club. He wouldn't allow NHL players to conduct a clinic in European countries.

"The Leafs don't care where the game is played," Bassett said. "If they want to play it in Russia, the Maple Leafs will go, providing they pay our expenses. Of course we would like to play in Maple Leaf Gardens, especially now since the Russian team is on tour in Canada. But Mr. Ahearne, it seems, will not allow it."

Alexander Ragulin, a Russian defenseman said to be an NHL calibre, says he would like to play a team from the NHL. Ragulin, who watched Leafs practise here Tuesday, said: "It makes no difference what the rules are. We just want to play the top teams."

By JIM CRERAR

TORONTO (CP)—A team of all stars from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, bolstered by a senior goals tender from Fort William, stole a page from Russia's hockey book and came close to pulling an upset Tuesday night.

The all-stars lost 4-3 to the touring Russian national team, but not before throwing a scare into their opponents by skating hard and using their way to a 3-1 lead in the first period.

The victory was Russia's third in its eight-game tour of Canada. The Russians defeated Canada's national team 4-0 and 5-0 in their first two games and play Montreal Junior Canadiens of the OHA Junior A series tonight in Montreal.

The Junior Habs will be bolstered by some of their graduates, among them goaltender Jacques Plante who retired last season after a National Hockey League career with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

Before Tuesday night's game OHA coach Gus Bodnar, an other former NHL star, said his team would use a favorite European tactic by controlling the puck and carrying it into Russia's zone to set up chances close in.

Sparked by defenceman Bobby Orr of Oshawa Generals and forwards Andre Lacroix and Danny Grant of Peterborough Petes, the OHA team did exactly that and had the Russians befuddled through the first period.

OUT OF STEAM

But the Canadians ran out of steam in the second period and the Russians broke loose in a strong display of skating and passing that turned the tide before a crowd of 14,886.

The line of Boris Maiorov, Anatolie Firsov and Vyacheslav Starshinov accounted for three of the Russian goals, each a goalmouth scramble. After the second to make it 3-3 and the Russians, displaying their usual precision passing, tied it early in the third, when Starshinov scored on a rebound.

That set the stage for Lobrov's winning effort which came after Russian goalie Victor Konovalenko made a series of point-blank stops against Lacroix.

Orr, who set up the first goal, said after the game that he never saw passing as accurate as that of the Russians. He said the passing plays were "just fantastic."

Russian coach Arkady Tchernishov lauded the Canadian team's speed and stick handling, but said the Juniors were tired in the third period.

He had no complaints about the refereeing. Russia picked up seven of the 12 minor penalties and outshot the all-stars 25-20.

player scoring once and assisting twice.

But the winning goal was scored by Konstantin Loktev at 7:30 of the third period from that the Russians went into a defensive shell that the OHA team was unable to penetrate with any success.

Maiorov opened the scoring early in the first period, but the all-stars bounced back with goals by Ted Snell of Niagara Falls Flyers, Grant and Lacroix, the top scorer in the Junior A OHA with 16 goals and 27 assists. The Russians, caught flat-footed by the Canadian team's hard skating, were forced into several mistakes during the period.

But the touring team recovered in the second and held a wide edge despite picking up four penalties to one for the OHA squad. Goaltender Joey Bamford, picked up by the all-stars from Fort William Beavers of the Thunder Bay League, was brilliant in the second, allowing just one goal as Russia fired 19 shots his way. Bamford held Russia to a 3-3 tie in Fort William during their tour last season.

Rules Make Difference

Hockey Experts Voice Opinions

TORONTO (CP)—Whether it was sour grapes or scor, some of the world's top hockey authorities had little praise for the Russian national hockey team after they squeezed out a narrow 4-3 victory over an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A all-star team here Tuesday night.

Rudy Pilous, former coach of the National Hockey League's Chicago Black Hawks who now coaches Hamilton Red Wings of the OHA Junior A, applauded the Russians' passing and skating.

"But if they played our rules, they'd get knocked down in the attacking zone, one good bodycheck would break up all that pretty passing. If we played their rules, with a team of NHL all-stars, I can see guys like Henri Richard running the score up into adding machine figures."

Under international rules, which the Russians apply, bodychecking is forbidden in the defenders' half of the ice, and a penalized team may not ice the puck.

Sid Abel, coach of Detroit Red Wings, said:

"The Russians move the puck around but there is a lot of wasted motion. Playing one way, they wouldn't be able to look around and pick their spots.

"I'd like to see a little more of them to see how much guts they have."

Gordie Howe of Detroit, the man who in 20 NHL seasons has scored more than 600 goals, said, "They make mistakes, just like we do."

WOULD HELP US

He felt the international rules would help Canadian forwards, who are the targets for abuse under Canadian rules.

"But may be it would backfire on us," he said. "We be preocupied saying 'oops, excuse me' when we bumped anybody."

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs approved of the international rules.

"Boy, how good a guy could look, playing with his head down, making all those moves without being hit," he said.

But the Big M didn't feel the Russians had advanced to the level of the lowest member of the NHL.

"I don't think they've improved in the five years since I've been playing," he said. "They could pass and skate then, and they're doing the same things now."

Abel Says Greetings "Bush"

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, have had the season's greeting painted in four-foot high letters across centre ice.

The lettering, in dark green, was unveiled Tuesday night when the touring Russian national team defeated a team of Ontario Hockey Association Junior A all-stars 4-3.

At the same time, Sid Abel, manager-coach of Detroit Red Wings who play the Leafs in an NHL game here tonight, has protested the lettering. Wirtzer president Clarence Campbell of Montreal.

Abel believes the puck will be obscured when it is played across the letters and said Tuesday they were "a hindrance to hockey and also bush."

Harold Ballard, vice-president of the Gardens, said permission for the lettering was granted by Campbell.

Campbell plans to check the matter at tonight's game.

"What's Wrong With The Bruins?"

—Hab Trainer Has Theory

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

"What's wrong with the Bruins?" is the $64 question in Boston these days.

At the bottom of the National Hockey League standings with only 13 p t s., the Bruins haven't come up with a victory in eight tiraight games.

Tonight Boston meets the second-place Black Hawks in Chicago Third-place Detroit Red Wings play the fourth-place Maple Leafs in Toronto to tonight's only other NHL contest.

Gr-tor ~ttes trained to the league-leading Montreal Canadi- ens has h~ own theories about Boston's poor streak.

"They've shown themselves to be impatient and short on understanding of their own problems," he said in an interview Tuesday.

"They don't give their young players the time or the chance to develop. They would rather use veteran players who can in- still him in a good game. They also hunt among the lists of players in opposing clubs and take the players they think themselves don't want anymore.

"The Boston administration doesn't give the impression of efficiency and know-how that we have here at the Canadiens. They never seem to achieve anything. . . .'

Better expressed surprise at the number of fans who remain faithful to the Bruins.

"They must just love hockey," he said.

The Leafs have called up defenceman-forward Darryl Sly and defenceman Larry Hillman from their Rochester farm club in the American League for tonight's game.

Sly, a resident of Collingwood, Ont., will make his first NHL appearance. Hillman played in the NHL with Detroit, Boston and Toronto before going to Rochester.

Peter Stemkowski, a forward who suffered an ankle injury last Saturday, will not play tonight but expects to be available by this Saturday.

Dares Officer To Hit Him

Clay Faces Police Charge!

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay was charged with disorderly conduct when, following a traffic arrest Tuesday, he dared a policeman to hit him so he could "sue the government," the police officer said.

Clay and three other men were stopped on the city's south side while riding in a car that had no license plates or city vehicle sticker.

A policeman said Clay became boisterous and arrogant when he was questioned.

"Clay said we couldn't stop him because he's the champ," said the policeman, Thomas Faragoi.

Clay kept asking the police- man to hit him so he could sue the government, Faragoi said.

Faragoi said he and his patrol partner, Lawrence Forsberg, stopped the car, driven by Johnny Cage, 47, of Chicago, after they saw ll ilrcing a block and noticed it had no state licenses plates or city sticker.

The policeman said Cage was driving with a revoked driver's license.

Clay and another occupant of the car, Omar Bey, were charged with disorderly conduct and posted $25 bond. Cage was charged with driving with a revoked licence, and driving without a state licence and city vehicle sticker.

The three will appear in traffic court Jan. 17.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay, the undefeated heavyweight boxing champion, was selected Tuesday by the Boxing Writers Association as Fighter of the Year.

Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he prefers to call himself, was picked for the award by a whopping margin over lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz and lightheavyweight king Jose Torres.

Ski Team Given Subsidy

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government made a $7,000 contribution Tuesday to Canada's national ski team to help finance its overseas competition this year.

Premier Roberts, a ski enthusiast made the presentation at Queen's Park to Katie Rosenn, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, and Ed Creed, campaign chairman for Ontario.

The association is attempting to raise $150,000. So far, the federal government and four provinces have contributed.

About half the 60-member national ski team is from Ontario.

Puck Tour Hits Block

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian-Italiano bumped into the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and its world affiliate Tuesday night and the air was filled with indignation.

Where is Judges (Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., CAHA secretary - manager)?" asked Lou Janetta, president of the Canadian - Italian Amateur Hockey League, when he learned that a proposed tour of Europe by his league's All Stars has hit an official roadblock.

"Man, if they try to stop us now, there are going to be a lot of disappointed people."

Juckes said earlier the CAHA had learned of the tour through newspaper reports and that no official sanction had been given the team to play exhibition games overseas.

"Our accommodations are already booked and paid for in all the places we're going to visit," Janetta said in an interview.

Hockey groups in countries where unsanctioned games were played would face suspension from the International Ice Hockey Federation.

MADE ARRANGEMENTS

Janetta said arrangements have been made to play with teams in Ortisa, Cortina, Milan and Bolzano in Italy and perhaps Innsbruck, Austria. Negotiations are also under way to play in Paris.

"This is a private tour," he said. "We're just playing exhibition games."

Juckes said hockey federations in countries where the Toronto team plans to play face suspension from the International Ice Hockey Federation, ruling body of the amateur game in the world, if they play the team from Canada.

"All invitations to touring teams must go through the IIHF and the hockey federations concerned," Juckes said in an interview. "The CAHA and IIHF know nothing about this proposed tour by the Toronto team and it will not receive approval until invitations are submitted through regular channels."

Juckes said he had talked by phone Tuesday to Bunny Ahearne of London, president of the IIHF. He quoted Ahearne as saying he knew nothing about the proposed tour and that if the Toronto team plays in Europe, the hockey federations concerned will be suspended.

Texas Star Signs For $225,000

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Tommy Nobis, all-America linebacker at Texas and the U.S. No. 1 professional draft choice, signed with Atlanta Falcons, the new National Football League club, Tuesday for a reported $225,000.

The 6-foot-2-inch, 220 - pound Texan from San Antonio, decided in favor of the NFL after a fierce bidding war between the Falcons and Houston Oilers, who had made him their first round pick in the rival American Football League

After signing Nobis said money was not his prime motivation.

"I like NFL football. I'm not taking anything away from the AFL, but—I thought if I ever could play in an NFL football game I would do it."

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Houston Oiler owner K. S. (Bud) Adams says Texas' all-America linebacker Tommy Nobis agreed just Saturday over the telephone to sign with the American Football League team.

"He told me he liked our contract and that he was coming with the Oilers," Adams said Tuesday.

"All that remained were a couple of small details that he wanted changed, I approved the details over the phone Monday morning and he seemed very pleased. I doubt if we were out bid. There is something more to this, I'll bet."

Fullback Dies After Surgery

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Fullback Mack Lee Hill, 25, of Kansas City Chiefs, died Tuesday of complications following an operation to repair ruptured ligaments in his right knee.

He was injured Sunday when tackled after catching a pass in the third quarter of the American Football League game between the Chiefs and buffalo Bills in Buffalo. Hill entered hospital Monday night.

"He went into convulsions following the operation," a hospital spokesman said. "His temperature shot up to 106 degrees."

An autopsy was performed today. Doctors said Tuesday Hill suffered "a sudden and massive embolism blood clot after surgery."

Hill was the third professional football player to die in the American eague—to die of game-related injuries in recent years.

In September, 1962, Stone Johnson, 23, of Dallas, Tex., a rookie back with the Chiefs, died 10 days after he suffered a broken neck in an exhibition game. Howard Glenn, a guard for the old New York Titans, died in October, 1960, of a broken neck suffered in a game against Houston Oilers.

JUVENILE

Tigers clawed the Aces to the tune of 4-3. B. Hunter sparked the Tigers' attack with a pair of markers while D. Dickey and J. Cole bagged the others. T. Wellesley assisted on two, Smith and Cole on one each.

R. Lang fired both Aces' goals and R. Hunter helped on one.

Due to school holidays at O.S.D., Sunday's scheduled game between O.S.D. and the Tigers has been postponed. The Juvenile All-Stars will play the midgets at 5.30 and on Monday, Aces and Jets will play at 9.15.

MIDGET

Scores were high in the midget division where Wings whipped Elk's Black Hawks 8-3 and Canadiens dumped the Leafs 7-2.

Ted Waite scored his club's first three goals to spark the Wings' victory. Allan Jones, Damon Richardson, Neil Goyer, Mark Acquafredde and Brian James added later goals. Acquafreddo had two assists, Jones and Waite one each. Kevin Allen, Mike Rivers and John Meens were Hawks' marksmen. Ron MacIntosh, Glenn Payne and Rick Farrell drew assists.

NOVICE

Seven Gray potted the Wings' goal with Ian Hayman doing the honors for the Hawks.

Barons got two goals apiece from Joe Muldoon, Chris Lachman and Paul Prudhomme. John Gibson scored the odd one. John Loder and Danny Murray were Canadiens' marksmen.

Stephen Kirby starred for Leafs by netting four goals, including the first three. Paul Morton and David Cochrane had the other goals. Thomas Bateman and Michael MacDonald tallied the Rangers goals.

NFL Scoring Race

Bears' Sayers Leads Brown

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League scoring race will go right down to the wire Sunday with Gale Sayers, Chicago Bears' sensational rookie, holding a six-point edge over the unsinkable Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns.

Sayers' six-touchdown splurge Sunday against San Francisco 49ers rocketed the former Kansas star into the lead with a record total of 21 touchdowns and 126 points. Brown had tied Lenny Moore's record of 20 touchdowns a week earlier.

Although Sayers has moored up to third position to the rushing race, he is no threat to the Cleveland fullback. Brown's rushing total of 1,470 yards assured him of his eighth title in nine years. Tim Brown of Philadelphia Eagles is second with 823 yards and Sayers is third at 782.

Dave Parks of San Francisco leads Philadelphia's Pete Retzlaff by five in the pass reception derby. Parks has caught 71 for 1,179 yards and 11 touchdowns and Retzlaff 85 for 1,171 yards and 10 scores.

Rudy Bukich, a revelation for the Bears this season, leads the passers in the involved rating system with John Unitas of Baltimore Colts, who is out for the season, in the No. 2 spot.

Guelph Defeats Woodstock

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Regals scored three third-period goals to defeat Woodstock Athletics 6-2 Tuesday night and move into a first-place tie with Oakville Oaks in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Playing-coach Butch Martin paced Guelph with two goals while single markers went to Walt Bradley, Pete Bettini, Elmer Skov and Dave Luciuk.

Bears Whip Canucks

Aces Swamp Reds 11-4

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears may be able to score quickly, but Quebec Aces score a lot and are still in first place by 12 points in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League.

Hershey poked in two goals 22 seconds apart en route to a 6-3 victory over Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League in an interlocking game Tuesday night.

But the Aces, first in their division with 35 points, swamped Providence Reds, fourth in the eastern section 11-4.

The Aces turned the game into a rout before 3,425 Quebec City fans by scoring four times in the first period, five times in the second and twice in the third.

Cleland Mortson, Ed Hoekstra and Gordon Labossiere each scored two goals for the winners while Leon Rochefort, Don Blackburn, Jean-Guy Gendron, Yvon Villeneuve and Jim Morrison added one each. Jim Mikol and Bob Brinkworth each counted a pair for the Reds, who were out-shot 41-19.

The Bears completed the most successful western swing of any AHL club so far this season by recording their third win in 3 against only one loss against WHL teams. Jeannot Gilbert scored twice for Hershey with Gary Dornhoefer, Mike Mahoney, Bob Leiter and Gene Ubriaco each scoring once.

The victory gave Hershey second in the Eastern Division, a three-point cushion over third-place Baltimore Clippers.

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Glen Primrose, an eight-year-old Michigan-owned pacer, turned back the front-running Rocky Cash at Windsor Raceway Tuesday night to win the featured eighth race.

Glen Primrose paid $15.20, $8.50 and $3.90.

J. F. Kennedy Has Become India's Favorite American

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Two years after his death, John F. Kennedy continues to dominate the hearts of Indians.

To quote an Indian columnist, "Kennedy has become India's favorite American. No country-man of his could ever hope to replace him."

Indians compare the late U.S. president to Mahatma Gandhi and Jawaharlal Nehru, two men who have mainly shaped India's destiny during this century.

In contrast, President Lyndon Johnson is still to carve out an Indian niche for himself.

As in the case of Kennedy and Nehru, Indians seem to find many things in common between Johnson and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri.

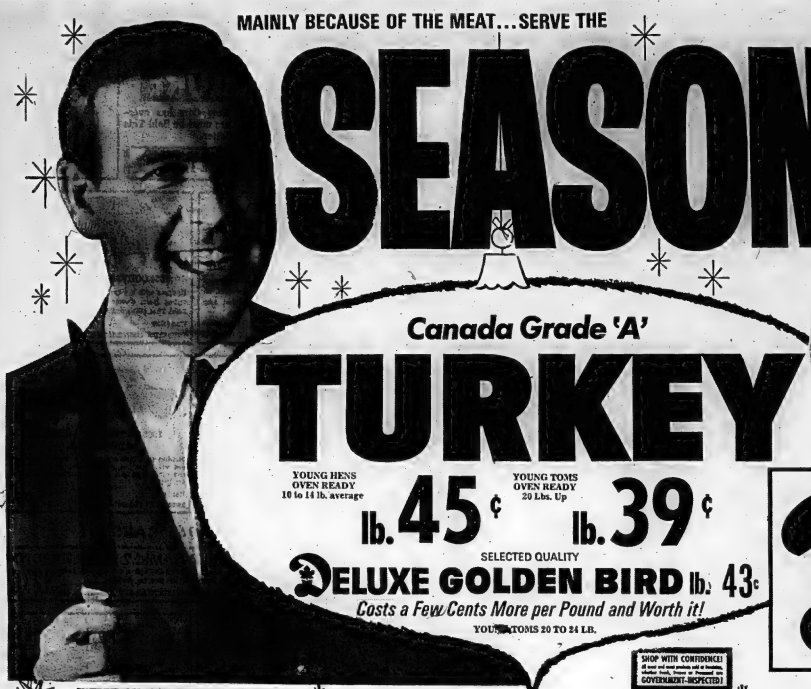
They say that Johnson and Shastri are men of modest abilities, dedicated but unspectacular. They lack the scholarship of their predecessors and their fine diplomatic touch.

The two leaders are also primarily "rural gentlemen." Shastri, like Johnson, likes to talk about rural problems. Though he owns no ranch, he feels at home in the company of farmers from his native Uttar Pradesh state.

The popular Indian image of Johnson is that of a politician determined to have things done quickly even if it means trading on the corns of many people.

Johnson is generally regarded in India as a "conservative" in his thinking. One paper wrote recently that the American patriotic American out to Americanize the world on his own terms."

Another paper doubted whether Johnson "has half the vision his predecessor had." This impression has resulted because little is known here about Johnson's domestic achievements. He is thought of primarily as a powerful "cruiser" who dispatches jet bombers to North Viet Nam, lands marines in the Dominican Republic, and other world statesmen and periodically outs off aid to other countries.



But most Indians respect Johnson, even though they may not find him as charming as Kennedy.

Worldly Young Prince Chosen To Shepherd Million Refugees

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A worldly young prince from an ancient Moslem line has been chosen by the United Nations to guide the destinies of more than 1,000,000 refugees.

Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, 32, son of the late Aga Khan III, is a little awed but undaunted at his selection by Secretary-General U Thant for the post of UN high commissioner of refugees.

"It is a tremendous challenge for one of my age but I feel I have the background for the job," he told an interviewer in a clipped British accent.

"After all, I served under two high commissioners and travelled all over Africa and Asia dealing with the problems of thousands of refugees."

It will be Sadruddin's third UN assignment since he graduated from Harvard in 1957. He has served as special consultant to the head of the UN educational, scientific and cultural organization and has been deputy refugee commissioner since 1962.

PROTECTED BY UN

Sadruddin will look after more than 1,200,000 refugees under UN protection as political exiles, persons displaced by war or made homeless by government changes.

In serving the world forum, the handsome six-foot prince is carrying on a family tradition. His father represented India in the old League of Nations and served as president of the League. His half-brother, the late Prince Aly Khan, headed the Pakistani delegation to the UN until his death in Paris in 1960.

"We were brought up with a sense of responsibility to the Moslem community as a whole," said the prince. "More than that, father raised us in an international atmosphere, sending us to Western schools."

Aly Khan's son—and Sadruddin's nephew—is the Aga Khan IV (Prince Karim), who heads the Ismaili Moslem community estimated to total about 30,000,000 people in Asia and Africa. The Aga Khan III designated Prince Karim to lead the Ismaili sect.

Sadruddin's mother was French, his father had Indian citizenship and he is a subject

Canadian-American Relations In 1965 Featured by Variety

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Multihued variety was the color of the 1965 edition of Canadian-American relations, from jailbreaks to an "argument" on the highest level about Viet Nam.

Developments late in the year indicated a man factor in 1966 will, as usual, be the special relationship between the two countries and the ability of U.S. fiscal and monetary decisions to affect Canada.

The year began with a reverse Board, over President Johnson's objections, tightened the money supply with an increase in its lending rates to banks. The Bank of Canada followed suit.

Long-term Canadian borrowing rights in the United States remained in force, but soon scheduled for the last quarter of 1965 were set back into 1966 to ease pressure on the U.S. international payments deficit.

American subsidiaries in Canada also were brought into the voluntary U.S. program of discouraging direct investment and urged more repatriation of retained earnings. This promised to reduce inflationary pressures in Canada, Canadian authorities suggested.

The moves followed signs that both economies, nearing a sixth year of steady progress, are developing inflationary trends.

The year began in the prologue of friendship on a cold January day in Texas. Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson signed an automotive products accord capable, in time, of altering North American economic ties.

But the glow was not always rosy. Near the end of the year, a pitch-black period descended and 22,000,000 people on either side of the boundary creeped literally in the dark when an Ontario power failure triggered the biggest power blackout in North American history.

U.S. LACKS WATER

The crash of the 2,000,000-000 Atlantic Acceptance Corp. in June shook investment circles in both country. American water shortages generated a surge of interest in Canada's supplies.

Michelle Duclos, a statuesque Montreal blonde, was convicted of helping a plot to blow up the Statue of Liberty in New York, and the FBI put a Canadian on its most-wanted list in connection with a Syracuse, N.Y. robbery by cannon.

Two prominent former diplomats brought forth a long-awaited replay for minimizing, by Montreal police as Rivard by Montreal police as Rivard had been by U.S. authorities, then eased out of a Florida jail down a rubber water hose, and hasn't been seen since.

Prime Minister Welcomed in Port of Spain

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP) — Fanfare and military trumpets heralded the arrival Tuesday of Prime Minister Pearson at the beginning of the first visit by a Canadian prime minister to Trinidad and Tobago.

After the Canadian government twin-jet aircraft landed at Piarco International Airport outside of Port of Spain, Pearson, tanned from a two-week holiday on the Caribbean island of St. Barthelomew, met Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago.

Dr. Williams accompanied the prime minister on a swift inspection of a company of the Trinidad and Tobago Regiment.

Ten minutes after arrival, Pearson and Dr. Williams entered a big silver limousine and headed in a motorcade with a motorcycle escort into Port of Spain.

Pearson holds talks today with Dr. Williams and government officials, later, he will visit the House of Representatives.

Topics are expected to range from greater opportunities for Trinidad and Tobago citizens to emigrate to Canada, possible Canadian aid to this country, and a possible increase of Canadian treaties coming here to help Trinidad's hard - pressed sugar system.

It was also considered likely that Dr. Williams will be anxious to have a first hand account of the Canadian position on the Rhodesian question and also whether there is any prospect for an immediate increase in the Canadian market for Trinidad sugar in view of Canada's ban on Rhodesian sugar.

Pearson is to return to Canada Thursday.

On his arrival, Trinidad's lone evening newspaper, The Evening News, said Pearson "has been one of our long and faithful friends."

"Our ties are deep-rooted and we have no doubt that the talks between our two leaders will strengthen our relationship."

Soviet Union Asks Troops Be Withdrawn

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) The Soviet Union Tuesday demanded the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cyprus and the closure of British bases in the island.

Nikolai T. Fedorenko, the Soviet delegate, asserted that the forces of colonialism had not given up their policy of liquidating Cyprus as a sovereign state.

For the island to obtain genuine independence, all foreign troops must be pulled out, and there must be respect for the independence and sovereignty of the state, as well as for the rights of its two principal communities, he told the United Nations General Assembly's main political committee.

More than 900 Canadians are included in the 5,900-member UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

The committee was continuing debate on separate submissions by Cyprus and Turkey about the question of Cyprus.

Hot Race for Top Actor In Academy Award Seen

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A hot race for best actor, a less-spirited one for actress—that's the shape of the competition for the 1965 Oscars.

Since not all films contending for an Academy Award have been shown yet—Director Zhivago is still in the cutting rooms —an accurate analysis of the hopefuls cannot be made. But a survey of probables indicates it will be man's year.

At least four actors are being pushed for double performances: Sidney Poitier for A Patch of Blue and The Slender Thread; James Stewart for Shenandoah and The Flight of the Phoenix; Oskar Werner for Ship of Fools and The Spy Who Came in from the Cold; and Lee Marvin for Ship of Fools and Cat Ballou.

Laurence Olivier's Othello shoulders will be a strong contender, as will Omar Sharif's Doctor Zhivago.

Others with chances are Richard Widmark, The Bedford Incident; Jack Lemmon, The Great Race; Terence Stamp, The Collector; Max Von Sydow, The Greatest Story Ever Told; George Segal, King Rat; and Michael Caine, The Ipcress File.

For best actress, such past winners as Julie Andrews (The Sound of Music), Simone Signoret (Ship of Fools), Vivien Leigh (Ship of Fools) and Anne Bancroft (The Slender Thread) are among the early favorites.

The race for best picture shows no overwhelming winner like last year's My Fair Lady. MGM has high hopes for its costly Doctor Zhivago. If sheer enjoyment were the yardstick, 20th Century-Fox's Sound of Music would triumph. Ship of Fools, an all-star cast in a sea film as years, is another top choice.

Lawyer Claims $20,000 Bail Is Exorbitant

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—A defence lawyer said Tuesday that $20,000 bail set for Roland Henry Steane, a pensioner with a heart condition, is exorbitant and beyond all bounds of imagination.

Steane, 63, of Stouffville is charged with being in possession of stolen goods. His lawyer Hugh O'Connell, said Steane is receiving a disability pension and was treated in jail by a doctor.

However, Magistrate Harry Jermyn refused the request to lower bail and remanded Steane to Dec. 21. He said a reduction in bail will be considered at that time.

Acting Crown Attorney John Humphreys said one of his reasons for opposing lowering of Steane's bail is that police are still investigating the case.

Steane has been in custody since Dec. 2. He is also arrested on a charge of possessing electrical materials and tools with an estimated value of more than $8,600, stolen from Northern Canada Supply Ltd. in Oshawa Nov. 25.

NEW LOOK AT CNE

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition will have an aerial tramway in 1968 to give visitors a bird's-eye view of the midway and adjacent buildings, John D. Park, president of the CNE and Tank Co. of Canada Ltd., announced Wednesday the signing of a $600,000 contract by Aerial-Tramway Division of Bridge and Tank and J. W. "Patty" Conklin of Conklin Shows for construction of the tramway.

Stanky Chisox Manager

CHICAGO (AP) — Pepperpot Eddie Stanky, asserting "I run my ball club 24 hours a day, 12 months a year," signed a three-year contract to manage baseball's Chicago White Sox Tuesday.

Talmost as colorful and controversial as his former boss Leo Durocher, new Chicago Cub manager, Stanky's selection as successor to Al Lopez, who resigned, came as a complete surprise. His salary was guessed at $40,000 a year.

Lopez retired Nov. 4 to become vice-president and Sox consultant. Stanky, 48, director of player personnel of New York Mets, never even was listed as a Sox managerial candidate.

Stanky directed St. Louis Cardinals to third-place finishes in 1952 and 1953 and sixth in 1954. In three-year pact stressed while Sox anxiety to match the cross - town Cubs' signing of flamboyant Durocher. —

Stanky, a fierce competitor as infielder under Durocher with Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947 and New York Giants from 1950 to 1951, presided calmly, but firmly at the signing ceremony. He said he regarded the White Sox, who finished second last season — seven games behind Minnesota Twins—as a pennant contender, adding:

"I'm coming into this with my eyes wide open. This is my kind of club and I want it to be the best alert club in the American League and also the best conditioned."

AFL All-Stars Squad Buffalo Bills Place 6

NEW YORK (AP)—Buffalo Bills, defending champions in the American Football League, placed six men on the 1965 all-star team selected for The Associated Press by a 24-man panel, three from each league city.

The Bills, who clinched the Eastern Division title early and have had time to prepare for a rematch with San Diego Chargers, put quarterback Jack Kemp and guard Billy Shaw on the offensive unit and tackle Tom Sestak, linebacker Mike Stratton, corner back Butch Byrd and safety George Saimes on the defensive club.

San Diego was represented by five men, including Lance Alworth, a unanimous choice at flanker back, running back Paul Lowe and tackle Ron Mix on offence, plus end Earl Faison on the team with Jim Tyrer at offensive tackle, Jerry Mays at defensive end, linebacker Bobby Bell and safety Johnny Robinson.

Nick Buoniconti, Boston Patriots' lone representative, received all 24 votes for middle linebacker. Oakland Raiders had centre Jim Otto on offence and corner back Dave Grayson on defence.

Houston Oilers and Denver Broncos each had two men on the offensive team. The Oilers' Willie Frazier was the tight end and Bob Talamini, a superior pass blocker, was at guard. Lionel Taylor, Denver's split end, beat out Oakland's Art Powell for the split end job and Cookie Gilchrist, who moved from Buffalo to Denver during the off season, repeated at fullback.

CPR Fares Attacked by Ottawa Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The CPR came under attack at a civic board of control meeting Tuesday over a pending increase in passenger fares between Ottawa and Toronto.

Controller Ken Fogarty said the CPR fares are going up from $8.50 to $9.50 each way Friday and Sunday, $7.50 on other days of the week. Effective Jan. 20, they will go to $11 on all days. The one-way bus fare is $6.50 weekdays and $7.95 on weekends. Air Canada charges $19.

Seaboards Ground Flyers 7-5

PICTON — Scoring six of their goals in the first half of the game, Picton Seaboards shot down Tren.on RCAF Flyers 7-5 here last night in an OHA Lake Shore Intermediate affair.

Seaboards took a 3-1 lead in the first period after spotting Trenton the opening goal. They upped the lead to 5-2 by the game's midway point and led 7-3 before being outscored 2-0 in the final twenty minutes.

Gary Hesselgrave topped the Picton snipers with a three-goal output. Moe Hunter, Jim Curren-sey, Riley and Beatty triggered the other goals. Riley drew three assists, Hunter, Garteasey and Beatty two apiece, Neal, Jones, Ron Weese and O'Hallorans one each.

Legrand po.ted a pair for RCAF with Currie, McVicar and Frank getting the others. Smith, Frank, MacDonald, Morrieau and Shenfield had assists.

Each team drew five minor penalties.

Funds Contributed To Research Horse Ills

TORONTO (CP) — The Harness Tracks of America and the Thoroughbred Racing Commission are contributing $100,000 a year to research of horse diseases, Stanley Bergstein of Chicago, executive secretary of the Harness Tracks group, said Tuesday night.

Bergstein and Bryan Field, vice - president of Delaware Park Thoroughbred Racetrack in Wilmington, Del., were guest speakers at a two-day meeting of the National Association of Canadian Racetracks, which opened Tuesday night.

Bergstein recalled a respiratory virus among horses in 1963 almost crippled racing at North American tracks and warned that other diseases could crop up.

"A new problem of equine infection is known as swamp fever," he said. "This is a threat that could cripple racing in North America. So is the threat of sleeping sickness."

He said research into these areas has been proposed "and we are going to support it."

Most of the research is done in pre-race tests where abnormalities in horses can be detected. Bergstein said that extracts of blood samples taken in the paddock before a race can provide a reliable test of a horse's condition.

Field outlined the strides horse racing has made in recent years. He said a suggestion made in 1940 that betting on races in New York City would soon reach $100,000,000 was ridiculed.

"This year in New York the betting figure was in excess of $402,000,000," he said.

He complimented horse-racing officials in Ontario for starting quinella betting in the province several years ago. This allows additional pools in races where only four or five horses are entered. He suggested United States tracks adopt quinella betting.

Canada's Main Foreign Policy Aim Is to End Viet Nam War

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada bent its foreign policy efforts in 1967 mainly toward trying to bring about peace talks on the Viet Nam war.

These efforts continued, apparently with remote chance of success, as the ferocity of the fighting mounted in Viet Nam with the approach of 1968.

Canada is in a strategic position to use any influence it has in this situation because of its membership on the International Truce Supervisory Commission in Viet Nam, formed 11 years ago. The commission's name became paradoxical as the United States and Communist North Viet Nam threw fresh forces into the war.

Canada was among the first countries to propose unconditional negotiations in Viet Nam, a position which the U.S. later adopted.

Prime Minister Pearson in a Philadelphia speech in April suggested the U.S. pause in its bombing of North Viet Nam to see whether this might encourage the Communists to approach the negotiating table. It apparently didn't, though the U.S. tried a five-day pause.

Mr. Pearson also suggested creation of an international police force for Viet Nam. But such a force could operate only after a ceasefire.

INSIST ON CONDITIONS

External Affairs Minister Martin sent J. Blair Seaborn, Canada's delegate on the commission, to Hanoi after the U.S. bombing pause to sound out the North Vietnamese. But they attached conditions to peace talks with the U.S., including a prior withdrawal of American forces from South Viet Nam.

One reason foreign policy has been concentrated in such a degree on Viet Nam is that Canada wants to help preserve and enhance the present detente between the U.S. and Russia. There can be no enhancement, authorities say, as long as the Viet Nam war continues.

Mr. Martin also made a determined effort in the field of disarmament by proposing a draft treaty designed to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. One of its features would be guarantees for non-nuclear nations by nuclear states to prevent the former from building national, independent nuclear forces.

Mr. Martin urged that Communist China, now a nuclear power, be brought into disarmament discussions. But Canada voted against Red China's entry into the United Nations on the grounds that Peking had set an unacceptable price — expulsion of the Chinese Nationalists and, consequently, lack of representation for the people of Formosa.

HELP PATROL BORDER

Canada again was to the fore in another UN peacekeeping operation. This is becoming almost an annual event.

Canadian military observers and Canadian planes were sent to the India-Pakistan border to help the UN oversee a ceasefire between the two Commonwealth countries. Mr. Pearson even offered to go to India and Pakistan to help straighten out the mess. His offer was politely declined.

During the election campaign, Mr. Pearson said he would even go to Viet Nam if it would help.

In November, the Canadian government expressed publicly a view often expressed privately here: that the presence of UN forces leads to laxness in attempts to find solutions to problems which led to creation of those forces.

Canada told the UN it might not participate in peacekeeping operations any more if efforts to negotiate settlements were not vigorously pursued by the governments involved in the disputes.

And Mr. Martin said the moral authority of the UN will be undermined if voluntary financing of UN peacekeeping operations by a limited number of UN members becomes the rule.

Peculiarly, one of Mr. Martin's 1965 foreign policy problems was really domestic.

SIGNS AGREEMENT

In November, he and Prançois Leduc the French ambassador, signed an agreement which opens the way for Canadian provinces to establish individual educational and cultural exchanges with France.

The document sets out desires of Canada and France for greater co-operation and exchanges in the cultural, scientific, technical and artistic fields.

The agreement helped to extricate Mr. Martin from the embarrassment caused by members of the Quebec government saying Quebec could negotiate agreements with foreign countries in fields of provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Martin maintained that no agreement between a province and another country had any validity in international law without federal approval.

The new arrangement opens a wide area for the provinces to negotiate individual agreements with approval of the federal authority contingent only on notification.

BRITISH BUILD ABROAD

British overseas building contracts totalling £186,000,000 were signed in the year ending March 1963.

Marine Agent In Charge of Greek Freighter

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department's district marine agent to Prescott Ont., has taken possession of the Greek freighter Protostatis, aground on a mudbank east of Kingston, the department announced Tuesday.

H. said agent J. S. Barrick, in his capacity as official receiver of wrecks, has taken over "to protect the interests of all parties concerned with the fate of the ship."

The 440-foot Protostatis was abandoned last week by its captain and crew after running aground for the second time on its way towards the St. Lawrence Seaway exit with a load of scrap iron.

Our meat manager just can't keep his mind off Turkeys...

Naturally, next week is the big week for Gobblers, and the most harried man in our store this week has to be the Meat Manager. He even dreams about Turkeys.

This week he is busy filling all the orders for next week, making sure of complete selection. We don't mean to change the subject, but after all, we shouldn't really be talking about next week, what about this week? With all the parties and family gatherings planned for the Festive Season, our Meat Manager (even under present conditions) did do some real good preplanning. He very cleverly planned a PRE-CHRISTMAS BEEF SALE!

Knowing full well poultry will be king over the holidays, he knew you ladies would really appreciate a good roast of beef prior to Christmas. Smart man, our Meat Manager!

Walter Insley Re-elected Legion Head

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Branch 28, Royal Canadian Legion, at their Tuesday night meeting held their election of officers. Reports of the year's work were also heard from the various standing committees. 35 to 40 members were present for the election.

Lance Newbury, one of six directors for the local Legion branch, said a few words with regard to the finishing touches of the organization: "This branch of the Legion," he said, "has done well in the past and managed to maintain our large building and carry out many activities in the past year, to the benefit of our community and the Legion as a whole."

He paid tribute to the steward and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. Demille, who are always pleasant and have contributed so much to the branch in faithfulness and loyalty. "We now look forward to another year," he continued, "and our activities will be much the same as we carried out in the past. Our main purpose and objective in this branch is to provide for the welfare of veterans and operate as an organization devoted to community service, and other service organization in the community has rendered more than the Royal Canadian Legion."

The same slate of officers was re-elected for the coming year with the exception of one director. The new executive is: president, Walter Insley; 1st vice-president, R. Gravelle; 2nd vice-president, Doug Merchant and the directors, Lance Nethercy, Q.C.; Arthur Miller, Ronald Stone, Robert Skitteral, W. Terwilliger and newly-elected, William Pierson.

Quebec Voters May Get Choice to Cast Ballots Between June, December

QUEBEC (CP)—For the first time, the number of persons eligible to vote in a Quebec provincial election is estimated to exceed 3,000,000 and they may get a chance to cast ballots in the coming year.

Many observers in Quebec say 1966 is the year Premier Jean Lesage will ask for a renewal of the mandate of his Liberal government, which last appealed to the voters in 1962.

Mr. Lesage himself has declined comment on predictions of an election next year but Bona Arsenault, provincial secretary in his government, told some reporters last week that an election could be expected some time between June and December, 1966.

Mr. Arsenault is regarded as a leading electoral strategist on the Lesage team.

Mr. Lesage has himself remarked that he can constitutionally hold off on an election until 1968.

Observers in the provincial capital say the government will want to see enacted, before the calling of an election, priority legislation dealing with social programs and to have approved the budget for the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

IN POWER SINCE 1960

The Liberals came to power in 1960, one year after the death of Premier Maurice Duplessis, who had ruled since 1944.

Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson, who heads the Union Nationale party, is urging his supporters to get ready for elections that could come in April—before the government is forced to adjounce a tax increase.

But a source in the Union Nationale says Mr. Johnson, in making such predictions, is primarily interested in putting his forces on the battle-alert.

The last budget from Mr. Lesage, who also is Quebec's finance minister, brought a tax increase which he ascribed to "fiscal rearrangements."

EASE TAX BURDEN

Next year's budget is expected to reflect the findings of a provincial royal commission on taxation. The commission is said to be taking a special interest in the financing of the tax burden on farmers.

Sources close to the commission say the group might recommend the elimination of property taxes levied for school commissions and their replacement with other forms of taxation less hard on farmers.

This would help the financially hard-pressed residents of some rural areas and thus prove a "gift", to the very element in Quebec society which has been most vocal in its complaints in recent months.

A prime factor in the swelling of voter lists beyond the 3,000,000 mark is the recent extension of the franchise to residents 18 years and older, as opposed to the old minimum age of 21. There were 2,700,000 eligible voters in 1962.

SEATS INCREASED

The number of seats in the next legislative assembly will be increased to 108 from 95.

There now are 62 Liberals in the assembly, 31 Union Nationale members and one independent. One seat is vacant.

In saying he could put off an election until 1968, Mr. Lesage was referring to the Quebec law which fixes the length of a mandate as running from the day the official report of election results is filed.

The official filing usually comes about three weeks after balloting day, which in 1962 fell on Nov. 14.

Mr. Lesage theoretically could put off calling an election until December, 1967, and at least 400 days must intervene between the moment of calling and the day of voting. This would allow the voters to go to the polls in 1967.

CUB PACK PARTY

NAPANEE—A goodly crowd of parents and friends enjoyed the Christmas party given by the 2nd Napanee Cub Pack last Monday evening. The Rev. G. W. Case, pastor of Grace Church, which sponsors the organization, was master of ceremonies.

The program was a good one, with a choir of eight boys leading the singing, and a rhythm ban of ten Cubs, complete with drums and cymbals. They presented a playlette: "Who's Important!" The nativity pageant was particularly impressive. Mrs. Edna Longmuir, one of the leaders, acting as narrator. A visit from Santa Claus was well presented by another group, The Welcome spoken by Ricky Neville to open the program; a solo by Ralph Van Koughnet; a piano duet by the McConnell cousins, Jonathan and Frederick; and a pantomime "Greedy Peter" by D'Arcy McKinnon and Rickey Steinman, filled out a well rounder program.

The "Good Turn" money raised by the boys had been used to purchase toys for the Retarded Children's nursery, held in Trinity United Church. They were accepted by Mrs. Clifford Pringle, president of the society.

Santa appeared with a treat for every Cub, and a candy cane for every other child in the audience.

A gift was presented to Mrs. Sue Denison, retiring after five years as assistant leader. Mrs. Emily Harenhis is the leader with Mrs. Shirley Normile as an assistant in addition to Mrs. Denison and Mrs. Longmuir. Scouts David Hutchinson and Schuyler French are also assistants.

Plan New Golf Course

STIRLING — The River Valley community is making progress along the line of sports. Mayor David Duffin, Robert H. Hoard and Ray Sharp have purchased the farm land of Norman Hemar near the River Valley School. The men have taken down fences, cut bush and plan the land in a general renovation in readiness for a golf course with club house which for certain will be in readiness in the spring.

Paul Asperley who has recently retired from the Air Force has acquired five acres of land along the Trent River on the opposite side from the Nova Vista summer resort. Mr. Asperley is busy now with preparations for extending the road allowance and at an early date he plans to build a marina.

At the present the River Valley community has a ski club for winter enjoyment on the farm of John Fraser; also an enterprising air field where several private planes are housed.

NUMBERS DON'T COUNT

LA CHAUX-DE-FONDS (AP) The Swiss watch-making industry warned the public Monday not to be unduly impressed by the number of jewels claimed for ultra-thin watches. The industry's official magazine said the number of jewels is only relevant if they contribute to the efficient working of the watch.

Strong Growth Trend Maintained

"This has been a challenging year for the Canadian banking system", said William M. Currie, President, addressing the 99th Annual Meeting of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

This has been another good year for the Canadian economy. The strong growth trend to which we returned in 1961 has been maintained despite some initial concern as to its continuation for another year, and every region of the country has participated in full measure.

Momentum within the economy itself has had a great deal to do with this excellent performance as indicated by the sharp increase in capital investment, the continuing rise in output of the manufacturing industries and the high level of retail sales. We have had a bumper crop of wheat and markets are assured for virtually the entire harvest of about 700 million bushels. Of importance also has been the fact that economic conditions in our principal markets abroad turned out to be more favourable than had been anticipated so that demand for our exports continued to be strong. The United States enjoyed another impressive increase in output; Britain with international help weathered two serious financial crises, and growth rates picked up in most countries of continental Europe and in Japan.

Developments within Canada

On the domestic scene, our Gross National Product for the year as a whole is expected to exceed $51 billion. This would represent an increase over last year of nine per cent in terms of current dollars and six per cent in terms of volume. Employment has continued to rise strongly, allowing for the usual seasonal fluctuations; total employment in October was over the seven million mark, the year-over-year increase being approximately 290,000. In October the margin of unemployment was estimated at 2.4 per cent of the labour force.

The personal sector of the economy which accounts for roughly two-thirds of the Gross National Product has been buoyant throughout the year. Raising personal incomes and the continuing increase in the use of consumer credit are the principal factors in the demand for goods and services. Notably, sales of new automobiles in 1965 are expected to reach about 700,000 units, a striking advance from the 440,000 units sold in 1961.

The new wave of accelerated capital investment continues. In 1965, business investment in machinery and equipment and non-residential construction within the range of $7.5 billion will be 15 to 20 per cent higher than in 1964 and plans already announced suggest there may be a further increase next year. The expansion in capacity financed by this unprecedented volume of capital activity from the resource-based industries to many types of secondary manufacturing and some of the plants will produce products which are either new to Canada or are substantially improved over those previously on the limited scale. The 1965 estimate for total outlays of $2.8 billion in social capital projects also represents a sharp increase, over 20 per cent higher than last year. The investment in housing, amounting to approximately $2.3 billion, will be nearly 15 per cent above last year although the number of starts will show only a modest increase over the 1964 record of 166,000 starts.

Capital investment on this scale creates strong demands for resources. The flow of materials and equipment for the programme has been reasonably well maintained but there are warnings which suggest that shortages of engineering skills and skilled labour, in particular, may prevent the completion of the full programme planned for this year.

Turning to the government sector, both current and capital expenditures continue to increase with the rising cost of goods and services by the three levels of government estimated to exceed $9 billion this year. Tax revenues and other forms of government collections are considerably higher because of the high level of economic activity. At the federal level, the administrative budget should be close to balance and in fact may show a small surplus.

International Trade

Looking abroad, our exports of merchandise, exclusive of wheat, were up about seven per cent through the first nine months of the year but the construction on wheat shipments, which followed completion of the deliveries to Russia under the 1963-1966 contract brought the overall increase in merchandise exports down to about 1.5 per cent. However, following the new agreements with Russia and China, shipments of wheat are again on the advance and total merchandise exports for 1965 are expected to show an increase of about five per cent over the 1964 total of 58.3 billion. It is encouraging to see the continuing penetration of Canadian manufactured goods into foreign markets. This trend will have to be maintained in the years to come if the Canadian economy is to continue to support a high level of imports.

The rate at which we import persists as one of our most difficult and fundamental economic problems. The past year appears have risen at a faster rate than our exports with imports of merchandise for the first nine months of the year up 12 per cent over the corresponding period in 1964. The sharp increase in imports runs all the way from fabricated materials, machinery and equipment to a broad range of consumer goods, reflecting the acceleration in the pace of activity in manufacturing, the rise in capital investment and the high level of consumer demand. Of special note is the expansion in trade in automobiles and parts between Canada and the United States resulting from the recent agreement on conditional free trade in motor vehicles and original equipment parts. Comparing the first six months of this Year with the same period in 1964, we find that our exports of automotive products to the United States increased from $37 million to $76 million while our imports of these same categories of goods from the United States increased from $387 million to $470 million. At the same time, our exports of automotive products to overseas countries increased by $5 million.

Balance of Payments

During this year a good deal of attention has been focused on the steps taken to bring about a sustained reduction in the overall deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. In February the Interest Equalization Tax, applicable since July 1963 to most transactions in longer-term foreign securities by United States citizens, was extended to apply to commercial bank loans, with maturities of one year or more, advanced to foreign borrowers in developed countries. In addition, all commercial banks doing business in the United States were requested to co-operate in a voluntary programme to cut back their lending abroad and business corporations were enlisted in a national campaign to limit their direct foreign investments. their deposits in foreign banks and their holdings of other foreign financial assets. These measures, designed primarily as a means of limiting the mounting outflow of dollars to Western Europe, have been reasonably effective in the short run but it is too soon yet to evaluate their longer-run effects on domestic and foreign business. Because of the increasingly integrated nature of the economies in which we live, there have also been repercussions in countries outside Western Europe.

Canada has been recognized as meriting special consideration in the application of the United States balance of payments measures because the capital markets of the two countries are so closely interconnected and because exports of United States capital to Canada are normally required to finance an assessment

Meet Next Month

Commonwealth Parley on Rhodesia 'On'

LONDON (CP) — Arnold Smith, Commonwealth secretary - general, began planning Wednesday for a Commonwealth heads - of - government conference on the Rhodesia crisis next month in Nigeria.

"It looks as if the meeting is on," the Toronto-born diplomat said after a day conferring with top British government officials and Commonwealth high commissioners here.

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria, who arrived here Tuesday, has proposed Jan. 10 in Lagos for a meeting to discuss combined Commonwealth action against the rebel white - minority regime in Rhodesia. Balewa flew home Wednesday in a confident mood after meeting British Prime Minister Wilson.

Smith, closely involved in efforts to prevent irreparable rifts in the Commonwealth because of Rhodesia, said he may fly Saturday to confer in Lusaka with President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Rhodesia's troubled northern neighbor.

Kaunda invited Smith to Lusaka for consultations early this week, but the secretary-general was unable to get away because of London meetings. He sent an aide, New Zealand diplomat Gerald Hensley, as an interim secretariat representative.

Zambia, in common with other African countries, has been demanding stronger measures against the Rhodesian rebels. In particular, Kaunda wants protection of his major supply lines through Rhodesia and the Kariba power plant on the Rhodesia border.

Africa angry at Britain's failure to topple the Rhodesian rebels after five weeks provoked the 36-member Organization of African Unity to threaten a diplomatic break with Britain. But by late Wednesday, the OAU deadline, only Tanzania, a Commonwealth member, and Guinea, former French colony, were carrying out the threat. Tanzania broke relations today.

Smith said Wednesday he has been assured by Tanzania that its break with Britain does not involve withdrawing from the Commonwealth.

Tanzania is among several Commonwealth countries — including Canada—understood to have given positive support today to Balewa's call for a Lagos conference.

Authoritative Commonwealth sources here say a plan to guard the Kariba dam and power plant on the Rhodesia-Zambia border is being developed in international consultations.

Ghana May Leave Commonwealth

ACCRA Reuters — Ghana today broke off diplomatic relations with Britain over the Rhodesia crisis and said it also is considering withdrawing from the Commonwealth.

President Kwame Nkrumah announced this to a cheering Parliament, adding he will call on member states of the Organization of African Unity to break links with colonial or former colonial powers.

In this context, Nkrumah named Britain, France, Spain, Portugal and Belgium.

A resolution to this effect would be placed before the next OAU "summit" conference.

President Nkrumah said that if Britain was to quell the Rhodesian crisis in the interests of the majority of the country's people, Ghana would then normalize relations again.

Half Rendezvous Team Back Safely After Feat Aloft

HOUSTON (AP) — The aircraft carrier Wasp picked up the Gemini 6 astronauts at 11:33 a.m. EST today, 64 minutes after they splashed safely into the Atlantic Ocean after their historic rendezvous with Gemini 7.

Astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford rode the Gemini 6 to a safe splash-down skilfully climaxing the great rendesvous adventure that won the world's praise and admiration.

Schirra, making his second re-entry from space, guided the Gemini 6 to a landing in calm seas only 12 miles from waiting aircraft carrier Wasp. It was by far the best performance by any Gemini craft. The others, because of computer problems, missed their targets from 40 to 103 miles.

Planes in the recovery force quickly reached Gemini 6 as it bobbed in the water and cut the cheering report from the capsule: "We're in great shape."

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell hovered nearby in the Gemini 7 when Schirra fired a blast of retrorockets that hauled Gemini 6 out of its orbit and dropped it into the grasp of the earth's atmosphere.

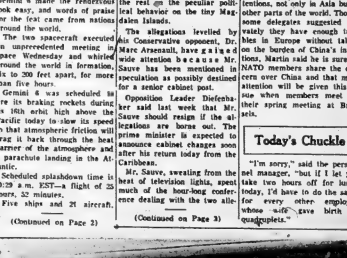
BRING BACK MOVIES

The spacemen brought back with them movies the world had eagerly awaited to see. They took pictures of Wednesday's dramatic meeting of space ships high above the earth, a feat that took the United States a long way toward the goal of flight in the moon.

Borman and Lovell, bearded and "a little beat," waved farewell to their space companions and settled on toward another big goal—14 days in space. They will come down Saturday, halves of every manned space flight endurance record.

LOOKED EASY

Schirra's skill in manoeuvring Gemini 6 made the rendezvous look easy, and words of praise for the feat came from nations around the world.



The two spacecraft executed an unprecedented meeting in space Wednesday and whirled around the world in formation, 161 to 200 feet apart, for more than five hours.

Gemini 6 was scheduled to fire its braking rockets during its 16th orbit high above the Pacific today to slow its speed so that atmospheric friction will drag it back through the heat barrier of the atmosphere and a parachute landing in the Atlantic.

Scheduled splashdown time is 10:29 a.m. EST—a flight of 25 hours, 52 minutes.

Canada Shares U.S. Fears About China

PARIS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said today he is sure that Canada and other NATO countries share the concern of the United States over the dangerous prospects that China will become a rising military power capable of deploying nuclear-tipped intercontinental ballistic missiles by 1975.

As the three-day NATO Council came to an end, Martin said in an interview that Canada is naturally concerned with the report by U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara that China may have a medium-range ballistic missile by 1967, rocket launchers by 1968 and ICBMs by 1975.

McNamara Wednesday called NATO ministers to pay closer attention to China's guerrilla intentions, not only in Asia but in other parts of the world. Though some delegates suggested privately they have enough troubles in Europe without taking on the burden of China's intentions, Martin said he is sure all NATO members share the concern over China and that more attention will be given this issue when members meet for their spring meeting at Brussels.

Political Future In Jeopardy

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign Minister Sauve today await Prime Minister Pearson's verdict on his political future after denying any role in a election campaign shenanigans in his Quebec riding of Jiar-de-la-Madeleine.

In a marathon, and often humorous, press conference, Mr. Sauve said he had no knowledge of most allegations and irregularities and blamed the rest on the peculiar political behavior on the tiny Magdalen Islands.

The allegations levelled by his Conservative opponent, Dr. Marc Arsenault, have a big province-wide attention because Mr. Sauve has been mentioned in speculation as possibly destined for a senior cabinet post.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said last week that Mr. Sauve should resign if the allegations are borne out. The prime minister is expected to announce cabinet changes soon after his return today from the Caribbean.

Mr. Sauve, sweating from the heat of television lights, spent much of the hour-long conference dealing with the two allegations that have come to light.

Canada Assists Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP)—The prime ministers of Canada and Trinidad, Today Wednesday announced their agreement that a conference of heads of government of Canada and the Commonwealth Caribbean countries should be held to consider the future in economic and other fields.

Prime Minister Pearson told a press conference that he and Dr. Eric Williams, prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago, were also in agreement that the closest consultations should continue between them and that they should work toward strengthening their already close relationship.

Mr. Pearson said he had discussed the conference proposal with both Dr. Williams and the Jamaican prime minister, and both were favorable to the idea.

A preliminary meeting was expected to be held in January to decide when and where the conference would be held.

COULD BE HOST

Mr. Pearson said Canada would be happy to be host to such a conference. He also disclosed that two loan agreements were signed by Dr. Williams and himself at a morning meeting. One provided $620,000 interest-free for 30 years to

Wilson Addresses UN
Africans Depart

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Three - quarters of the African delegates walked out of the United Nations Assembly today, refusing to hear an appeal from Prime Minister Wilson for support of Britain's Rhodesian policy and time to make it effective.

The walkout, in protest against Britain's failure quickly to bring down the breakaway Rhodesian government of Premier Ian Smith, took place as delegates from the non-African UN members welcomed the prime minister with warm applause.

Wilson, apparently unshaken by the walkout, promised the 117 - nation assembly that Britain will succeed in bringing a solution to the crisis created by Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence Nov. 11.

Wilson appealed to member nations to back Britain "in the hilt in our economic and financial sanctions, regardless of our differences and so deny to the illegal Rhodesian regime the munitions of rebellion."

The British leader was given a round of applause by the remaining delegates, including a few Africans, as the protesting African diplomats headed down the aisles for the door of the blue and gold chamber.

Wilson once more ruled out the use of force to suppress the breakaway government of Ian Smith, and he assured any reference to possible use of Harsher measures, such as an oil embargo, which many Africans have been demanding.

"We shall not let up until Rhodesia has returned to constitutional rule," he said. "We believe that, given time, given patience, the British government and the British Parliament will effectively assert their authority in consultation with those who can claim to speak more representatively on behalf of the Rhodesian people as a whole."

Wilson said he recognized that many nations in the assembly had "criticized us bitterly for not making the use of military force to suppress this rebellion," but he added: "This is not the way to settle this problem."

Maugham Dies at 91 In France

NICE, France (AP)—British author W. Somerset Maugham died early today at his beloved Riviera Villa la Mauresque after he was returned there unconscious from a Nice hospital. He was 91 and suffered a stroke six days ago.

One of the world's most successful writers, Maugham wrote 30 plays, 20 novels and 120 short stories during a career that spanned more than 70 years. His last work, a memoir called Looking Backward, was published in 1962. He gave up writing fiction in 1953 when he was 78.

In his final years his hearing failed, cataracts dimmed his sight and his memory became spotty.

Doctors said Saturday he could not recover from the stroke he suffered the day before.

He remained in a coma and when a last hope was gone, he was taken from the British-American Hospital in Nice Wednesday to die at his villa at Cap Ferrat, six miles away.

NOVEL HIS MASTERPIECE

His masterpiece was the novel Of Human Bondage, published in 1915 when he was 41. It told of a club-footed medical student's romance with a vindictively waitress who disdained him. In 1946 Maugham presented the manuscript, written by dealers at close to $50,000, to the Library of Congress in appreciation of American hospitality.

Another success was Miss Thompson, the short story about the prostitute and the preacher which John Colton and Clemence Randolph turned into the play Rain, one of the perennial hits of the theatre. Several movie versions also were made.

Among his other notable works were The Moon and Sixpence (1919), based on the life of painter Paul Gauguin; Cakes and Ale (1930), which aroused much comment for its lampoon of author Hugh Walpole; and The Razor's Edge (1944), a story of an American turning to mysticism in India.

Pension Integration May Cause Ont.-wide Strike

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Opposition, including a union threat of an Ontario - wide strike, has met Premier John Robarts' announced intention to integrate municipal pension plans with the federal Canada Pension Plan.

Opposition cities, including Toronto and Hamilton, voted early Wednesday to stack the CPP on top of local pension schemes. But only one city surveyed Wednesday favored the integration move on grounds that stacking could cost taxpaid workers too much in contributions.

Premier Robarts announced Tuesday that integration will take place Jan. 1 and said he would introduce retroactive legislation if necessary to prevent stacking.

He was promptly challenged by Toronto and Hamilton city councils. Both cities voted for stacking.

One Hamilton councillor, Ald. William Scandlan, urged his colleagues to join with employees in fighting "one of the most arrogant stands taken by a provincial cabinet minister in a long time." He said Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner had apparently convinced the premier that all industries and municipalities must integrate.

Centres which showed little opposition to, or favored integration included Kitchener, Belleville, Welland, Fort William, Simcoe, Peterborough, Orillia and Owen Sound.

Mayor A. W. Judd, Simcoe, suggested that "if you put the Canada Pension Plan (1.8 per cent) on top of the other plan (5.5 per cent) the cost becomes almost prohibitive."

While charges of "industrial tactics" came from several quarters, many communities favored integration was a logical step.

And while Toronto civic employees were loud in their opposition to integration, civic workers elsewhere said they favored the move.

Thomas Livingston, president of the 70-member city hall staff and clerical workers' association here, said he was glad to hear of integration. "This is something we have suggested right from the start."

But William Overholt, president of the Toronto Civic Employes Union, Local 43, said: "I'm 100 per cent in favor of a province-wide strike if Dr. Robarts has the guts to pass such legislation."

Stacking the plans would mean greater contributions but also greater benefits at retirement. It could mean up to $104 a month extra for employees earning up to $5,000 a year. The cost would be higher, however.

Ottawa - - New Province, Federal District or Bilingual Showcase ?

OTTAWA (CP) — Should Ottawa become the 11th province, a federal district or a bilingual "showcase" overseen by a strengthened National Capital Commission?

All three concepts were debated Wednesday at the hearing of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Commissioners indicated in their questions to witnesses that they are considering all proposals to increase bilingualism in the Ottawa-Hull capital region with an open mind and have reached no firm conclusion as yet.

The bilingual University of Ottawa said the capital has an English-only "parochial mentality" that makes French-Canadians feel like unwanted exiles. Full recognition of French was needed at the municipal educational and cultural levels, as well as in the civil service.

The university urged the royal commission to make recommendations for improvements to Ontario and City of Ottawa authorities.

Maurice Chagnon, university vice-rector, said a federal district should be set up only if the province and city refused to make the capital truly bilingual.

He said the university is not advocating a federal district wholeheartedly because such a change might wipe out Ottawa's existing French - language private schools. The French-Canadians of Ontario needed primary and secondary instruction in their mother tongue to retain their identity.

The University of Ottawa operated a pre-university year-long course at a cost of $800,000 without provincial aid just to upgrade its academic standing of French-speaking students from Ontario. He said these students are handicapped because they must use English most of the time in high school, which reduced their proficiency in French.

Creation of a new province of Ottawa, taking in the present national capital region on both sides of the Ottawa River, was proposed in individual briefs by two local residents, Francis Flaherty and A. R. Kear.

CN Passenger Services Get New Director

MONTREAL—Jean H. Richer has been appointed vice-president, Passenger Sales and Service, Canadian National Railways, it was announced today by Donald Gordon, chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Richer, 47, who has been manager of CN's Champlain Area since October, 1963, assumes his new duties immediately and succeeds Pierre Delagrave, who has resigned to accept a senior executive position in another industry.

"We are fortunate," Mr. Gordon said, "in having in Mr. Richer a highly qualified official who came to CN in 1952 as an experienced transportation executive and who for the past two years has been responsible for all aspects of railway activity in a large and important territory."

Pierre Delagrave joined Canadian National in 1958 and earned rapid promotion to the position of vice-president in 1964.

"Mr. Delagrave has played an important part in Canadian National's drive for increased passenger business," said Mr. Gordon. "His imagination and energy were valuable assets in the development of this program and we are sorry to see him leave."

Farmers' Union Turned Down On Assistance

TORONTO (CP)—John Dolmer, president of the Ontario Farmers' Union, said Wednesday Agriculture Minister William Stewart has given a "total refusal" to a request for provincial aid to farmers suffering crop losses as a result of the weather.

Mr. Dolmer said the presentation was made by representatives of the union and waited a brief to Mr. Stewart Wednesday. Following the meeting, it was decided to call a special emergency board meeting for Dec. 31 at Bowmanville and decide what further action may be taken.

Thousands of acres of grain, corn and cash crops remain to be harvested in many counties, Mr. Dolmer said, and these crops now will not be harvested.

Mr. Dolmer said the presentation to the minister asked for a type of assistance similar to that set up for farmers in eastern Ontario areas hit by drought earlier this year.

The presentation asked for the type of assistance program in which a farmer would be entitled to a certain number of coupons of cash value to be applied against purchases of grain, hay, straw or other feed requirements to maintain his herd.

It also asked for acreage payments for cash crops such as soybeans and tobacco.

Half Rendezvous

headed by the carrier Wasp, were stationed in the planned landing area 400 miles south of Bermuda to retrieve the Gemini 6 astronauts.

Air Force Lt.-Col. Borman and navy Cmdr. Lovell are to land in the same area at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Schirra and Stafford, thwarted in two earlier Gemini 6 launching attempts, rode a Titan 2 rocket into space Wednesday to start the pursuit of the Gemini 7 astronauts, who were both bearded and slightly weary after 11 days in space.

The dramatic chase covered 105,000 miles and more than 3½ orbits.

Expertly steered by Command Pilot Schirra, Gemini 6 closed to within 1 foot of eight orbiting shifting manoeuvres that eventually placed the two space vehicles in the same orbit only a few feet apart.

The momentous rendezvous occurred at 2:28 p.m. when the two ships faced each other nose to nose 185 miles above the western Pacific.

FLASHES WORD

The word was flashed by Stafford, who radioed:

"We're at 120 feet and sitting."

The message meant Gemini 6 had completed a breathtaking manoeuvre that matched the speed of Gemini 7—and the two were flying together at better than 17,500 miles an hour.

Within minutes, Schirra closed to within an estimated six feet of Borman and Lovell and the two pairs of astronauts started an exchange of wisecracks that continued throughout their rendezvous!

Here's a sample of the conversation:

Schirra: "There seems to be a lot of traffic up here."

Borman: "Call a policeman."

Originally, Mission Control Centre in Houston said the two should stay together only about four hours. But Schirra and Stafford requested an extra orbit, saying they had plenty of fuel to practise more manoeuvres.

Flight Director Chris Kraft granted the request.

At 7:52 p.m., after five hours 36 minutes, Schirra fired his jet engines to drop Gemini 6 into a lower orbit and he and Stafford gradually pulled ahead of Gemini 7 at the rate of 28 miles each 90-minute orbit.

TEST FORMATIONS

While they were together, the two flew completely around each other, over and under and back and forth as they tried to determine the best way to fly in formation with another spacecraft — a technique that must be developed for manned flights to the moon.

They took movie and still pictures of their space acrobatics and made star-tracking and infrared measurements on the orbit chart of the manoeuvre. Long was done by Gemini 6 which had the most fuel.

Both sets of astronauts retired about 10 p.m. after their exciting day in space.

At 1 a.m. the two astronauts traded a few wisecracks, most of the time they were deadly serious as they performed the most difficult task ever attempted in space.

It went so well that Schirra radioed:

"We would have no trouble docking."

Gemini 6 originally planned to dock with an Agena satellite but was thwarted when the Agena failed to reach orbit. The rendezvous with Gemini 7 was substituted.

The next Gemini flight, No. 8 will try again to achieve a docking with an Agena.

Space agency officials seemed surprised at the flawless manner in which Gemini 6 chased and caught Gemini 7.

Robert Gilruth, director of NASA's Manned Space Flight Centre, said:

"It's very rare that something totally new will work with perfection the first time you try it. But it worked today. The orbital mechanics worked out by the experts were figured well.

"These people have a good understanding of the rendezvous theory. On subsequent Gemini flights we can train the pilots in more intricate rendezvous manoeuvres without worrying about spending three or four flights working out the basic rendezvous manoeuvres."

Glenn was the first American to orbit the earth, circling the globe three times in 1962.

In terms of space accomplishments, the Gemini 6-7 flight gave the United States a wide lead over the Soviet Union in the man-in-space race.

Russia has not launched a manned craft since last March. Since then the United States has sent five two-man Gemini capsules into orbit and wrested every space record from the Russians.

gations that directly mention him. He issued a 32-page statement dealing with each allegation at length.

He confirmed reports that on election day his twice telephoned Judge Joseph Duguay to advise against granting bail that day to two Conservative supporters arrested for "threatening" one of his supporters, provincial member L. P. Lacroix, on Sunday evening.

Mr. Sauve said this procedure was normal since both the judge and the Crown attorney resided across the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the mainland. And he took the action only because the release of the two might have resulted in violence with 25 or 30 persons milling about the jail.

The judge eventually released the two, Willie Lebel and Lucien Bourgeois, long enough to make a police escort accompanied them.

Mr. Sauve said he telephoned the judge, who is his cousin, at the suggestion of his lawyer, Pierre Pinard, "when we were told that Lacroix was going to assault or his lawyer, Maxime Langlois, had already contacted the judge seeking the release of the two accused

He denied any part in the firing of eight farmers employed on winter works projects because they voted Conservative, although the minutes of the Fatima council for Nov. 9 said both he and Mr. Lacroix gave the order.

FACING UP is one of the first chores in the mail sorting operation. Letters and cards are faced up with stamps in the top right hand corner for massing mail through the cancellation machine.

Automation is fast taking over many office procedures but there is one operation which has so far defied the best brains of the machine makers.

It's that seemingly endless sorting of mail which goes on day in and day out at post offices across the country.

And the "endless" sorting seems to be even more endless at this time of year as the annual Christmas mailing rush reaches its peak.

To handle the Christmas rush the Belleville post office has taken on no less than 135 casual employees who work 'round the clock assisting the regular staff in getting out that mail. Less than 10 of the casual workers are on the letter carrier walks, all others helping to handle mail bags or doing shift work in the post office sorting mail.

RUSH AT PEAK

Postmaster J. A. McManus says the annual Christmas mailing rush has now reached its peak with 120,000 letters and cards being handled on Thursday. Monday the total was about 100,000 and on Wednesday about the same.

The incoming Christmas mailing rush for delivery in the city hasn't got underway yet but the volume of mail is expected to remain close to the above peak.

And of course in addition to letters and cards there is the big volume of Christmas parcels which pass through the office.

Our only wish is that people would get the idea of getting their Christmas mail away a little earlier so things would be spread a little more evenly," the postmaster says.

About those automated machines for sorting mail.

Mr. McManus says they are still working on them. A few offices have put in trial machines but still every name and address on a letter or parcel must be read by humans.

Woman Burned To Death in Collision

HAMILTON (CP)—A woman was burned to death and a man seriously injured when the car they were in side-swiped a tractor-trailer on Highway 6 near Mount Hope airport road early this morning.

Ontario Provincial Police have not identified the woman.

The injured man, Robert Lynd, 38, of St. Catharines, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with multiple fractures and bruises. His condition was described as critical.

Police said the small European car hit the back dual wheels of the truck, spun off and then almost immediately smashed into the dual wheels of the trailer.

Sales Lowest Since 1959

CHATHAM (CP)—Purchases of the 1965 Ontario winter wheat crop by the Ontario Wheat Producers' marketing board are the lowest since 1959, board chairman R. T. Bolton of Seaforth, Ont., says in a statement released today.

Purchases as of Dec. 1 were only 265,000 bushels, compared with 4,588,000 bushels at the same time last year.

Mr. Bolton added it is unlikely the board will purchase much additional wheat in the months ahead.

Independent French-language News Agency Is Unnecessary, Unfeasible, Commission Told

OTTAWA (CP) — A. F. Mercier, honorary president of The Canadian Press, said Wednesday that an independent French-language news agency is unnecessary and unfeasible.

Appearing for the national news-gathering co-operative before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, Mr. Mercier said member newspapers are satisfied with the service provided in both English and French.

Persons in Quebec who had proposed the creation of a French-language news service were well intentioned but they were not aware of the great expense in costs that would be involved.

Mr. Mercier, vice - president and general manager of Quebec La Soleil and l'Evenement, was replying to questions by commissioner Paul Lacoste.

Mr. Lacoste commented that many briefs to the commission had referred to a lack of communication and perception between Canada's two cultures. Why wasn't there a heavier flow of news across the country?

CARRIES MUCH

Mr. Mercier said The Canadian Press carries a high volume of Canadian news around the clock to most daily newspapers and broadcasting stations in Canada, but newspapers and stations served only a local or regional market and selected news items accordingly.

Canada lacked national newspapers like the New York Times, The Times of London and others published in Paris and Tokyo. National newspapers would not be economical in Canada without government subsidies and all newspapers opposed such subsidies on principle.

Mr. Mercier said subsidies or grants from the federal or provincial governments would rob a news agency or newspapers of their independence to report the news objectively. This had been the experience in France in the past.

He said the service in French of The Canadian Press is being strengthened in line with recommendations made earlier this year by a special committee of French-speaking news editors.

All copy filed from the Quebec bureau now was written in French and translated in Montreal for English-language newspapers. Briefings and speeches of national importance were first reported in the original language, whether French or English.

ADDS SERVICE

A second Service in French correspondence would be posted in Ottawa in the near future. The complete North American service of Agence France Presse now was available to the Service in French.

Gilles Purcell, CP general manager, said CP has a staff of 296 of whom 54 are French-Canadians. There were 42 bilingual reporters and editors out of 50 at the Montreal and Quebec bureaus and about 25 bilingual editorial staffers elsewhere in Canada and abroad.

Commissioner Frank Scott said "crackpot" briefs to the commission have been a small minority but have received more publicity than serious submissions.

Mr. Purcell replied that CP reported all briefs to the commission, always trying to keep them in perspective, but CP had no control over the selection of stories and headlines by member newspapers.

Commissioner Jaroslav B. Rudnyckyj asked what percentage of objectivity CP had achieved in its coverage of the royal commission.

"One hundred per cent," Mr. Purcell replied amid laughter. He added that if the commissioners had any complaints he would be glad to discuss them. No complaints were mentioned.

Other CP representatives were William Stewart, chief of the Montreal bureau, and Bertrand Thibault, chief of Service in French.

Mr. Thibault said two-thirds of the copy on CP's French wire, which links 10 newspapers in Ontario and Quebec, is written by French-language CP and AFP reporters.

The balance was translated in Montreal from English despatches from CP, The Associated Press and Reuters news agency.

CP also provided a French-language service for television and radio stations through its subsidiary company, Broadcast News Ltd.

Teens in Work Force

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics is one government organization which more than most seems to earn its keep. Scarcely a week passes that the DBS does not come up with some interesting fact about the contemporary Canadian scene.

Its latest effort concerns that much-analyzed social group—the teenagers. Figures just released by the DBS provide the most cogent argument thus far for remaining in school and completing Grade 13.

Persons aged 14-19, says the DBS, now make up 10 per cent of the national labor force of about 7,000,000.

Persons in this age group, the report adds, "tend to have more difficulty in obtaining employment than persons in the older age groups.

"Some of the contributing factors," it goes on, "are insufficient formal education and lack of experience or training."

It has all been said before, but never with such clarity as in the cold light of the DBS statistics.

And here they are: Last month 7.3 per cent of teenaged workers were unemployed, compared with the national rate of 3.1 per cent. In October, when the general rate was at its eight-year low of 2.4 per cent, teenaged unemployment was 6.6 per cent.

If school seems like a drag to many young people, they should remember that the discipline of study, and the subject matter itself, become progressively more interesting as they grow older, and that includes the years following graduation. The learning process never ends, whether one goes on to university or not. But the foundation for this necessary continuity can only be obtained in school, and particularly in the years spent at high school.

Ulster's Progress

The current issue of Ulster Commentary indicates rapid economic progress in different spheres in Northern Ireland. Not only is unemployment the lowest since 1956, but industrial output and personal income continue to rise.

In one sphere alone—agriculture—total gross output in 1964-65 was estimated at £120-million, or £6 million more than the previous year. Construction—much of it in new homes—was up 17 per cent, while government investment in industrial expansions totalled £5 million, an increase of 8 per cent on 1963. Government expenditure on factory building alone amount to £4 million.

The need for this expansion is the announcement that Belfast, which already has the largest single shipyard in Europe, is to have the biggest dry-dock in the same continent-wide region. The dock will be capable of accommodating ships of 200,000 tons deadweight.

United States interests have contributed much to the development of the Ulster economy in recent years, and the latest American enterprise is drilling for oil or gas in the lakeland region of County Fermanagh. Limestone outcrops here could mean the presence of such deposits.

Road communications are not being neglected. Already a motorway similar to our own Macdonald-Cartier extends south from Belfast. By the early 1970s, 100 miles of motorway routes will be completed in Northern Ireland. Ultimately, a network totalling 200 miles is contemplated. This is a considerable achievement for a relatively small region.

Family Saga

The saga of the Carr-Harris family of Kingston is one that arouses the interest and sympathy of every yachtsman. On their way by inland waterways to the Caribbean, their expedition almost came to grief because of the closing of a New York canal system for the winter.

Now arrangements have been made to truck the yacht overland and the family is on its way again. New York Governor Rockefeller's part in facilitating this move is a characteristic example of American friendliness and co-operation toward this country and its people.

Before continuing their journey, the Carr-Harris family must have felt as frustrated as did Hollywood actor Sterling Hayden—for different reasons—before his epic voyage to Tahiti a few years ago.

Defying a court order which had ruled his schooner Wanderer—built in 1893—was unseaworthy, Hayden set sail with his four children. He describes the voyage in his autobiography, aptly named Wanderer, and in one passage writes: "Measured in terms of enchantment, is there anything, can compare with a chart-room? And should this castle belong to a schooner, then you've kingdom enough. Unless you're preoccupied with wealth, prestige, success—or other shallow pursuits."

Those briefly is the credo of a man whose heart is in the sea.

Hematoma Swelling Containing Free Blood

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a hematoma and what causes it?

The delivery of my baby supposedly went fine, but afterward I had to have excision of a vaginal hematoma. The doctors didn't explain it clearly enough for me to understand. Mrs. W. G.

This isn't something that applies only to childbirth. It can relate in any part of the body, and I'll try to explain why.

A hematoma is a swelling which contains blood. It is more than a bruise or black and blue mark, because it contains free, red, liquid blood. It's a bruise but bigger, because a bruise is just a small seepage of blood.

A hematoma may look like a bruise from the outside, and usually does, but the swelling causes pain. While a bruise heals as the body absorbs the escaped blood, a hematoma usually doesn't cure itself because there is too much blood to be absorbed. The answer is to evacuate, or remove this pool of blood, after which healing is rapid.

What caused your hematoma? Some injury, which is the usual cause. You say that the delivery of the baby "supposedly went fine." I don't doubt that, but sometime in the process, there evidently may be an injury to the birth canal, and the hematoma results.

It may have been a combination of causes: an injury which ordinarily might have been inconsequential, combined with the presence of a weak spot in a blood vessel. Or there may have been tearing of some tissue underneath the skin or membrane

Don't worry unnecessarily over an event which, while a nuisance, doesn't deserve too much concern.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a boy of 13 take too many oculover oil capsules? I give my son three a day, each containing 12,500 USP units of Vitamin A and 1,250 of Vitamin D. I also give him Vitamin C tablets plus a multiple vitamin capsule with 5,000 units of A and 500 of D.

The boy has always had allergic rhinitis with wheezing in the chest. Since I started giving him the oculover oil two years ago his chest noises have lessened to lessen and his allergy sneezing seems to have diminished. Am I giving him too many vitamins? Is it sage to continue so much Vitamin A.—Mrs. W. N.

Add it up and the lad is getting 40,000 units of Vitamin A per day and over 4,000 of D. These are fat-soluble vitamins and it is possible to give too much. Too are at the top limit.

You could omit the multiple capsule and reduce the dose by that much. Vitamins A, D, and C are helpful in some instances but they are not the entire solution to allergic rhinitis. Rather, put your emphasis on finding out the allergic factors.

Dear Dr. Molner: What percentage of surgery for corneas transplants is successful? My wife is blind from glaucoma and is 64. — J. W.

I'm sorry, but corneal transplants will not help in glaucoma. These transplants are fairly successful when vision is blurred or destroyed because the cornea has lost its transparency, usually resulting from injury or infection. Unfortunately, glaucoma damages the eyes at a deeper level, so new corneas cannot help.

Note to "Naive": There is no necessity for a douche unless your doctor says that douching is best for administering medication. No, a douche is not a desirable method of preventing conception. For a dependable method, you need your doctor's help either to be fitted for a suitable device or to get a prescription for "birth control pills," which are highly reliable.

On the True Spirit of Christmas

(Reprinted by request)

Purely Personal Pre judices: Christmas would again become the kind of holiday it should be, if the loodspeakers blasting out "Silent Night" paid a little more respect to silence.

— If radio and television commercials didn't try to link the purchase of their products with the "spirit of Christmas" in a depressingly vulgar fashion;

— If the exchange of presents were limited to expressions of genuine friendship and concern, rather than exhibitions of competitive generosity and conspicuous opulence;

If shopping expeditions were conducted with some grace and courtesy, rather than dis playing the ferocity of the Cleveland Browns beckfield in motion;

— If climbing families did not vie with each other in the elaborateness of their Christmas cards and, instead, contributed the money thus saved regardless to a worthy charity;

— If the liquor industry refrained from displaying pictures of jolly old Santa Claus dispensing booze to the populace;

— If the Christmas-through-New Year period were devoted to smoothing the thoughtlessness and rudeness of the previous year, rather than resembling an accelerated insane asylum by the inmates;

— If less hysteria, and more taste, care and conservatism were exercised in the purchase of gifts, so that the week after Christmas would not find the "return and exchange" counters of shops in a state of utter chaos and collapse;

—If children were taught that Christmas is a season for giving, not just for grabbing, so that the self-centredness that is encouraged for the holidays does not have to be disciplined in January — for children are incapable of understanding why an attitude that is pampered in one week is punished in the next;

—If the hearty friendliness could be laid on a little less heavily, so that there would be more to spread over the rest of the year, when it is so badly needed.

— And, most of all, if we forget all the worldly perversions encircling Jesus' birthday, and celebrated by remembering:

"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even ye to them for this is the law and the prophets."

Procedure in Radio Auction

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

A letter in your newspaper of Dec. 7, by an interested participant in the Y's Men's Radio Auction of Nov. 30 requested answers fix a number of questions. The Y's Mens Club would like to answer those questions.

Y's Men and volunteer workers at the auction were permitted to enter bids from the floor subject to the same time delay observance as telephoned bids. Final returns show that Y's Men purchased eleven articles which represents about 3.4 percent of the total sold.

Three members of the club are in business forthemselves. Two of these contributed articles for auction. The nature of the business of the third does not lend itself to this type of donation. No reserve bids were placed on these or any other items offered for sale.

No articles, high priced or otherwise, were passed over by the auctioneers. Except for those selected for sale at a particular time on the air, all items were mentioned in sequence by each team of auctioneers. As there were 222 separate sales to be made it can be seen that it is not possible to mention them all early in the evening.

The five-minute time clock was spoiled consistently on all items. It is possible that confusion might occur in the case of listeners who find it impossible to follow the proceedings constantly.

One member of the Y's Men's Club, experienced in Radio Auction, is designated seller. He must consider that to sell 222 articles between 6:30 p.m. and sign off time at approximately 1 a.m., with time out for two commercials, the usual sell at the rate of 1 per minute. He, therefore, picks the articles which are received in his judgement, the best bids obtainable prior to each auctioneer taking his turn on the air.

Sale prices were not mentioned in all cases on the air, in an effort to keep the time factor within reason. Several calls from bidders indicited a desire to hear sale prices and from that point on an effort was made to mention them in announcing all sales.

Due also to the time factor mentioned above, high bids were not always given over the air. This information is more accurately available from one of the ten telephone operators at any moment than it is from an auctioneer.

The purpose of any auction is to obtain the highest price possible for the articles being sold. The Y's Men's Club is most gratified that certain items sold for more, equal to or slightly less than their listed value. Others, however, did not. The average price received in all items was slightly in excess of 70 percent of the listed retail value. In view of expenses, which are in the neighborhood of $1,000, such a percentage is almost essential to ensure the Y's Men's Club a return sufficient to enable it to carry out its service work.

We feel that this excellent response was in great measure due to the favourable attitude of the many citizens of Belleville and district who participated as bidders and buyers. We can assure the public that no background manipulation was employed by the operators of this auction.

Radio Auction cannot reasonably be compared to the conventional auction sale. Radio Auction offers new merchandise, in many cases backed by manufacturer's guarantee, and in all cases by the reputation for business integrity of the donor.

We thank Mr. A. J. Suelzle for publicly expressing his views concerning Radio Auction.

It is only when we are made aware of the impression we may create that we can take steps to clarify misunderstandings and improve future auctions. At our invitation Mr. Suelzle attended our weekly Y's Men's meeting on the evening of Dec. 9 and discussed this matter in more detail with our Radio Auction Committee.

Praise for Christmas Pageant at OSD

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

On Friday evening last, my husband and I were present at the Christmas pageant performed by students and staff members at Ontario School for Deaf children.

It was our first experience at any of these concerts and we were delighted with the performance.

The costumes, settings and choral music were lovely. Above all we felt the reverence and dignity in students and they were perfect in their cues.

It was a wonderful story, which the capacity audience well not easily forget. We offer our congratulations to all who took part and thank them for the opportunity of watching such a lovely story, well told.

Mrs. William Jeune,
R.R. 2, Belleville.

The Flag — Again

Musical Gazette

It is good to learn that the National Film Board Council has found a way to keep the red in Canada's flag from turning brown. But from the viewpoint of Montreal, the most significant change that takes place in the flag after it has been flown for a short time is not that the red turns orange, but that the entire flag gets grey. The transformation that comes over the flag is a dramatic example of the extent to which Montreal is subject to air pollution.

Ottawa Offbeat

Integration of Services Causing Dissatisfaction

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer's ambitious program for the remaking of the Canadian armed forces appears to have gotten away from him.

The immediate indication of this is that the total strength of the forces is dropping rapidly.

It was intended that strength should drop to 110,000 along about next August, but it hit this figure in October of this year and the number is dropping daily.

It may drop to 107,000 next month-end, unless current efforts to enlist new men and encourage the re-inlistment of present servicemen are successful, there is no reason why strength will not go on dropping.

Officially, it is declared that service personnel are getting out and replacements are becoming hard to find because of a booming economy and a national shortage of skilled manpower.

But many service personnel contend there is a further reason — they are not happy with the plan to integrate the three services and they are not altogether keen on the insistence on bilingualism.

There is no doubt, as well, that there was resentment about dismissal of servicemen in the early stages of force reduction among more than just those being dismissed.

The move created some anxiety among those still in service and many took the first opportunity presented to get out.

The purpose of the armed forces reduction was to cut manpower costs drastically and thus use the money thus saved to purchase new equipment.

But now it is said that the combat effectiveness of the services is being lowered because of manpower dropping too fast.

Furthermore, an intensified recruiting campaign is chewing up some of the money which was supposed to be saved.

There is confusion, too, resulting from the integration program.

In this program, officers and men of the three services are combining their efforts in central agencies or commands dealing with all three services as though they were one. It is supposed to cut manpower needs.

Well, there's the case of a medium - sized Ontario city where quarters here who was in charge of a specialized section of the air force.

His title was changed, a new name took command of his section, and he found himself in company with officers a and men of the other two services.

But after a time he was made necessary to move him back to his original section because none of the new people knew anything, including the new commander.

The net effect? The same original section with one man added (the new commander stayed) and efficiency suffered.

MIXED-UP SECRETARIAT

In the field of bilingualism, there is another choice example.

A sizeable section of the defence Commadn Headquarters in Montreal, because of the nature of its work, had a large number of secretaries.

They were checked a while back and found to be almost entirely English-speaking, not bilingual.

So one day the officers came to work and found three-quarters of their secretaries were gone. A new batch of bilingual secretaries arrived during the morning.

The first officer who approached one of the new girls and asked her to take dictation got back a letter received this reply:

"Pardon, Monsieur, je ne parle pas l'anglais."

She was typical of the new "bilingual" staff of a section which only one French-speaking officer.

Most of the original girls returned after a bilingual interval — and the "bilingual" ones stayed on as well.

Both of these cases are probably among the extreme, but they are known in the services and don't much encourage those in the new planning for the Army, Navy and Air Force (if they are not capable of separately.)

However, if is doubtless true that new systems need time to work themselves out and become accepted by those they most closely affect.

The only trouble is, the ones who might be affected seem to be willing to wait quite a while for the working-out process before they will commit themselves to it.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 18th, 1945

Preparatory to what is expected to be the biggest Christmas Tag Day ever experienced in the history of the local post office, a total of 72 temporary employees have been taken on to assist in handling the Christmas mails. It was announced by Postmaster J. V. L. Thibaleach.

In an appeal issued today, the chairman of the Belleville branch of the Women's Work Committee of the Canadian Red Cross, Mrs. W. C. Mikel stated, "The war work of the Red Cross is not over. After Christmas, the women of the Belleville branch are requested to do all they can so that this work can be completed. Please help us out."

En route to their homes in far-flung sections of Ontario, 263 of the 270 students enrolled at the Ontario School for the Deaf will leave this week for holidays. The school reopeps on January 3rd.

December 16th, 1935

If Belleville's winter temperatures ever drop to a minimum of 40 degrees below zero, this registration will be faithfully recorded, following the installation of a new type government tested thermometer at the local pumping station. We are informed by T. E. Austin, manager of the waterworks, that the thermometer was given to the city by the Dominion Meteorological office in Toronto.

Mr. Austin stated that "reading of Toronto will bear citizens comment on the temperatures that are given out by us; often they believe that we have more cheap or warmer than that given by the actual reading we take. However, we have not much chance to make a mistake in this matter. We take not one reading, but two every day, on the hour, meter and one from a minimum recorder. Our instruments are of the most modern reliable type; as far as readings go there just can't be any mistake about them."

40 YEARS AGO

December 16th, 1925

- Mr. C. E. Anderson spent yesterday in Kingston.

Master W. C. Mikel is attending court in Toronto.

Miss June Warren entertained a number of her young friends at her home on Victoria Road last evening.

The members of the C.N.R. baseball club will entertain at a big dance the latter part of January. This was decided at a well attended meeting which was held at the Y.M.C.A. President Jack McBride acted as chairman. Al. Fink conducted the meeting. A committee composed of the following was appointed to arrange for the dance: Ken Colling, Stan Hagerman, Claude Dafoe, Vernon Weir, and S. B. Vanderoort.

From our file copy at this time in 1925 we learn that Mrs. Mason has been appointed solicitor for the City of Belleville. There were 39 applicants for the position and Mr. Masson received 11 of the 16 votes cast by the aldermen.

December 18th, 1915

Miss Lucy Holton has arrived in the city from Bermuda where she has been spending the several years and will spend some time with her mother, Mrs. C. P. Holton, Charles Street.

Mrs. W. E. Griffith has returned home after spending a couple weeks with friends at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Mr. Luther Jose of New York City is visiting his uncle, Mr. A.N. Prest, Herchimer Avenue.

Mrs. Jack Kearns of Toronto is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. Foster, Albert Street.

The Zulu tribes led by Dingaan, reputed to have been the most bloodthirsty king in African history, were defeated 127 years ago today — in 1838—by a Boer force under Andries Pretorius at the battle of Blood River. Earlier in the year, Dingaan had under Piet Retief had been massacred by the Zulus when they tried to settle in areas largely depopulated by Chaka, who was murdered and succeeded by Dingaan. The Boer victory allowed the foundation of the Natal Republic but wars involving Zulus, Boers and Britons continued for half a century.

1856—The Transvaal Boer Republic was founded.

Viet Nam Only Foreign Policy Issue On Which de Gaulle, Opponent Agree

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle and his Socialist opponent for the presidency, Francois Mitterrand, disagree on all foreign policy issues save one. They both deplore U.S. action in Viet Nam.

But even in Viet Nam, Mitterrand says he is aware of the problems faced by the United States.

The two men are antagonists in a runoff election Sunday for the presidency. Here are their views:

VIET NAM

De Gaulle—He has called for a neutralization of Viet Nam with China taking part in the conference. Nov. 30, he referred to "the action everywhere in favor of peace, notably in Asia where a stupid war is being waged."

Mitterrand—"Gen. de Gaulle invokes the Geneva accords on the war in Viet Nam. But these accords were signed by Mr. (Pierre) Mendes - France, in whose government I served as minister of the interior, at the time when the United States were accusing us of abandoning Indochina.

NATO

De Gaulle—"As long as the solidarity of the Western peoples appears to us to be necessary for the eventual defence of Europe, our country will remain the ally of its allies, but at the expiration of the engagements previously taken, that is, at the latest in 1969, (these engagements) will cease insofar as they concern the subordination called 'integration' which is foreseen by NATO and which turns over our destiny to a foreign authority."

FRANCOIS MITTERRAND

Mitterrand—"It is an error not to accept the Atlantic Alliance as it is, in hoping that it will remain a necessary link in the chain of peaceful coexistence. . . . I voted for the Atlantic Alliance and at no moment have I repented. . . .

ATOMIC

De Gaulle—"The new republic wishes to equip France with nuclear armament, because other states have it and because this does not surpass its means; because, everyone knows that she (France) menaces no one, such an instrument provides for her defence an incomparably efficient character of dissuasion compared to the former system; because it does not cost us any more and permits us to reduce by half the duration of active military service."

Mitterrand—"The present isolation of France is explained by the will of Gen. de Gaulle to equip France with an atomic strike force. . . . This calculation appears senseless when one thinks that the United States and Russia each command an almost immediate capacity of destruction infinitely superior to ours, a capacity which will only be increased in colossal proportions. . . .

COMMON MARKET

De Gaulle—"The new republic . . . wants French agriculture to effectively enter the Common Market, which supposes a possibility that later some so-called supranational committee or some majority rule might reopen the question; she wants, if it is someday a question of building a political organization of the Six, that France should not risk being pulled into dangerous action which she does not approve, as a result of this procedure."

(De Gaulle withdrew his Common Market negotiators from Brussels June 30 in a dispute over agricultural policy and supranationality.)

Mitterrand—"We are missing the opportune moment for a united Europe in breaking up the Common Market and in blocking the creation of a European political power born of universal suffrage, the only means of preventing a united Europe from being absorbed by the monopolies and the cartels of big industries, or being dominated by the views of the technocrats. I have always reclaimed my attachment to a united Europe. . . ."

Over 650 patients in Cobourg and Kingston, and residents in homes for special care in Belleville, will enjoy a happier Christmas through the efforts of the Belleville Mental Health Association.

Mrs. W. N. Hurst, Chairman of the Christmas Project, said, "We appreciate the good response we've received from various groups in Belleville."

"This is the third year of our project, and there has been a greater response each year. The gifts are donated by church groups, women' institutions, sorrities, women's auxiliaries and other women's organizations.

We also, received cash donations which we used to purchase some gifts."

The gifts were sent out today to patients in the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg and the Mowat Ward in the Kingston General Hospital, plus some to residents in the homes for special care in the Belleville area.

All the women wrapping the gifts were volunteers.

Other events planned by the Mental Health Association, Belleville Branch, are a bus tour, December 22, for residents of Green Acres to see the Christmas lights in the city, and a Christmas party tonight at Green Acres.

FOOD FOR NEWSPAPER PEOPLE

This synopsis of our branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club Christmas party 1963 is concentrated but a sure guide for you girls who want to entertain 20 people lavishly.

CHRISTMAS PARTY BUFFET MENU AND DETAILS

SNACK MIX (with cocktails):

Gently melt ¾ cup butter in roaster. Add ¼ lb-oz. package shredlles, ½ 8-oz. package pretzel sticks, ¼ pound whole pecans, 1 package onion soup mix, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon onion salt. Mix gently, bake 40 minutes at 250 deg. Fahr. stirring twice.

ROAST BEEF — 20-pound 4-week-hung standing ribs:

Sprinkle with steak seasoning packet, roast 12 hours at 200 deg. Fahr. Superb!

CREPES SUZETTES:

These stole the show because I flamed them. Crepes: In advance, in large beater bowl beat together 2 cups eggs, 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 4 cups milk, 4 teaspoons vanilla, 2 teaspoons salt, grated rind 2 lemons, ¼ cup melted butter. When smooth bake on griddle. I made 90 3" in diameter. Roll up sprinkled with icing sugar.

Orange Sauce: In large beater bowl cream 2 cups butter, 4 cups icing sugar, grated rind 4 oranges. Blend in 2 cups strained orange juice until smooth. At serving time heat half of rolled crepes in large frying pan or chafing dish with half sauce until boiling. Flame, if desired, with brandy. Divine and show-stopping. Repeat with remaining half of rolled crepes and sauce.

COFFEE AND TEA:

A 30-cup-electric-percolator-ful and 1 large pot of tea were sufficient.

We put signs on different rooms for players of bridge, scrabble, euchre and poker. The drifters sang carols at the top of their lungs in the living-room with Jessie Beattie as pianist.

After the Hall? My secretary Shirley and her husband John carried out 2 cartons filled with Christmas paper plates and cups in the garbage and we had only silverware and serving dishes and pots and pans to wash.

Understatement of the season: A good time was had by all.

Ann Landers

Boy Concerned About Handicapped Sister

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old high school freshman. My sister, who is 13, is physically handicapped. I will call her Jody. Jody's mind is perfect but she is behind in school because she has had to miss almost two years when she was in the hospital.

ANN LANDERS

I love Jody and I understand she has problems. But my folks baby her too much and she is spoiled rotten. I have to do dozens of things for her that she could be doing for herself. Even her physiotherapist has told my folks that Jody would make more progress if they would not insist that I wait on her hand and foot.

Do I have a right to refuse to be run ragged? Please tell me what is best for my sister. Thank you. — DOUBLE DUTY.

DEAR DOUBLE: Your best bet is to have a talk with Jody's physiotherapist. Ask him to help you compose a list of the things you are now doing for Jody which she should be doing for herself. Present the list to your parents. The therapist's word should be final.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There's an old French saying, "There are no frigid women — only clumsy men." I believe it and I wish you did.

I'm sick and tired of hearing that married men run around because they can't get affection at home. Husbands who say their wives are cold have rarely tried to thaw them out. They prefer to run around because it's more fun.

To them, the word "wife" is synonymous with "dull, prosiac, uninteresting." They are on the prowl because the respectability of marriage has removed the challenge and the excitement.

It's the old story of forbidden fruit being sweetest. So please, Ann Landers place the blame where it belongs — on the shoulders of these little boys who love to be naughty. Spare the already shaken and insecure wife who needlessly blames herself. — FORT WORTH.

DEAR F.W.: True, some men never hang up their trick shoes simply because they want variety and no one woman has it.

There is no one reason why husbands cheat and no sure fire formula for keeping a man at home. But I earnestly believe that most husbands would stay at home if their wives made a genuine effort to keep them there. (This is the original "Do It Yourself" project.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who was mad because her husband's ex-wife turned up at all the family affairs. She was sure that Wifey Number One stuck to her former in-laws like fly paper to embarrass her.

Al Wife Number One who was dumped without notice I'd like to say that my ex-husband's parents and his sisters are the finest people I have ever known. They stood by me when I was ready to jump into the river.

I am invited to all family affairs because they believe my children and I belong there. When they asked me how I felt about being in the same room with my ex and his new wife, I said, "Don't leave them out on my account. After what I have been through I can stand anything."

My former in-laws decided to invite me and exclude my ex and his wife simply because they prefer it that way. Please publish this letter and set the record straight. — STOOD BY.

DEAR STOOD: And here's your letter which was the best of more than 100 which expressed the same sentiments.

SAVE THOSE ENVELOPE FLAPS!

Dear Susanna: With all the unsealed cards coming in these days, don't throw away those good gummed envelope flaps. (Stop laughing, I really haven't flipped!) Just listen:

I keep them in a small box or folder in my desk drawer and find they are a handy source of new glue for a stamp that is fresh out.

Simply dampen the glued flap with a drop of water and smear it on the stamp. You must admit this does away with all that sticky business of trying to measure a quarter of a drop of liquid paste onto that tiny surface, and then still having it ooze out around the edges.

I also use the front of these flaps for writing a quick message that I wish to leave on the front door. They are all ready to stick on and the wind doesn't blow them away . . . especially good in the summer when I'm out in the garden so much.

Now isn't it a good idea after all to save those gummed flaps? — Mrs. John Carême

Dear Susanna: Scuff if you like, but I always wash my pots and pans first.

Can't stand to see them lurking there on the sink just waiting for me, so I take care of them immediately, then change the water and start fresh.

Enjoy doing dishes so much more this way. — Domestic Engineer Dolly.

About 80 people partook of a tasty turkey dinner served with courtesy and generosity by the Harmony Club of St. Andrew's Church.

Mrs. Maude Rollins presided. Mr. P. I. Timmins asked the Blessing.

In introducing the head table guests Mrs. Rollins remarked that if seems almost impossible that a year has passed since this event was enjoyed the last time. She thanked the Rotarians for sponsoring the party each year.

Those at the head table were: Mrs. Gladys Seldon, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Waite, Mr. P. I. Timmins, Mr. Doug McCallum, Mr. Newton Thompson, Mr. Gordon Sheppard, Mr. Stotesbury, Mr. Everett Fairman and the entertainers for the evening, who were introduced by Mr. Fairman.

FINE PROGRAM

Carol singing, with Mrs. Douglas Shaw at the piano and Mr. Bill Fiskin leading, created the mood of the evening.

Mr. Tom Reilly, who hails originally from Cheshire, England, close beside Lancashire, recited the "Little Albert" number made famous by Stanley Holloway. His interpretations were most amusing and enjoyable.

Mrs. Seldon described the decorations of the banquet room and the tables for the benefit of those who were unable to see them.

A 12-year-old young man, Master Morley Shaw, captured both blind and sighted with his renditions of Christmas songs. He was accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. D. Shaw.

Thanks to the Rotary Club and season's greetings to all present were extended by Mr. P. I. Timmins, field secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Mr. Doug McCallum, assistant field secretary, Mr. Newton Thompson and Mrs. Vi Waite, president of the White Cane Club.

A local folk singing and instrumental trio, "The Wayfaring Strangers"—Mr. Al Cammeford, Mr. Ken Ross and Mr. Bill Larsen, provided an exciting and pleasant time. These talented and personable young men produce most pleasing and harmonious music which had everyone singing and handclapping and having a wonderful time.

Mr. Rolfe Blackbourne thanked the caterers for the delicious meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peck of Albury are shown cutting the cake baked especially for the celebration that marked their 50th marriage anniversary yesterday. Nearby the top layer of the couple's original wedding cake and the bride's wedding day apparel attracted the attention of the many people who gathered to wish them well.

Show Wedding Cake Half Century Old

AMELIASBURG — On Wednesday, December 15, a half a century ago, Gretta Weese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gilbert Weese of Albury, was united in marriage to Clifford Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Peck of Albury. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents by Methodist Church minister the Rev. A. L. Edvard. Some 100 guests were in attendance.

Yesterday the popular couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at home on the Redneersville road. The setting was similar in many ways to that day 50 years earlier.

The day of the week corresponded, the bride's original white satin dress with sequins and beaded trim, her matching shoes and elbow length kid gloves, in a state of amazing preservation, were displayed and admired by the numerous well-wishers from the district and as far away as Fort Erie. Still intact, the top of the first wedding cake was centered on a table among scores of congratulatory cards, letters and telegrams. Messages in words appropriate for the occasion were received by them from Prime Minister Pearson, Opposition leader Diefenbaker, Premier Robarts and M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, Douglas Alkenbrack.

By mid-afternoon a steady stream of visitors had dropped in at the reception given for Mr. and Mrs. Peck. They continued to play host and hostess well into the evening, when a representative of the Albury community presented them with a 400-day clock, a beautiful table lamp and fern stand.

WEATHER DIFFERENT

Among those things that were different yesterday was the weather. Mrs. Peck recalled that on their wedding day in 1913 it was bright and very cold with the ground covered with snow.

"When I threw my bouquet one of the roses fell out of it and by the time a friend picked it up and returned it to me it was frozen," she recollected." My new brother-in-law, Will Peck, drove us to Trenton by car where we took a train for Toronto for our honeymoon," she continued." I remember we got back to spend Christmas with my parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Weese."

The Pecks have been living at their present address since 1925. Before that they resided across the road in a house, one of the oldest in the area, now occupied by their one-son and his family.

The wedlock produced two sons for the Pecks; Buford, now on the family farm at Albury; Wayne, with customs and immigration at Fort Erie. There are nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Peck has been active in church and community work. She is a charter member and past matron of Quinte chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. Mr. Peck served a number of years on the township council and acted as secretary of the local school board and secretary of the Bay of Quinte Cheese and Butter company. He has made a worthy contribution to the Masonic Order and as a life member, of Moira Lodge recently received a jewel in recognition of 50 years' continuous membership. Both are descendents of U.E. stock.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

"Flu" Bug Quite Active At This Time

OTTAWA (CP)—'Tis the season to be jolly, but it's also the season for fevers, aches, stomach upsets and all the other symptoms of influenza.

While it may be small comfort to those who have come down with the recurring disease, health authorities say all indications point to no more flu than is normal at this time of year.

There certainly is no evidence available to the federal health department of a flu outbreak on the scale of the 1957 epidemic which affected thousands and disrupted schools and businesses.

For the varieties now making the rounds, a four-point defence is available to help give some protection. It's best to consult your family doctor about whether you need it.

The advice of health authorities is to get plenty of rest, eat moderately and of nutritious foods and try to avoid crowds.

At the first sign of illness, stay home and, if flu develops, stick to liquids and rest. It's uncomfortable for the four days and another few days of rest are recommended.

Christmas Concerts

WESLEYAN METHODIST

A beautiful Scotch pine Christmas tree, all in blue and silver graced the chancel of the Wesleyan Methodist Church for the annual Sunday School Christmas program on Wednesday.

Words of welcome were expressed to the large number of parents and children by Mr Elliott Votery, the Sunday school superintendent.

The children participated as follows:

"Welcome," by Lois Elliott; pantomime and recitations by Cheryl Hunt and Linda Blakely's nursery and beginner's classes; solo and recitation, Gordie Hobbs; acrostic on Christmas by Grade 1, Lela Young, teacher; Janet Glover with aid of a lighted candle, gave a poem; organ solo with Eudora Deniike at the console was followed with 6-year-old Teddy Votery quoting the books of the Bible.

A short play was done by Grade II class, Helen Spearman) teacher; a Christmas carol sung by Alex Glover's grade 5 boys and girls. Hazel Blakely's grade III class pointed the way to celebrate Christmas with "Lights Along the Road."

A new suggestion to celebrate Christmas once a week was the theme of a recitation by Gwen Thompson. An electric guitar solo was given by Ira Spearman and a play by Grade 5 children was followed with an appropriate recitation by Brent Babcock. Twins, Keith and Kevin Wager gave a recitation, Marilyn and Betty-Ann Woods sang a selection. Leslie Shaw and Charlene LeRoy gave recitations after which Bert Secretler's grade 6 class gave their favorite Bible story. A piano solo was played by Stephen Elliott.

A movie film taken by Senior Sunday School department superintendent, Floyd Cummings was shown, which featured impromptu shots taken of the various department of the Sunday school in operation.

A trio by Eudora Deniike, Hazel Lockhin and Cheryl Hall was enjoyed by all. The grade 8 girls with their teacher, Olive Wannamaker, presented two numbers. A short pageant was given by the grades 7 and 8 boys with the aid of a live Nativity scene, shepherds and the Kings of Orient. A group from the young adult class sang a quartet number.

Candies and gifts were distributed to the children and teachers, and the superintendent, Mr. Votery and assistant superintendent, Mr. Babcock, were presented with a token of appreciation from the teaching staff.

Mr., Mrs. Frank Miller Happily Wed 50 Years

A half century of wedded life was quietly celebrated yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, 68 Cedar Street.

They spend most of the day quietly at home then went out for an anniversary dinner attended by immediate family members.

The couple have lived in the city since their married years are members of Holloway Street United Church. Mr. Miller was born in Belleville, while Mrs. Miller, the former Myrtle Watson, was born in Picton. She met her husband while working in Belleville. Mrs. Miller is 72.

Now 74, Mr. Miller spent over a half a century working in the plumbing and heating business. He worked for John Lewis Company in Belleville 48 years and for five years with Vandusen's in Picton.

He still does the occasional small plumbing job "for his friends" but leaves the bigger jobs for younger men.

Miller is 72.

Marking their anniversary the couple received a scroll from the provincial secretary, also personal messages of congratulations from W. E. Sandercock, Lee Grills, John Diefenbaker and Mayor J. R. Ellis.

They have but one son, Allen Miller of this city, and one grandson.

Betty Boop Styles Had Day Again

TORONTO (CP)—The return of Betty Boop, in style at least, marked the arrival of Montreal designer John Warden here Wednesday.

The cartoon character with the pussycat bow, swinging pearl necklace and big eyes had her day again on the fashion stage as Mr. Warden showed his collection of white wool suits with deep lapels, floor-length coats and snowy moiry blouses with halter necklines.

The emphasis on the style of the 1920s was evident with the bathrobe coats tailored with epaulets, a big collar and sash.

Accompanying the suits were big belts riding loosely over the hipboxes. The signature blouses under the suits had a big bow under the chin. They were made of navy silk massed with tiny white flowers or moire in bright gold for the white suits, beige for the grey ones.

Ribbon satins in white or black helped shape theatre and cocktail ensembles, while pink and orange rajah tapestries highlighted the long coats.

Casual skirts and jerkin sets loosely belted over pussycat bow blouses were shown for the sport set.

GIVEABLE FOAMTREADS
3 good reasons for giving Foamtreads this Christmas
We've seen shoe salesmen stomp on the heel counter of a Foamtread slipper to show how it snaps back to shape.
We've also seen mothers take Foamtread slippers out of the wash as good as new.
In other words, Foamtreads are made to last for a very long time. For example, we have a guarantee against sole separation.
Other reasons for giving Foamtreads this Christmas include: sensible prices; quiet leather out-soles; non-rolling heels; and handsome styling.

U.C.W. Meetings

VICTORIA U.C.W.

THE GORE — Mrs. Smith Brown was hostess for the Christmas meeting on Thursday evening of Victoria UCW. Fourteen members and four visitors were present. Mrs. Hubert Townsend, president, opened the meeting with a call to worship.

Annual reports were received from members of the executive, all showing a year of much activity. Mrs. Amsbury had charge of the program. A skit was presented with several members taking part. This portrayed the real meaning of Christmas as opposed to the present bedlam, feasting, merry-making and exchange of gifts. All joined in singing a carol, followed by a candle-lighting ceremony.

Mrs. Amsbury gave a talk on Mary, Jesus' mother, bringing out many helpful thoughts for the mothers of today. This inspirational program was closed with singing of a carol and a prayer by Mrs. Amsbury.

The Rev. Amsbury took charge for the election of officers. Mrs. Gordon Waterhouse as chairman of the nominating committee, presented a slate of officers which was accepted. Christmas readings were given by Mrs. Eldon Adams and Mrs. Waterhouse, and Mr. Amsbury closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served by Mrs. Brown and her committee.

Gifts were handed in to go to the Salvation Army and Children's Aid to help with Christmas parcels.

Successful Living

Dad Says Yes Mother Says No

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I have just turned 16. My father says I should be allowed to date on a Saturday night if I'm in by midnight. My mother, on the other hand, is terribly overprotective and she is constantly lecturing me about all the young unwed mothers. She doesn't want me dating even twice a month.

Where other mothers treat their daughter's boy friends friendly, my mother treats them coldly, begrudges their presence. "They're out for sex, Dorrie, and it's sickening how many 16-year-old girls are pregnant."

Well, Doris, I know about sex and what's going on and my moral standards are high. Don't I deserve dating privileges weekly? Dad can't help me as he has no say in my matters (says Mom.) — DORRIE.

DEAR DORRIE: What event in her own past has set your mother against half of the human race?

Granted, there are sexy, self-indulgent kids marring the landscape, but a girl solves nothing by living in a sealed-off compartment. Sooner or later, you are going to have to associate with males. And it isn't half bad, once you get the hang of it.

The secret is to know what goes on: what sex is all about, why we save ourselves for marriage, what real love is. Then we simply have to become accustomed to boys and young men, or we'll never be in a position to choose the one we want, with any hope of accuracy.

Moreover, Mom and Dad should be sharing your care. How and when did she take over sole rights to any say in "your matters?"

DEAR DORIS: My husband's parents and my parents live close by, and so do his two sisters and families, and my one brother and family. I had the impression the girl usually goes to her side of the family for Christmas. Am I right?

If I have all my relations over for Christmas and then my parents have all their relations over for New Year's, I feel that I'm neglecting his parents.

If I ask his parents for Christmas, then I feel I should ask his two sisters also, as they would like to be with their parents too. In that case, there would be 25 people over, half being young children, and that is too many. — WANTS TO BE FAIR.

DEAR FAIR: You don't settle such things by rule of thumb. The happy solution can be arrived at in consultation.

For some, alternating visits is the answer. Couldn't the sons and daughters who want to be together help out by bringing part of the meal, or decorations?

Sooner or later, the new, growing families are going to begin to make their own Christmas in their own homes. And perhaps, too, the time will come when Gramps and Granny find the whole thing too much to swing themselves, and will want to share the festive board at the home of a married son or daughter.

Confidential to NEEDLESS: If by "going out" you mean going on a date with one boy, your parents and I are on the same wave length. But if there's a party in the neighborhood, and all the kids will be there, not pairing off, but having a ball just the same, I'm all for it.

By now your Seventeen has discovered you are in the Thirteen league, and not for him. And he's right.

DEAR DORIS: The problem is my sister. She is in grade seven while I go to high school. She goes to a small school and she is a lot more mature than any of the kids in her room. She has no real friends so I want her to go around with me and my friends, but she thinks they will laugh at her so she won't go. What can I do for her? — CONFUSED SISTER.

DEAR SISTER: Don't rush her. "Mature" at 11 still doesn't mean she'll be at home with your high school crowd. Could she swim at the "Y" or join a church group where she might find kindred spirits about as mature as she is?

Helping her to shine in her own group is the very best big-sisterly way to help her.

MONEY TALKS . . . POLITELY — The problem of color has plagued South Africa almost since settlers arrived in Cape Town in 1652. But prosperity may do more than good intentions to east the race problem. South African merchants with goods to sell in a native market have found that politeness pays. (CP Photo)

Now White Man Gives Black Better Break if He Has Money

The color of a man's money is sometimes more important than the color of his skin in relations between races in South Africa. A Canadian Press reporter tells of subtle changes in attitudes in the white-governed republic.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

CAPE TOWN (CP) — The white man is giving his black brother a better break in personal relations in South Africa these days.

This is the picture that emerged from numerous interviews, even though some of the sources were implacable enemies of the Nationalist government and its apartheid.

The white man's old "master-servant" attitude is changing to a "noticeable and gratifying degree," said Knowledge Guzana, an opposition member of the legislative assembly in the Transkei, first Bantustan or Negro homeland.

However abhorrent apartheid —racial separation—appears to outsiders, it is regarded by many here as an advance over the previous "baaskap" principle, which meant pure and simple white supremacy for all time.

This was the familiar pattern during 3½ hours than 300 years of history in South Africa where a whole family of racial problems grew and sometimes came to the flashpoint — whites versus whites, whites versus blacks, whites versus Asiatics, whites versus Coloreds (mixed-bloods) and various permutations among all these.

Comparing conditions with when he was a boy, Guzana, 48, said "today the shopkeeper will take pains to know the name of an African customer, or at least to address him politely."

"It used to be a brusque 'yes, Jack,' or 'what do you want, Gaspe.' Today it's 'may I help you, sir?'"

MONEY EARNS RESPECT

The visitor to South Africa will hear precious few "sirs" addressed by whites to blacks, and certainly not about blacks. The contemptuous term "kaffir" is still widely used. But the businessman sees the value of a sale to a customer of whatever color.

This is part of the much-discussed "economic integration" which some sources believe will eventually break down politics and social segregation in South Africa.

Much speculation also involves the future of the Colored population, totalling 1,500,000 including 420,000 in Cape Town, where they outnumber all others.

Some observers feel that these people, often skilled and industrious, will be the first to attain some sort of rights within the white society since—unlike the Africans — they have no "homelands" of their own to retire to under the present system.

They now have a Council for Colored Affairs, a sort of advisory parliament which meets twice a year to advise the South African government.

Sarieh Dollie, a councillor and retired chemist, told me that as an "educated and travelled" man—he studied in London—he is in favor of separate development.

"SKY IS LIMIT"

Lacking the education and training of the whites, the Coloreds could not now compete in business under an integration policy, said Dollie. But with the aid of government loans, the "sky is the limit among our own people" under separate development.

Dollie, 74, said: "There are difficulties in every country. What we say is that apartheid is a positive step."

He disagreed with some aspects of racial classification, however.

"If a Colored man waits to be white he must be light in appearance. Then he must get some of his white friends to say he is accepted as a white man. We lose by that, because he may be an intelligent Colored person and we need him. There may also be trouble later, over his children."

Some African spokesmen, interviewed in a swing around South Africa, made a distinction of a sort between Afrikaans-speaking and English-speaking whites. Guzana told with a smile of a saying among Africans:

"The Englishman, according to the saying, puts a needle into you, then cauterizes the wound," said Guzana. "But you still know the wound is there. The Afrikaner puts the needle inside and then wriggles it about."

HATES WHITES?

Does the black man hate the white man?

"My own view is that the African has not developed an unchanging attitude of hatred to the European. He is still ready to co-operate. His own good depends on co-operation.

"At the present moment, a change of heart on the part of the white man would be met by a reconciliatory mood."

In this land of the Boer War, whites of various races appear more united than ever before but, as writer Alan Paton remarked in an interview at his home near Durban: "Most of the real opponents of apartheid are English speaking."

Paton spoke of the concept of "Christian National" which he said had been embraced by the followers of the Afrikaners as typified by Nationalist Premier Hendrik Verwoerd.

"Verwoerd wants a Christian National state, a Christian National education, Christian National laws. This is a sort of synthesis of Christianity and nationalism.

"In other words whatever you do in the name of your people, this also happens to be the thing God would like. Now if you study the Christian gospels it is almost impossible to achieve any kind of synthesis of what is taught about nationalism. But that's become Nationalist policy."

Some sources had mentioned the evangelical power of the Dutch Reformed Church, dominant among Afrikaners, on the racial question. Paton was asked whether Christian Nationalism was propounded by churchmen.

'GOD HAS CALLED'

"I wouldn't say any particular group," Paton replied. "I would say all Afrikaners believe in the destiny, the mission of their people to maintain civilization on the dark continent, and believe that God has called."

A leading Cape Town Afrikaner editor said that few articulate or literate people today feel they are God's instruments in fulfilling political functions—"I find it a rather terrible idea."

However, the Dutch who first settled here in 1652 were a religious people and so were the French Huguenots and Germans who joined them later.

The year 1836 saw the beginning of the Great Trek, a migration of the descendants of the Dutch and Huguenot settlers from the eastern cape area into the territories that later became the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. Part of the purpose was to escape British power...

Facing terrifying perils, these 19th century people tended to identify themselves with the Jews leaving Egypt under Moses, said the editor.

"They did identify themselves—some of them did—with the people of the Book. There were so many parallels. When they trekked into the interior they had no newspapers, they were cut off from 19th century developments. The one book they had to read was the Bible, especially the Old Testament.

"This was all about another little people who also trekked, ..."

The British were compared with the Egyptians of the Exodus and the African tribes encountered were compared with the Philistines and the Amalaec.

SECRET SOCIETY EXISTS

A latter - day manifestation of Afrikaner solidarity that arouses fears among other races is the Broederbond, a secret society. Head of this elite group of which Verwoerd is a member, is Dr. Piet Meyer, chief of the South African Broadcasting Corporation.

English - language newspapers, the main opponents of apartheid, regularly assail the SABC as a tool of the Nationalist party. The Johannesburg Star said the radio network there is no television in South Africa—has been organized "not merely by the party but by the extreme right wing of the party."

"There is not much that can be done about this, short of a change in government. In South Africa, which is unlike most democracies, power means absolute power."

"The government grabs what it wants, unrestrained by constitutional or conventional checks. The use of the monopoly radio by the party is thus indistinguishable from use in the Communist and other authoritarian states."

Paton spoke of a "terrible campaign of vilification" that had been launched against C. F. Beyers Naude, a former moderator of the Dutch church's Southern Transvaal Synod who left the Broederbond to lead the Christian Institute, an interdenominational body dedicated to racial understanding. Anonymous circulars had advocated his "liquidation."

Naude has pleaded with his countrymen not to become "like the people of Nazi Germany."

Naude urged in the institute's journal:

"Read the editorials and correspondence columns of some church and political papers in our country, especially on the Afrikaans side, and ask yourself if there are no clear signs of similarity between the perception and behavior of people in Nazi Germany and herself."

Tomorrow: Talk with a Paton winner.

Inflation Seen Main Cloud On Canada's Economic Horizon

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The threat of inflation appears to be the main cloud on the domestic horizon as Canada approaches the threshold of its 98th straight year of steady economic expansion.

However, government economists expect factors will be brought into play at the start of 1966 that will add even further strength to the economy and perhaps even forestall some price pressures.

Employment, industrial production and domestic trade all showed gains in 1965. The total value of all goods and services produced in the year is estimated at more than $53,000,000,000, up nine per cent from the 1964 gross national product.

The current expansionary swing in the business cycle dates from early 1961, the busiest period without a general reversal since the Second World War. A dip in some indexes occurred in the summer of 1962 but since then nearly all economic indicators have risen steadily upwards.

Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, said in a late November speech that there was ample room to expand during the early stages of the current boom. Then industrial plants were running at less than capacity, and eight or nine per cent of the labor force was unemployed.

LABOR GROWS SHORT

Now, however, most industries are running close to capacity and many are planning extensions. Unemployment was less than three per cent of the labor force in August and September, and some shortages of skilled labor have developed.

This puts pressure on both wage and price levels. Average hourly earnings in manufacturing rose from $2.04 last autumn to $2.12 this autumn and union are seeking further increases.

The consumer price index—based on 1961 prices equalling 100—rose to a high of 140.2 in November, compared with 135.9 a year previous. More dramatic was a jump in the general wholesale price index last summer. After it had held fairly steady for 18 months.

A measure of the spending mood of the people was a marked gain in retail trade. Valued at $1,610,000,000 in December, 1963, and $1,653,000,000 in December, 1964, it rose to $1,829,000,000 late last summer and seemed headed for another year-end high. Consumer credit outstanding at mid-year was $5,807,000,000, up 14 per cent in a year.

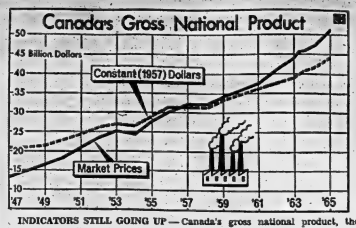
MAY CURB SPENDING

A damper on spending probably will be the immediate effect of the start Jan. 1 of payroll deductions, employer contributions and subscriptions by the self-employed to the Canada Pension Plan fund. Payroll deductions will be 1.8 per cent of income, to be matched by employers' contributions. The self-employed are required to pay 3.6 per cent of their incomes.

This will have the effect of a new tax on disposable incomes. Federal income taxes were reduced by 10 per cent last July 1. In many cases the new pension plan payroll deduction will mean more in dollars and cents than the benefit of the mid-year tax cut.

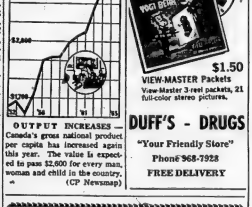
But the pension fund which will be built up will be a new factor in the economy in another way. Funds in excess of three months' needs will be available for provincial government investment purposes. This will mean the provinces should find it easier to finance new projects such as highways, bridges and buildings.

The construction industry, with its widespread ramifications on supplying industries, showed big gains in 1965 in both the amount of work done and the amount of employment provided.



PROJECTS PUT OFF

Fears were expressed at midsummer that the construction industry was incapable of doing all the work without inflationary price and wage pressure. The federal government and some of its agencies announced postponement of major building projects to reduce the pressure on the industry.



Housing statistics started the year. The number of new houses started ran ahead during 1964 figures. In the first half of 1964 figures in the first half but later dipped below year-previous levels. In the year's first 10 months, 110,123 houses and apartment units were started, up more than six per cent from the comparable 1964 figures.

The 6¼-per-cent interest rate was maintained on National Housing Act mortgages but most of the big mortgage lenders withdrew from the field.

The harvest of another bumper grain crop in Western Canada, though not a record, meant further underlying strength for the economy entering the new year. It was reflected also in a steady climb in retail sales in Western Canada during the final months of 1965.

INDICATORS STILL GOING UP—Canada's gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced, is estimated at more than $51,000,000,000 for 1965, an increase of nine per cent from 1964. The threat of inflation accompanies the upward trend but government economists figure that payments to the Canada Pension Plan which start in January, 1965, will ease the threat. (CP Newsmap)

OUTPUT INCREASES—Canada's gross national product per capita has increased again this year. The value is expected to pass $2,600 for every man, woman and child in the country. (CP Newsmap)

'Rest Homes' to Fill Gap Between Homes for Aged And Hospitals to Be Built

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government yesterday revealed plans for the establishment of a series of small public "rest homes" to fill the gap between homes for the aged and hospitals.

Welfare Minister Cecile outlined the proposal before the legislature's select committee on aging. He said the idea was to give the special care to persons who no longer require hospital treatment.

The capacity of the homes would be limited to 30. They would be built mainly in southern Ontario centres "in reasonably close proximity to a resident's lifelong place of residence."

While the rest homes would be designed mainly to care for elderly persons, the province does not prepare to establish an age limit under which younger persons would be denied entry.

The services provided in the new homes would fall into what the welfare department calls the "grey area" between true domiciliary accommodation in existing homes for the aged, and hospital accomodation where the emphasis is on treatment and chronic and convalescent care.

IMPOSING STRAINS

The department says bed and special care now is imposing strains on homes for the aged in Ontario.

To relieve this pressure the new homes will each have nursing stations and related facilities with a combination dining and sitting room area.

The welfare department is not entirely happy with the name "rest home," but it says it will serve the purpose unless the aging committee can come up with a better name.

Municipalities would build the homes on the same basis as they now construct homes for the aged, aided by provincial government grants.

DOCTORS WILL DECIDE

Residents would be admitted on the basis of a statement by two physicians that they could no longer benefit from active hospital treatment but needed continuous maintenance and support 24 hours a day.

"While this is therefore a form of domiciliary or sheltered residential care," said the welfare brief, "we must emphasize that the persons best served in these "rest homes" would not generally be eligible for care that is available today in homes for the aged.

Mr. Cecile also told the committee the government is considering doubling its capital construction grants to $5,000 a bed for charitable institutions which built homes for the aged.

A special office on aging is being established in the department to co-ordinate all functions which touch on the lives of older persons. Director of the office will be Lawrence Crawford, a gerontologist who at present i sacting as consultant to the committee on aging.

Canada to Seek to Improve Airlift Capacity in NATO

By HAROLD MORRISON

PARIS (CP)—Defence Minister Paul Hellyer of Canada urged the North Atlantic Council Wednesday to ditch unrealistic and unattainable defence goals. He proposed that long-range planning be reduced to a basis of what each member country intends and can afford to spend, financially and politically.

Hellyer threw full support behind U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara's proposal for a five-year NATO military blueprint, adjusted each year. The Canadian minister told reporters after his council speech Wednesday that Canada will seek to improve its airlift capacity as part of its contribution to increased NATO mobility.

Canada's concentration, he indicated, will be more on expanding its conventional weapons rather than its nuclear role. As Canada's conventional - nuclear NATO air division declines with age, the worn-out Starfighters will not be replaced.

McNamara forecast in a speech that in a few years China will have a stockpile of nuclear weapons and anticipated by 1967 the Chinese may develop a medium-ranged ballistic missile which could be married to Chinese submarines.

MUST WATCH CHINA

Hellyer said he agreed with McNamara that attention should be paid to China's military production, adding that the mid-1970s China will have quite an impressive capability." But he would go no farther than the word "capability." He would not say that China would in fact have a ballistic missile in production in the next few years.

The allies shouldn't make the mistake of underrating China's potential as they had done with the Soviet Union in the first years after the Second World War, he said.

Hellyer noted that Canada has already adopted the U.S. five-year military planning concept, although in Canada's case inflation may shrink defence purchasing power. The Canadian five-year plan is based on an annual increase of two per cent in the defence budget, but the average price of defence equipment and manpower is expected to rise by an annual three or 3½ per cent. The estimated price rise will more than offset the budget increases.

Hellyer said the proposed NATO five-year planning program should reduce force requests to approximate national plans, evolving out of needs and what member countries intend and are able to do and the risks they are willing to take.

Both Hellyer and McNamara placed heavy emphasis on a NATO "fire brigade" mobile force, designed to move speedily to protect NATO flanks.

The Canadian contribution, made up of the Black Watch stationed at Camp Gagetown, N.B., will participate in a mobile exercise in northern Norway next February and March. Canada's contribution is supported by Hercules planes, now totalling about 16 and soon to be increased to 30. The RCAF also has 12 Yukons.

Canada backs its European brigade and mobile battalion with two brigades in Canada. But Hellyer said it is "completely unrealistic" to believe that these two brigades could be moved quickly to any trouble spot. Canada lacks sufficient air or sea transport.

Canada looked to the developing U.S. C-5 air transport for possible Canadian use. Hellyer described this huge new plane as an "almost staggering" air platform. It could airlift 720 troops.

Hellyer described the five-year military planning concept as "an excellent managerial tool."

On the Viet Nam war, Hellyer said the U.S. would like to see greater European participation. He was sure McNamara would be delighted if NATO allies would extend the sphere of their military operations to Viet Nam. But the U.S. was "realistic enough" to know that a consensus on this point is not possible, Hellyer added.

Maugham Dies

ten for money, written what he thought went to read," Maugham said.

He travelled all over the world seeking material, saying, "One reason why authorship is that they wait for material to come to them."

WROTE WITH PEN

Maugham never used a typewriter. He wrote with a fountain pen and in his prime he could turn out 1,000 to 1,500 words between breakfast and lunch.

Maugham died without any apparent change in the view expressed in 1964 to a friend and biographer, Wilmon Menard: "I have not uncovered any evidence in my ecclesiastical researches to cause me to change my agnostic views. I still believe in the existence of God nor in the immortality of the soul."

Alan F. Searle, Maugham's secretary, said the author directed in a will he made several years ago that his body be cremated and the ashes sent to England to be placed in Canterbury Cathedral.

Born of British parents in Paris Jan. 25, 1874, and educated in England and Germany, Maugham was a great traveller and his cosmopolitan outlook enriched him international readership.

His first play was performed in Germany while he was a student at Heidelberg. Returning to London, he studied medicine and qualified as a doctor, but abandoned medicine for writing afterward, publishing his first novel, Lisa of Lambeth, in 1897.

EARNED RARE LIVING

Ten years of novel-writing followed and earned him a fine living. Financial success came only when he returned to the stage.

Of Human Bondage, finished just as the First World War broke out, established Maugham's reputation as a novelist.

In the war he served first in an ambulance unit, then in intelligence. He was sent on a secret mission to Russia but developed tuberculosis and ended the war in a sanatorium.

He stopped writing for the stage in 1933, saying he was "no longer in touch with the public." But he went writing successful novels and short stories. His short stories compared with those of French Writer Guy de Maupassant.

In the Second World War, after special work for the British ministry of information in Paris, he escaped from the Riviera at the time of the fall of France in 1940 in a coal boat packed with refugees. He spent the rest of the war in the United States and returned to his villa at Cap Ferrat in 1946.

MARRIED IN 1916

Maugham married Lady Wellcome, a widow and daughter of philanthropist Dr. James Barnardo, in 1916. The marriage was dissolved in 1929 and Mrs. Maugham died in 1955.

They had one daughter, Elizabeth, who married John Hope.

Soon after the sale of Maugham's collection of impressionist paintings in 1963, a long dispute began between him and his daughter, who secured a London court order blocking the proceeds of nine of the pictures, which she said she had been given her.

Lady Hope also secured a writ and from a court in Nice, assailing Maugham's adoption in France of his secretary, Alan Searle. The tangled legal battle ended with a settlement out of court, three days before Maugham's 90th birthday.

finance a rural electrification scheme, to be administered by the Trinidad and Tobago electricity commission. The money would be used to purchase Canadian wire and transmission line equipment.

The second loan provides $400,000 for buying lumber to be used in low-cost housing projects.

Mr. Pearson also announced that four other projects in Trinidad and Tobago are being studied.

There soon will be agreements, he said, to provide Canadian assistance of some $750,000 for the first phase of a major topographical mapping project, $500,000 for a water resources survey and $400,000 for a transport survey.

AGREES TO AID

Also, Canada had agreed to grant a loan for the purchase of cattle as part of Trinidad and Tobago government dairy industry development project.

Mr. Pearson was scheduled to leave Trinidad today.

Earlier Wednesday, in a speech to the House of Representatives, Dr. Williams described Mr. Pearson as one of the great international statesmen.

Dr. Williams, in his legislative address, said Canada has long and historic ties with the people of Trinidad and Tobago.

"We in Trinidad and Tobago have reason at the moment to be grateful to Mr. Pearson, his government and his country.

"In many of our secondary schools at this moment, young university - trained Canadian teachers are doing a great service, perhaps only paralleled by the United States Peace Corps workers."

Hayes Products To Build Auto Frame Plant

THOROLD, Ont. (CP)—Hayes-Steel Products Ltd. today announced plans for a multi-million-dollar auto frame plant to be built adjacent to its present factory here.

Capacity of the new plant, to be in production by early 1967, will be 500,000 frames annually.

A company spokesman said full details have not been worked out, but several hundred persons will be hired next fall, with more to be added as production builds up.

He said the expansion is an outgrowth of opportunities provided by the Canada - United States automotive trade agreement.

Belleville Doctors Watch Heart Beats Carried by Phone From Campbellford

George Bailey, 79, was admitted to Campbellford Memorial Hospital Monday with severe pains in his chest.

The pains subsided Tuesday but started again at midnight.

Mr. Bailey had an electrocardiograph test in Campbellford yesterday. In Belleville, Dr. James S. Laynes and Dr. Bruce Crook diagnosed the trouble immediately as a heart attack. They weren't guessing either: they were watching Mr. Bailey's heart beats being transmitted via telephone line 70 miles from Campbellford to Belleville.

The incident happened during the testing yesterday of the new long-distance electrocardiograph machine. It was the first test of its kind in Canada, and was conducted between Belleville General Hospital and Campbellford Memorial Hospital.

The new machine transmits, via regular telephone lines, a patient's heartbeats from one area to a centralized point where a cardiologist can diagnose the problem immediately.

Bill Brown, Chief Technician, Department of Cardiology, Belleville General Hospital, said, "The test was a complete success. We were able to receive the patient's electrocardiogram simultaneously as it was being transmitted from Campbellford."

Mr. Brown explained that hospitals work on a regional basis, Belleville being the regional hospital for our immediate area, including Campbellford, and Kingston being the regional hospital for Belleville, Brockville and so on, with each successive larger centre being the regional hospital for its area.

EXPENSE INVOLVED

"Small hospitals can not afford to have a cardiologist on staff, so they must send their electrocardiograph tests into their regional hospital and have them diagnosed," Mr. Brown explained.

Dr. Kauffman of Campbellford said, "Normally, it would have taken until the next day for me to receive Mr. Bailey's test results from Belleville. If this is a serious case, Belleville phones the results to us. That takes till the next day. If it is an ordinary case, they mail the results and that takes one more day. With the equipment used in the test today, I was able to receive the diagnosis within 10 minutes, and thus was able to proceed with full treatment for the coronary."

An electrocardiograph is a machine which, through electrical impulses, shows the pattern of a patient's heart beat. These electrical impulses register on a tape, an electrocardiogram, and can be analyzed by a doctor, cardiologist.

The new equipment, which will not be available on the market until late in 1966, transmits the electrical impulses immediately, over a regular telephone line. Simultaneously, as the impulses are transmitted, they are recorded on the electrocardiogram at the centralized point.

Mr. Brown, whose persistence in searching for equipment of this kind paid off in having it tested here first, said, "The graphs brought back from Campbellford in the afternoon corresponded exactly with the graphs made in Belleville. There were no variations.

COMPANIES PLAY PART

"Because our doctors have to cover such wide scattered areas," he said, "we hope Belleville will be among the first to be able to install this new equipment when it becomes available."

Bell Telephone and Northern Electric engineers played a large role in the success of the test. Northern Electric manufactured the connecting cables between the Bell Datasphone and the electrocardiograph.

Engineers in the Bell Telephone laboratories in the United States are perfecting the process and hope to have it ready for marketing by the end of 1966. Besides the non-portable model used in yesterdays' demonstration, the Bell hopes to develop a portable model.

Mr. Brown explained, "The portable model would allow a doctor to take an electrocardiogram in a patient's home and receive the results of the test immediately.

"It may also be used for testing say when a person has a heart attack out in the open while hunting. The doctor could take the portable unit with him and would know immediately what type of treatment to administer to the patient.

A similar test was held over a year ago from London to Wingham, but it was on a direct wire system as opposed to the Belleville test on a regular telephone line.

WILL REPORT CRIME

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Wednesday the Ontario Police Commission will begin supplying monthly statistical crime survey reports to his department early next year. Mr. Wishart said he had ordered the reports because "if we have up-to-date statistics on types of crimes and cases before the courts we can tell where criminal activities are being increased and what direction to move to meet the problem."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

While a lot of Yule-minded moppets will settle for a "new front tooth or teeth," ski buffs and managements of the district are dreaming of a White Christmas and the poet's "ermine blanket" that lays the foundation of their favorite winter sport.

Some of the northern areas, I'm told, have a fleecy covering of the white stuff but not enough to coax into the open bulldozers, snowplows and those one-handled weapons that have been known to invite heart attacks depending on the age of the manpower.

Skiing is a big sport and getting to be a big business in both the United States and Canada. From a meagre start it has grown by leaps and bounds in the number of persons participating and the number of persons catering to the devotees of the slats.

It is one of the oldest sports on record. The ancient archives-do not reveal that Adam possibly got theh brave-hs from the "Garden" wearing the wooden staves but they do say that a pair of skis, pronounced the oldest in the world are in the Djurgarden Museum, of Stockholm, Sweden. They are claimed to be at least 5,000 years old.

If you're interested, research by famous ethnologists revealed the ages of many skis found in the bogs of Norway. They range from 2,500 years up. One pair dates back to 2,000 B.C.

These runners presumably were bones from large animals steeped to the shoes with leather thongs. The smaller bones, it is believed were the forerunners of the modern skate.

As was noted, today skiing is big business. The international snowbelt on both sides of the border are dotted with resorts, lavish and informal that make it a billion-dollar industry. It was reported that in many parts of the rural United States farmers hoisted inexpensive rope tows on upper stretches of pasture slopes and chased the cows out of the red barns so that skiers could have a place to meet and talk.

Closer to home one of the more popular resorts, the Oak Lake Ski Club is readying for its busiest season. The popular managers, Gordon and Phyllis McGaughey, have installed new equipment and made many improvements that should meet with the skiing public's approval.

The McGaughey's state that two new trails have been added along with a third tow on the northeastern portion of the hill. This promises to be a more challenging area for the intermediate to the advanced skier.

Last year's trails have been groomed and widened to provide more room and safer skiing conditions. The beginners' tow has been relocated and lengthened to provide a more spacious area for beginner ski instruction.

Three instructors will be on hand for group and private lessons on weekends and Wednesday afternoons.

The warming hut has been expanded to provide a less crowded, more pleasant atmosphere backed up by a better-equipped snack bar under new management. Also available is a larger range of rental equipment plus a wide selection of new equipment for sale.

An added feature this year will be a ski bus leaving the YMCA at Wednesday noon and on Saturday and Sunday morning and also in the morning during the holiday period if skiing conditions warrant. This bus will also make stops at the Pinnacle street parking lot and the Bell Park drive-in on North Front St.

"Again this year," Mr. McGaughey says, " we are emphasizing free skiing lessons to beginners, old and young who are club members."

Popularity of the club is growing, says the manager, and "particularly notable this year is the number of new members joining and it looks as if Mom and Dad are going to join the kids on the slopes this season. Enquiries have been received from as far away as Kingston and Willowdale."

In Napanee, the Nacona Ski Club is also readying for the coming season. R. G. Gibbard, the club's racing chairman, messages that a ski clinic will be held by the club and presented by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association at the Prince Charles Public School, Napanee, on Saturday, December 18th at 8.00 p.m. All competitive or recreational skiers are invited to attend. A film is to be shown.

Incidentally the rates of the Oak Hill Ski Club can be obtained by writing Box 181 or phoning WOodland 2-8355.

Hull Pours At Hawks-Bruins Party

From jeers to cheers in a matter of three days—that's the length of time it took Bobby Hull to win back the hearts of Chicago Black Hawk fans.

BOBBY HULL

On a couple of occasions Sunday night, Hull drew a few unaccustomed jeers from the hometown fans as Montreal Canadiens downed the Hawks 5-3.

However Hull, who has been handicapped by a sore back and a leg injury which had sidelined him recently, turned the jeers to cheers Wednesday night by scoring four goals and assisting on another, leading Chicago to an 8-4 romp over the punchless Boston Bruins in one of two scheduled National Hockey League games.

Toronto Maple Leafs downed Detroit Red Wings 5-3 in the other game.

Hull's four-goal performance was the third of his NHL career and marked the 16th time he has scored three or more goals in a game, a category in which he leads all active players.

He had been tied in career three-goal performances with hockey great Gordie Howe with 15. Hull's five points put him in a tie for the league scoring lead with teammate Stan Mikita, who came up with two goals and an assist.

TOP GOAL-SCORER

Hull, who is a native of Pointe Anne, Ont., has a league-leading 21 goals and 13 assists for 34 points, while Mikita has 17 goals and the same number of assists.

Doug Mohns and Pierre Pilote were the other Black Hawk marksmen.

Tommy Williams and Murray Oliver scored a pair of goals each for the Bruins, who have only one tie in their last nine outings.

Rookie Dave Dryden took over for Glenn Hall in the Chicago nets at the start of the third period.

The victory moved Chicago to within two points of league-leading Montreal, who were idle Wednesday night.

Toronto broke a defensive game open with the winning goal in the last five minutes as they downed Detroit.

The two clubs erupted for three goals in the last 90 seconds when the Red Wings' seven - game winning streak snapped.

PULFORD GETS TWO

Centre Bob Pulford, Toronto's top point-getter so far this season with 18, scored two goals for the winners. Frank Mahovlich, Ron Ellis and Eddie Shack accounted for the other Maple Leaf goals.

Shack's marker was scored into an empty net as Detroit lifted goaminder Roger Crozier for an extra attacker in an effort to deadlock the game.

Bathgate's goal, his ninth of the season, gave him 300 in his NHL career that began in 1953-53 with New York Rangers.

Bathgate scored 272 goals with the Rangers before being traded to Toronto late in the 1963-64 season, where he netted 28 goals. He was traded to Detroit last May.

The victory boosted the Maple Leafs to within two points of the third-place Red Wings.

Detroit left winger Val Fonteyne was knocked out of the game in the first period when he received a cut above the nose which required six stitches.

It is not known whether he will miss tonight's game in Detroit against the Bruins.

Toronto visits Montreal in the only other scheduled game tonight.

Canadian-Italian Hopes Slim

More Roadblocks For Puck Tour

TORONTO (CP)—An Italian-Canadian Hockey League All-Star team planning a "goodwill tour" of Italy next month has only a slim chance of receiving sanction from the governing body of world amateur hockey.

The all - stars, scheduled to leave for Italy by air Monday, ran into a road block Tuesday when they learned neither the International Ice Hockey Federation nor its affiliate, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, had sanctioned the tour.

Hockey associations in countries where unsanctioned games are played face suspension by the IIHF.

Janetta said the all - stars have games arranged in Ortisa, Cortina, Milan and Bolzano and perhaps Innsbruck, Austria.

"Before an amateur Canadian hockey team is allowed to tour Europe, it must have an invitation from the country it plans to visit. The invitation must go through the hands of the CAHA for a vote of its members before sanction can be given."

Juckes said the CAHA has received no invitation from Italy for the Italian-Canadian team in play there.

"On that basis, we can't accept this tour."

Janetta said a telegram has been sent to the Italian federation asking it to wire the CAHA and the IIHF that the tour team has been invited to play in Italy.

Juckes said the CAHA still would have to get sanction from the European federation and CAHA members then must vote Canadian sanction.

The Italian - Canadian team must prove it is financially able to support the tour, Juckes said.

If all these conditions are met, Juckes said, "then it is possible we can give sanction."

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League Wednesday night announced the signing of quarterback Wallace Gabler of the University of Michigan.

Gabler, 21, was first - string quarterback this year for Michigan Wolverines of the Big Ten Conference where he completed 58 of 125 pass attempts for a 46.4 completion percentage. The passes were good for 825 yards and four touchdowns.

The 185 - pound quarterback was his team's leading scorer with 42 points on seven touchdowns.

Bob Shaw, coach of the Eastern Conference Argonauts, coached Gabler at New Mexico Military Institute in 1962 before the quarterback moved to Michigan and Shaw also Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference.

Gabler will play for the Blue (North) team in the annual Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Ala., Christmas Day.

Baby Habs Hand Russ First Defeat

Plante Hero

MONTREAL (CP)—Veteran goalie Jacques Plante heroically reinforced Montreal Junior Canadiens Wednesday night as they handed the Russian national hockey team its first defeat of an eight-game Canadian tour. The juniors won 2-1.

As Russian defenceman Alexander Ragulin limped to the bench on fatigue, a near capacity crowd of 14,981 at the Forum was still cheering Plante. He was the key man in the upset of the Russians, who had won three straight in Canada.

Ragulin said of the Canadiens "they have more experience," and that in playing their ninth game in 13 days the Russians "played about the same as in other games, but we are very tired."

Plante, former all-star netminder with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, is a six-time winner of the Vezina Trophy for the top NHL goalie. He stopped 26 shots while the Russian goalie had 23 saves.

The crowd also lavished cheers on Norm Dennis, on loan from Houston Apollos of the Central Professional Hockey League, who scored the winning goal with 29 seconds left in the game.

Vladimir Bredshaw put the Russians ahead 1-0 in the second period and Larry Pleau scored the tying goal in the third.

STOPS 13

In the scoreless first period, Plante had to deal with 13 shots on goal compared with only eight shots on the Russian net. Just before the two-minute mark of the first period he made a fine save from a strong Rombaldov slap shot.

At 9:04 of the second period, Bredshadv put the Russians ahead and the score stood till 7:42 of the third period when Pleau collected a Norm Ferguson goalmouth pass to make it 1-1.

With only 29 seconds left in the game, Dennis made it 2-1.

Interviewed after the game, Russian coach Chernichov said of Plante: "It was he who held us from winning and I consider him the best player we have faced on this trip."

Plante, beaming after the five-minute ovation the crowd gave him after Dennis' clinching goal, said he felt great pressure throughout the game, as if he was representing his country and not just a local team.

He said he didn't realize what he was getting into when first approached to play in this game.

GET IT AWAY

The Russians do not shoot as hard as the pros, but they are just as quick at getting the puck away, he said. "They drop their passes when they are around the net for the man behind and this fooled me at first, but by the second period I was watching the second man."

Plante said the Russians are equal to the top half of the Central League. But defenceman Noel Picard, on loan from Houston, said the visitors would not have a chance in that league if they played by pro rules.

Scotty Bowman, coach of the Canadien Canadiens, said the club did not falter in the third period od for this reason was him to go on to beat the Russians.

"We didn't plan to play a tight game against them and we didn't follow any set pattern," he said.

Bowman said after the Russians took the lead early in the second period his club opened up.

The Russians, who have beaten Canada's national team twice, will meet an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A all-star team 4-3, play their return game against Canada's national team in Winnipeg Friday.

College Puck Team For Europe

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union Wednesday granted permission for a university hockey team to compete in the Winter Student Games to be staged by the International University Sports Federation in Turin, Italy, next Feb. 5-13.

The CIAU, meeting here, said in a statement that the team will be selected before Christmas by a joint committee of the CIAU and the Canadian Union of Students.

The Winter Student Games will include in its hockey schedule such countries as Sweden, the United States, the Soviet Union, Italy and Czechoslovakia.

Robert Pugh, president of the CIAU, said that the five intercollegiate association in Canada will have an opportunity to nominate one team from their conference. The CIAU-CUS selection committee then will make the final selection within 10 days.

The CIAU board of governors also approved a request by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to take part in the Winter Games at Quebec City in 1967.

A university team from each Canadian province will participate.

Buffalo Quarter Is MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Kemp, the quarterback Buffalo Bills picked up on waivers for $100 in 1962, has been voted the season's most valuable player in the American Football League.

Kemp won over Lance Alworth, San Diego Chargers' athlete flanker, in a close vote by the 24 sports writers, three from each league city, who make up the Associated Press panel.

Kemp, who directed the defending champions to another title in the Eastern Division, received 10 votes and Alworth drew eight. Paul Lowe, San Diego's fine running back, polled four votes and one went to Bobby Bell, Kansas City's outstanding linebacker.

Gino Cappelletti, Boston pass catcher and place-kicker, was voted the most valuable player in the league last year.

Although Kemp ranked fourth among the league's passers in the latest statistics, the voters acknowledged his leadership ability in bringing the Bills into another title game. Buffalo grabbed Kemp in 1962 when San Diego put him on waivers with a broken finger.

HUARTE BOSTON - BOUND?

NEW YORK (AP) — John Huarte, the highest - paid taxi man in New York, may finally be headed for Boston Patriots in a long - rumored American Football League trade for pass-catcher Art Graham. Huarte, the Heisman Trophy winning quarterback from Notre Dame who cost New York Jets' owner Sonny Werblin $200,000, had languished on the Jets' taxi squad this season.

Gary Goyer Scores Pair

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — Ron Branchaud scored four goals Wednesday night to lead Maxville Highlanders to a 10-8 victory over Perth-Smiths Falls Rideaus in a St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League game.

John Gore, Wilbert McDonald and Bill Ingram each scored two goals to round out the Maxville scoring.

BID REJECTED

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that Canada's application for its tennis team to play in the European zone of the 1966 Davis Cup championships has been turned down. Canada will continue in the North American zone playdowns.

Blasts Minor Sports

KITCHENER (CP) — Minor sports organizations here are tainted by coaches and managers who by example teach youngsters how to get by "if you can get away with it." A retiring recreator said Tuesday night.

Don McLaren told the parks and recreation commission "our sports leaders have generally shown very low psychological ability in directing their charges into paths that lead them to become fine Canadian gentlemen."

He said he did not think public money should be spent on championship teams.

"It would be more honestly spent in providing more and better facilities and in training more and better leaders," he said.

Mr. McLaren retired after nine years as director of recreation to become ex - ordinator of field services recreation courses at the Priversity of Guelph.

How Rocky, Joe Would Fight Clay

SOMERSET, Pa. (AP)—Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano came up Wednesday evening with two different but not unexpected fight plans they'd use if they were to meet heavyweight champion Cassius Clay in the ring.

"I'd press and work in close," said Louis.

"I'd plow in and hammer away," said Marciano.

The two former heavyweight boxing champions and Billy Conn, former light heavyweight champ who fought Louis for the heavyweight crown, appeared at a fund raising dinner.

The Brown Bomber said Ernie Terrell has only a left jab —"which isn't enough — and George Chuvalo is too slow. Terrell and Chuvalo, Canadian champion, are considered the top contenders for Clay's title.

College Body Favors Playing Limit

TORONTO (CP)—A recommendation to limit player eligibility will be made to the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association board of governors.

It was announced at the O-QAA semi-annual meeting Wednesday that the group's administrative council, made up of the athletic directors of the 10 member universities, favored the five-year rule.

There now is no limit on the number of years a student can compete in athletics in the O-QAA.

The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, governing body of five conferences in Canada since its inception in 1961, has recommended a five-year limit.

The O-QAA has been the only member conference opposing the idea.

If the five-year rule is accepted, students now at O-QAA universities will be able to compete until they graduate. The new rule would apply only to students enrolling after its inception.

HAD TO WITHDRAW

Last spring the O-QAA had to withdraw from the national swimming championships because some of its swimmers had competed more than five years.

Athletic eligibility in United States colleges is limited to four years of competition and three more at the varsity level.

The administrative council approved a rule for breaking snowshoe three-way ties in the O-QAA Football Conference which embraces University of Western Ontario Mustangs, University of Toronto Blues, Queen's University Golden Gaels and McGill University Redmen.

The team with the biggest difference between points for and points against in games involving the other two tied teams will receive a bye into the playoff final. The other teams will meet in a sudden-death semi-final on the home field of the team with the second - widest spread in points.

The final will be played on the home field of the semi-final winner.

If the new rule fails to break the deadlock, points for and against in all games played during the season will be the deciding factor.

Memphis Ups Lead

MEMPHIS (AP) — Memphis Wings pushed their Central Hockey League point total to 23 Wednesday night and increased their league lead by trimming St. Louis Braves 5-2.

The victory was the Wings' eighth straight without a loss. Their current streak is marred only by a tie.

A scheduled game between Minnesota Rangers and Oklahoma City Blazers was postponed because of a rodeo being held in the Oklahoma City Arena.

Real Lemieux and Max Mesliuseh pushed Memphis into the lead with early first - period goals and Fred Hilts kept the Wings in front with another at 15:33. The St. Louis counters also came in the first period on goals by Wayne Maki and Roger Bellerive.

The victory was nailed for the Wings in the second period on scores by Byron Campbell and Doug Roberts.

Colavito Ties Fielding Mark

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran Rocky Colavito of baseball's Cleveland Indians tied a major league record for outfielders last season by turning in flawless fielding performances in 152 games, the official American League averages disclosed Wednesday.

Colavito tied the mark for outfielders playing 150 or more games without making an error. The record was set by Danny Litwhiler of Philadelphia Phillies in 1942. Colavito handled 274 chances in 1965.

Colavito's contribution helped his team win the club fielding title. The Indians finished with a .9812 mark followed by Detroit Tigers with .9809, California Angels .9805, Chicago White Sox .9804 and Baltimore Orioles .9800.

The Orioles and New York Yankees each had two defensive leaders. The Orioles' pacesetters were second - baseman Jerry Adair and shortstop Luis Aparicio. Adair fielded .988 and Aparicio .971. The latter led at his position for the seventh consecutive season, one short of the major league record.

The Yankees placed first-baseman Joe Pepitone and pitcher Whitey Ford among the leaders, Pepitone with a .997 average and Ford with 1.000. Ford handled 60 chances, high among the 39 pitchers who did not make an error.

The other top men at their positions were third-baseman Don Wert of Detroit, .978 and catcher Jerry Zimmerman, Minnesota Twins, .997.

Petra May Turn Pro

Riteways Dunk Napanee 5-0, Rollins Win

Belleville Riteways used the whitewash brush on Napanee in OMHA novice play here last night, blanking the visitors 5-0. Riteways scored three goals in the first period and added their other pair in the third.

Mark Costes spearheaded the club's attack, scoring the first two goals and completing his "hat trick" with the team's fourth marker.

A. Ricketts and T. Whalen fired the other goals. Single assists went to W. Warner, G. Geegan, J. Edwards, F. Surks, W. Dainard and R. Barrett.

Napanee drew three penalties and the winners had two.

In an exhibition peewee tilt, Belleville Rollins Construction shutout Trenton Flyers 3-0. They scored two in the second and one in the third.

Phil Kirby sandwiched a pair of goals around Brian Cousins' loner.

Belleville received five of seven penalties, including a misconduct to Cousins.

WHEELS KILL WOMAN

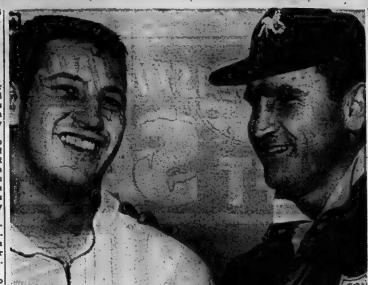
HAMILTON (CP)—Mrs. Anna Foreman, 30, of Streetsville, Ont., was killed Wednesday night when the left front wheels of a transport trailer flew off, crossed the median of the Queen Elizabeth Way, and struck the car in which she was riding. The accident happened just south of the Burlington Skyway bridge.

TORONTO (CP)—The mother of Petra Burka, Canada's world figure skating champion, says she may let her daughter turn professional because of money troubles.

Mrs. Ellen Burka, who coached her 18-year-old daughter to the skating title at Colorado Springs, Colo., in March, said Wednesday in an interview she has lost so much money in the last two years that "it's impossible to carry on."

Mrs. Burka supporters herself and two children by teaching skating, but must spend a lot of time coaching her daughter and travelling to competitions.

After her win at Colorado Springs, Miss Burka was flooded by professional offers, some reaching $100,000.



At the time her mother said: "I believe education comes first for a young girl even if it means bypassing $100,000."

But the difficulty of earning a living has apparently caught up with the family. "Unless something happens in a hurry I'll have to let Petra turn professional," Mrs. Burka said.

Doug Kimpel, chairman of the Canadian Figure Skating Association's fund raising committee, says several skating patrons are anxious to help Miss Burka remain amateur.

JET HITS HOMES

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—An Air force fighter jet, unable to achieve altitude on takeoff, cut a path of fire and destruction through a small group of homes Wednesday, but no one on the ground was killed. Four homes and a half dozen cars were burned as the flaming plane careened a half mile from the airfield. The pilot was killed.

MATTE AND MENTOR — The last time Tom Matte (left) played an entire game at quarterback was at Ohio State, but he's got the starting assignment for Saturday when the Baltimore Colts meet the Los Angeles Rams on the West Coast. Matte, a halfback, was boosted from No. 3 quarterback position after injuries sidelined John Unitas and Gary Cuozzo. Here Matte gets a bit of advice from Don Shula, coach of the defending champions of the National Football League's Western Conference. (AP Wirephoto)

Colts Face Tough Task

Will Use Unknown Quarters

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A halfback who has called seven plays in his professional football career and a young unknown who never has played a professional game are expected to be the top two quarterbacks for Baltimore Colts in their important game Saturday.

The halfback likely to call signals against the Rams in Los Angeles is Tom Matte, a five-year National Football League veteran who was known as a roll-out passer when he played quarterback for Ohio State.

The unknown expected to be Matte's backup man is George Haffner from Chicago who attended Notre Dame before before transferring to McNeese State in Louisiana.

Drafted 20th last year, Haffner has been working out with the Colts replacement taxi squad this season.

Matte had a seven-play stint as quarterback last Sunday, when replacement quarterback Gary Cuozzo suffered a shoulder separation in the 42-27 loss to Green Bay Packers.

Cuozzo was filling in for John Unitas, who went to the sidelines the week before with torn knee ligaments which required surgery.

To win the Western Conference title, the Colts must win this weekend and Green Bay must lose. A Colt victory and a Green Bay tie would force a playoff.

Joint Bid For Assets Of Mosport

TORONTO (CP) — Two of Ontario's major motor racing clubs plan to make a joint bid for the assets of Mosport Ltd., owners of Mosport Track 40 miles northeast of Toronto.

The British Empire Motor Club and the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association, both of Toronto, announced Wednesday they will make a joint bid to purchase the assets of the track which has been in receivership since 1962 with National Trust acting as receiver.

A partnership comprised of BEMC and CRDA has been running the 2.45-mile track under a lease agreement with National Trust for the last three years.

Final "Swaps Just Ho-Hum"

Trade Winds Were Sighs

NEW YORK (AP) — The inter-league baseball trading season has ended with three deals involving six clubs but the swaps rated in the bo-hum class compared with the big one involving slugger Frank Robinson last week.

Just before the gates closed at midnight on trades between the American and National leagues, the reorganized Boston Red Sox of the American League sent first baseman-outfielder Lee Thomas, southpaw pitcher Arnold Earley and a minor leaguer to be named later to the Atlanta Braves of the National League for right-handed pitchers Bob Sadowski, last a starter-reliever, and reliever Dan Osinski.

California Angels of the American League shipped right-handed pitcher Barry Latman to Houston Astros of the National League for infielder Ed Pacheco and an undisclosed amount of cash.

The world champion Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League traded infielder Dick Tracewski, 30, a .215 hitter who played in six World Series games as a sub, to Detroit of the American League for veteran right-handed pitcher Phil Regan 38.

Ottawa Gal Golf Rookie Of The Year

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Margie Masters, outstanding Australian amateur for a decade, was named 1965 Rookie of the Year Wednesday by the U.S. Women's Professional Golf Association.

Miss Masters, 31, joined the professional circuit last Feb. 15. She resides in Ottawa during the off-season.

Will Study Sunday Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Horse-racing officials meeting here were told Wednesday to examine the possibilities of having thoroughbred racing in the provinces on Sundays.

Alan Desrosiers, a director of the Mount Royal Jockey Club and director of public relations at the Blue Bonnet Track in Montreal, said Sunday racing is needed in provinces where special acts do not prohibit it.

"There are some hidden persuasives in some areas to keep Sunday racing away from the public," he said. "But is there any prohibition against it?"

DesRosiers was speaking at a round-table conference which concluded the two-day convention of directors and delegates to the National Association of Canadian Racetracks.

In Quebec, harness racing is allowed on Sunday, he said.

"We don't have Sunday racing for thoroughbreds, but we may have it next year," he said.

John J. Mooney, managing director of the Jockey Club Ltd., which operates several thoroughbred and harness tracks in Ontario, said: "I'm personally interested in Sunday racing. It is something we may see in the future."

FIREMEN GET 'NET'

NEW YORK (AP)—Firemen received a call to the Russian UN mission Wednesday, but were not permitted to enter and answer the alarm. A woman who lives nearby had reported a fire on the roof of the mission, but a man who met firemen at the door said three men had been cleaning an air conditioner and thought it may have appeared otherwise, there was no fire.

Indians Shade Barons 2-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Springfield's Jimmy Anderson scored an easy goal late in the third period as the Indians defeated Cleveland Barons 2-1 Wednesday night in an American Hockey League game.

Cleveland's Larry Zeidel slid into goalie Lee Binkley and both fell into the net. Anderson picked up a rebound shot and fired it in at 14:12. It was the fourth straight loss for the Barons.

Springfield tied it 1-1 in the second period when Brian Smith's 30-foot shot rolled past Binkley after a jam-up on the left side of the Cleveland goal.

The Barons took the lead in the first period. Tom McCarthy netted a five-foot shot after taking a pass from Howie Glover.

CPR Will Not Copy CNR and Stack Pensions

MONTREAL (CP)—The CPR announced Tuesday that in view of the impending Canada and Quebec pension plans, it intends to integrate its own private plan for CPR employees in Canada with the public schemes.

On the other hand, the CNR intends to stack its private plan on top of the public schemes, so far as employees working under a labor agreement are concerned, a CNR spokesman said.

For CNR employees not working under a labor agreement—a minority of the publicly-owned railway's work force—integration rather than stacking will be the policy.

In a stacking arrangement, one plan is simply added to another plan, with one operating independently of the other.

In integration, the conditions of one plan are modified to allow for the other.

Oshawa Mayor Votes Against Labor Council

OSHAWA (CP) — Mayor Lyman Gilford cast the deciding vote as city council Wednesday night rejected an Oshawa and District Labor Council request that the city establish a policy not to buy from strike-bound companies.

The 12 aldermen on council split six-six on a motion that no action be taken on the labor council's request.

In two occasions earlier this year council voted not to purchase furniture from General Printers Ltd. of Oshawa, which had submitted the lowest tender.

The company has been struck for the past 18 months by the International Typographical Union (CLC).

Ald. Clifford Pilkey, president of the labor council, and the other five aldermen who supported the policy request were all endorsed as candidates by the labor council before the last municipal election in 1964.

Auto Profits Up $7 a Car

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's 4,400 new car dealers earned an extra $7 profit on each auto sale in the first nine months of 1965, the general manager of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada said here.

A. E. Kress said in an interview that dealers made a profit of $119 a car before taxes, compared with $112 in the same period of 1964.

Mr. Kress said Canadian dealers' "profit performance" was slightly better than that of their U.S. counterparts.

The association's figures say Canadian dealers' operating profits before taxes now are running at 2.34 per cent of sales compared with 2.35 per cent in the first six months of 1965 and 2.1 per cent in the first nine months of 1964.

Teen-age Canada Scouting Falls Behind Growth of Population

By JACK HUTTON

It's thought years ago last summer an experimental camp for British youth ushered in the world's most successful youth movement of all time — the Boy Scouts.

Within two years, under the guidance of Major-General Baden - Powell the new organization had well over 125,000 recruits in several corners of the world.

It's doubtful that we'll ever see a more successful youth movement in our lifetime, or one that draws as many nostalgic from adults who once belonged to it.

That's why it's almost incredible (at least to this former patrol leader) that in 1965 the Canadian Boy Scout movement is reorganizing almost all its basic programs. It had to or risk fading away.

We talk a lot about the winds of change these days. What exactly didn't prepare us until recently was that the Canadian Boy Scout movement was in danger of being blown away by those winds.

"We've had to face up to the same pressures that are on every similar organization," Fred J. Finlay, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of Canada, told me.

The pressures? Far more community organizations are competing for young people's time than were even 10 years ago; the homework load simply piles up; and TV is an irresistible lure for some.

The Canadian Scout movement lists roughly 330,000 members, counting Cubs, Scouts, the newly-formed Venturers (ages 14 to 17) and adult helpers.

That sounds good until you look at the statistics and compare them with the growth of Canada's population. Scouting hasn't kept up with the percentage of new population.

SCOUTS LEAVE MOVEMENT

In 1963, a year most Scout leaders would like to forget, 9,000 Canadian Scouts left the movement. If the younger Cubs hadn't kept up attendance there would have been a net loss in membership.

Why did the Scouts leave their groups? And, even more important, why did many others never join the Scouts at top level committee under J. Barry Tate, a Quebec executive, set out to find the answers.

The answers weren't particularly comforting for those who like to think of Scouting as something that never changes or an organization that will always appeal to new generations without changing.

The committee of adults found that the traditional activities of Scouting — knot-tying, camping hiking — didn't appeal to all boys or fit all communities. But some leaders were sticking to the traditional programs, regardless.

The effects of all this soul-searching are already being felt. Age groupings have been reshuffled into Cubs (under 10); Scouts (11-13); Venturers (14-17) and Rovers (18-21).

But the greatest effects are still to come. And they'll be felt in 1966. Leaders all across the country have been reminded that the most important factor in Scouting is the boys who join — not the organization itself.

Activities will be shaped more around what the boys want — not what the leader finds for them in a manual. This could be the way from competition to splash parties.

And in the centre of all this bubbub is one Scout organization which has been chosen as the test of whether the new programs are to succeed or fail. Leaders in Peterborough, who have agreed to make their district group the national guinea pig.

"We chose Peterborough," one national leader told me, "because results there can be applied to a larger city but also to towns. Everything we've been talking about will be tested there."

It all adds up to an exciting time for an old organization. In fact, it sounds worthwhile wandering down to the next meeting to see what's going on.

Why don't you try it?

Hope's Comedy Special In Color Was Fine One

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope's monthly comedy outings have been a feature that look like the chart of a patient with chills and fever.

Hope, invariably has an interesting opening monologue. But sometimes the show's sketches are a disaster. He has been written as an afterthought and look as if they were unrehearsed.

However, NBC's Bob Hope comedy special Wednesday night was a fine one.

The Palm Springs sketch with Big Crosby was amusing, had been rehearsed and had a snappy ending.

Only the Santa Claus sketch didn't come off well. But it didn't really need to, because it had Jack Benny in it and he is an interesting things without much material.

It was the first Hope comedy special in color. The musical numbers by Andy Wilson and Crosby were done in bandsome, tasteful backgrounds.

The television networks were well-prepared for the Gemini 6-7 launch Wednesday, but trying to describe how two small space capsules managed to meet in space is a tough assignment. NBC tried with one table model consisting of two little capsules running around a screen and that looked like a miniature railway track. All the networks used more or less the same simulations of the rendezvous. But it still seemed like a scientific miracle.

Communications between the astronauts and ground control added the detail of static-ridden exchanges of numbers and bits of technical information.

The television network's most interesting assignment is the attempt to provide live coverage of the splashdown today of Gemini 6—which will be a pioneering adventure in broadcasting as well as in space.

Recommended tonight:

The Dean Martin Show, NBC, 9:30 EST, with Ella Fitzgerald, George Gobel, Barrie Chase, Gordon and Sheila MacRae.

Husband of Sybil Burton Moving Up on Ladder

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nice things are happening to Jordan Christopher, 25, husband of Sybil Burton.

Until a year ago, Christopher was a lead singer, rhythm guitarist and tambourine player with a rock 'n' roll group called the Wild Ones. Then they were booked into Arthur, a new Manhattan discotheque operated by Richard Burton's former wife. Love bloomed and they got married.

"The second night we were at Arthur, the offers started coming," he recalled. "I had heard a lot of promises when we were playing at the Peppermint Lounge, but now the offers were real."

They included recording contracts, television appearances and a movie, The Fat Spy, with Jack E. Leonard, Jayne Mansfield and Phyllis Diller.

NO LONGER WILD

After his marriage, Jordan left the Wild Ones to work as a single performer on television and records.

"Now I want to try my wings on something else," he said. "I'm taping for two roles in Return of the Seven. I'm up for the roles played by Steve McQueen and by Horst Buchholz in the original film, The Magnificent Seven.

Jordan Christopher, 25-year-Olde, boy of Macedonia-Greek descent, attended Kent State University and Akron Art Institute before leaving for the big city to find his fortune.

Sybil, 36, has two daughters by Burton, and Christopher has a daughter by a previous marriage.

HOBBY IS WORK

The main hobby of Secret Agent star Patrick McGoohan is making a full-length amateur movie with his daughter, Catherine.

Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD — A motion to buy a new chassis for the town large truck was lost as it was decided to have the truck repaired and continue its use as long as possible.

The chassis for the new fire pumper is ready and it is expected the new fire truck will be delivered early in January. The Campbellford Fire Department is making plans to hold open house at that time so the general public can view the equipment on hand.

The Assessors equalization of the school areas of Seymour township and the town of Campbellford has now been completed with Seymour assuming 56.2 per cent and Campbellford 53.7 per cent. These will be the figures for the next five years.

Reeve Brown reported on the fire alarm presently being erected. He said the siren is at present defective. He had had the siren inspected by an electrician who expressed the opinion that the siren would have to be completely overhauled and suggested a new siren would be more economical. After being viewed later in the week by Council as a whole it was decided to install a new larger siren. Tenders will be called to close December 30th. Clerk R. M. Ibey urged that the tower on the present building be left as a landmark and not interfered with in the installation of the new alarm system.

Mr. Les Baker was given the position of caretaker for the Municipal building due to the resignation of Mr. Wm. Nicholas who became a Councillor elect.

Councillor Dunk congratulated Chief Baird and the police on the efficient handling of traffic during the Santa Claus parade.

Councillor Dunk also reported the improper working of the traffic lights. Clerk R. M. Ibey said council had been waiting some months for action of the Federal government on traffic light control on the bridge which will have a bearing on the town traffic light operation.

Hector MacMillan was appointed to the Campbellford High School Board. Some dissatisfaction was expressed concerning the loss sustained on meals served at the high school cafeteria.

One councillor remarked he was in favor of providing educational facilities but he did not believe a taxpayer should have to carry the expenses of feeding another man's children.

Councillor Sharp said he felt the High School Board should report at times during the year and if school board members were elected instead of being appointed then the electorate should assume some responsibility for what the school board does.

Appointments by council to the Educational Authority for Merrymale School were Mrs. J. Bannie and Mrs. R. Collins. The other members of the authority appointed last year for two years are ex-officio G. H. Free and Councillor Dunk. Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, president of Campbellford and District Association for the Mentally Retarded, questioned the eligibility of municipal council members to sit on the Educational Authority as they were not allowed to sit on public or high school boards, while members of a municipal council. Mrs. Rutherford stated she was waiting for a ruling on the situation from the Department of Education.

Clerk E. M. Ibey was instructed to purchase Christmas gifts for town employees. Clerk Ibey was also instructed to purchase two new flags for the council chamber, one the Canadian Maple Leaf and the other the Union Jack.

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford and District Association for the Mentally Retarded, in conjunction with Mrs. William Hoey, principal of Merrymale School were hosts on Monday evening to the adult retardates who are living in foster homes in Campbellford, from the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg.

There are 30 adults at the present time who have been placed in various homes in the town.

The program under the direction of Mrs. Hoey and assistant teacher Mrs. D. Fetherick was given by the pupils of Merrymale School. The tap dancing and baton twirling numbers were trained by Mrs. E. Trinnin and Mrs. Lingard. Christmas carols were sung by the children, accompanied by Mrs. Hoey at the piano.

Appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Hoey to Mrs. Trinnin and Mrs. Lingard for having given generously of their time for the past year in the dancing program as well as the bowling project, also to William Nicholas for his help in the boys' woodworking effort.

Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, president of the Association, presided and welcomed the guests and parents. Each guest was presented with a small gift from the Association; also apples by Mrs. R. J. Cook.

The social committees, Mrs. B. Collins, Mrs. M. Austin and Mrs. Chamberlain served lunch.

The Christmas tree decorations were made by the pupils who also decorated it. The tree would compare favorably with trees decorated by normal children and added the Christmas atmosphere for the occasion.

Great Population Movement Taking Place in Red China

In this second of two articles on China, Alexsandre Casella details the spread and impact of the great mass migration Peking has used to make politically and nationalize vast areas once split by regionalism and provincial power. The most recent war of China by the European scholar, linguist and journalist was last summer.

Written for The AP
By ALESSANDRO CASELLA

China today is being subjected to the greatest mass migration in its history.

Systematically and without publicity, a gigantic population movement is taking place.

In a land where the masses have been traditionally averse to travelling and living away from their birthplaces, I have found people from Canton living in Peking, some from Manchuria in Sian, others from Central China settled in Inner Mongolia's grasslands.

CHANGES GEOGRAPHY

What has emerged is a pattern of migration which is profoundly changing China's geography, results of which will have far-reaching political consequences.

When the Communists came to power in 1949, China was more a civilization than a state. Regionalism was deep - rooted. People formed stronger attachments for their own provinces than for the country as a whole. Local dialects were a great hindrance to communication between peoples of different areas. The corresponding coastal regions had polarized all industrial areas would be extremely vulnerable in case of war.

STARTED SLOWLY

Faced with this situation, the Chinese government embarked on a policy of mass redistribution. The program, which started slowly, has been gaining momentum for both political and strategic reasons. In a few years, a city like Loyang, in Central China, has seen its population increase from 150,000 to 600,000, mostly newcomers from the northern and coastal areas.

Some of the highly-sensitive industries in Manchuria, with their workers, have been moved farther inland. The Shanghai and Canton areas have provided people for the distant Sinkiang region.

In 1955 the Shanghai Chiao Tung University was moved, lock, stock and barrel, to Sian. Students are rarely assigned to universities in their home towns, and civil servants are similarly sent about.

The Chinese-Soviet rift has added to the necessity and meaning of these migrations. The whole frontier area of northern China, from Sinkiang to Manchuria, not only was uninhabited and unexploited, but also faces Russia.

Inner Mongolia, representing both a military void and immeasurable untapped resources, has been a magnet for the populations of the overcrowded coastal areas, its capital, Huhehot, with 250,000 inhabitants, has become practically a Chinese city. Silinhot, 400 miles east, has grown up from nowhere. Of its 25,000 inhabitants, only 5,000 are Mongols. The rest are settlers from Central China.

MOVES WHOLE VILLAGE

Individuals as such are rarely moved. Government policy is to take a whole village from Central China, or a whole street in Shanghai and transplant it 1,000 miles inland. Thousands of communities have been moved inland in this manner.

A man will be resettled not only with his family but also with his friends, neighbors and co-workers. The individual finds it less difficult to adapt to his new environment and will be less prone to homesickness. Over a time these relatively-foreign groups are expected to merge naturally with the local population.

The main question is how much coercion is applied to induce these migrations. Perhaps as much circumspection should be applied in answering this question as the Chinese Communists have applied in approaching the problem.

They long ago realized it is better to persuade a man than to force him. Consequently, before being moved, a community of prospective migrants will undergo a period of preparation. Often just the reasons for moving are explained, with people encouraged to volunteer for resettlement. Less enthusiastic elements become infected with the County Council Appoints Clerk Successor

NAPANEE — The final session for the year of the Napanee and Addington County Council was a short one. It was a quiet session with little but routine business.

One item of importance was the question of the appointment of a successor to Mr. Douglas Perry, part time clerk for the county court. The financial committee was delegated to look into the needs of the office and make recommendations. Mr. Perry has resigned to accept a position as full time clerk-treasurer in Portlon, but will begin his new duties in January.

The county roads committee reported on its study of county roads, recommending the deletion of some and the addition of others.

T. E. Middleton was re-appointed to represent the council on the Napanee District Collegiate Institute Board for the coming year, and Fred Marselle as its trustee on the North Addington High School Board in Cloyne.

There will be two new faces in the county council in 1959. Joseph Shelley, a former warden of the county, will replace Reeve Gordon Mallory in Shelburnes, and William T. Bissonette is the new deputy-reeve for Ernestown, replacing Deputy - Reeve Cecil J. Kidd. Reeve Mack and Deputy - Reeve Kidd were defeated in the Municipal Elections December 8.

School Board Hears Report of Building Plans

NAPANEE — Four new rooms will be ready for use when the Napanee District Secondary School reopens in September, 1958, the board was told at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Architect H. H. Roberts reported on the progress of the plans for the $2,100,000 addition, stating that tenders will be called in the near future. Work will continue on the additional 27 rooms after the school year has begun. There is bound to be some inconvenience to the pupils, he admitted, but stated that it would be minimized as much as possible.

Business was more or less routine in the last meeting of the year. Bruce Freeman has been re-appointed trustee by Camden township, secretary - treasurer Gordon MacGregor reported, and William Schell was appointed by Deseronto Council to represent the town when the municipality joins the Napanee high school area in January.

Principal Charles Frood reported an average daily attendance of 1148 for November, an average of 95 per cent of the enrolment of 1260. Because of icy road conditions there were 121 absentees Monday, he stated but added that the provincial grant would not be lost, according to new regulations.

Several requests were made for use of school property, and three were granted wherever possible.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mrs. Stewart Mitchell of Wooler was a guest of Mrs. Chris Bateman.

Mrs. J. Hailstone is spending some time with Mrs. Fred McKeown.

Mr. Harry Haselelt returned home from Kingston hospital on Friday.

The U.C.W. sponsored a dinner in honor of the senior citizens, on Friday in the United Church hall.

Mr. Earl Haselelt returned to his home in Toronto on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Allison of Oshawa visited Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCoy over the weekend.

Mr. Gary McComb of Belleville spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McComb.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Heath of Orillia and Mr. and Mrs. James Heath of Lindsay visited Mr. and Mrs. Everett Heath on the weekend.

CBC Refuses To Broadcast NDP Program

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC Wednesday night refused to broadcast an interview a political program produced by the Ontario New Democratic Party for use on a free-line provincial affairs program.

Reeves Haggas, supervisor of public affairs for the CBC, cancelled the program despite permission for its use by Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The show was replaced with an interview involving provincial NDP Leader Donald MacDonald, and the two men who wrote and performed the skit, Barrie Baldaro and Donald Cullen.

Dr. Stewart in Ottawa listened by telephone to the audio portion of the show and viewed Mr. MacDonald that it was not clear if it violated the board's regulation against dramatizing in partisan political broadcasts.

He said the show could go on the air but a test in court would be sought if any other politica party complained.

Mr. Haggas said the CBC's position was that under BBG regulations it could not be broadcast.

RESCUE WORK — Men swarm around a tangle of fallen wreckage after the collapse of a roadwork project in the west end of Montreal Island. Six workers were killed in the collapse which sent cement and other debris crashing to a floor 25 feet below a tunnel roof. (CP Wirephoto)

No Screams, Cries 6 Died Too Fast

MONTREAL (CP) — "There were no screams, no cries when it happened. Nothing like that. It was too fast."

These were the shaken words of one of 12 men who survived a collapse Thursday of a railway tunnel under construction.

Six men were carried to a concrete - shrouded death and one was reported still missing early today.

The tunnel, passing under a cloverleaf of the Trans-Canada Highway in west-end Montreal, collapsed some five hours after 2,000 tons of wet concrete had been poured.

There had been 12 men working above the tunnel and five men working below when the concrete, scaffolding and steel reinforcing rods collapsed shortly before 1 p.m.

One of the survivors, foreman Gaston Durand, described the accident shortly after it occurred.

"It crumpled just like that. I was on top when the collapse came. I was left hanging on to a buckled support rod like a monkey.

"Everything went, I saw some men fall. I saw safety helmets, some sinking into the muck. Then I heard somebody say 'Get a rope, get a rope.' There were no screams, no cries when it happened. Nothing like that, it was too fast.

"I managed to get over the wall, hand over hand. It was cold as hell. I didn't think I was going to make it."

At least six of his working companions didn't make it.

The six known dead are: Pasquale Racamello, 26, Vito Racadio, 37, and Andre Gerard, 23, Eugenio Baldi, 45, all of Montreal; Moise Curadeau, 34, of suburban Lemoyne and Jean Poirier, 24, of suburban Lachine.

Charles Maltais and Robert Gascon, two of six men in hospital, were reported in critical condition.

Rescue crews were organized immediately after the accident. Some 125 construction workers, backed by firemen, policemen and volunteers, used a mobile crane, a bulldozer and acetylene torches in the rescue work.

The work continued into the night, with searchlights probing the darkness.

CPR Rejects Proposal For Better Toronto-Ottawa Train Service

OTTAWA (CP) — The CPR has rejected a CNR proposal that the privately - owned railway get out of the passenger train business between Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, the board of transport commissioners reported Thursday.

The proposal was part of the CNR's price for offering an overnight train service between Toronto and Ottawa.

A board statement made public the conflicting recommendations it has received from the two railways in response to a board request for suggestions to improve Toronto-Ottawa rail service, now a source of bitter complaint in the capital.

The board said it has asked the railways to work out agreement on the service. If that proves impossible, the board itself will step in and find a solution, possibly through public hearings.

The CNR plan called for the CPR to "agree to withdraw completely" from passenger train operation in the Montreal-Toronto-Ottawa region. In return, the CNR would run an overnight Ottawa - Toronto service and day trains to connect at Brockville with the morning and afternoon Montreal-Toronto train.

It also asked for free running rights over CPR tracks between Smiths Falls and Brockville in order to make the Brockville connections.

The CPR proposal offered to clear the tariff for the CNR to operate morning and evening services between Ottawa and Toronto.

But it said the CPR intends to continue operating passenger trains between Montreal and Toronto and also continue a late afternoon service to Smiths Falls, connecting with a Montreal-Toronto train.

OFFERS IMPROVEMENT

However, the railway also offered to improve the Ottawa-Smiths Falls run, now a single daily return operate a parlor car and a daytimer coach to be connected onto the Toronto-bound train at Smiths Falls, eliminating the present platform wait.

Rejecting Ottawa requests for overnight service to Toronto, scrapped at the end of October when the old pool train arrangement ended, the CPR

Martin May Visit Moscow

By HAROLD MORRISON

PARIS (CP) — For the first time since its inception, the North Atlantic Alliance has begun to reappraise its objectives, giving more attention to a drive for East-West disarmament and nuclear curbs than to arms buildup.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who indicated Thursday he may make a trip to Moscow to confer with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko, said the NATO council paid more attention to disarmament than at any previous session.

The foreign, defence and finances ministers, ending their three-day talks, expressed concern Thursday about the danger of nuclear proliferation and agreed to explore every possible means of obtaining East-West agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons and to achieve disarmament pacts.

At the same time they agreed in principle to review their own military planning so as to strengthen NATO's mobile "fire brigade" force. Canada, the United States and Britain believe this force needs more troops, financing and transport. The "fire brigade" unit, which includes one Canadian battalion, is designed to quell small armed clashes before they can turn into a nuclear struggle.

ACCEPT FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The NATO ministers also accepted in principle the U.S. plea for a five-year military planning concept, to provide for more efficient long-range production and more flexibility. It could be based on what each member country is prepared to contribute. Some of the members, principally Britain, have complained that existing goals are too high. The country fell far short of its goals toward reduced contributions.

Martin, who presided over the council, told reporters later that he had no specific plans

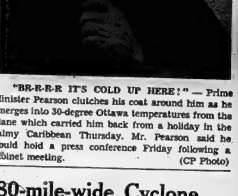
Ministers Resign Just Hours After Pearson Returns

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Lamontagne and Rene Tremblay resigned from the federal cabinet Thursday and gave Prime Minister Pearson more elbow room for a cabinet shakeup expected later today.

The resignations, demanded by opposition MPs ever since the disclosure that the two bought furniture on credit from firms that later went bankrupt, came only hours after Mr. Pearson returned to the capital from a trip to the Caribbean.

A press conference has been scheduled for 5 p.m. EST, and Mr. Pearson told reporters at the airport he will discuss the cabinet as well as the Rhodesian situation and his visits to Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago.



Mr. Lamontagne, 48, secretary of state since February, 1964, and Mr. Tremblay, 43, postmaster - general since last summer, indicated the furniture controversy played a part in their deciding to depart. Both, however, defended their conduct and integrity.

HAS FIVE OPENINGS

Besides any demotions or promotions Mr. Pearson may announce, he now has five portfolios in his minority government that must be dealt with. Walter Gordon resigned the finance portfolio shortly after the Nov. 8 election. Agriculture Minister Hays and Mines Minister MacNaught, both still in the ministry, were defeated in their ridings in the election.

80-mile-wide Cyclone Kills 25,000 in Pakistan

KARACHI (Reuters) — Rescue teams today rushed food and medical supplies to East Pakistan, torn by a 100-mile-an-hour cyclone that left an estimated 25,000 dead in what may prove to be the biggest storm disaster of the century.

Snapping trees and telegraph poles like matchwood, the cyclone roared out of the Bay of Bengal Wednesday, flattening flimsy mud and bamboo houses by the thousand as it scythed an 80-mile-wide trail of devastation along the coastal belt.

It hit the entire stretch of coastline between the port of African Pressure Is Rising On Britain Over Rhodesia

LONDON (CP)—Britain faced more political pressure from Africa over its failure to oust Rhodesia's rebellious regime. The number of African states which have broken relations with the British government rose to at least five and probably will go much higher.

The United Arab Republic Thursday night became the fifth African country to sever ties with Britain over Rhodesia.

Earlier Ghana, Tanzania, Guinea and Mali heeded the call by the Organization of African Unity for tie 36 members to break with London unless the British government overthrew Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian government by Dec. 15.

The deadline passed with the Smith regime still strongly entrenched.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported that four more OAU members, Niger, Mauritania, Senegal and the Congo Republic (Brazzaville) also were breaking with Britain. Senegal denied it would do so now, and there was no confirmation on the others.

At the United Nations in New York, about two-thirds of the 36 African delegates boycotted Wilson's speech to the General Assembly. Malawi was the only

Wilson, LBJ Waste No Time

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — British Prime Minister Wilson and President Johnson today continue their talks on trouble spots around the world, having made "very good progress" at their first meeting Thursday night.

Both British and U.S. officials maintained a close veil of secrecy on the subjects discussed by the two leaders during a one-hour private meeting and a 40-minute session with their advisers at the White House.

But Bill Moyers, the White House press secretary, said they "got very quickly into some rather substantial discussions." Other sources said "very good" progress had been made.

The topics believed to have been reviewed or to be on the agenda for today include Rhodesia, Viet Nam, East-West relations, the problems of NATO nuclear sharing and Britain's defence commitments east of Suez.

SAIGON AP — A teen-age terrorist exploded a grenade in a truckload of U.S. soldiers in Saigon today, injuring 13 Americans.

It was Saigon's fourth straight day of terrorism marking the fifth anniversary of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

The would - be assassin, about 15 or 16, died in the confusion on the busy street. Only one of the Americans was seriously injured.

Another in the current series of minor weather disturbances is likely to move into Northern Ontario Saturday, bringing further light snow or snowflurries to the province.

Gemini 7 Gets 'Go' To Goal

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. raced down the home stretch in their marathon space journey today after officials decided a power unit problem was not serious enough to cut their flight a day short.

They swept on toward their 14-day goal and a landing in the Atlantic at 9 a.m. EST Saturday, when they'll bring back to earth every manned space flight record.

After keeping cautious watch on Gemini 7's power-producing fuel cell through the night, flight directors gave the space men a go-ahead for their full 207 orbits while they were near Bermuda.

This was soon after Gemini 7 entered its 190th orbit at 5:37 a.m.

A warning light, supposed to indicate fuel cell trouble although ground station monitors said the unit's power output was normal, flashed on Wednesday. It finally flickered out about 2:30 a.m. today but started burning anew before completion of another orbit.

Long-Johns Best Garb In Spaceship

HOUSTON (AP)—The record-breaking flight of Gemini 7's "mummy and itchy" crew already has persuaded medical officers that future pilots will be able to endure the excitement of space travel for at least 30 days.

Their six- by eight-foot instrument - jammed cabin air force Lt.-Col. Frank Borman and navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. have been unable to bathe, shave or even stretch out full length since their launch Dec. 4.

They have made only a few complaints, however, except to say they felt "crummy and itchy" and that they were too warm when forced to wear pressure suits. When allowed to strip down to their long underwear, both agreed that was "the only way to fly."

Planning Board Recommends 'Contractual Rezoning' for Housing for Senior Citizens

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has acted to remove obstacles to the building of senior citizens' housing on Turnbull Street. At its regular meeting Thursday night, the Board recommended to city council the contractual rezoning of the property to permit erection of 37 units to house elderly or infirm persons.

Before reaching its decision, the Board conducted a public hearing at which one taxpayer opposed the move and another suggested extending the rezoning to include adjacent properties.

Mr. Harry Twiddy, a land owner in the district, told the Board he feared a lowering of property values in the area if low rental housing were permitted.

"If these apartments rent for less than others in the same district those of us who own rental units won't be able to make them pay," Mr. Twiddy said.

"If we have to rent below a paying level, we won't be able to afford to keep up our property and we won't be able to sell. If we lower our rents, we will attract an undesirable class of people."

Dr. Russell Scott, aldermanelect, spoke in support of the rezoning.

"In my medical practice, I see the need for such housing," he said.

"But rather than spot zone this area, I think you should extend the zoning to include adjacent lots that are suitable for this type of development."

EXPLAINS PLAN

In re-plying to Dr. Scott, planning director P. J. Beavis said the proposed change was not spot zoning, but contractual zoning. So-called "contractual" or "site - plan" zoning is tailored to suit a particular lot, be continued, and cannot be applied to any other property in the city.

Before a contractual by - law is passed, Mr. Beavis said, Council signs an agreement with the developer, specifying exactly what can be erected on the site. In rezoning, a contractual by - law protects the citizens' interests by giving Council a chance to examine and comment on the land use plan. At the same time, the developer is free to explore many new forms of housing and come up with imaginative solutions to particular local problems.

In answer to Mr. Twiddy's criticism, Mayor Jack Ellis said the $360,000 project would raise property values in the neighborhood. Mr. Twiddy's fears were unfounded, the Mayor continued, since the type of person who could afford to rent an apartment in the district is not the type who could apply for a unit in the project. Only elderly people who pass a means test are permitted to live in senior citizens' housing.

The Board unanimously agreed to advise Council to sign a contract with Ontario Housing Corporation and draft a site - plan to rezone the property.

WOULD ALLOW STORES

The Board recommended a second contractual by-law for re-zoning of the northwest corner of Donald and North Front Streets to permit building of a six-store service centre. Last month, following Mr. Sid Spiegel's application for rezoning, a sub-committee was set up to study plans for the building and to decide whether or not it was in the public interest. The sub-committee advised alterations to the developer's plan to include provision for 16 parking spaces instead of the original ten, one entrance only on North Front Street, and one exit on Donald Street, and changes in side and rear yard allowances.

Mr. Beavis said that in his personal opinion as a planner, the development was fundamentally wrong by traffic engineering standards. A shopping plaza on a busy access road creates a traffic hazard.

"Site-plan zoning is a compromise," he said. "More control can be exercised this way than under the present zoning by-law."

The Board will draw up detailed specifications for construction of the service centre and recommend them to council as a basis for the contractual re-zoning of the lot.

REJECT CASH PAYMENTS

Mr. Beavis announced that the Quinte Municipal Board has refused approval of Council's by - law asking for cash payments from Front Street developers in lieu of providing parking spaces on their property.

"This is a problem common to all cities with shoestring downtown areas," Mr. Beavis said. "Under the present Planning Act cities cannot get payments that are contributing to traffic congestion to make any contribution toward relieving it."

After a lengthy debate on the subject, the Board decided to join with other municipalities in recommending changes in the Planning Act to provide for cash in lieu of asking space by - laws. The Board will also advise council to change zoning of the downtown area to permit contractual by - laws. In this way, the city could negotiate a cash payment in lieu of parking spaces agreement with individual developers who can plan downtown construction.

A conflict between the city's official land use plan and its accompanying by-law was removed by a rezoning application from a Cannifton Road property owner.

NO BY-LAW PASSED

Five years ago, the city designated the land on both sides of Cannifton Road, from Old Street to the railroad track, as a commercial area. But Council never got around to passing the necessary by-laws making the zoning official.

The lapse was discovered when L. J. Belanger, owner of Electric Motor Sales and Service at 57 Cannifton Road, decided to build an addition on his plant. City Hall staff discovered to the surprise of Mr. Belanger, his neighbors and city officials, that his land was not zoned commercial.

Rather than hold another public hearing on the matter, the Board decided to repeat its original recommendation, made to Council five years ago, that the rezoning by-law be passed.

No Fluoride Tablets Needed Says Officer

City health authorities have suggested that no fluoride tablets be prescribed for Belleville residents since recent fluoridation of the municipal water supply.

The proposal is contained in a letter now being sent city doctors and druggists by health officer Dr. McCall McNeill.

Dr. Metcalfe points out sufficient fluoride now is being added to city water to meet public needs.

"Although fluoride in the prescribed amount is not poisonous or accumulative, I feel that prescriptions should not be issued for fluoridated tablets or vitamin supplements containing fluoride to the residents of Belleville receiving water supplied by the city," the health officer says.,

However, he added: "Persons using water from artesian wells or sources other than that supplied by the city are well advised to use other fluoride supplements, such as fluoride tablets."

O'Hara's Mill to Become Nucleus of Museum Or Pioneer Village

Popular O'Hara's Mill northwest of Madoc is to become the nucleus of a Moira River Conservation Authority museum or pioneer village, members of the authority were told at a meeting at Cannifton on May held their final meeting of the year.

The century-old mill with its upright saw has been a popular attraction since it was rebuilt and opened several years ago, while even a century-old log cabin schoolhouse from Thurlow township is being rebuilt on the property and also the Authority has purchased the original O'Hara homestead.

Yesterday's meeting was told that already many items of pioneer equipment were being located for placement in the old O'Hara homestead.

REPORTS RECEIVED

Reports from all Authority advisory board chairmen were heard with Graham Bell reporting on weed control, Gerald Irvine on education-extension; T. C. Graham on redirestation and Bruce Smith on conservation areas.

Mr. Smith told the meeting that the Vandervoort area at Plainfield continued to be a popular picnic and camping spot with 133 permits being issued for the year.

Of these 61 were from Belleville, 23 from Ontario and 13 from the United States.

Mr. Graham said the Authority now owns 14,304 acres of reforestation property of which 1,187 acres were recommended for purchase this year.

Also this year 163,000 trees were planted bringing the total to 2,366,222.

Mr. Irvine told of his committee's co-operation with 4-H clubs noting that this year was the first time a 4-H club dealing with conservation had been organized in Ontario.

MAY ORGANIZE SCHOOL

He also reported that a special sub-committee had been appointed to investigate the possibility or organizing a conservation school in the Moira watershed in 1966. He expressed the hope that the school would include rural as well as urban children.

The Authority financial statement by secretary J. McLeod showed that $42,442 had been expended in December 15th with just over $500. balance remaining. Government grants and interest or receivable totalled $24,857, it was stated.

The 1966 budget for recommendation to the Ontario Authority members was approved. The overall budget is up but the local levy to be paid by the Authority municipalities remains at $18,000-the same as for 1965.

Increased government grants would allow much more to be accomplished with the same local levy, it was stated.

CHANGES EXPECTED

Authority chairman George Hart welcomed appointees and introduced A. D. Latonell, supervisor of Authority field officers, who also attended the meeting.

The chairman referred to the appointment of the provincial select committee on conservation authorities and said that as a result of the committee's findings changes could be expected in conservation authority administration.

Mr. Wishart said that he and the Moira Authority secretary T. McLeod had prepared a brief for presentation to the committee. The brief has received approval from Belleville city council and also qualified approval from county officials.

The Authority decided to form another advisory committee next year for fish and wild life.

The meeting named Bruce Smith, Thomas Armstrong and Gerald Irvine as a nominating committee to suggest names for the 1966 Authority executive and for Authority advisory boards.

Y's Activities

SATURDAY GYM PROGRAM

The Saturday youth gym program this week will be held at B.C.I. & V.S. instead of Moira. The time schedule will be as usual: advanced gymnastics from 2 to 3 p.m.; Youth boys basketball from 3 to 5.30 p.m., and Intermediate boys basketball from 5 to 6.30 p.m. in the second gym. Any youths who are "Y" members or who participate in this program may attend the youth recreational swim at the YMCA from 7 to 9 p.m.

Youth girls from the age of 13 and up have an opportunity to form a basketball and/or volleyball house league to be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Response to date has been poor but a league will be organized after the new year if there is sufficient interest.

The "Y" program secretary has indicated that basketball house leagues for youth and intermediate boys expect to be starting early in January, if there are any Belleville youth interested in participating in this Saturday morning program they should contact Graham at the "Y" or attend the program.

Beagle Finds Fine Morsel For His Meal

A dog's life is not so bad after all!

Take what it isn't for one lucky beagle hound who yesterday afternoon was seen high tailing it up Pinnacle street with a freshly barbecued chicken in his mouth.

The hungry hound was spotted at the intersection of Pinnacle and Bridge Street and disappeared with his delicious snack up Campbell Street hill.

Just where the hound got the barbecued chicken is another matter again.

Possibly some grocery superintendent with chicken cooking facilities is staging a "be kind to dogs" week and is giving away free samples as Christmas gifts.

Or then again the hound is some manner managed to pollon the roasted chicken.

Health, Welfare, Recreation Services to Be Catalogued

Belleville may soon have a directory of health, welfare and recreation services according to the Social Services Planning Council.

The Council met earlier this week in the Children's Aid Society building. A committee, headed by F. B. A. Sheffield, Materials Control Superintendent, Northern Electric, was formed to inventory this city's health, recreation and welfare services.

Rob Porter, executive director of the Council, said, "The directory will not merely be a list of names and phone numbers. It will contain a description of each service – what the service is; who used it; what it does; and so on.

"Copies will be placed in schools, libraries and be available to the clergy, City Hall, the service agencies and, in short, anybody who deals with people and could benefit from the information contained in the directory.

"It will have to be updated every year, but that is really no problem once you get the first one organized.

"One of the most beneficial aspects of compiling a directory is that persons doing it learn a great deal about each service and become more aware of what services are lacking or what services are overlapping."

In other business at the meeting, the Council was accepted formally as a member of the Community Funds and Councils of Canada and the Canadian Welfare Council. Also, the constitution committee agreed to complete its task and have the Council's constitution ready by mid - January and an administrative committee was formed to obtain permanent office space and furnishings for the Council.

VISITS BRANTFORD

Mr. Porter recently returned from a three-day visit to Brantford, where he studied that city's Community Welfare Council, one of the most efficient social services organizations in Canada.

"I wanted to acquaint myself with the work being done by the Community Welfare Council in Brantford," Mr. Porter said. "They operate on a county-wide basis and their fund drive, same as everyone knows, is very successful.

"The planning of their Council has permeated through the whole community and is tied in with their political and industrial expansion. Brantford is a booming city in every way now. It wasn't 10 years ago. Planning is a big part of the boom.

"The Brantford organization has been designed to get as many people as possible deeply involved in planning, studying and doing. They are organized in such a way that there are always people moving up in terms of responsibility. There is a great deal of continuity because people are always being groomed for more responsibility and are able to step into any vacuums that occur.

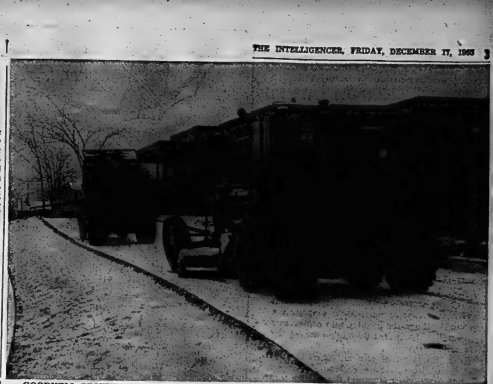
"We hope to start here getting people committed to serve for say three years, with the idea they will be in charge of certain areas after two years. It takes a full year for anyone to learn what they are doing in this area, and they can spend the next two years serving.

"In order for Belleville's social services to run smoothly," Mr. Porter said, "we must get some continuity in our organization. We have to get people committed and get them acquainted with every facet of social services. This is what the Council plans to do."

Need Approval Before Using Storage Pond

TRENTON — Trenton Public Utilities Commission yesterday discussed the proposed water storage pond in Murray township. The commission found it would need the permission of the Ontario Water Resources Commission before it could put water in, or take water out of, the pond.

Mr. Hilton said even a private citizen had to get OWRC permission to dig a well and an inspector is sent along to see that all is well.



The commission may agree to building a fence between the water storage property and property owned by Vagn Lange. If Mr. Lange will share the cost, which would also be shared by the general contractor who will construct the pond.

Top soil is now being removed from the pond site and the workmen are placing this on the property, picked up by Manager James Page as suitable.

The commission will provide Mr. Lange with two cheques, two cheques for $100 for options on property owned by two persons which is needed property to be used for the storage pond.

Five building foremen, and Howard Hallick, assistant manager, will be sent to a labor relations seminar in Peterborough this spring, where they will learn to handle grievances in the event the handling of staffs. Cost to the commission will be $6 per man, and travelling expenses for one car.

Charles Chard, supervisor, will be sent to an electrical utility safety training course for two days in the spring.

GOODWILL GESTURE on the part of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton will see the 700 foot driveway at the new Belleville Family YMCA graded and eventually paved. McFarland's equipment has already laid the crushed stone base but paving will have to wait until the spring. Mayor J. R. Ellis said the driveway paving would be done by McFarlands at no cost to the city.

This sent air force Lt.-Col. Borman and navy Comdr. Lovell streaking outward, extended splashdown in the area where G e m i n i 6 descended Thursday.

They have made a bet that they will land even closer to the aircraft carrier Wasp than the one Gemini 6 pilots did Thursday after the historic rendezvous of the two spacecraft.

Gemini 6 parachuted to a landing 15 miles from the carrier, the best landing accuracy yet in the Gemini program.

The Gemini 6 pilots, navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and air force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, planned to fly today from the Wasp to Cape Kennedy to begin retelling the experts about Wednesday's dramatic meeting in space.

WILL SET GUIDELINES

What they have to say will help set guidelines for future rendezvous missions as they eventually will take American astronauts to the moon.

Gemini 6 was in space slightly less than 26 hours. For more than five hours, the two space ships sailed around and around the world at distances from six to 200 feet.

Band Concert Much Enjoyed By Large Crowd

TRENTON — Trenton residents who didn't attend Wednesday night's first annual Christmas concert by the Trenton Citizens' Band, missed a good treat. The 300 people who did, had a chance to see how the band has progressed and to enjoy some real Christmas singa-long music.

During the first part of the concert, Bandmaster Jack Trenton manager, Ted Snider, got his red-coated musicians through their paces on such marches, concert music and excerpts from the "Music Man"; "76 Trombones" almost brought the audience to its feet in appreciation.

Four local youths, Jim Coward, Dick Button and Peter and Herman Miedema, who are making a musical name for themselves under the banner of "The Four Legends," contributed with folk songs; sang two unusual carols and led the singalong.

During the second half of the program, five very junior members of the audience had the opportunity of a lifetime when, at Mr. Snider's invitation, they mounted the platform and played the orchestra's "Jingle Bells." The miniature band leaders, who could hardly see over the conductor's stand, did a fine job . . . with the co-operation of the band members.

CFRB m a s t e r, Frank Murray presented the band treasurer, Nick Fraser, with a cheque for $150 as the concession of the first half of the program, which was broadcast over the local station. In responding the thanks of the band members, Mr. Fraser told the audience that CFRB had underwritten the costs of the program.

ANNOUNCE A-TEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced two underground nuclear tests were conducted Thursday at its Nevada test site. A low yield explosion is equivalent to less than 20,000 and 200,000 tons of TNT.

Two Service Clubs to Build Swimming Pool

TRENTON — Members of two Trenton service clubs will join hands to build a proposed indoor new swimming pool at the Trenton High School.

In a joint statement issued today, Trenton Lions Club president Sprouls Currie, and Rotary Club President Albert Ward announced the construction of the high school swimming pool will be undertaken as a mutual project for the two clubs.

The announcement comes as the culmination of a series of meetings between the Rotary and club executive officers to determine the feasibility of the joint undertaking.

New Snow Equipment Has Been Added

TRENTON — Even though there's no immediate prospect of heavy snow, Trenton's municipal engineer, Eric Aldersey says the public works' department is all set to "go." New equipment has been added and existing equipment repaired. Council has approved the purchase of a new loader and mow blower, and, according to the state of the budget at the end of the year, this may be bought and in operation just after the start of the new year.

Meanwhile, a warning to vehicle owners has been published. According to a section of the Highway Traffic Act, no one may leave a vehicle parked on any town streets in such a way as to interfere with snow removal operations. Owners will be liable for fines and may have to pay costs of the vehicles being towed away and stored . . . and could have their licences suspended for 30 days.

Sunday School Pupils Give Concert

TRENTON — A capacity audience attended the annual Christmas pageant of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last evening when members of the Sunday School presented their Christmas program "The Message of the Bells". The program told the story of the bells at Christmas ringing out the "good-news" of the birth of the Christ Child in the manger at Bethlehem.

Following a welcome by Sunday school superintendent, George McGregor, a recitation "Christmas Welcome" was delivered by Kevin Dinhart.

Narrators for the program were Miss Judy Chestnut and Mr. Douglas Jackson. Special music was presented by the class of Mr. Harold Keefer, and a quartet "Love Divine" beautifully rendered by Linda, Jane, Leah and Mary Ann Meinster. The audience also heard the Nursery Class singing "Away in a Manger" and "Jesus Loves Me," while the primary department sang the meaning of "John Three-Sixteen."

During the evening a special offering was received which will be forwarded to the mission field in Jhansi India, to help the Theresa Orphans who are being cared for and educated in the mission of the Presbyterian Church there.

Miss Gothard Given Praise By Mayor

TRENTON — Thursday, Dec. 16, the Navy League of Canada marked its 70th anniversary. Miss Marjorie Gothard is president of the Trenton branch and Mayor James MacDonald area chairman.

Yesterday, Mayor MacDonald said there would be no special observance made to mark the anniversary, but he paid tribute to Miss Gothard for her work with the league over the years. In 1961, Miss Gothard received a coveted merit award for her work with the league in World War II from the national committee. Only three other Canadian women have been honored with this particular merit award.

During the war, Miss Gothard turned her home on Marmora Street into a veritable "ship's stores", and, along with volunteer workers, packed thousands of ditty bags for the navy lads at sea. She also served meals in canteens on the Atlantic coast.

Plea for More Symbolism

There is no reason why the Junior Chamber of Commerce's call for more Canadian symbols, like the new flag, should not be considered in a favorable light.

The Jaycees, in a brief to the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, suggest that future issues of currency should feature "prominent personalities of both cultures," such as the Fathers of Confederation and past prime ministers.

However, if this should mean the displacement of the Queen's portrait from Canadian currency, the Jaycees must know that such a step would plunge the country into controversy rivalling that which rent the nation during the great flag debate.

It is this kind of creeping republicanism (the Young Liberals have entertained similar ideas) that threatens to plunge the country into divisions from which it might never recover, and make it fair game for swift and final absorption by the United States.

Is this what the Jaycees want? Is this what the Young Liberals want? Was it really unity which both major parties were talking about in the last election?

However, as we have noted, the basic idea of more symbolism in Canadian life has merit. Currently, our bank notes feature on their reverse sides pictures of the prairies and the Rockies. Why not combine these with portraits of Canadian personalities such as past premiers? Or why not ring the changes now and again, and vary the subject matter on the reverse side of the bank notes?

The Queen herself is the sovereign head of state and her portrait should remain, just as it should remain on some if not all of our postage stamps. It may even be time for a new portrait of the Queen on Canadian stamps. One of the most successful ones was the portrait by the artist Annigoni which appeared a few years ago. The stamps of Hong Kong still feature a similar portrait of the Queen. Why not a new artist's portrait or photograph for Canadian stamps in 1966?

Housewives Education

Van Nuys, California, is the location of an interesting experiment aimed at enlarging the interests of housewives who in effect have been displaced by automation in the home.

Every Woman's Village is a group of bungalows where housewives meet, take some courses and escape for a while from the pressures of home and family.

Established two years ago by a small group of housewives, the Village now has a student body of 800 women and a faculty of 55 teachers. It offers no degrees and not concentrates on what Mrs. Gladys Wolf, dean of the village, describes as "relaxed learning."

The curriculum of 100 courses ranges from applied economics, yoga, papier mache and rug work to sculpture and cybernetics.

For an enterprise which was started for the rehabilitation of bored, middle-aged housewives, Every Woman's Village in Van Nuys is more than living up to its expectations.

It is interesting to note in passing that many of the students were recommended to the non-profit village by psychiatrists. Clearly, the California housewives are finding more satisfaction in furthering their education than in an endless succession of coffee and bridge parties.

Texas Bangs

Now and again some luckless teenager gets the old heave-ho from a school principal who takes exception to the length of his hair or the cut of his clothes.

"Conform—or else," he is told. And often the school authorities have a reasonable point.

Unluckier than most is Vicki Norman, a 15-year-old 9th grader at a school in Texas. Miss Norman wears her blonde hair down to her shoulders, in the manner of many girls of her age. However, she has a small-grooming problem.

However, school principal Arthur Casey takes exception to the bangs which extend to a point below the youngster's eyebrows.

The Texas girl has been suspended from classes on the ban the bangs trimmed. She and her mother, Mrs. Nell Norman, have refused, and there the matter rests. But the principal's ruling, as we have noted, seems unduly harsh.

Somerset Maugham

One of the world's great novelists, Somerset Maugham, has died in Nice, on the French Riviera where he made his home.

No contemporary writer excelled Maugham as a story-teller. Widely-travelled, his experience of the world enabled him to inject a note of realism into his novels which made him one of the most popular writers of the day.

Maugham's characters are people any of us might encounter in our daily lives. And the situations he describes are those within the experience of many. In a writing career spanning several decades, the British-born author's work has earned a permanent place in the literature of our time.

To Your Good Health

Monthly Sore Spots Perhaps Type of Hives

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have suffered for several years from a condition which has been called arthritis by some doctors, while others disagree.

Just before and during the monthly period, a small red, very sensitive spot, will swelling develop. It can be in the ankles, knees, base of the spine, jaw, in fact at one time or another in almost any area of the body. Can you throw any light on this? — M. H.

Perhaps. More data would have to be known in attempt to diagnose such a problem. However, I, too, doubt that it is arthritis. If it were, we would expect the soreness to occur in joints which would also be troublesome between periods.

Here is a suggestion which comes strongly to mind on the basis of your letter. Some women have a form of urticaria which coincides with the monthly period.

Strictly speaking urticaria means hives, and the hives in this case may not be quite what we ordinarily think of as being meant by that term. There are scattered, red, tender, raised blotches.

Other women develop a herpes, or "shingle-type" of skin disorder at this time. There is pain, and along with it the formation of blebs or small blisters, just as occurs with shingles. This tends to occur in the same spot, however.

Keep in mind that I am not undertaking to say positively that this is your trouble. Rather, I'm suggesting a possible approach.

Such attacks of urticaria sometimes be prevented in minimized by taking an antihistamine medication at the onset, and you might at least give this a try, under the supervision of your physician, of course. This is not a treatment that has been in full for a good many women who had assumed that this kind of trouble was something they "just had to suffer with."

Dear Dr. Molner: Two years ago after a flu shot I had quite a reaction for about 24 hours, and could hardly get my breath for a few hours. The doctor will not give me any more flu shots. I asked him again last year and he said absolutely not.

Has there been any change in the method of giving these shots so that the few of us who are allergic to them can use to have this protection? I am a secretary in a university and am thoroughly exposed to any "bugs" constantly. — E. M.

A few people are allergic to almost anything, and this includes materials in vaccines. In most cases the reason why doctors think it makes sense to give such shots individually instead of depending on "community clinics" and such. Somebody has to watch for the exceptional case. Like you.

When polio vaccine first came along, penicillin was used as a preservative — and some people are sensitive to minute amounts of penicillin. Therefore other preservatives were substituted so more people could have polio vaccine without suffering reactions.

The virus used in making flu vaccine is grown in egg embryos. Some people are highly sensitive to egg. Maybe we will find something else — than egg embryo, and thus prevent reactions like yours. It is being worked on. But for the moment, do as your doctor suggests. Avoid the vaccine, and avoid the flu bugs as best you can.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am taking medication and am on a low sodium diet because of water-retention. I am told I have swelling edema. Why is this different from other edema? — E. T.

"Pitting edema" is a redundant expression. When there is edema (excess fluid accumulation in the tissues) pressure with the fingers will leave a temporary indentation or "pitting." This can occur regardless of the cause of the edema. In other words, any case of edema can be called "pitting edema."

Making the Best of Poor Relationship

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Visiting an Eastern city recently, I had lunch with an old friend, who confessed that his marriage was not going well. "In fact," he said, "I suspect that my wife is having an affair with someone I know."

I muttered a few non-committal words — after all, what can one say in such a situation? — and then he went on to ask me, "Do you think I ought to have her followed and find out if my suspicions are true or not?"

"Suppose you find out they're true?" I replied. "Then what are you prepared to do?"

"That's just it," he said. "I wouldn't know what to do. I don't want to break up the family and leave the children. And while our marriage isn't very good, it's as tolerable as most, I suppose."

"Then my advice to you," I said, "is to forget the whole thing — suspicions and all. Try to make the best of things, and don't look for the truth when you're not ready to do anything about it."

Twenty years ago, I wouldn't have given this advice. I would have suggested that he definitely find out if she were behaving improperly. But experience has taught me that it does no good — and often does actual harm — to find out things before we are prepared to cope with them.

The Bible tells us that we shall know the truth, and the truth shall make us free. But the kind of truth the Bible refers to is not about other people, it is about ourselves. And freedom is a deep existential understanding of our own nature, its needs and its limitations.

This man must first of all try to understand what the relationship means to him, what he is finding in it, or not giving to it, or how much responsibility he has assumed toward it. He must try to learn, in short, how much illicit self-love is co-mingled with object-love.

When he learns this — if he ever does — then the "truth" about his wife's infidelity won't seem so important to know. That will not become the determining factor in any decision he makes; he will view that as a consequence, as a symptom, of a poor marital relationship, and not as the "cause" of any estrangement.

Just as it is dangerous to hand a child a gun before his judgment and emotions are disciplined enough to handle firearms so it is dangerous to arm ourselves with knowledge which we cannot handle — especially if, as in his case, he would not know what to do with the information, anyway. Intelligence keeps both eyes open, and wants to know; but wisdom, which is rare and more necessary, often keeps its eyes half-closed and averts its head from sights it can neither accept nor reject.

Costly Ice-Breaking Job

Kingston Whig-Standard

To the layman at least it seems that the higher the level of government involved is a department, the higher the cost of operations. This theory, on the surface at least, is given some credence in the opening of a contract for ice-breaking this year between Kingston and Wolfe Island.

The Ontario Department of Highways has awarded the contract (on a rental basis) to a Belleville firm for the use of its tug at a cost of $71,830. That sounds pretty high, but what really startles us wonder is the fact that this was the second lowest bid. Not only that, but the lowest bid was $46,700 — $22,040 lower than the successful bid. According to an information officer of the department, the lowest bid was unsuccessful because his vessel didn't meet the special provisions required for tug specifications". Furthermore, the specifications in question are "too technical" to delve into.

Perhaps the department's decision was the best one. However, we are always a little sceptical when people start referring to something being too technical for the taxpayer to understand. Failing back on that old line of defense, especially when the difference in bids is so great, is not nearly good enough. Let's have someone in the Department of Highways explain, in layman's terms, where the lowest bidder failed to meet specifications and how. Without such an explanation there'll always be a suspicion in some minds that all is not as it should be.

What Price a Kiss ?

Windsor Star

There was a curious juxtaposition in the police court here Tuesday. One paragraph told how Mr. Justice Hope fined $25 for stealing a kiss from a lass on Hallowe'en (the official day for that common assault). The next paragraph reported a man sentenced to prison for four months for stealing seven pairs of gloves and a toy set.

This appears to place a small value on a kiss, compared with such material things as gloves. It raises the question, however: Is a kiss worth what it's worth. The suggestion is that a kiss taken by duress isn't worth much.

The value of a kiss is intangible. It depends upon who is kissing whom, the ardor of the giver and the responses of the recipient. Most people in their experiences can recall (if they are recallable) kisses that were worth very little and others which were worth a very great deal. In any case it is impossible to put a monetary value on a kiss. A kiss that could be bought isn't worth anything.

Princess Boosted U.K. Sales

Cape Breton Post

Attention here was to describe the recent visit of Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon to the United States as an act of "brilliant British statesmanship—the commercialization of a social occasion."

However, some Britons, with a peculiar inability to see beyond the ends of their noses, have been complaining about the cost of the trip to the national treasury.

This newspaper printed a despatch from London telling of members of Parliament declaring it "a bad thing" for the tour, "a whirl of high society, dinners and receptions. Its the kind of a British battling for higher productivity and greater exports."

To be sure, there was lots of social whirl during the royal tour, but the Americans are the British — and for it. The British treasury did not bear the cost of the dinner dance held by President and Mrs. Johnson in the White House, nor for the informal party given by Attorney-General and Mrs. Katzenbach, nor for the cordial hospitality extended to the couple wherever they went.

The most noteworthy feature of the 20-day visit was exactly the opposite of "high society." It was that the princess and her husband met all sorts and conditions of Americans, including the movie stars in Hollywood and congressmen and their wives in Washington.

The verdict was that the polite princess and her chipper husband made themselves immensely liked wherever they went in the United States. The consequence was that the British people shared in the glow of popularity.

Moreover, and this is the crowning touch of the story, Margaret and Snowdon did a great deal to promote the sales of British products, by paying special visits to department stores and shops where imports from Britain were displayed and sold.

If Britons had complained that the couple had been too blatantly commercial there might have been some tiny point to their criticism. But it was sheer brass to wonder what they did to promote the sale of British products.

You get the feeling that envy and spite, rather than decency, rule when politicians and some newspapers kick up a fuss about anything so congenial to guests and hosts as the recent "Margaret-Tony" visit in the United States. It was a festive event in international relations — creative of friendship, more trade.

Museum Boom in Canada

Ottawa Journal

Who would have thought that museums would join the boom? What other form of entertainment - instruction has multiplied its attendance 13 times in 15 years?

What they call the "museum explosion" in the United States is the mushrooming of attractions.

Mr. Archie Key, Ottawa, field director of the Canadian museums association, treasures these figures:

In 1952, 187 Canadian museums of various types reported attendances totalling 6,713,600 and in 1962 no less than 14,058,000. He estimates, on the basis of preliminary figures in a survey now being conducted, that the 1965 attendance will be around 23,000,000.

One reason is obvious to the casual visitor, although museum officials may be too modest to mention it. Museums are better. This covers not only the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa and provincial establishments but the small local museums, sometimes called "the attic of the community."

It has become widely understood that museums are more than a stuffed owl in a shelf, indistinct photos of pioneers, and a sword and the Gurkha knife Bill Smith brought home from war.

The Ryerson Museum in Ontario had a total of 10,000 visitors during the summer months. It is a good example of a local museum. The Historical Society brought it preserves a fine building constructed in 1847 and has assembled an exhibition which tells a great deal about the life and effort of this community.

The museum's association seeks to foster such good work and has published a booklet giving available guidance booklets for those who want to make the work happen more comprehensive, informative and efficient in the preservation of exhibits.

The association estimates that new museums in Canada are being developed at the rate of one every 15 days, the efforts of local collectors' enthusiasts being encouraged by the Confederation spirit which honors the past.

Nowadays the word "museum" is taken to cover more than old or unusual objects. It may mean, art collections, archaeological exhibits, zoos or aquariums but whatever the special

King Leopold II of the Belgians died 70 years ago today — in 1909 — after ruling for 44 years. Leopold's main achievement was the organization of the Belgian Congo, which he ruled for much of his reign as his personal estate. Although the control of the Arab slave traders was broken, at vast expense, the "Congo Free State" was vigorously exploited. A British consular report of 1903 said the natives were in "veiled slavery." Under international pressure, Leopold transferred the Congo to the Belgian government.

1867—Belgium opened the Milan Decree, banning British trade with the Continent.

1836—Sam Houston, the liberator of South America, died.

Force for Unity

Milwaukee Journal

Looking toward the centenary of Canada only two years away, Canada, paradoxically, still gropes for national identity. What this country urgently needs is fresh, vigorous leadership at the federal level, men who can somehow strike the sparks of a unique Canadian nationalism that can be a driving force for unity.

Red Sails in (Irish) Sunset

Ulster Commentary

For many years past there has been a great deal of speculation about the origin of the famous pre-war song, "Red Sails in the Sunset," written by Jimmy Kennedy.

In England the consensus was that Cornwall had inspired the song. On the American East Coast it was thought that the song originated in Connecticut and in California the belief was widely held that the song had its beginnings in Hawaii.

Mr. Kennedy himself has revealed that the song was the result of an evening he spent at Portstewart, County Londonderry, more than 30 years ago. As he looked out over the bay he saw a little red-sailed yacht sailing into the rays of the setting sun. "It was most impressive and lovely," he said, "and this song just had to be written."

"Red Sails in the Sunset," is still popular all over the world. Mr. Kennedy's family lived for some time in Portrush and Portstewart. It was while he was on holiday with the family at Portstewart before the war that the song was born.

Symbol of Evil

I mean did you ever wear a black leather jacket? Once in your life did you ever get reckless enough to wear this symbol of evil?

I own one.

Ah! You think it symbolizes my inner frustrations, my enmity to law and order, my revolutionary tendencies.

Maybe it does.

Nevertheless, when I was a strapping of 14, I bought the big black beast for Christmas . . . from me to me.

It is not one of those fancy kinds with all the studs and everything. However, it is the heaviest of its kind on the market.

After all these years . . . never mind how many . . . it still is in perfect shape, but then I do not wear it much these days.

I still wear it occasionally, but I think I have developed a complex about it.

The other day I wore it downtown and noticed people shaking their heads at me and making wide circles to get out of my way.

Everytime I met someone I knew on the street, they would say hello politely, make a wisecrack and scuffle off like they were embarrassed to be seen with some hood in a black leather jacket.

I think I've got severe black jacket neurosis.

I sneaked down Front Street, keeping my head turned towards the buildings to avoid recognition.

The Intelligencer? I would get inside The Intelligencer building where I could hide from the world and be safe.

I dashed across the four corners, my heart beating feverishly, my knees pounding and through the alley to the back door of The Intelligencer.

I fumbled with the door handle nonexistantly . . . I was shaking violently now . . . but soon was through. Safely! I gulped in relief as the door closed behind me and I knew I was safe, with my black leather jacket, from the world.

I was still leaning precariously against the door, recovering from the strain of the moment, when someone I knew walked down the stairs from the "Where's your black hood boots?"

It was too much. I was not safe even here.

Confused, enraged at my fortune, I crashed up the stairs to the composing room there to be set upon by one of the fellows who happened to be standing there. (Waiting for the coffee truck probably.)

"Did you leave your motorcycle parked in the lot?"

This was outrageous. I was still set safe. The editorial staff . . . That is what I would get. They would understand. I could wear it in there. (Hoy appears in the editorial room are neurotic too. And before the Canadiens win the Stanley Cup their neurosis will grow . . . at least it will have time to grow.)

I crashed through the doors and there I was, standing in the middle of the lion's den . . . the editorial room.

"Good morning," everyone said.

"Good morning," said I, and slumped down, relieved, in the nearest chair.

At last I had found people who understand.

It was wonderful to realize that these people would ignore my person's peculiarities. (Perhaps they are too wrapped up in their own.)

Then it happened.

One of them said, "Have you joined the California Hell's Angels yet?"

I was shattered.

Even THEY did not understand.

I dashed madly home, knowing my family would understand. My wife met me at the door, "Why did you wear that old thing?"

Even the dog barked a bit suspicious.

However, Sam, that's the dog, knows my black leather jacket and is perhaps the only one, besides me, who appreciates it.

Why shouldn't he appreciate it? I take him for a walk every night and I wear it. Sure, I know I have a complex and have to sneak out at night with my black leather jacket. I think my wife suspects that I really do not want to walk the dog at all, I just want to wear my black leather jacket.

She is very understanding.

It is sad, this "thing" everybody has about black leather jackets.

Why can't people think of them as they do any other kind of jacket?

After all, many motorcycle policemen wear them.

Anyway, they are the warmest thing on the market.

All black leather jacket wearers of the world arise I say! Forget the bobsled! Don your jackets! Be men of courage!

(I'd dash you if I could, Hman, maybe I could not have thrown mine in the garbage so soon. You never know, they may get back in fashion.)

B and B Board Gets Last Brief

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism completed two years of public forums and hearings Thursday after receiving the last of 410 briefs from groups and individuals.

Commission co-chairman Davidson Dunton said he had no idea when the inquiry, set up July 22, 1963, would report to the government but it would be as soon as possible.

The 10 commissioners have scheduled two meetings in January to begin the laborious process of analysing a mass of opinions and research data and reaching conclusions.

The last sitting day of the four-day Ottawa hearings was devoted largely to submissions by university and cultural groups.

The University of Montreal called for an updated constitution amendable in Canada rather than Britain, that would guarantee French language rights across the country.

The university brief also recommended a permanent commission on bilingualism and biculturalism be set up to continue the royal commission's work. The new agency could finance research and exchanges of students and professors and make recommendations to the government.

Water Level Control Dams Below Stoco Lake Will Be Built by Authority

Construction of water level control dams in the two branches of the Moira River just below Stoco Lake, will be the major capital works project for the Moira River Conservation Authority for 1966.

The estimated cost of the two control dam structures is set at $60,000 of which the main benefiting municipalities — Tweed village and Hungerford township—are expected to pay $13,500. The Ontario government through a 75 per cent grant will pay $45,000 with the balance of $1,500 to be raised from Authority levies.

Yesterday, Graham Bell, chairman of the Authority Water Control Advisory Board, told a general meeting of Authority members, that both Tweed and Hungerford had now formally approved construction of the two dams.

Purpose of the two dams would be to control the summer level of Stoco Lake which in recent years has fluctuated greatly much to the discouragement of cottage owners around the lake.

Also yesterday Authority members voted to recommend to the 1966 incoming Authority executive the construction of a reservoir dam at Deer Lake on Partridge Creek northeast of Flinton.

Preliminary surveys and soil tests for the reservoir dam have been completed. The estimated cost of the earth fill dam has been set at about $179,000 of which the Ontario government under existing grants would pay 75 per cent.

Hoy'ever, Mr. Bell said there was a possibility of government grants being increased to 80 per cent or even 100 per cent under ARDA.

The decision of whether to go ahead with the Deerock Lake dam will be the responsibility of the 1966 Authority members. Financing details of the project are still to be worked out.

Purpose of the reservoir dam would be to provide additional water storage to increase summer flow in the Moira.

$2,500 Damage To Home on Johnson St.

Damage amounting to approximately $2,500 was caused early Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Donovan, 21 Johnson Street, when a blaze believed started from a cigarette swept through the dwelling.

Firemen received the alarm a few minutes after seven but already the interior of the house was well ablaze.

The $2,500 damage to house and contents resulted from the fire, smoke and water.

Fire Chief Ted Foote said only Mr. Donovan was at home at the time of the blaze. Mr. Donovan suffered a burn to his hand.

"Nova Scotia", Canada's Sunrise Province, Charms Large B.C.I. Audience

By A. HENDERSON

The scenic beauties of "Canada's sunrise province and ocean playground," Nova Scotia, (now Scotland) held the rapt attention of a crowded auditorium last evening at the Collegiate; especially of those whose Scottish forebears once travelled the banks and braes of bonnie Scotland. From Cape Nowd to Yarmouth in the south, the narrator and expert photographer, Mr. James Metcalf, revealed the beauties of this eastern province to a marked degree.

"James Metcalf, a native son of Michigan, U.S. spent many years as a photographer in commercial work, also a graduate of Michigan universities and the possessor of restless feet, which have taken him to many places far and near.

NOVA SCOTIA

Nova Scotia consists of a peninsula portion of eastern Canada composed of Cape Breton, separated from the mainland by the Strait of Canso; bounded on the north by the Strait of Northumberland, and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, on the west by the Bay of Fundy, and on the south and east by the Atlantic Ocean, and at the north by New Brunswick. Nova Scotia is largely mountainous, but rather rolling hills and great valleys, much like Scotland, the Scottish derives its name. Dense virgin forests, some of which extend unbroken for 90 miles, include spruce, maple and birch, with very little or no pine.

FAMOUS APPLES

In the valleys agriculture is carried on, by old-fashioned methods, as in hay loading with fork, and man power, the load hauled by faithful ox-team, too, is grown the famous Annapolis Valley apples, in the moderate climate, and near proximity of the Gulf Stream. Apples are the chief industry.

Among the fauna was seen the hardy American moose. Wild flowers, such as the lupin dot the hillsides in rainbow shades of color; in the valleys the lovely lady slipper was seen, and several other types, while on the calm surface of inland lakes sailed the Canada goose.

CABOT TRAIL

Among the places visited were: the Cabot Trail, with silver birches lining the path. On the hillsides in the dense forests, is the hunter's paradise, and in the rivers and lakes, the fisherman's dream come true; for here, for the taking are numberless salmon. Cast once and the bait is taken. There seems to be an endless supply of cod, lobsters. Trout, and the salmon are in the inland rivers and streams, while lobsters, cod, tuna-and herring are in the salt waters.

PLACES OF INTEREST

Other places of interest included: Acadia, the "Land of Evangeline," where the French settled, made famous by the poet, Longfellow. Here was seen the little church she attended, and her well; the Bay of Fundy, watching the tide come in with its 40 foot waves rolling over the brick-red clay. A thrilling, and, at the same time, an awesome experience (as seen by the writer of this article); the Acadian University; the manufacture of pulp; the Scottish community of Pugwash; the "Gathering of the Clans"; the Highland dances and their intricate foot work, which begins in early childhood; the home of the inventor, Alexander Graham Bell; the Graham Bell museum, showing several of his inventions, and his workshop; the using lowly household utensils.

WOOL ART

The art of painting in wool; the picture being that of the Last Supper, in which 137 shades were used; the fortress of Louisberg, Canada's played a great part in the history of both Canada and the United States.

At Sydney were seen the great furnaces for the making of steel, at Antigonish, where the games were held, including pole vaulting, and the tabor tossing; at Halifax with its fine hotels, run by the Innkeepers' Guild; at Dartmouth with its beautiful gardens; Dalhousie with its spacious university and its numerous churches; then, too, was shown the making of artificial salmon bait; the building on an immense ship, in the dockyards; or—a replica of H.M.S. "Bounty," and the tuna competition, here tuna fishermen vie with each other in landing the largest tuna.

Nova Scotia is a land of surprises, of rugged beauty, and of a fine hospitable people.

Music accompanied the presentation throughout.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. E. Dixon, and concluded by repeating a portion of the beloved poem, Evangeline.

Tabernacle Sr. School Plays 'Kings in Nomania'

"Kings in Nomania," a Yuletide play by Percival Wilde delighted an audience in Tabernacle church school auditorium on Monday evening. Players from the senior church school gave a fine performance displaying some remarkable acting ability in a group which ranged from ten to 18 years of age.

An atmosphere of Christmas was created by the carol singing of the white-robed Junior Choir under the direction of Jane McFarlane.

Narration of the play was given by Ian Nicholls and Ian Farlane. Throughout the five scenes, Gay's thespian talents were one of the many highlights of the play. Signs and snow appeared with a costumed sleigh-hand, Karen Priest.

FIRST SCENE

In the first scene one meets the young hero, Yancu, the bootblack, the fiery gendarme (loaded with medals), and a gang of shabby street urchins who have been formed into a motley military formation under Yancu as their captain. The gang bring their disputes and problems before Yancu for judgement. A fee paid to him by Toots is repaid in a bit of old, red glass which he found on the street." As the gang march off again to "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" the admiring girl, Tiana lingers behind with Yancu. Their conversation is interrupted by the pompous gendarme reading a proclamation which states that the king of Nomania has lost a great cabochon emerald. There is a large reward for him who finds and restores it to the keeper of the crown jewels, but dire punishment for him who finds it and tries to retain or sell it.

SECOND SCENE

In the second scene, Yancu and Marfa, his mother, come to pay their rent to Solgran, the rich, mean miser. It is Christmas eve, but he rants angrily at them because they do not have the full amount he demands. Yancu attempts to make up the difference with a bit of colored glass which Solgran recognizes as the king's lost emerald.

Yancu is thereupon arrested by the gendarme, while Solgran gloats over the promised reward.

THIRD SCENE

In the third scene, the hapless Yancu in chains is literally thrown into jail with the promise that tomorrow at the hour of noon, he will be led into the public square and beheaded. The music of a nearby church is borne through the jail window as Yancu shows his utter despair. He is visited by Tiana, Marfa and Ossi, whom he tells that tomorrow he is to go free!

FOURTH SCENE

In the fourth scene, the lords and ladies of the court assemble in the palace for the king's levee on Christmas morning. The long gowns of the ladies, and the knee breeches and lace-trimmed cutaway coats of the lords make the characters look as though they have just stepped out of a story book. The 11-year-old king rides in on a scooter, and has to be reminded of his duties by the foppish Marquis of Ritari and the arrogant Countess Lux. The child king "just wants to see his Christmas tree" but must be seated on his throne to make a speech, much of which has to be prompted by the Marquis. Doing his duty of greeting the highest and lowest in the kingdom, he shows his boredom in greeting the Marquis, but becomes interested in the lowest, which is Yancu in chains. The king befriends Yancu, states that the jeves is over, and leaves with his new friend. The angry Marquis blames the Countess, the angry Countess blames the gendarme for this disturbing event.

FIFTH SCENE

In the fifth scene, it is noon of Christmas Day. The Attorful Marfa, Tiana and Ossi come to wait by the bootblack stand. When Yancu appears, alone and unshackled, they think that he has escaped. He tries to tell them about his new friend, but unbelievingly, they try to drag him away to hide. As the gang of street urchins rush in and try to carry him off bodily, the now fawning gendarme appears.

He "salutes" the friend of the king and humbly offers his services. Perhaps Yancu will "say a good word for him to the king? Surrounded by his admirers. Yancu expresses the meaning of a real king.

Cast of the play was as follows: David Lett as Yancu the bootblack, Chock Potts as the gendarme, Eddy Christopher as Ossi, Patty Cole as Tiana, Debby Christopher as Private Varia, Michael Twigg as Solgran, Brenda Lott as Urrida, Penny Twigg as Toots, Greg Tetley as Jan, Diana Lewis, Carol Tewit, Jean Marie Scanlon and Nancy Priest as other members of the gang, Douglas Wilson as Solgran, Connie Alyea as Marfa, Elizabeth Harris as King Zorli, Glenda Vallese as Countess Lux, Douglas Wilson as the Marquis of Ritari, Debby Greg Tetley Christopher, Michael and Penny Twigg, Karen Priest, Greg McFarlane, Diana and Carol Lewis, Brenda Lott as the lords and ladies of the court, Nancy Priest as Princess Fransca, Jean Marie Scanlan as her lady-in-waiting.

The talented staff included John Babiak as stage director, Norman Howard for lighting, John Arva for sound effects, Mrs. Mapp for the cast was ably taken care of by Cheryl Dossberry, Lorraine Yott, Freda Wilcox, Laura Lott and Mary Andrews.

The play was directed by Ruth Howard who was presented with a bouquet of red roses at the end of the presentation. Of course, Santa Claus arrived with a pack full of candy for the youngsters in both audience and cast.

Readers' Friday Column

Question . . . First of all I must tell you how very much I use and enjoy your recipes. I look forward to the paper coming, turning immediately to the page that contains your column.

I would very much like to make my own mincemeat this year but I cannot seem to find a recipe. Would you have one?

— Evelyn M. W.

Answer . . . I needed just that much urging to go to the store, thence to my kitchen to make a new batch of mincemeat. This calls for suet and no meat. It is quite rich and a little bit different.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Manhattan Clam Chowder; Bran Muffins; Waldorf Salad; Hot Blueberry Cottage Pudding; Nutmeg Sauce; Tea.

CLEMENT'S 1965 MINCEMEAT
(Makes 4 shallow 8" 2-crust pies)

5 cups ground (or chopped) apples, washed, quartered, cored (not peeled); 1 lemon cut into eighths and seeded; 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 1-3 cups firmly packed brown sugar (about 6 or 7 oz.); ½ cup (well packed) mixed cut peel, (one 4-oz. package); 1 cup currants; 1 cup seeded Muscat raisins; ½ teaspoon cinnamon; ½ teaspoon nutmeg or mace; ½ teaspoon cloves; ½ teaspoon salt; one 15-oz. can pitted red (sour) cherries (45% sugar pack) (or cup chopped walnuts (optional but recommended).

I used 9 medium - large McIntosh apples.

Put apple quarters and cut lemon through coarse parts of food grinder together. (See note). (Incidentally — a 4-cup pyrex measuring cup when filled to the brim — shows the 4 cup making line — holds 5 cups or a Canadian quart. I used mine that way to measure the chopped apples. The lemon went in for good measure.) Turn ground mixture into a large kettle, add all remaining ingredients except cherries and nuts and boil gently ¼ hour covered, stirring frequently. Add cherries and nuts and boil gently 20 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Pour into sterilized pint jars and seal. NOTE: It is much better to make 4 shallow 8-inch mincemeat pies using 1 pint or 2 cups mince meat than to make 2 10-inch deep mince pies. The mincemeat needs a large proportion of pastry as a contrast to its richness. Bake 2 crust shallow 8-inch mincemeat pie at 425 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes, or until bubbling and golden. NOTE: If desired chop apples instead of grinding. Use ground mine to speed up the process.

ARENT CONTAMINATED

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Dr. G. R. Duff Wilson, Waterloo County medical officer, Thursday said none of the plastic "ice cubes" tested in the Kitchener-Waterloo area contained contaminated water. Dr. Wilson said the drink coolers, manufactured in Hong Kong, were safe to use, but urged householders to discard them if they developed a leak.

Mother's Helper

WITH CHRISTMAS PARTIES COMING UP, do plan ahead to help your babysitters. I have made up a dozen-leaf notebook containing: emergency phone numbers of the doctor, fire, police, neighbors, etc.; the children's films and dislikes in foods; allergies; bedtime routines; favorite games; and several pages of simple menus. I leave the menus for that particular night to the top each time. The notebook idea saves writing instructions each time, helps the sitter and (we hope!) avoids mistakes. Many Guests Reach for Pocket Books

TORONTO (CP)—The champagne-luncheon guests reached for their pocket books Thursday when Mrs. I. D. Fink of Minneapolis, Minn., appealed for contributions for the United Jewish Appeal.

Mrs. Fink has spent 20 years since emigrating from France to the United States in urging Jewish women's groups to contribute for displaced and resettled Jews.

"After the Second World War, during which she and her husband worked with the French Resistance, she set up 15 homes for orphaned Jewish children in Europe. Her husband was executed three weeks before the liberation of Paris.

She also took part in the illegal migration of displaced Jews to Palestine before the area became Israel, an independent state.

"When the concentration camps were opened, we were concerned in saving lives—just keeping them alive by supplying shelter, food and clothing," said Mrs. Fink.

"Now we are trying to rebuild people. They go to Israel but many need help during that first year. They need houses, education, training in adjusting to a new life."

Lack of Self-confidence Said Impeding Women

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Early marriages, girls scarcely more than children having children, and wives giving up their vocations to put their husbands through university were criticized Wednesday night by a controversial author Betty Friedan.

Mrs. Friedan, author of the bestseller, The Feminine Mystique, spoke to an audience of about 400 at the University of Western Ontario.

She attributed the early marriages and the need to have children to "the feminine mystique," or the traditional image of women as wives and mothers which was perpetuated by magazines and other mass media.

The girl who has no expectation of herself as an individual and who has little sense of her own identity is desperate to get her man, Mrs. Friedan said.

In some cases, she may be so desperate she may become pregnant to get a husband, the speaker said.

"Then, one wakes up at 31 or 35 or 41 or 45 and realizes she cannot live the rest of her life as a wife and a mother of children," she said.

'WHO AM I'

"She asks 'who am I' and there doesn't seem to be any answer," Mrs. Friedan said. "It is especially frightening when you ask the question that late. It has to be tranquilize herself with the various tranquilizers that society offers."

Mrs. Friedan said women are not really free members of the human family because they are afraid to use their rights for fear of losing their femininity.

The women who have made a choice and have combined career with marriage and rearing a family have to work out "different and painful" patterns" and remove the freaks in a man's world," the author said.

She referred to woman's search for self-expression and identity as the "unfinished revolution" which would not be finished as long as women are hampered by the feminine mystique.

The revolution can only be finished when women begin to take themselves seriously as human beings and to choose their own identities, Mrs. Friedan said.

IT'S IN THE MIND

"The enemy against which the revolution must be fought is primarily in the minds of women and those barriers also exist in the minds of men," Mrs. Friedan said. "Women have to be the movers."

She suggested the revolution could only take place in places like universities.

The crisis of identity, she said, was created by the evolution of a society which was leaving women behind.

She also suggested that, when a child is looked on not as an appendage or justification of his mother's life, the woman will be looked on as an individual and institutions such as day nurseries, maternity leaves, and courses based on different timing patterns for women can be created.

The thing that holds women back is their lack of self-confidence, Mrs. Friedan said.

"Women are the last ones who have been willing to be treated with less than full human dignity," Mrs. Friedan said. "When a young woman says, 'I will not let anyone treat me with less than human dignity,' then we can solve the problems and form new patterns."

Wedding Unites Two Fortunes

NEW YORK (AP) — Charlotis McDonnell Ford, eldest daughter of the auto manufacturer, married 36-year-old Stavros Spyros Niarchos, wealthy Greek shipping magnate, Thursday. She is 24.

It was the first marriage for Miss Ford. Niarchos has been married twice before.

The surprise wedding in Juarez, Mexico, was disclosed here in an announcement by Henry Ford II and his divorced wife, Mrs. Anne McDonnell Ford, the girl's mother.

Miss Ford, a Roman Catholic, was married in a civil ceremony.

The couple left immediately on a Bahamas honeymoon. The announcement said they plan to live in Europe. Niarchos has homes in Switzerland, France, England, Bermuda and Greece.

UNITED FORTUNES

The marriage united two huge fortunes. Niarchos' ship holdings have been estimated as worth $200,000,000.

Henry Ford I,148, head of the Ford Motor Co. was excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church last February when he married Mrs. Maria Christina Vettore Austin, after his divorce from his first wife.

A family spokesman in Detroit said neither Ford nor his former wife attended Charlotte's wedding.

Miss Ford, born April 3, 1941, is the oldest of the three children of Ford and his former wife. The others are Anne, 22, and a son, Edsel, who will be 17 this month.

Successful Living

Nobody Can Manage To Be Friend of All

DEAR DORIS: I would like to know the best way of getting along with people. On the whole I get along quite well but there are a few individuals who rub me the wrong way. — BROWNED OFF.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR BROWNED OFF: I'd like to know what special dash triggered that S.O.S.! And I'd suggest:

(1) Simmer down.

(2) Try with all that's in you to see things from where that other fellow sits.

(3) Tell yourself there's still room for both of you on this globe of ours.

(4) Remember you don't have to click with everybody. None of us do.

(5) In general — and I can only be general, without knowing more — be interested, friendly, give others the benefit of any doubt, and recognize it when your own uncertainty makes you petulant!

DEAR DORIS: I noticed the letter from a lady when you put on the track of a calla lily begonia. While I am aware it is not your purpose to run a plant exchange, I want to say I have been looking for the Cissus Discolor (related to the Cissus Antarctica vine) and none seem to be available locally. It is a native of Java.

I have about 150 indoor plants, as an amateur hobby, including a few I have raised from seed from Hawaii. It gives me a lot of pleasure, and I enjoy passing along cuttings to other growers.

If you would be so kind as to put an S.O.S. out for me, I would be happy to change something I have for this sought-after item. It is entirely possible that a nursery somewhere does have this item.

Let me congratulate you on your heart-warming column which I read with pleasure every day when the paper arrives. — AMATEUR PLANTER.

DEAR AMATEUR: I'd say 150 plants give you almost professional status! And I can't resist getting into the act, at least to the extent of publishing your letter. Here's hoping!

DEAR DORIS: Recently I have been dating a new girl in town who I am passionately in love with. However, lately she has been refusing my dates, saying she was grounded (for two months!)

Last night I saw her with another guy at a dance. She seemed to be enjoying herself immensely and ignored me completely. I can't bear to think of her going out with someone else, but what can I do? — C.B.

DEAR C.B.: Take the hint and begin fishing in another stream. She was letting you down gently. Your best antidote for grief is another girl. We've all been through it.

Confidential to TERRIFIED: I can't see how your father could place charges against people who are housing you and protecting you, with any chance of success. Any judge would want to know what you were being protected from, and his violent temper and bad treatment of you would be bound to come out. Consult your child care agency for guidance.

DEAR DORIS: My face is too chubby. Is there a mouth exercise or diet for slimming it? — CHUBBY FACE.

DEAR CHUBBY: We have some Exercises for Double Chin, and a Make-Up Magic sheet. I'm sending you both, the idea being that you may be able to redistribute the excess fat and also to use make-up in such a way as to reduce the chubby look. Do you also need a reducing routine? (These leaflets are available a dime apiece for ten cents each, plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

(Ask Doris for the information you need. If she doesn't know she'll find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Give Lesson On Writing To Teachers

OTTAWA (CP)—A husband-wife team gave a lesson to the three Rs Thursday, with emphasis on the writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richardson, Ottawa teachers, presented an eight-page brief on penmanship in a hearing of the committee on aims and objectives of education in the schools of Ontario.

Their presentation included a blackboard demonstration by Mrs. Richardson, a reading of their brief—it was completely handwritten — and replies to questions by committee members.

Mrs. Richardson taught penmanship herself for many years. A public school trustee here, she recently threatened to resign if the time spent on writing instruction in city schools was not increased.

Other subjects had been added to curricula and handwriting was sacrificed. Many felt the typewriter did away with the need for handwriting but statistics shows this is not so, the brief said.

It took an adult about 100 hours under proper instruction to learn to write, plus an equal amount of time in practice.

WON THROUGH TO LIFE

The smallest baby ever to live was Marion Chapman, born in England in 1938 weighing 10 ounces, who reached normal size in adulthood.

UCW Meetings

BRIDGE ST. U.C.W.

A lighted Christmas tree, candles and soft music played by Mrs. K. Bird provided the background for the December meeting of the United Church Women of Bridge Street Church.

Mrs. J. B. Leslie, president, opened the meeting with the reading of a Christmas poem and prayer.

A program of favorite Christmas readings had been arranged by Miss M. Young and Mrs. R. G. Walsh. This was opened by a dialogue between Mrs. R. Joffrey and small daughter Allison on what Christmas really means and how we can give gifts to Jesus to celebrate His birthday.

They were joined by Miss J. B. Tuite, Mrs. F. Burrows, Miss R. Sulman and Mrs. R. Snowden, who with Miss Young and Mrs. Walsh read favorite bits from Charles Dickens and Peter Marshall.

Mrs. D. Kitcher compered Christmas customs in England and Canada. The more temperate climate of England usually means a green Christmas and more carol singing by groups, old and young. Santa Claus is replaced by Father Christmas. Special church services, crowds travelling home for Christmas, the Queen's speech, decorated trees and homes are present everywhere people celebrate Jesus' birth.

READS GOSPEL STORY

Mrs. C. B. Meyers read the Nativity Story from the Gospels of Matthew and Luke.

Mrs. Kitcher explained that the wise men brought gifts to the baby Jesus suggested five gifts which we might bring: Using the letters of the name Jesus, these gifts might be joy in His birth, recommendation of others; equanimity of temperament, not condoning wrong, but able to reason, sympathy shown in active ways to those needing help; unity of church as the ideal; selflessness as we do for dears Christ to Christians and His followers in others.

The devotional service was closed by prayer and the singing of a carol.

TRINITY U.C.W.

NAPANEE — Mrs. Edward Powell was installed Tuesday afternoon as the president of Trinity U.C.W. for 1966. Mrs. Percy Asselstine is to be both recording and corresponding secretary, and Miss Vivian McLaughlin, to continue as treasurer, will have the assistance of Miss Eleanor Aylsworth. Mrs. George Ballantyne is to be press reporter.

Vice-presidents and leaders for the units have not yet been chosen. The officers were installed by the minister, the Rev. Irvine Johnston, near the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Kenneth Lipsey, president for the past two years, was in the chair when the meeting opened in the Sunday school room at 2.30 with the members reciting the UCW purpose in unison.

The devotional period was in charge of unit number four, of which Mrs. Powell was the leader. Christmas was the theme for the period, with the members joining in the well-loved carols. Miss McLaughlin read the Christmas story as told by St. Luke. Several slides appropriate to the season were shown, with Mrs. Powell giving the comment. Miss Eleanor Clare operated the projector. One of these was a picture of Korean brothers attending McGill University taken in Mrs. Powell's home at Christmas while she was living in Montreal.

The business meeting was a long one, with annual reports given by all officers, unit leaders, and committee conveners. The secretary, Mrs. Jesse MacLean read the minutes, and the treasurer, Miss McLaughlin, gave a pleasing report, showing that the organization is in a healthy financial condition. She also read a letter from Michael, the Greek boy whom the organization is supporting.

A substantial amount left over when the church was carpeted, was turned over to the church board.

Mrs. Lipsey extended her gratitude to the ladies for the co-operation and kindness shown her during her term of office, and Mrs. J. D. Mayhew, voiced appreciation of the time and ability which Mrs. Lipsey had given so freely during that time.

MAY SHUFFLE CABINET

LONDON (CP)—Reports that Prime Minister Wilson will carry out a moderate reshuffle of his cabinet have gained strength with the announcement that for health reasons, Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice will not seek re-election to Parliament at the next general election.

BETHEL - ZION U. C. W.

BETHEL ZION — The Bethel-Zion United Church Women held their December supper meeting at the church hall, with a good attendance.

The junior choir opened the evening's activities with several hymns. Mrs. Ken Denyes and Mrs. Earl Denyes, of Belleville, show of pictures and told about their recent trip to the Holy Land. Mrs. Ralph Sills thanked the ladies and presented them with gifts.

On behalf of the U.C.W. the president, Mrs. Ross Rowe, gave each member of the choir an initialled hymnary. The choir leader Bob Rowland was presented with a Bible by Mrs. A. Lott on behalf of the church board.

Mrs. Rowe conducted a few items of business and the meeting closed, after a most enjoyable evening.

Holloway St. U.C.W. Elects New Officers

Members of Holloway St. U.C.W. were welcomed in the Church parlors on Tuesday evening amid the warm glow of Christmas spirit Christ as the light of the world. The story of the jolly old gift bringer, Santa Claus, brought a special joy and good will, does kind deeds of thoughtfulness and love. The act of love by no one else so well, will probably be around as long as love, beauty, and goodness abound. The story was told of Martin Luther, who on returning home on Christmas Eve, decided to forset behold the splendor of the stars twinkling through the trees. He then placed small potted lighted candles on its branches so that others would see something of the beauty. Whether that was the first Christmas tree is not known, but Germans immigrants brought this custom to America where their neighbors eagerly adopted it.

The Druids harvested the mistletoe with great ritual and fanfare for its healing power. Belief in its medicinal value has long since vanished but the festival custom of kissing under the mistletoe is of English origin. Even if two men duelled happened under mistletoe they would put down their swords and embrace. Hearts of all men should be loosed by love. Mistletoe is the testimony of the Prince of Peace at this Holy season. Love is not expressed enough in many homes.

Branches of holly trees were symbols of the crown of thorns pressed on the Saviour's head on the day of His crucifixion and the bright red berries are the symbols of His blood.

Appropriate music was provided by Mrs. Bill Campbell and a delightful quintet of girls from the junior choir, accompanied by Mrs. L. Bowes at the piano.

NEW OFFICERS

The president Mrs. R. Taylor conducted the business and Mrs. W. Bateman read the new slate of officers. The Rev. O. Wager installed the following:

Past president, Mrs R. Taylor; president, Mrs. F. Wilson; vice-presidents, Mrs. D. Shantz and Mrs. K. Parks; recording secretary, Mrs. D. Kellar; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Bush; treasurer, Mrs. C. Wannamaker.

Safety Hints For Putting Up the Tree

OTTAWA (CP)—Never reach from a ladder. Get someone taller or with longer arms to put the star on the tree top. That's the advice of the National Safety League of Canada which lists a variety of tips in a pre-Christmas bulletin designed to keep the holiday season free of tragic accidents.

The league lists these tips to prevent falls:

Falls account for 45 per cent of home accidents and fires are close behind, reports the league.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Sunday School auditorium of the Wesleyan Methodist Church was decorated with a Nativity scene and candles for the Christmas meeting of the Missionary Society.

A Christmas carol sing-song was led by Mrs. Joyce LeRoy assisted by Mrs. Violet Mitts at the piano.

The president, Mrs. Lyla Vollrath conducted the business of the Society at which time toys were collected for the nursery, church and gifts for the ladies in the Mental Institute at Cobourg. The White Gift offering for a residence at the seminary in Yeotmal, India was received amounting to $22. An opportunity was given the members to share in a Christmas gift for Miss Joan Anglin, formerly of Belleville who is leaving the deaf in Peurto Rico and Miss Bertha Major a nursing instructress in Africa.

Mrs. Versa Hall, Mrs. Violet Mitts and Mrs. Lyla Vollrath gave a presentation on the theme "Bringing Christmas Gifts to the Kingly." The act of worship witnessing and wealth were all gifts to be brought as a response and not a routine, in the Christian's life.

HOLY TRINITY W.G.

The December meeting of Holy Trinity Women was held recently at the home of Mrs. Fitzgerald in Shannonville which was attractively decorated with Christmas decor for the occasion.

There was an excellent attendance and the meeting was opened in the usual manner by Rev. Brown. President Mrs. Alvin McKenzie presided and read a thank-you note from Mr. John Kent.

During the business portion of the meeting it was decided that hymn books would be purchased for the choir with Mrs. Brown to be responsible in purchasing same. It was also announced at this time that a candlelight service is to be held December 26. A memorial fund of Holy Trinity Church has been started in memory of the late Rev. E. P. Smith. The annual meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Burt Henderson on January 6th.

A number of games were played throughout the evening and winners of these were: Mrs. Gordon Seger, Mrs. Embury and Mrs. Brown. This was followed by the singing of Christmas carols.

A pleasant social period concluded the program at which time there was an exchange of gifts and lunch was served.

Christmas Concerts

GRACE CHAPEL S.S.

The annual Christmas concert of Grace Chapel Sunday School, Stirling was held last Friday evening with a large number in attendance.

The program chaired by Mr. Leon Wilson commenced with a recitation and song by the Primary class. Heather and Keith Aide sang "Gospel Bells" followed by Bible verses by Keith. A vocal solo was rendered by Kevin Goodkey and Brenda and Sandra Vardy contributed a duet. Another Christmas carol was sung by Billie Shoalts, Martin Aide and Roger Wannamaker. The Aide family favored with a selection.

The junior class with children from 6 to 7 presented a short play "What the Bible Says" and continuing Linda and Carol Stapley sang a number. The intermediate class of girls recited a number of Bible verses followed by a solo by Ruth Wannamaker. Billie Scouten gave a reading and Bonnie and Lee Verne Wannamaker sang a duet. The senior division plays and recitations selection of Mona Aide and Ena Tyrer sang a duet. The senior girls recited Bible verses which was followed by a duet by Mona Aide and Sheila Richardson. A piano solo was rendered by Fred Jackson-land and Graham Brookes and Paul Scott contributed a trumpet duet.

The concluding item on the program was the portrayal of Bible Society scene presented by the senior boys' class and the intermediate girls' class.

During the program there was a presentation of lamps to the newly married couple Mr. and Mrs. Oreo Sharpe and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Dracup.

Gifts were distributed to the children and all enjoyed lunch and a time of fellowship.

NEIGHBOR'S AID

2ND THURLOW — The Neighbors' Aid held its Christmas concert and potluck supper in the evening. About 45 members with husbands and families gathered to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

The hall was prettily decorated by Mrs. Ralph Greatrix and the delightful tree in the corner was a tinsel Christmas tree encircled with gifts.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell was chairman for the program which was prepared by Mrs. Grant Sinclair with a duet by Gerald Stratton. It opened with the singing of Christmas carols with Mrs. Ken Mitchell at the piano. A recitation was given by Darlene Chumbley and a Christmas song was accompanied by Gail Dent, Linda Ray and Jeanne Lloyd. Cameron Pettit gave Stratton with a duet and Mrs. Jr. Chumbley, Mrs. J. Dowdle who also prepared boxes for the shut-ins.

Mrs. Chumbley expressed thanks to the committee responsible for the happy occasion. after which euchre was enjoyed and a social time was spent.

FREE METHODIST CHURCH

FRANKFORD — On Monday evening, the Free Methodist Church Sunday School held its annual Christmas program. The master of ceremonies was superintendent Merle Moore, who welcomed everyone.

Mona Twiddy and Sharlene Haggarty gave a welcoming recitation and Mr. Moore read a poetic invocation.

Linda McCormack gave a recitation and the first three classes sang a carol. A Christmas prayer exercise was given by Lynn Thompson, Darrell McComber and Allan Twiddy. Classes 3 and 4 recited the Christmas Story. An exercise was presented by classes 5 and 6 and a story for classes 4, 5 and 6. Walter Twiddy gave a recitation and Miss Kathleen Gunter sang a solo. Following an exhortation poem by Mrs. Richard Twiddy, Mrs. Merle Moore's class recited a dismissal poem.

Throughout the evening, the audience joined in singing carols. A film was shown and a presentation was made to Mr. Gerald Haggarty and to Rev. J.R. Walsh and Mrs. Walsh, by superintendent M. Moore.

Candy bags were distributed to the children as the close the evening's entertainment.

Ann Landers

Rash Episode Can Cause Much Heartache

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a brilliant student at the state university. Two weeks before we were married Tim's friends gave him a stag party at which he got very drunk. The boys decided to drive him to a strange part of town, take off his trousers and leave him stranded.

ANN LANDERS

Tim doesn't recall what happened, but he knows he wandered into a back yard. About 2.30 a.m. some people called the police and had him arrested. Tim spent the night in jail. Thank heavens the police understood it was a prank. They released him the next morning and the trespassing charges were dropped.

What happened to Tim proves that one evening of foolishness can cause months of heartache. My husband has been a nervous wreck since. He is afraid the incident will ruin his career. I've talked until I'm blue in the face but he still worries. Can you say something to put his mind at ease? — Mrs. R.C.

DEAR MRS.: If the charges were dropped there is no record.

If Tim wants to drain his energies worrying about something that doesn't exist, he's not brilliant. He's stupid.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of four children — two girls and two boys. They range from 6 to 12 years of age. All winter long, one or two of my four children are out of school with a bad cold or worse.

I went to school yesterday to see the oldest boy in a play. Now I know why my kids are always sick. Five kids in that classroom had been in bed with the flu. I was moved to see so many red noses, so much coughing, wheezing, sneezing and blowing. One boy looked like he had pink eye.

Some mothers push their half-sick children out the door because they don't want to be bothered with them. I feel this is unfair to the other youngsters and I want to know what can be done about it. — FURIOUS.

DEAR FURIOUS: You are right. Too many irresponsible mothers shove their sick kids out of the house when they should be kept at home.

It's up to the teacher to spot these youngsters and send them to the school nurse. The nurse should then decide whether the child should stay in school or be shipped home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine gave her boss four weeks' notice. There was no trouble, Suzy just got tired of the job and decided to do something more interesting. Her boss offered her a sizeable salary increase and tried hard to get her to stay but she told him her mind was made up.

Suzy has one more week to go and is eager to get out. Yesterday her boss asked her to please stay on an additional two weeks. Do you think this is fair? Suzy is afraid that if she refuses the boss will not give her a good recommendation. We would like your opinion. — WINNIPEG.

DEAR WINNIE: Although you don't say so, your letter makes it clear that Suzy does not have another job. If this is indeed the case I feel it would be extremely generous of her to work the additional two weeks and help the boss out.

She should make it clear, however, that she cannot stay beyond that time under any circumstances. There is much to be said for terminating a short relationship on a friendly note. Suzy will never regret it.

Susanna's Family Fare

TWO BETTER THAN ONE

Dear Susanna: If the wind plays tricks with a coat or dress that you're trying to air in the air, use two coat hangers instead of one.

Hook them on the line in opposite directions and the wind won't be able to blow the garment off.

Do you desperately need that unused postage stamp you stuck in her Christmas letter, but don't bodge without tearing?

Lay a thin piece of paper over the stamp and dab a hot iron over it. There's your stamp. — Geraldine Delatyre

PRESIDENTIAL FLOWERS

Dear Susanna: We live in the country and whenever I visit my sister in the city, she likes to give us someone in the office, I keep them fresh and perky during the trip by encasing them in their own little greenhouse: Wrap the stems in a wet, dampened paper towelling, cover her that with foil, and slip the entire bouquet into one of those white plastic garbage bags (not the big green ones.) This is then fastened firmly and the flowers are protected and easy to carry as well.

Thank you again for all your help Susanna, I'll keep sending you in the paper. — Mrs. Jean S. Cherry

URGES PEDESTRIAN BAN

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury's recommendation Thursday that Highway 27 be free of pedestrians was later termed a major step in the right direction by the highways department's safety director. "We've been wanting legislation to control pedestrians on highways for a long time," said Director Thomas Mahony. "This is the first time we have had a recommendation of this sort."

521 DUNDAS STREET WEST

AFRICAN LEADER KEPT UNDER RESTRICTION — Chief Albert Luthuli (right) accompanied by Oliver Tambo is cheered through the streets of Johannesburg just before a government order restricted him to a reserve. Luthuli, the only South African to win the Nobel Peace Prize, cannot receive visitors, conduct interviews or even be mentioned by the South African press. Tambo, also an official of the outlawed African National Congress, is in exile in Dar es Salaam. (CP Photo)

Cannot See Proscribed Zulu Chief But Reporter Talks to Him by Phone

While in South Africa, Canadian Press reporter Joseph MacSween encountered difficulty in trying to arrange to see Nobel Prize winner A. Luthuli, president of the outlawed African National Congress. But he was able to speak to Luthuli by telephone and the interview is related in this story.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

DURBAN (CP) — The big, hearty African voice came vibrating over the telephone.

"Give them my greetings!" boomed Chief Albert Luthuli. "Tell them I'm well, physically and spiritually."

Luthuli, the 61-year-old president of the outlawed African National Congress, sounded like the robust young grandfather he is, not like a man long under restriction, which he also is.

The only South African ever to win the Nobel Peace Prize, Luthuli was reached at the Groutville reserve where he is confined under the latest of a series of banning orders that began in 1953.

This one, restricting him to Groutville for five years, was imposed in 1964 after he had completed a similar five-year stretch imposed under South Africa's notorious Suppression of Communism Act.

The ban not only keeps Luthuli out of circulation but newspapers are forbidden to publish anything from him — or hundreds like him. Publication of this story, for instance, would be an offence in South Africa. Editors must be alert to keep forbidden names out of their papers. One editor said there were 500 such names listed, compared with 433 a year earlier.

WOULDN'T HELP

A government information officer at Pretoria, asked about the possibility of seeing Luthuli, said he was a "known Communist and an enemy of the white people of South Africa." The officer would not cooperate in arranging an interview.

The "native commissioner" of the Groutville area, asked the same question, said he would have to apply to Pretoria for a permit for entering the reserve. This would mean a delay. There was no flat refusal. But there was no problem getting through a telephone call.

"I don't know whether a banned man is supposed to give interviews," was Luthuli's first comment. "I doubt it very much. The ban is very strict."

Friends had applied to the police to visit him and "almost invariably they were turned down." But Luthuli said he bears no ill will towards Prime Minister Verwoerd's nationalist government — "It's the duty of every government to make sure of its security."

"Sometimes they hit below the belt, though," Luthuli added with another big laugh.

An advocate of passive resistance to segregation laws, Luthuli is frequently compared with the late Mohandas Gandhi of India, who in 1900 gave up his South African law practice to fight racial discrimination here.

Some of Luthuli's most dramatic moments came following the Sharperville shootings of March 21, 1960, when 69 persons were killed by police during an African demonstration against hated "pass" laws.

BURNS PASS BOOK

Five days later, while in Johannesburg to give evidence at a big treason trial, he publicly burned his pass book—an elaborate identification document—and called for a national day of mourning for those killed by police. He was detained under a newly declared state of emergency and assaulted by a policeman while being charged.

Awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1960, Luthuli was allowed to travel to Oslo to receive the honor in December, 1961, although the Nationalist newspaper Die Transvaler called the selection an "inexplicable, pathological phenomenon."

Now Luthuli runs a store during working hours. He was interviewed in the evening with the shouts of children sounding in the background. Evidently missing by charges of Communist influence in the ANC, he declared:

"The greatest possibilities for Africa rest with the West. They are the ones who brought civilization to Africa. Historically, civilization moved from East, to West, and then to Africa. We do not forget that.

"I still think that in the order of the Almighty, South Africa is a multi-racial state by its very nature. The white man came to this country with a mission and I don't think he has carried it out successfully."

WENT TO U.S.

Luthuli, former chairman of the Congregationalist Ehrenches of the American Board in South Africa, travelled to the U.S. to attend a North American Missionary Conference in 1948.

He became leader of the ANC in 1951 after a quiet life as teacher and tribal chieftain.

"I don't believe in spoon feeding, but I do believe in all men being equal opportunity," he said.

"Equal opportunity is the thing, whether you are black, white, yellow, blue or green."

Luthuli is invariably called "The Chief" although the title was taken away by Pretoria. Admirers say he is feared by the government because of his impressive bearing and eloquence which sway whites and Africans alike.

In 1962, Luthuli was summoned to Pretoria and ordered to resign either from the ANC or from his chieftaincy. Refusing to do either, he replied:

"Who will deny that 30 years of my life have been spent knocking in vain, patiently, moderately and modestly at a closed and barred door? . . .

"The past 30 years have seen the greatest number of laws restricting our rights and progress until today we have reached a stage where we have almost no rights at all.

"What the future has in store for me I do not know. It might be ridicule, imprisonment, concentration camp, flogging, banishment and even death. I only pray to the Almighty to strengthen my resolve."

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

Thanks for the Christmas cards. Keep them coming. Christmas is just around the corner.

Via the grapevine has come the hope of every Belleville teen. Very soon, you will have a coffee house which you can truly call your own. Don't tell a soul I told you. It's very hush, hush, o.k.?

The mad panic to purchase presents is now underway and boy, it is tough. I am on the verge of having a nervous put-together. The teen fashions are very appealing for this season. As I stated in an earlier edition, I think that today's teen has better taste than before. Radical styles never last, and besides, you would look pretty silly in that striped T-SHIRT. Pester also recommends that MOD-MUSIC-MAKERS wear argyle socks. However, Jim Wright, our fashion expert says, very emphatically that argyle socks are out !

I'm amazed that Belleville has such a poor selection of 45's for the teens to purchase. I have received several calls about this situation and believe me, I'm on your side.

On the music scene this week there were many good songs released. This year there are few new Christmas songs being released. Only one great song so far, and that is by the Supremes. Their Children's Christmas Song." The favorites are still very much in demand. Brenda Lee "Rockin Around the Christmas Tree," for one, Bobby Helms "Jingle Bell Rock" for another.

The new album by the Beatles is the greatest yet. Every song grows on you. When I first heard the album only a few songs appealed to me. After playing it over and over, (that's by the Dave Clark Five) I was very impressed with every cut from the album.

"December Child" by the Rolling Stones is greatly overrated ! It's too bluesy and far out.

J. B. and the Playboys send season's greetings and wish that they could make it up for a GIG. I will be doing a show with the Playboys in Montreal. It will include other popular Canadian groups for a gala show.

Dee and the Yeomen have two fantastic new songs ready for recording at Quality January 5th, listen for them, first on CJBQ RADIO.

THE "SPY IN THE SKY PREVIEW PICKS," this week are by no means the only new songs heading for fame and fortune. Leslie Gore, has a Hot new sound with "I Won't Love You Anymore." "007" is at it again, and this time from the latest Bond adventure, comes "Thunderball," by Tom Jones. Bobby Vinton is making the Hit trail look like the "401" with another Biggy, "Satin Pillow." And last but not least a Bold Breakthrough by the new Mod Group "The Young Rascals" "I Ain't Gonna Eat Out My Heart Anymore."

Help ! ! ! Is finally coming to Belleville, and Boy do we need it. The movie that is, featuring the Fab Four John, Paul, George, and Ringo in color this time. I've seen the show, it's like something else. You'll cry laughing, that is if you have an off beat sense of humor, which the Beatles have.

Vince and the Townsmen tell me that they are busy, busy, busy. Kingston, Brockville, Napanee and Belleville are ports of call for the (Fantamigoodest) ? ? ? Sounding group. K. R., their manager tells me that they have added a girl singer. Should be groovey.

The HIGHSCHOOL HITFINDERS DID A GREAT JOB THIS WEEK ON "AT THE TOP." Thanks a Billion. Keep it up. Christmas sing-asong is in full swing again, and it's tough deciding which ones are winners.

Dave's Favorite three in file "A" are :

We Can Work It Out ..... The Beatles
She's Just My Style .... Gary Lewis and the Playboys
Roses and Rainbows ..... Danny Hutton

I noticed Blunder Dumley has a For Sale on his House this week, I told you so ! ! !

The greatest and cheapest Christmas gift this year is "Super Ball" which is a gas, and will entertain your crowd for at least five minutes. And if you feel like Rock Richly, buy your girlfriend and "Furry Worry? ? ? "

Deplores Lack Of Canadian Initiative

By CAROLE DIXON (QSS)

There is a topic that seems to touch the soft spot in the heart of every Canadian. That is the rumor that our thinking and actions are largely affected by a certain next-door neighbour, the United States. It never seems to fail that any new fad must first pass the test of American approval before we Canadians decide to plunge in for the fashion.

We are almost like small children, afraid to tread any ground unless it has been travelled first by adults. In fact, we are being led by the guiding hand of the Americans, not always told outright what fashions to follow, but just led. Never have Canadians proposed a new style that has become "in" in Canada until a successful trial has been carried out in the United States.

Why don't we muster enough courage to start a new style of tagging along? Why can't we stand on our own two feet and make off the beaten track and down to follow the Americans' decision on what is "the fad?" Have we the talent and creative art If all we can do is apeThere has been quite a stir of excitement in the minds of groups called the Mods and the Rockers. They have picked up styles that are totally opposites and this is where trickion arises. England's teenagers have a chance to choose between the two or they can remain neutral, but in any case, the style is set within their respective groups, and the United States can decide for themselves which fashion they want to follow and why must Canadians mimic Americans?

I believe Canadians are overly conservative, not wishing to step out of line of a mooraying style. Even if they do, it seems not one person but a group will engage in new American styles. Have we become so dependent on United States deciding our fashion fads that we have lost imagination and sense of free will? Maybe not, but there does seem to be little much progress in a direction away from the over-bearing Americans.

MSS Classes Combine for Assembly

Wednesday morning, December 15, 1965, the world of Moira Secondary was startled by two magnificent achievements: two more American astronauts shot into space and the combined forces of TIIA, TI2B, and TI3C, presented a unique assembly program.

The main items of the program included a "Monster Go", a skilful gymnastic display on the parallel bars, and an outstanding performance of the "Swan Lake" ballet. One of the members of the troupe performed so exuberantly that she (he?) rolled off the stage into the audience, to the great delight of one of the front row patrons.

The students who participated have certainly offered a still challenge to other classes, and did a good job.

Writer Recommends More Relaxed Page

By DWAYNE ELLIS (Q.S.S.)

In this, the fifth issue of the Youth Page, I should like to quote from a notation found in the first issue. "This is the first edition of The Intelligencer's weekly Youth Page written by for and about Belleville's youth. The purpose of my question is to examine the past of youth. The purpose of my contributors to this page, are satisfying the purpose of this page as set down in the above quotation.

I consider the first proviso that the page be written by the youth of Belleville. We most certainly are fulfilling this condition as is shown by such names as Terry Stoliker (QSS), Wayne Lowery (NCC) and Joanne Gasnaforth (BCI); and we might even go so far as to include John Ferguson and Dave Charles in our classification of youth. Thus there can be no argument presented at this point.

I will now turn my attention to the statement that this page is for Belleville's youth. Of course, anything written by youth could be termed for youth it seems; but I am wondering if this page has not become just a little bit too much of a show place where the bright, aspiring student, can flash his or her name in print, we're not as dumb as you think" type of comment in front of our parents' eyes. I repeat that we have impressed every one of with our budding wisdom we have developed the balance to spread over the pages we have to face. That is, we should be concerned with more facets of youth than our pages have shown already.

Certainly the newborn wisdom we have should be recognised; out, as I say, we also would not send a baby out to play football or a first year piano student out to present a performance of Tchaikovsky's B Flat Minor Piano Concerto, you should not expose your new wisdom to too many dangers as yet. Experiment with it, use it; but make sure it can be built safely into yourself if it finds itself battered by the winds of life. Instead present in your articles the quality of school life in a new generation as seen from parents can see you communicate with your contemporaries if they can see us communicating, maybe there will develop, more ties between and within generations. My objective is to write a more relaxed page to each other and not to worry about impressing our elders.

If we accomplish that which I have stated above, we shall naturally be writing about Belleville's youth and the page will definitely fulfill its purpose to be a page "by, for and about Belleville's youth."

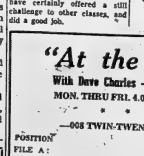
The Decline Of Courtship

By ALISON LEPORE (SCI)

The romantic days of courtship exist now only in the past.

How could a drive-in movie ever be compared to the night spent sitting on a loveseat with your sweetheart? The parlour was always cozy and well lighted, not at all like a dark draughty car. And, if there was a lull in the conversation, the young girl's parents (sitting between their daughter and her suitor) always had to fill in the gaps with chatter.

I suppose today's hootenanny could vaguely be paralleled with a Sunday band concert in the park. But of course, at a hootenany there aren't any park benches strategically placed behind the leafy foliage of bushes.



In Grandpa's day, dancing was also very much a part of courtship. Modern boys don't realize how lucky they are not having to overcome such obstacles as hoop skirts and parasols that a boy had to fight through in a crowded ballroom was only one of the many hazards.

Naturally, the youthful Miss received tokens of her lover's devotion, sweets for the sweet and flowers (freshly cut from her mother's window box five minutes earlier.)

Ah, yes, how times have changed. The canoe on the moonlit lake has been replaced by the speedboat. But who knows, given the chance, such as a faulty outboard motor, the old courtship might once again put the dile along and overtake the speedboat.

DON'T FORGET ABOUT "KARDS FOR KIDS"

FOR MEN ONLY

By PETER JONES (N.C.C.)

Since the early part of this century, the women of the world have been clamoring for equality. In the early 1910's, Suffragettes roamed the streets of England making a nuisance of themselves, and protesting their intelligence as they threw themselves into the paths of racing horses.

Since the early part of this century, the men of the world have slowly been conceding their rights. First they allowed women out of the house, to form clubs and societies. Then men allowed women into the working field. But wait, the worst is still to come. Then, horror upon horrors, men gave women the franchise. The effects of this catastrophic event are still reverberating throughout the world. The men quickly took advantage of the temporary insanity of men, and formed political clubs and societies.

Yes, the women have been granted equality; they have been emancipated. They can take over a man's job; they can vote; they can (Gulp) hold political office; they can expect to be offered a seat on a crowded bus. But wait, bold are men offered seats on crowded buses? No! Men are expected to meekly surrender their seats to lowly women commuters! Women are not equal to men; they have become superior! Men, beware! We are being led down the garden path!

We, all the audacity in the world, women have been relying on the myth of the "softer sex" to claim, not only their equality, but their superiority, always in subtle unobtrusive ways. In other words, women are relying on inferiority to achieve equality, and superiority. (!!!!?)

Within a short time, the hoodwinked males of this bemisplaced helplessness, the election of the first Prime Minister, and the inauguration of the first Madame President! Within a short time the Strategic Air Command will receive orders to supply white lace curtains for their B-70 bombers, white gloves for their newly painted robin-shell blue with a pink wings.

It is time for all men to realise their predicament, and to arm themselves for the ensuing showdown.

Men, everywhere, watch out!

QSS Staff Conducts Rollicking Assembly

By GAIL NICHOLS (Q.S.S.)

Friday morning's assembly in the hallowed gymnasium of QSS was an unusual and howling success. As presented by the supposedly vunerable and uncompromising teaching staff.

The first act, depicting a shotgun wedding in the wilds of the Moira River Valley, featured Mr. Ricky Loofah as the blushing bride and Mr. Folwell as the rather reluctant groom. Adorned in an antique crinolin and veil with "her" trousers rolled up underneath, the bride was thrown and hauled up the precipitous front of the stage by her father where a rather unorthodox wedding took place. The panicky groom, after being chased the length of the auditorium by his bride, finally retaliated by landing "her" with a spectacular football tackle on stage.

The second act witnessed a scene at "The Perly Gates". Mr. Bell was told, bold and stern not to allowed sests on crowded buses? No! Men are expected to meekly surrender their seats to lowly women commuters! Women are not equal to men; they have become superior! Men, beware! We are being led down the garden path!

THE NIGHT

By PAUL HUNTER (M5S)

A mantle softly closing down
To blot the light of day,
Descends and wraps the earth
of brown
In darkening hues of gray;
As softly now the bird called night
Swoops down to claim its prize
The earth, which now in slumber light
Is content to close its eyes.
The chirping, humming drone of dark &
Fades out till daybreak finds
Its strength, to struggle with night's mark,
Left when darkness pulled its blinds.
The spirit of the night is gone,
But darkness in the world lives on.

Brockville School Board Wants One Body to Study Salaries of All Teachers

OTTAWA (CP)—The Brockville public school board wants one provincial body to negotiate the salaries of all teachers with the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

The board outlined its case in a brief to the committee on aims and objectives of education in the schools of Ontario which began a two-day hearing here Thursday.

Mrs. G. Gore, a school trustee, presented the brief.

It said present salary negotiations by each local school board with the federation are a waste of time "as no small board can do much to check the powerful teachers' federation which continues to ask for more."

The situation was complicated by "wealthy boards in large metropolitan areas, who in their efforts to assure that they hire the cream of the teaching crop are every year to make sure their's is always the most remunerative salary schedule."

TAG ALONG

Boards in Brockville and other small centres "shrug their shoulders and tag along behind, trying desperately to hold the inflationary spiral and always ending up with a salary schedule lower than the metropolitan area boards."

The practice discourages teachers with high-salary possibilities from heading for the outlying areas, the brief said.

"This inequality should be eliminated by having one provincially - representative group negotiate all salaries with the teachers' federation."

The Brockville brief also called for greater government aid for vocational, trade, art, music and library facilities and for special classes for gifted and slow learners.

Department of education regulations setting out the maximum number of pupils per classroom should be lowered. Classes often approached 40 pupils but in Europe many classes are half this size.

SUGGEST EMPHASIS

There should be increased emphasis placed on improving the child's ability to communicate orally and in writing. To develop the child's ability to evolve theories—not just recite facts by rote—there should be a stress on making him think for himself.

Other points included improving the physical condition of students — "a daily physical training program is recommended and an atmosphere created which makes the period challenging, not a drudgery."

FIL-LI. G. B. Landis of Ottawa presented a private citizen's brief outlining a proposed curriculum.

"Students should be continuously confronted by stimulating challenges," he said. His plan called for greatly accelerated reading by all students, abolition of the promotion system and grades established on the result of an entire year's work.

Ministers Resign

ter Sauve is given a more senior portfolio is also a centre of interest in the light of allegations of irregularities during the campaign in his riding of Jean-de-la-Madeleine. Mr. Sauve has issued a 32-page document denying any wrongdoing. Mr. Pearn is said to head the document on his flight back to Ottawa.

ARE POSSIBLES

Among others mentioned as possibilities for cabinet positions are Jean Marchand, former union leader now representing Quebec East, and Robert Winters, former works minister in the St. Laurent government.

The November election left the Liberal government with 131 seats, two short of a numerical majority in the 265-seat House. Other parties' standings: Progressive Conservatives 97, New Democrats 21, Creditistes nine, Social Credit five and Independents two.

Both ministers in their resignation letters said they will continue to sit in the Commons. Mr. Lamontagne for Outremont-St. Jean riding and Mr. Favreau-Blay for Matapedia-Matane.

The disclosure about their furniture purchases, which came about the same time as a Quebec commission was investigating fraudulent bankruptcies in the province, triggered a major controversy in the Commons.

Mr. Lamontagne said in the Commons earlier this year that he began buying $6,056.28 worth of furniture from Adolph and the late Max Sefkind of Montreal in late 1961. More than two years later he received a bill and, he said, paid $1,200 and offered to pay off the balance at $200 a month.

BOUGHT FURNITURE

Mr. Tremblay said he bought $4,000 worth of furniture from a company in which Max Sefkind had an interest, after the 1963 election. He said he paid it $2,341 cheque on Feb. 25, with a final payment of $241 on March 2, 1964.

With both, the payments were made after the bankruptcies. Both said they never did any favors for the Sefkinds.

Martin

in connection with his possible visit to Moscow, nor did he have a specific date in mind. But he said Gromyko recently "renewed" an invitation and he may make the trip "for my own education."

Martin said that, despite the new volleys of criticism fired by Moscow against the United States and West Germany, there is "real improvement" in Western relations with the Soviet Union and NATO ministers agree the dialogue should be continued. The NATO ministers said is their communique that they will seek an improvement with Russia and Communist countries in Eastern Europe. They noted that their efforts "had met with some degree of success"—mainly in bilateral relations.

RESPOND TO PLEA

Many of the members responded to Britain's plea for greater support of her economic sanctions against Rhodesia. Martin said he would have a Canadian announcement in London today but said this would have nothing to do with any proposals in use force.

Canada agreed with Britain, he said, that force would be dangerous. He would not agree to the use of Canadian security forces on the Kariba dam straddling the Rhodesian-Zambian border if this was requested.

Chittagong and the seaside resort of Cox's Bazar, 60 miles south.

Giant tidal waves thundered over a chain of coastal islands and raged for miles inland, sweeping through whole communities and leaving thousands homeless in one of the poorest and most densely-populated regions in the world.

East Pakistan has a population of about 60,000,000 living under the constant threat of cyclones that strike with the monsoon rains in the spring and fall.

East Pakistan, separated from West Pakistan by about 1,000 miles of Indian territory, covered 55,126 square miles—an area slightly larger than the combined land mass of three Canadian maritime provinces—New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

The tearful funnels of wind, spawned in the Bay of Bengal, have laid great areas waste and killed many thousands year by year.

The sea rushes in with such force that once a ship of about 19,000 tons was snatched up from the bay and deposited on a field of rice seven miles inland.

A cyclone in 1876 took a toll of 400,000 killed by drowning or cholera in the wake of the floods.

Chittagong, the principal port, escaped major damage in this week's cyclone, first reports said. But Cox's Bazar, a town of 8,000, was badly hit and the airfield there was reported under several feet of water.

FEAR 10,000 DEAD

One Dacca newspaper reported more than 10,000 feared dead on one alone of the many offshore islands.

Unofficial reports said thousands of persons died on Maheshkhali Island. The cyclone destroyed 75 per cent of Sonadia's crops and houses. A great loss of livestock was feared on other islands.

Both Sexes Dance in Nude On Swedish TV

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Swedish television Thursday night screened a show in which male and female Americans danced in the nude.

It drew a storm of protest telephone calls.

An official of the state-owned TV system said the show was given the go-ahead only after last minute, top-level talks.

The program showed four actors and three actresses of the American Workshop Company doing a slow striptease and piling their clothes in front of them.

Then they danced naked on a surface of crackling paper amid a set of harsh light and shadow.

Among the cast was the 19-year-old daughter of the group's choreographer, Ann Halprin of San Francisco.

A switchboard operator said: "There were simply hundreds of calls—and we didn't even get to see the program."

Commonwealth nation to keep its seat.

Wilson did not announce any further punitive measures against Rhodesia, such as an oil embargo. Presumably such a step would be announced first in Parliament.

But the British leader appeared to give him his fullest support in carrying out sanctions against the Smith government.

WON'T USE FORCE

Britain has imposed economic sanctions against Rhodesia but refuses to use force to bring down the Smith regime. The African nations are in no position to mount a successful military operation against Rhodesia.

Wilson again asked the African nations to be patient.

Six Injured At Port Hope

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP)—Six men were admitted to hospital here today following a car-truck collision on Highway 401, about four miles west of here.

In hospital with undetermined injuries are Lorne Cowan, Hal Croft, Cyril Terry, Norman Ford and Stan Churchly, all of Port Hope, and Robert May of Cobourg.

Driver of the tractor-trailer truck, Russel Roberts, 61, of Willowdale, was not injured.

The men were returning home from the night shift at the General Motors plant at Oshawa.

Port Hope is 20 miles south of Peterborough.

Garage Owner In Kingston Out on Bail

MONTREAL (CP)—A Kingston garage owner, John Northrop, is to appear for preliminary hearing in Montreal Dec. 23 on charges of having received some $30,000 in auto parts stolen in the Montreal area.

Northrop, arrested earlier this week at Newcastle, Ont., was set free on $2000 bail Thursday.

Two Remanded One Week For Sentence

PICTON — James Murdock of Camp Picton pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving and was fined $50 and costs in Magistrate's Court this week.

There was a lengthy battle over the case of George Peck of Demorestville. Charged with failing to yield the right of way, Peck pleaded not guilty but was convicted and fined $10 and costs.

A fine of $50 and costs was levied against Daniel McDonald of Picton who pleaded guilty to a charge of joy riding.

Two youths, Robert Bannister of R. R. 1 Picton, and George McCoy of R. R. 3, Belleville, pleaded guilty to two charges each of breaking and entering. Evidence was taken. The two were remanded one week for sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills of Belleville.

said it would lose $1,000,000 a year on such an operation.

It would also require additional funds which the railway does not have available.

The board noted that both proposals involve CNR running rights over CPR tracks. These and other matters should be resolved in discussions between the two.

"If they do not resolve their differences the board will meet them again with that objective," the statement said.

The pool trains used CPR tracks between Ottawa and Toronto. When the agreement was ended by mutual consent, the CPR began a service of its own. When complaints erupted from various Ottawa groups, the board called the two railways to a conference and asked them to draw up some proposals for meeting the complaints.

Jurgen May of East Germany ran his second sensational mile in five days when he defeated Kenya's Kipkoge Keino in 3:54.1 seconds. Two days previous he ran the mile in 3:53.8, two-tenths of a second off the mile record of France's Michel Jazy—and the second fastest mile ever recorded . . . The death of fullback Mack Lee Hill was the fourth major misfortune to strike the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL in less than three years. It was the second game-death suffered by the club. The first came in September, 1962 when Stone Johnson, a rookie flanker died from a broken neck sustained in an exhibition game. Later, a guard Ed Budde, was assaulted in a night club and suffered severe injuries. He returned to play. Last December Fred Arbanas; a tight end, was attacked in the street by an assailant and almost lost an eye. He also returned to play but has not regained his former form.

I understand the Y's Men's Club of the city has taken over the Mountain View Ski Club and will operate it this season. No other information is available at the moment—but there will be more later . . . Don't tell me the rah-rah boys do not support their football teams. College attendance in 1965 soared to an all-time high, attracting 24,682,572 spectators, an increase of 3.69 per cent over the 1964 total . . . Then there was Bob Hope's TV crack to one of the orbiting astros. "If you're in space in your underwear over Russia—keep your trap shut."

Pedagogue pucksters from BCIVS, Moira S.S. and Quinte S.S. bolstered by others take on the CYO Wo. Stars here next Wednesday in a benefit game in aid of muscular dystrophy. Game gets under way at three on Memorial Arena.

Climb Into Second

Petes Unbeaten In 12

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes climbed into second place and Hamilton Wings into sixth Thursday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Peterborough ran its undefeated streak to 12 games by scoring three times in the final 13 minutes for a 5-3 victory over St. Catharines Black Hawks. The win moved Peterborough a point ahead of idle Niagara Falls Flyers, who dropped into third.

The Wings downed Montreal Junior Canadiens 5-3 in a game at Hamilton that threatened to break into a free-for-all as the final whistle sounded.

Wings' Peter Mahovlich and Robbie Burns of the Habs sparked the outbreak when they traded punches beside the Montreal goal. Players came off both benches to take part as coaches Rudy Pilous of Hamilton and Scotty Bowman of Montreal stepped on the ice to help break up the battle. Carol Vadnais of the Habs and Paul Chiarot of the Wings squared off in another scrap that turned into the main event.

Mahovlich, Burns, Vadnais and Chiarot drew five-minute majors and Vadnais who took on Hamilton's Freddie Speck in the second period, was given a misconduct for getting embroiled in two fights.

Gary Marsh scored twice for Hamilton with Bart Crashley, Ron Anderson, and Don Giese-brecht adding one each.

Lucien Grenier, Michel Lapalme and Chris Bordeleau scored for Montreal, who remained in a fourth-place tie with Toronto Marlboros.

The Petes, who trail the first-place Oshawa Generals by four points, were led by Danny Grant's two goals. Danny Sharpe, Andre Lacroix and Mickey Redmond also tallied for the Petes, who have won nine and tied three of their last 12.

Ken Laidlaw, Jim Stanfield and Doug Shelton scored for St. Catharines.

Leafs Edge Habs; Wings Blank Bruins

★★★★★ Crozier's 2nd Shutout

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Roger Crozier is up to his old tricks again.

The spunky little netminder, who last season led the National Hockey League in shutouts with six, picked up another Thursday night as the third-place Detroit Red Wings defeated the cellar-dwelling Boston Bruins 3-0 in one of two scheduled games.

Toronto Maple Leafs edged Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in the other.

Crozier joined the Red Wings for 15 games in the 1962-64 season from Pittsburgh of the American League, where he won the outstanding goaltender and outstanding rookie awards that year. He registered two shutouts in the 15 games.

In 1964-65, the five-foot-eight, 150 pound native of Bracebridge, Ont., took over the regular goaltending chores for Detroit after Terry Sawchuk was drafted by Toronto and won the Calder Memorial Trophy as the league's outstanding rookie.

Crozier turned in a good performance Thursday as he kicked out 26 shots, 11 in the final period, in recording his second shutout of the season and the 10th of his NHL career.

Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman, with his 250th NHL goal, were the Red Wing marksmen.

Ullman, who hit the post on the side of the net on two earlier chances at the milestone, finally got it in the second period on a rising shot to beat Boston netminder Bernie Parent, back in the Bruins' net after a five-game layoff.

The Boston goaltender also was spectacular as he stopped 38 shots.

Unanswered second - period goals by rookie Brit Selby and Frank Mahovlich were sufficient to carry the fourth-place Leafs to victory over the league-leading Canadiens.

For both Selby and Mahovlich it was the sixth goal of the season as they broke a 1-1 deadlock that had prevailed going into the second period.

Centre Bob Pulford, with his 10th of the season, was the other Toronto scorer.

Canadiens' two goals were Bobby Rousseau's 15th season marker in the opening 20 minutes and Yvan Cournoyer's ninth of the year in the final period.

It marked the second time in as many nights that the Leafs have acted as spoilers.

Wednesday they snapped Detroit's seven - game winning streak with a 5-3 victory after spoiling Montreal's eight-game unbeaten record Thursday.

Toronto netminder John Bower earned his win as he made rapid saves of Jean-Guy Talbot, Ralph Backstrom, Terry Harper and Cournoyer twice as the Canadiens swarmed inside the Toronto blueline in the third period.

Gordon Berenson and Backstrom also tallied in other efforts to tie the score with less than five minutes remaining in the game.

"Stronger Than Last Year"

Canada Improving Says Tarasov

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach Anatoli Tarasov of the Russian national hockey team said Thursday Canada's national hockey team is incomparably stronger this year than it was during last year's world championship.

"This is especially so up front," he said at a press conference after his team arrived here for tonight's game against the Canadian amateurs, their first two meetings of the current Russian tour, the Canadians were defeated 4-3 and 8-4.

Tarasov said the Canadian club is technically good but reiterated previous charges that Roger Bourbonnais deliberately injured a Russian player in Colorado Springs last year and continued to play the same type of hockey this year.

Earlier, Canada's coach Jack Kelley announced rookie Wayne Stephenson of Brodrick has been with the Russians since the club was formed in 1963.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Rousseau scored a goal and assisted on another Thursday night in Montreal Canadiens' 3-2 loss at the hands of Toronto Maple Leafs to take over first place again in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

Rousseau now has 15 goals and a league-leading 20 assists for 35 points, one more than Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks. Hull is the league-leading goal scorer with 21.

Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings scored a goal against Boston Bruins Thursday night and holds down fourth spot with 31 points.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal picked up an assist against the Leafs and is in fifth place with 30 points, one more than Detroit's Gordie Howe, who picked up an assist against the Bruins.

Alex Delvecchio, also of Detroit, rounds out the big seven with 29 points.

The leaders:

Rollins Jrs. Meet Cobourg Here Tonight

Belleville Rollins are expected to have plenty of local support from the city and district's younger fry when they play host to Cobourg Cougars in an OHA Eastern Junior "B" puck tilt here tonight.

Game time is nine o'clock, at Memorial Arena, and the occasion if a special "All Children's Night," with a host of prizes and fun for the youngsters. Tickets have been purchased by various groups and persons in the city and distributed to children.

The same type night proved successful here last year, when a live pony was given away, and last week such a game attracted over 4,000 to the Oshawa Civic Arena for a game there. Pops were included among the prizes, as well as hockey sticks, etc.

Meanwhile the game is a big one for both clubs involved. The current league standings have Oshawa with 20 points, followed by Kingston just two back with 18, Peterborough with 17, following a four-point win over Cobourg the other night, Belleville with 14, Trenton with 13 and Cobourg with eight.

Belleville needs a win to hang onto that valuable fourth and final playoff spot while the Cougars are trying to climb out of the basement.

Elsewhere tonight, Oshawa visits Trenton and Peterborough goes to Kingston.

Namath Rookie Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Namath, the New York Jets' $400,000 quarterback, has won the American Football League Rookie-of-the-Year honors by a landslide vote in The Associated Press poll.

The highly-publicized former Alabama player, who under went surgery on his right knee in January, was rated sparingly by coach Weeb Ewbank in the early season but later blossomed as the Jets top quarterback.

With Namath at the controls, the Jets snapped their losing streak and went on a four-game winning spin in mid-season that put them in second place in the Eastern Division.

The Associated Press selection committee is composed of 24 sports writers, three from each league city.

Yankee Wallets Hit

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be pay cuts aplenty for some members of New York Yankees but one for Mickey Mantle, the $100,000 slugger, and other stars who were hampered by injuries in the 1965 flop of the champions, says Ralph Houk.

"It's tough to cut people," said general manager Houk Thursday before leaving on a Florida vacation. "I don't like to do it. But you can't finish sixth, with the year some of our men had, and not expect to take less money."

Houk would not name the players due for salary slashes, but he said: "It's not tough to figure out if you look at the records."

This would indicate pay cuts for first baseman Joe Pepitone, .247, 18 homers, 63 RBI; and pitchers Jim Bouton, 4-15, Bill Stafford, 3-8, and Al Downing, 12-14, among others.

Mantle, catcher Elston Howard, outfielder Roger Maris and shortstop Tony Kubek all were handicapped by injuries.

"I can't see ever cutting Mantle after what he's been in baseball," Houk said.

"As long as he plays he will receive the same money. Fellows like that, no matter what you pay them, somewhere along the line they have been underpaid. You make it up to them toward the end."

Houk said Mantle's career could be prolonged if he is given rest periods and had his spots picked for him.

The 34-year-old switch hitter, plagued by injuries, slumped to 19 homers, 46 runs batted in and .255 in 122 games in 1965. In 1964, Mantle had one of his best years, hitting .303, with 35 homers and batting in 111 runs.

Headed That Way Sin-Bin Record For Young?

SEATTLE (CP) — Howie Young, who set a Western Hockey League record for penalties last year, could end up this year as the most penalized player in the history of professional hockey.

HOWIE YOUNG

The robust Los Angeles Blades defenceman, once the bad boy of the National Hockey League, sat out 227 minutes in penalties last year.

In the 17 games he has played this season, Young has picked up 88 minutes in penalties for an average of 5.18 minutes a game. The total is made up of 29 minors, two majors and two misconducts.

If he maintains the pace through the 46 games remaining this season, he'll pile up a total of 328 minutes, to mark the first time a professional hockey player has spent more than 300 minutes in the penalty box in one season.

from the CAHA and ila parent body, the IIHF, to make the tour.

Juckes promised Ald. Joseph Piccinimi of Toronto before he left Toronto Thursday that he would report the invitation to IIHF President J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne of London. Juckes will then take a telegram and telephone vote of CAHA officials to seek authority for the tour.

HAS LETTER

Piccinimi produced a letter Thursday to the Italian - Canadian League from the Ontario Hockey Association, branch of the CAHA, in which the OHA said it was pleased to approve a tour by a league all-star team to Italy early in January.

The OHA also said the matter was being passed on to the CAHA for sanction. The letter was signed by Bill Hanley of Toronto, OHA business manager.

Piccinimi presented Juckes with the translations of all letters between the league and Italian hockey authorities and told the CAHA officials the team at no time described itself as a Canadian all-star club.

"We acted in good faith," Piccinimi said. "This was only intended as a good-will tour to show the people of Italy how our boys had success a fully joined in the activities of their new country."

CURSED HIS CREATION

Alexander Graham Bell had a telephone in his laboratory but used to muffle it with a towel so he could work in peace.

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Patriots and Houston Oilers close out their American Football League campaigns Saturday in a nationally - televised game that could leave Boston tied for second place in the Eastern Division.

A victory by the Patriots coupled with a loss by New York Jets to divisional champion Buffalo Bills Sunday, would climax a Cinderella finish for a team that went through its first eight games without a victory.

If both New York and Houston Oilers lose, Boston would finish with a 4-8-2 record. New York would be 4-9-1 and Houston would close with a 4-10-0 mark.

Both teams will be without the services of several regulars due to injuries.

The Patriots have been gaining momentum, winning three and gaining a tie in their last five games. Houston, one of the AFL's strongest teams at the start of the season, has lost six games in a row.

In other Sunday games, Western Division champion San Diego Chargers play Oakland Raiders and Kansas City Chiefs are at Denver.

Quinte Hockey League Results

SACO and Ter-Hear Daubers, running one - two in the Quinte Hockey League, continued their winning ways last night.

The leading and undefeated SACO outfit blanked Grant's Realty by a 3-0 count while Ter-Hear turned back Stinson - Horlock Combines 5-1.

SACO and Grant's battled through a scoreless first heat before the winners netted two in the second frame and a singleton in the third.

Doug Hallam, Don Forsythe and Gary Wills were the markmen in that order. Gary Grenier assist picked up two assists, D. Forsythe and Hallam one apiece.

Two minor penalties were assessed to each team.

Stinso - Horlock scored the only goal of the opening frame but the Daubers tied it in the second and netted the only two goals of the third to snatch the decision.

Jack Calnan, Roy Urch and Don Moore triggered a goal each. Harold Bunnett collected two assists, Lorien Haslan, Hubert Pointer and Urch one apiece.

George Daniels fired the Combines' goal with Bob Fraser helping.

The losers took four of five penalties.

Mustangs Beaten By Blues

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — University of Toronto Blues defeated University of Western Ontario Mustangs 71-69 in a Senior Intercollegiate Basketball game here Thursday night.

It was the Blues' second straight league win, both on the road. The loss evened Western's record at 1-1.

The game, lustreless for 35 minutes, wound up in an exciting finish.

The biggest lead either team had in the game was seven points, held by Toronto late in the first half as both squads battled on even terms.

The Mustangs trailed 34-33 at halftime. They trailed 65-58 with 5:12 to go after the lead had changed hands eight times.

Colts, Rams Tangle In Climactic Clash

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Baltimore Colts place all their chips on the table and Los Angeles Rams hope to rake them in when these National Football League rivals meet in Memorial Coliseum Saturday.

It's the climactic battle of the 1965 season for the Colts, badly crippled by the loss of their fearned and feared quarterback, Johnny Unitas, and also their second - string signal caller, Gary Cuozzo .

It is also something of a climax for the cellar - bound Rams, who have boomed along to three consecutive victories and suddenly loom as a large factor in the hectic race in the NFL Western Conference.

The Rams are favored by 6½ points—a tribute to their rejuvenation and, in reverse, the absence of Unitas, who will watch the game from the Colts' bench, his injured knee still in a cast.

His replacement? Tom Matte, erstwhile fine running halfback.

CLAIM A VETERAN

As additional insurance Baltimore claimed on waivers from Pittsburgh Steelers a 12 - year NFL veteran quarterback, Ed Brown.

If the Rams win, goodbye title for the Colts, who go into the game trailing Green Bay Packers by one-half game.

If Baltimore wins and Green Bay loses to San Francisco 49ers at San Francisco Sunday, Baltimore picks up the chips and faces the Eastern Division winner, Cleveland Browns, Jan. 2.

If Green Bay wins, the Packers win the division title.

If Chicago Bears defeat Minnesota Vikings at Chicago, and both Green Bay and Baltimore lose, Chicago and Green Bay tie for the title.

If Baltimore defeats the Rams and Green Bay ties San Francisco, Baltimore and Green Bay tie for the title.

Confusing, aint it?

CASE CLOSED

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Hennepin County coroner's office has listed the Dec. 7 death of Arthur F. Bruce Lee, 32, former hockey player, as "probable suicide" from a shotgun wound in the head. Lee, who died at his Minneapolis home, was a native of Calgary. The coroner's office said no autopsy was performed and that the investigation is closed.

Buffalo Coach Rated Tops

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Coach Lou Saban of Buffalo Bills of the American Football League had the last laugh on his critics Thursday.

Among other things, they've complained for several years that Saban wasn't using his players properly, that he called the wrong plays and that his gambles backfired.

But 24 sports writers—three from each AFL city — have named him the league's Coach of the Year in The Associated Press poll.

"I'm very pleased," Saban said when told of the honor. "The credit goes to my staff and the team."

Saban, who came to the Bills in midseason of 1961, piloted Buffalo to the AFL championship last year.

Petes Will Reinforce Baby Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — Danny O'Shea of Peterborough Petes, one of the top centres in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, will line up with Montreal Junior Canadiens when they meet the Swedish national team in Montreal Wednesday.

O'Shea, property of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, is playing his final year as a junior. He is one of the leading scorers in the OHA.

Andre Lacroix, Danny Grant and Mickey Redmond, also of the Petes of the OHA, a Canadiens affiliate, will also join the Junior Canadiens for the game.

Ten Pin Topics

By AUB WATKIN

As the holiday season comes upon us it would seem proper to have a look at league standings for the fall season. The Belleville Mixed League has Begley's Aluminum in front with 36 points. In the Bowl-o-Rama League, Tehworth's Texaco last week jumped over Loewen's Coolers 45 to 43 points, and the battle will no doubt continue. The Ladies' Classic has the 3 Robins out in front by 4½ points, with 61½. Ladies' Wednesday Afternoon League finds Paul Kelly Drugs out ahead of the pack with 43 points, followed by Smokers with 38 points. International Hardware Mixed has Misfits with 34 points, 3 points in front of the Catches. Junior Student League has the Flokes well out in front with 46 points. In the Novice Coffee League the Beginners lead by 7½ points, with 36. Quite a race has developed in the American Optical League as the Tornadoes continue to lead with 37 points, only 2 points ahead of the Black Sheep. The race in the Men's Classic is also close, as Johnny "O's" trail the Crazy Three by 3½ points. The Major "A" finds Don's Delivery with a 5-point lead at 36 points. THIS AND THAT

All of us who frequent the bowl have no doubt noticed that "Dorothy" Holway has been among the missing the last few week. In talking with "Toots" this week he tells your correspondent that he has to be hospitalized after Christmas and will likely be laid up until at least March. I am sure everyone joins me in wishing "Toots" a speedy recovery. The place is just not the same without "the old goat."

Tuesday night Ed Michael had quite a night. He had a 296 game and a 639 triple. Congratulations are in order.

A WISH FOR ALL

I would like to take this opportunity to express to all the people who have had nice things to say about the column, my sincere thanks. I hope it will be keeping my bowlers better informed of events and results. And to all a Merry Christmas and a Better Bowling New Year.

Millions of Homes View Live Coverage of Recovery

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's star performer Thursday was a man-made one, the Early Bird satellite. It brought into millions of homes the conclusion of one of the most exciting adventure stories of our time.

Live coverage of the South Atlantic recovery of the Gemini 6 space capsule was arranged by the carrier Wasp transmitting television signals to the satellite which in turn relayed them to the broadcasting channels and into our homes.

When the capsule was being secured to the ship's lines, viewers could see the navy frogmen at work better than many aboard the carrier. Viewers were right on the spot, too, when the capsule's hatches were opened and two grinning astronauts emerged amid band music and applause.

The staffs of the three networks did their usual bold jobs of covering the spacecraft's decent with illustrations and analysis.

The networks reran the high moments of the recovery in later news programs and special summaries, but reviews could not compare in excitement and fascination with watching as it occurred.

The day was a milestone in broadcasting history.

NBC plans a two-part "white paper" on the late John F. Kennedy. The first part will be broadcast on the anniversary of Kennedy's birthday, May 29. The second comes a week later.

France In World Curling

TORONTO (CP) — A team from France will make its debut in the world curling championships for the Scotch Cup, scheduled for Vancouver March 21-24.

David Small, chairman of the Scotch Cup Curling Association, made the announcement here Thursday. He attributed France's entry to increased curling interest throughout Europe.

The French entry brings the number of competing countries to seven. Teams have been curling in the Alpine area of France since the first French national championships in 1920.

Canada has won the world title six times, four by Ernie Richardson's Regina foursome.

Small said a revision of playdowns will be necessary with seven countries competing. There will be a single round-robin series with one country drawing a bye in each draw.

The competition now has representative rinks entered from Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, France, Scotland, United States and Canada.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Check assets. May be necessary to optimism family members in subtle manner. Emphasize intelligent choices, thoughtful actions. Give credit where due. Don't be stingy with praise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21) Now you can seize initiative . . . break through to new vistas. Obtain hint from Libra message. Loved ones need your attention. Air of romance surrounds you. Be creative. Make changes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Key is being perceptive. Look behind the scenes. Don't accept superficial indications. One who comes to you with rumor may not be informed. Be practical, realistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 —Jan. 19): Coordinate efforts. Communicate with friends. Don't duplicate plans. Conserve time, energy and money. If you take lead, many will look to you as example.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 —Feb. 18): Wishful thinking has no place in business discussion. Insist on facts . . . then you earn respect. Finish major projects. Heed words of spiritual advisor.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Fine for making holiday, travel plans. Especially good for contacting friends, relatives at a distance. Important to check lists . . . send cards, letters to those who count.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are a fiery individual, dedicated to strong motives. Would make good executive, captain of industry.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn. Special word to Virgo: Tendency is to scatter forces. Concentrate efforts — tackle one thing at a time.

Tender-hearted Prophet

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

"Is there any word from the Lord?" This question trembled on the lips of a fearful king as a prophet he had just rescued from a dank cistern stood before him. The king was Zedekiah, king of Judah. The prophet was Jeremiah. The prophet did not say what the king wanted to hear, so the king rejected his advice, and, as a result, suffered the dire fate Jeremiah had predicted.

Jeremiah lived during Judah's most tragic days. He felt compelled to preach an unpopular message. Judah was like a child caught between warring giants. As such, Jeremiah saw its fate was sealed. Jerusalem's destruction was inevitable and a hand. To try to resist Babylon's might would be madness. Submission was the only wise course. To most of Jeremiah's hearers this sounded like treason. They tried repeatedly to silence him.

BLOSSOMS AND BOILING KETTLES

Jeremiah's call to preach came when, as a youth in Anathoth, he watched the almond tree burst into bloom. This was the first tree to wake, or blossom, in the spring, so it was called by a name that means "wakeful". This suggested to Jeremiah the wakefulness of God who is always watching to perform His word. (Jer. 1:11-12) This he related to world events as he saw nations to the north seething like a boiling pot ready to boil over in a scalding invasion of Judah. (Jer. 1:13-19)

Rejected by the people of his own town, Jeremiah went to Jerusalem where he spent the major part of his life. Here he attracted attention by preaching the temple sermons in the temple (Jer. 7; 11:26) The first and second aroused opposition as well as interest. Between the second and third, Josiah had been slain in Jerusalem could no longer look to a sympathetic king for protection. As a result of the third sermon, Jeremiah was arrested and brought to trial. During the trial he was spirited away by a friend, and until times were safer, he went to the land of the Euphrates where he received final instructions concerning the might of Babylon.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 19, Jeremiah 1: 11,20 through 30:37 through 39, 37 through 39.

Armed with this knowledge, Jeremiah returned to Jerusalem to proclaim the certainty of its capture. Resistance to Babylon was impossible. The only sane course was to submit, and hope for mercy. For this message Jeremiah was attacked and put in stocks. Being a sensitive person, he received from pulpit mockery. In a remarkable autobiographical passage, he tells how he would like to stop preaching, but God's word was in his heart like a burning fire, he could not remain silent. (Jer. 20:7-9)

King Conia (Jekoiakin) did follow Jeremiah's advice. He surrendered without resistance when Nebuchadrezzar's army struck. Along with Judah's leaders, he was taken to Babylon where he received favored treatment. (Jer. 22:24) Jeremiah was permitted to remain in Jerusalem. Zedekiah was put on Judah's throne as a vassal king. Against Jeremiah's advice, he was urged by false prophets to rebel against Babylon. To silence Jeremiah, he was imprisoned in a cellar dungeon and later thrown into a cistern. Both times his life was spared by intervention of the king. Zedekiah however, rejected Jeremiah's advice. Jerusalem was completely destroyed, the king's sons were slain before his eyes, and he himself was blinded and taken into captivity. Again, Jeremiah remained in Judah where he continued to preach until he went to Egypt where, accompanied by Baruch, his faithful scribe, he died.

PROTOTYPE OF ONE TO COME

Jeremiah got no joy from preaching his message of doom. Instead he had the most tender heart of any prophet. Like the Good Shepherd, he cared for his flock. (Isaiah 53:3) "O that my head were waters," he cried, "and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people!" (Jer. 9:1 RSV)

Jeremiah has been called by Christian writers the Old Testament's most perfect prototype of Jesus. Of all the prophets, he had the most spiritualized conception of religion. He saw that religion is not to be confused with nationalism. To his fellow-countrymen in exile, he wrote that God could be worshipped there as well as in Jerusalem. He saw that deeper than the covenant God had made with Abraham, he has a new covenant he wants to make with every man; a covenant written in the human heart. (Jer. 31:31-34)

Jeremiah was a man of great faith. Though disaster overtook them, God would not forsake them. No matter where they were, the message was the same, "You will seek me and find me: when you seek with all your heart . . . says the Lord." (Jer. 29:13-14 RSV)

THE GOODYEAR SAFETY SPIKE WINTER TIRE

Here's how it works: in every tire there are over 100 tungsten carbide spikes that stick out just far enough to dig and bite into snow and ice.

Goodyear's new Safety Spike tires have been tested and proven at the Monte Carlo Rallye in the French Alps.

The test results were amazing . . . Safety Spike winter tires gave twice the traction on ice compared to conventional snow tires. They held safely on turns, ploughed through snow, and went like the wind on dry roads.

GEMINI 7 LANDS SMOOTHLY

Marchand Chosen Manpower Boss; Winters Returns

Spent Fortnight In Space

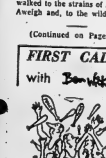
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Blackened by the fire of re-entry, the Gemini 7 space ship rode a parachute to a landing on the Atlantic Ocean today, bringing astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell home safely from man's greatest adventure in space.

With a skilfull assist from the Gemini 6 pilots, Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford, they had achieved the first true rendezvous of orbiting spa'ce ships—an historic feat recorded on color film.

The exhausted spacemen asked for a helicopter ride after electing not to wait for the arrival of the Wasp. They climbed through the hatches into life rafts and gave the pilots of the rescue planes overhead thumbsup signals telling them everything was okay.

A horse - collar was lowered from the helicopter; each each astronaut was hauled up and flown to the Wasp, where excited sailors lined the rails waiting for a glimpse of them. They were deposited on the deck of the carrier at 9:27 a.m., 32 minutes after splashdown.

Weary and heavily bearded after 14 days of the weightless ordeal, they guided their tiny craft to the splashdown at 9:05 a.m. EST, 13 to 17 miles from the prime recovery vessel, the aircraft carrier Wasp.



DIVE ENDS FLIGHT

The meteoric dive back to earth ended the most exciting and the most significant space voyage ever flown by man.

Borman and Lovell had travelled far longer than any other spacemen—330 hours, 35 minutes — flown the most miles— 5,129,000—and had given the United States a long lead over the Soviet Union in many other phases of the race between the nations to be first on the moon.

A bit wobbly, but sporting huge grins, Borman and Lovell walked to the strains of Anchors Aweigh and, to the wild cheers

OTTAWA (CP) — A major reorganization of the federal government structure Friday dominated Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes that brought five men into the ministry and gave new assignments to eight others.

In what one senior civil servant called the most revolutionary shake-up in "many, many years," Mr. Pearson announced that new departments will be formed to pinpoint federal action in four important areas — manpower, energy and resources, administration of police and correction services, and Indians and Eskimos.

"The Canadian economy is growing rapidly and the nature of governmental problems is altering to a dramatic degree," he told a televised press conference.

"The departmental organization that was appropriate 10 years ago is no longer the most efficient."

The appointments brought younger men into the ministry while giving all but six of the 28 posts to Canada's two largest provinces.

FIVE ARE NEW

The newcomers to the $35,000-a-year jobs are:

—Jean Marchand, 47, former Quebec labor leader and a newcomer to Parliament. The member for Quebec East will be immigration minister until the formal establishment of the new manpower department, to embrace department of immigration and manpower policy.

—Robert H. Winters, 53, works minister in the St. Laurent government back in politics after an eight-year absence. He will take over as trade minister early in the new year after he severs extensive business ties. The new MP for York West said Friday night he has resigned as chairman of Rio Algom Mines, Ltd., and the British Newfoundland Corp., and will

Wilson Ends Talks With LBJ, Given Support for Oil Embargo

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson of Britain secured the ready assent of President Johnson Friday for an oil embargo against the rebel Rhodesian government in a day of dialogue with Hanoi (North Viet Nam) and possible to know what compromises they are ready to make."

But, said Wilson, "we shall not worry about rejections or rebuffs," although he recalled the abortive Commonwealth prime ministers' initiative last summer which Viet Nam declined to entertain.

Wilson met the president and senior government members for a total of five hours Friday until well Washington today. He is due in Ottawa Sunday for conversations with Prime Minister Pearson en route home.

Britain's oil sanctions against Rhodesia were announced in London after Wilson's working lunch with the president. His visit also coincided with the state department revelation of a peace initiative begun in mid-Nov. 11 and on which the U.S. has asked for clarification. State department officials, however, have cast doubt on the prospects of success.

Wilson himself, it was revealed by chance, had no official word from Johnson or any other U.S. official about this latest peace initiative, and it was made public apparently only because the St. Louis Post-Dispatch was printing part of the story.

Wilson declined to comment on the development.

At a press conference at the British embassy Friday night the pipe-smoking prime minister said his talks had covered a "very, very wide range."

He led off with reference to Britain's penetrating review of its heavy defence commitments, in which the target is to scale down annual costs to about £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000).

Wilson said Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and Defence Minister Denis Healey of Britain will be in Washington at a regular month for more discussions on defence.

He sidestepped questions about NATO, nuclear agreement and a greater nuclear role for West Germany.

Wilson said there is no conflict on the nuclear proliferation question and that the NATO nuclear role for West Germany has been consigned to specially-created machinery of discussion.

Many of the questions to Wilson involved Rhodesia, and Wilson said the U.S. will help pay for the airlift of oil to Zambia —deprived on Rhodesia for about 1,000 barrels daily.

Some details remained to be worked out. Asked how South Africa might be controlled as a potential source of Rhodesian supply, Wilson said Britain and the U.S. will have to consider any "seepage or leakage." Conversations would be held immediately with nations having interests in the international oil industry and he mentioned The Netherlands, France, Germany and Italy.

"I very much hope the measure will be fully supported by all countries," he said.

Civil Servants To Be Shifted Under Shake-up

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet and departmental shuffle Friday will bring about the biggest federal administrative reorganization in peacetime history.

Thousands of civil servants will be shifted in new departments and there will be a wholesale change in ministerial responsibilities.

The prime minister said the changes "are designed to adapt the machinery of government to new conditions and changing needs."

Many Changes In Deputies Announced

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday named his former policy secretary and the chief of the war on poverty, Tom Kent, to be deputy minister of citizenship and immigration.

The appointment was among five affecting this most senior level of the civil service. Mr. Kent will become deputy minister of the proposed new manpower department.

Mr. Kent remains chief of the war on poverty. His salary is $25,000 a year.

Claude Isbister, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration, becomes deputy mines minister and eventually deputy minister of resources and energy when that new department is established.

E. A. Cote, deputy minister of northern affairs and national resources, becomes deputy minister for the planned new department of Indian affairs and northern affairs.

Dr. Louis Z. Rousseau, deputy forestry minister, becomes deputy minister of the proposed new department of rural development and forestry.

Dr. W. E. Van Steenburgh, deputy mines minister, is to undertake special work in the scientific secretariat of the Privy Council office. He will get an extension of his appointment beyond age 66.

Quebec Has Gained More Powerful Cabinet Voice Claim Experts in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes don't constitute a violent political shakeup but his plans for bringing a tiny Government and administration have clearly rocked the boat.

Although there were suggestions in advance that shifts in responsibilities were in the wind, the prime minister took most people by surprise with the most drastic changes in department responsibilities since the Second World War.

It's expected the changes will have a direct effect on the stature and influence of various ministers although it will take some time for the new cabinet picture to come into focus.

In the meantime, official Ottawa will go through a major upheaval.

The new department of manpower, to be headed by Jean Marchand, a parliamentary rookie who established a nationwide reputation as a Quebec labor leader, appears to have the makings of a major portfolio.

Mr. Marchand will not only take over many key sections from the labor department, such as manpower placement and employment services, but he'll also take over immigration services.

Jean-Luc Pepin, former minister without portfolio, also seems headed into major responsibilities in the proposed new department of resources and energy. Besides scrapping about half of the existing department of northern affairs and national resources, he will take on many energy agencies now scattered through other departments.

The prime minister referred to these two portfolios as "key" assignments as he encouraging Canada's economic growth. It was not immediately clear whether this will satisfy Quebec demands that French-speaking ministers receive an opportunity to play a greater role in economic affairs.

Observers said the new manpower department is slated for a big role in the war on poverty from Kent, the prime minister's policy secretary who is in charge of the campaign, has been appointed deputy minister under Mr. Marchand.

When all the proposed administrative changes are switched against the ministers involved, it can be argued that Québec has acquired a more powerful voice in the cabinet.

Peace Feeler Brings Quick Response

U.S. Asks Ho Chi Minh Clarify His Offer to Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has asked North Viet Nam to clarify conditions in a peace feeler by President Ho Chi Minh for negotiations to end the Vietnamese war.

"I am prepared to go anywhere; to meet anyone," Ho was quoted as saying.

Both the White House and State Secretary Dean Rusk made clear, however, that U.S. leaders are deeply skeptical of the Hanoi offer at the same time officials stressed they will make every effort to reach an acceptable arrangement for negotiations if one is possible.

"We await Hanoi's reply," the state department said Friday night.

"We declare once more our desire to discuss an honorable peace in Viet Nam," said President Johnson. "We know that nothing is to be gained by further delay in talking."

The peace bid was made Nov. 11 in a meeting between Ho and two Italians and passed on to the state department by Italy's Foreign Minister, Amintore Fanfani, this year's president of the United Nations General Assembly. The state department made public the details Friday after published stories indicated the Hanoi offer already had been rejected.

Diplomats here and at the UN expressed concern that disclosure might torpedo the peace effort and bring airong Chinese pressure on Hanoi.

Before entering talks, Hanoi

BULLETIN

said, there should be a cease-fire throughout Viet Nam and agreement that negotiations be based on the 1954 Geneva agreement on Viet Nam as defined by the four-point program laid down last March by the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

"The government in Hanoi is prepared to initiate negotiations without first requiring ... the withdrawal of the American troops," Fanfani reported. The North Vietnamese have consistently called for U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam, and the four points are vague on when this should occur.

Replying to Fanfani's letter, dated Nov. 20, Rusk said in a Dec. 4 letter that the U.S. is "far from persuaded" that statements by Ho and Premier Pham Van Dong indicate a general willingness for unconditional negotiations." The White House said Friday night that it has had no indication that North Viet Nam "is ready to conduct unconditional discussions."

State department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said that the U.S. remains ready for negotiations without conditions with North Viet Nam and is awaiting a reply from Hanoi.

In New York, Fanfani said Friday night that he had forwarded Rusk's reply to Ho Dec. 8. "No answer has reached me as of today," he added.

The record of the Hanoi peace feeler and the U.S. reply was made public here after the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported the U.S. had received—and rejected—a new peace feeler from North Viet Nam. The state department denied the North Viet Nam offer had been accepted.

Plan Alterations at BCIVS To Increase Fire Safety

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board wound up its business for the year at the December meeting held this week.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which saw only routine matters under consideration, Chairman Raymond Rowe of Frankford expressed his appreciation to board members for their co-operation during the year and in turn received complimentary remarks in the same manner in which meetings had been conducted.

The board decided to go along with recommendations from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department with respect to additional fire safety features at Belleville Collegiate.

Belleville architects Watson and Wiegand will be engaged to bring in plans which are expected to include enclosure of stair wells and other features.

Two senior principals in the school system, Miss Mary Gordon and Leslie Reid, were authorized to attend the International Principals' Council annual convention to be held in Cleveland in February.

GOES TO NEW SCHOOL

Mrs. Veronica Meades, currently secretary in the principal's office at Moira Secondary School, will transfer and become secretary at the new Centennial Secondary School planned for the West Belleville area. At least part of the new school is hoped to be completed in time for school opening in September 1968 and in the meantime Mrs. Meades will assist Principal James Musgrove in school organization.

Mrs. Ted Clark of Belleville will be hired as a special teacher for the board's home instruction unit for students physically unable to attend regular classes. To start, Mrs. Clark is expected to have from four to five students for home instruction.

Members of the high school caretaking staffs are to receive an increase in pay up to $2 per hour for overtime work. The increase for overtime pay will be effective immediately.

Will Resume Work on Moira Phone Conduit

With abnormally high water temperatures work since the fall is underway in the fall, installation by Bell Telephone of a conduit across the Moira River north of the lower bridge is not expected to be completed until the middle of January.

Mr. C. H. Buckley, local Bell manager said today that the conduit construction had to be delayed because of water conditions but following a meeting this week between Bell people, city officials and the Moira River Conservation Authority, it has been agreed that work will be resumed on Monday.

"It is now anticipated that the work will be completed by mid-January," Mr. Buckley said.

The river crossing is part of several contract commenced earlier this year for installation of new conduit from the top of Murney Hill on West Street Street to the Bell Telephone office at Church Street.

"All construction except the river crossing was completed last spring, the river section of the installation being purposely delayed in order to advantage of low autumn water conditions.

But Old Man Weather failed to co-operate and instead of low water, much above normal fall rainfall had resulted in as unexpected strong current crossing down the Moira.

"As a result a costly coffer dam was necessary before work could commence.

"It is this coffer dam which has been causing uneasiness on the part of local officials who felt if it remained in the river it could cause a serious flood threat during next spring's break-up.

Bell officials stated the coffer dam would be removed on completion of the project about the middle of January.

Torture Tale Told to Court

HAMILTON (CP)—A tale of abduction and torture so bizarre it seemed to a magistrate like a Hollywood movie script was heard is Hamilton court Friday.

Leslie Dekany, 19, of nearby Vineland told the court he was forced to write a confession of theft after being abducted from a Hamilton pool hall by two youths who took him to a cabin in Vineland.

He said a red-hot knife was held inches from his eyes, he was slapped with a wet towel, he be sat tied to a chair, and was tied to a shower rod by a guitar wire wrapped around his neck.

Magistrate Walter Tuchie convicted Julius Lakatos, 21, of no fixed address, and Stephen Gurd Sundquist, 24, of Aurora, Ont., of forcible seizure and confinement, and assault with intent to maim.

Dekany said Lakatos and Sundquist accused him of stealing money, record players, movie projectors and a portable television set from a cabin they occupied, and wanted him to confess.

Ireland's Offer New Gift Ideas

If you're Christmas shopping for a gift that is unique and yet practical, Ireland's Jewellers has the answer to your problem. Here are a few of the new gift ideas that have just arrived in time for Christmas.

One new item that has been a welleceived elsewhere is the "Melodie Pillow". With this pillow plugged in to your transistor radio you can drift off to sleep to the sound of your favorite music — and it won't disturb your bedmate! Of course the pillow is allergy-free and germ resistant.

Electric slicing knives may not be new, but the latest General Electric model has the advantage of being free of any bending cord. When not in use the knife rests in a special stand which plugs into an outlet and keeps the battery in the knife fully charged.

Color television has been in short supply this year — but Ireland's have just received a shipment of General Electric 1966 models. These sets have many 1966 improvements such as new, simplified controls and other engineering advances.

Ranges and refrigerators are always welcome "family" gifts — but the new "coppertone" appliances have a warmth and beauty that makes them especially suitable for Christmas giving.

You'll find many more attractive and useful gifts at Ireland's — so don't delay — the demand is great. You'll save money, too, at Ireland's low overhead location, 380 Front Street, just south of the upper bridge.

Yule Trees Abundant On Market

The market square resembled a forest today. Christmas trees were everywhere and selling fast, from $1 each to $3.

McIntosh apples were 75 cents for six quarts; Sweets were 85 cents and 25 cents per quart; Delicious and Spys were $3 a bushel and Snows were $2 a bushel.

Potatoes sold for 60 cents a basket and $2.50 per hamper and butternuts were $1 for six quarts.

Sage sold for 15 cents a bunch; summer savory was 25 cents a bunch and pickles, both brine and dills, were five cents each and 40 cents a quart. Sauerkraut was five pounds. Spanish onions were 10, 15 and 20 cents each and cabbages were 10 cents each apiece to 25 cents. Squash was priced from 10 cents up to 75 cents, depending upon size.

Apple cider was $1 a gallon.

quit other directorships as soon as possible.

J. J. Greene, 45, from Renfrew South, the first aboriginal ever elected to the House, Eastern Canada in 64 years. He replaces Harry Hays who leaves his Calgary South seat, leaving the Liberals with only one MP, Veteran Jack Marshall of Tellier, in the three Prairie provinces.

Jean-Pierre Cote, 39, from Longueuil, new postmaster-general replacing Rene Tremblay who resigned from the cabinet Thursday night.

John Turner, 36, minister without portfolio, Montreal lawyer who gained wide prominence when he danced with Princess Margaret in 1958.

ALSO OUTSIDE

Other ministers were given added duties, demoted or their departments reorganized. Although the reorganization can legally begin now, new names for the portfolios must await new legislative session in the next Parliament.

Mitchell Sharp moves to finance from trade, replacing Walter Gordon who quit the ministry shortly after the election. Mr. Sharp will continue his responsibility in connection with the Canadian wheat board.

Jean Marchand loses part of his northern affairs and national resources department and takes responsibility for Indians in a new department of indian affairs and northern affairs.

Allan MacEachen, a bachelor replaces Judy LaMarsh, also single, in health and welfare and Miss LaMarsh is appointed minister without portfolio to help Mr. Pennell's responsibilities, leaving the justice department to handle legislation, litigation and consultation.

Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve will be given heavier duties as head of a government of forestry and rural development, said Mr. Pearson. Mr. Sauve's new responsibilities would be given a more senior portfolio but this may come later after more controversy over allegations of election irregularities in his riding of Ile-de-la-Madeleine dies down.

Revenue Minister E. J. Benson will add the presidency of the treasury board to his duties, and Mr. Pearson said this new position will be the central point for improving administration in the public service.

TOTAL UNCHANGED

The new ministers fill two vacancies caused by the election and three subsequent resignations and keep the cabinet total at 26, the same as before the election. Eleven are from Ontario, nine from Quebec, two from British Columbia, and one each from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba.

A vacant chair, a lonely room,
A silent sorrow in the only thing.
The grief can call its own.

Reaction of Opposition Leaders to Cabinet Shuffle

OTTAWA (CP)—Western Conservative Alvin Hamilton said Friday night the cabinet shuffle means Prime Minister Pearson hasn't been able to get a Quebec lieutenant he can trust with a major portfolio.

Quebec must be bitterly disappointed that none of the prestige economic portfolios went to members from the province, Mr. Hamilton said in an interview.

The Saskatchewan MP was agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker administration.

He said two new portfolios—resources and energy under Jean-Luc Pepin and a liberalized immigration department under Jean Marchand — were "needed, of course."

HOPED FOR MORE

But they went to Quebecers only "to hide the disappointment to the intelligentsia of Quebec who had hoped for better things from this reorganization."

Mr. Hamilton challenged Finance Minister Sharp to say whether he follows the policies of former Finance Minister Gordon in the theme of new Trade Minister Winters.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker was unavailable for comment. He is on a vacation cruise in the Caribbean and is to return here Tuesday or Wednesday.

OTTAWA (CP)—T. C. Douglas said Friday that Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes have strengthened the "right wing element" in the cabinet.

The leader of the New Democratic Party said the elevation of Mitchell Sharp to the finance ministry and the appointment of Robert Winters to Mr. Sharp's old trade portfolio "will only serve to hasten American control of the Canadian economy."

He said in an interview that Mr. Sharp and Mr. Winters are "continentalists" while Walter Gordon, who resigned as finance minister last month, was a nationalist.

HELP RIGHT WING

"The cabinet changes are interesting," Mr. Douglas said. "But there is no doubt in my mind that they strengthen the right wing element in the government."

He added:

"Taken as a whole, the prime minister has had the old bus overhauled, tacked on a few spare parts and replaced a flat tire. But the main test of whether it will work is still the man at the wheel.

"It depends on the prime minister's ability to give direction to the government, set goals for it to follow and ride herd on his ministers to make sure they meet those goals."

Mr. Douglas said it was a good idea to set up a man-power department. But the move would be meaningless without the necessary policies and money to give the country a real manpower training plan.

EDMONTON (CP) — J. J. Green, the Liberal member for Renfrew South, will need all his powers of oratory to sell himself to the western farmer, Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, said Friday.

Commenting on the cabinet changes announced earlier in the day by Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Thompson said: "Whether an Ottawa Valley lawyer will make a good minister of agriculture remains to be seen. However, Mr. Greene is young and personable, and it will be a tremendous challenge to him."

After Harry Hays, minister of agriculture in the last cabinet, was defeated in his Calgary riding Nov. 8, there were rumors that a member of Mr. Thompson's party might be elected five members, all from the West, would be given the agriculture portfolio.

WAS WISHFUL THINKING

"This was mainly wishful thinking on the part of western Liberals," Mr. Thompson said. "The rumors were entirely speculative."

H. A. Olson, Social Credit MP from Medicine Hat, who challenged Mr. Thompson's leadership of the party at its national convention last month, was rumored being considered for the post.

Mr. Thompson said it might have been a good idea if the prime minister had gone "outside politics" to fill the agriculture portfolio.

"But it was the prime minister's decision, and he had no choice but to do what he did," Mr. Thompson said.

Mr. Thompson said that in shuffling the cabinet, in which five new ministers were named and four new portfolios created, Mr. Pearson had "finally recognized what should have been done a long time ago."

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Friday he is anxious to face the new cabinet ministers in the House of Commons to see what they are able to do.

Mr. Caouette said the new changes are significant; but he found some surprises.

The most surprising change was the shift of Allan MacEachen to the health department from labor. "I think he was a good minister of labor," Mr. Caouette said. "He knew quite a bit about it, and labor is one of the most important factors in the whole of Canada."

On the shift of Judy LaMarsh from the health portfolio to secretary of state, Mr. Caouette remarked: "I feel she had some experience in there even if she made some bad mistakes at the start."

On other changes, Mr. Caouette said he was expecting Robert Winters and Jean Marchand to get cabinet posts.

"They had to give Jean Marchand a ministry," he said. "This will give him a chance to get some more people in from Russia. He wouldn't like to be in labor. He has been telling the working man for 25 years to stay away from the old-line parties. Now he's a member of an old line party."

Mr. Caouette thought John Turner, now a minister without portfolio, should have got something more important. On the other hand, he did not agree with the appointment of Jean-Luc Pepin as minister of resources and energy.

"Pepin might be all right for resources; but I don't see how he'll be all right in energy when he has none," he said.

CALGARY (CP)—Two former ministers in the Diefenbaker Progressive government took a skeptical view Friday night of the latest changes in the Liberal cabinet.

Douglas Harkness, MP for Calgary North, called Mr. Pearson's appointments "very odd indeed."

"If the state secretary is going to continue to be minister in charge of culture in Canada I would wonder where culture is going in Canada," Mr. Harkness said, referring to the shift of Judy LaMarsh from health minister to secretary of state.

A former minister of agriculture in the Diefenbaker government, Mr. Harkness also said he doubts that J. J. Greene, Liberal MP for Renfrew South, named minister of agriculture, has any knowledge of the subject.

Mr. Harkness said he thought the forestry portfolio, now held by Maurice Sauvé, should be part of the agriculture department.

"I don't think it's a strong cabinet still I doubt very much that it could do an adequate job," Mr. Harkness said.

Plastic Drink Coolers Are Found Contaminated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Plastic drink coolers containing contaminated water have been discovered in three more Ontario cities, leading local health officials to warn against their use.

Detention of contaminated water in plastic teething rings for babies was also reported.

Sale of the products has been banned in some American states and cities. Canadian health officials have warned that the devices would be dangerous if they leaked.

At London, Ont., contaminated water was found in both drink coolers and teething rings. The medical health office warned against their use.

CONTAINS ORGANISMS

Dr. W. M. Wilson, director of the regional laboratory, said the water in 20 coolers was found to contain bacterial organisms such as fungus spores and mold. However, there was no evidence of disease - carrying organisms.

At Woodstock, Dr. O. C. Powers said contaminated drink coolers and teething rings found there had been made in Hong Kong. The medical officer issued a warning against use of the devices.

At Timmins, the Porcupine district health unit said staphylococcus organisms had been found in plastic ice cubes tested there.

A unit member, W. Boyd, said in a statement that the organisms could produce toxins causing sickness of the food-poisoning type.

"Common sense dictates that they (the coolers) should not be used until assurance from the manufacturer that the fault has been corrected," he said.

The village of Madoc will accept responsibility for maintenance of that portion of Highway No. 62 presently under connecting link agreement, but not to be reconstructed (from Prince Albert Street South) until such time as construction is completed and a new connecting link agreement is entered into.

Correspondence and the police report was received and filed, also all accounts signed and moved to be paid during the month.

At another special meeting, discussion was centred around the approval to build three additional classrooms to the Madoc Public School, cost of same not to exceed $60,000. After much discussion, it was moved by T. C. Barton, seconded by R. F. Dafoe that no action be taken at this time.

After five hours of light sleep, Borman and Lovell awoke shortly after midnight and stowed away the loose gear and the last of the delgia collected during the long days of life in the tiny space ship.

"Are you ready to come home?" mission control asked.

"Ready!" cried Borman.

"Ready!"

"Rights!" chimed in Lovell.

Right on the button, at 8:28 a.m., Borman fired a blast from his retrorockets. The jolt of the four jet rockets slowed the 17,500-mile-an-hour speed of the space ship by about 300 miles.

Falling into the grip of the earth's gravity, it began the meteoric, 19,000 - mile dive to earth across the Pacific, Mexico, southern Texas, the Gulf of Mexico and Florida.

Sixty miles high over Texas during the hottest part of the fiery re-entry, the spaceship was enveloped by an electrified curtain and entered a four-min ute blackout period.

When they came through it, Borman reported he was flying a true course toward the recovery task force of five ships and 21 aircraft waiting to pluck them from the ocean 565 miles southwest of Bermuda in the Atlantic.

A navy plane sighted the spacecraft bobbing under its giant parachute, tracked it down to the water, and got first word from the astronauts that they were all right. The near-perfect flight had been climaxed with a landing at precisely the planned moment.

African Divisions

The leaders of independent Africa are divided among themselves. This is clear from recent developments over the Rhodesian crisis. It is clear also that some are having second thoughts about severing relations with Britain.

The United Arab Republic, one of the sponsors of the resolution passed in Addis Ababa, announced later it was postponing a decision on whether to break with Britain. As a result of the meeting in the Ethiopian capital only Ghana, Tanzania and Guinea thus far have taken this step.

The thought emerges that what black Africa and its Arab neighbors to the north lack most in the present situation is a strong leader who would inject an atmosphere of maturity and careful judgment into their deliberations. No such leader has come to the fore in Africa as yet.

Ghana's break with Britain causes the most surprise. Ghana was the first of the British colonies in Africa to gain its independence. Yet President Nkrumah, although pursuing a dictatorial course and leaning to some extent to the communist world, still retained an affection for Britain.

An admirer of the Royal Family, Nkrumah was a frequent guest at Balmoral Castle during visits to Britain. He was made a privy councillor, one of a select company of Commonwealth leaders who advise the Queen. The Queen herself visited Ghana two or three years ago at a time of internal dissension (Nkrumah had escaped two attempts on his life) and at personal risk to herself.

Now Nkrumah has taken a drastic step which cannot but cast doubt on the maturity of his judgment.

Britain contributed a great deal to Ghana's development, as it did in its other colonies. And these now-independent states should remember this. As it is, they are displaying not only lack of judgment but memories that are on the short side.

In a recent broadcast from Chicago, an American who had spent many years in Africa and acquired an intimate knowledge of the African character, spoke some wise words on the situation there. He said in effect that the white man is more concerned with the welfare of the people under his charge, both white and black, than is the African in a position of power. It is the white man, he pointed out, who has built all the services, all the hospitals and so on, in Africa.

While this may be only one aspect, perhaps a simplification, of the African dilemma, it is one that should be borne in mind. It is eloquent too of the need for caution, and a sense of responsibility, on the part of both white and black governments on the African continent. And the need also for a greater measure of co-operation between the two.

We cannot help feeling that one leader of mature judgment in black Africa today, would have been instrumental in effecting such co-operation. But such leaders are few. The places are erratic politicking, irresponsibility and all the seeds, ultimately, of a fiery upheaval.

Christmas Rush

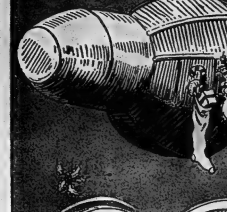
This is a busy time for the post office and as is customary many extra staff have been taken on for the Christmas period.

Of the more than 100 temporary staff, the majority are helping to handle mail bags or sort letters and cards. Fewer than a dozen are on the letter-carrier routes. This apparently leaves the hard-pressed permanent staff to look after patrons mailing parcels, buying stamps and so on.

In the late afternoon at least, between 5.30 p.m. and 6 p.m., there is always a long line-up at the post office—usually only one wicket open of the post office staff to serve them. On one occasion we noticed a wicket for stamps only, but it closed immediately after we were served, at 5.30 p.m.

It would be a convenience for both post-office staff and public alike if this extra wicket were to remain open until 6 p.m. Many of the people waiting in line want only stamps or air letters and it is irksome to have to wait as long as 10 minutes while parcels (including routine mailings by local businesses and plants) are processed first.

Quebec Appointment



For some time there has been talk of establishing the office of ombudsman in Canada. It has been discussed both on a federal basis and by individual provinces.

Thus far, however, it has not gone beyond the discussion stage. Now, however, the city of Laval in Quebec has announced it will soon employ an ombudsman, to protect the rights of its citizens.

The job, in its modern sense, originated in Scandinavia and has been adopted by other countries, notably New Zealand. The ombudsman is an independent arbiter of issues in which citizens feel their rights have been infringed.

The Laval experiment will be watched with interest. So far as we are aware, it is the first such appointment in Canada.

To Everyone—on land, on sea, in the air—and in orbit—MERRY CHRISTMAS!

TB Is Quiet Disease And So Spreads Easily

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there such a thing as tuberculosis of the brain? What is the treatment for a young child who has T.B. of the lungs? How effective is the patch test? — Mrs. M. S.

Yes, there's such a thing as tuberculosis of the brain. The important point in tuberculosis is that the tubercle bacillus (or T.B.) is a germ. Like some other germs, it prefers attacking one part of the body — the lungs in this case. But it can attack anywhere. For reasons we do not know, it can invade the skin, bone, brain, or other organs.

Certain combinations of drugs now combat the T.B. germ with effectiveness we did not dream about 20 years or so ago. Streptomycin PAS (para-amino-salicylic acid, which makes the streptomycin much more effective) and a group of drugs of what we call the nizids, are especially useful in combating the T.B. germ.

However, since the treatment takes time, it remains important for the patient to get nourishing food and sufficient rest.

Furthermore, since tuberculosis has a nasty habit of starting slowly and unobtrusively, most patients have scattered the germ among friends and relatives before realizing that they have it.

Thus treatment is only part of the job when someone is known to be ill from this cause. The second step is to make sure that the patient does not continue to spread the germ. The only good answer is to put the patient in a sanitarium until the disease has passed the point at which it can be transmitted to others.

The third aspect is to use the skin tests and, when appropriate, X-rays, to find out whether people close to the patient have picked up the germ. The big danger of T.B. is that it passes along quietly to so many people before anyone knows it is there.

The answer about treating a child, then is this: Put the child in a sanitarium until the germ no longer is active or can be transmitted; test to see whether others in the family or playmates have contracted the disease; have the child tested every three or six or 12 months for at least five years to make sure the disease does not become active again.

The "patch test" to see whether a person has been exposed to the T.B. germ, is not used very much now because better tests have been developed. The intradermal test (injection of a testing material between layers of the skin) and the relatively new Tine test are more accurate. But any test, intelligently used, is better than none.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a boy, 16 and was listening to an argument between my brother and sister that a girl is more mature at 16 than a boy at the same age. Would you write an an swer? — E. B.

Yes, I will. It's true. Physically, girls reach their full height sooner than boys do — but they don't grow as tall. Emotionally, the same little differences prevail. I guess that's why girls like boys a bit older, and boys like girls a bit younger. Yet in the long run, I don't know whether it matters much if any.

* * *

Mrs. J. C. D.: The drug you are taking to relieve water from the system does not (a) cause nervousness; (b) cause addiction. I assume that you see your doctor from time to time for checkups. Mention this nervousness to him so he can start looking for the cause.

Public Affairs In Ameliasburg

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I regret the delay in writing this letter however, the publication last Saturday of the letter written by Mr. Nightingale, clerk of Ameliasburg township, reminded me of my obligation in the press.

Firstly, I would personally commend the news media for the coverage given the various Home Owners Assoc. and Planning Board meetings held in this township over the past year. Further, the coverage given the local municipal election left no doubt as to all aspect involved here.

I am sure that your reporter must have found it extremely difficult to cover, with accuracy, township affairs due to the many conflicting statements made at these meetings.

Referring to Mr. Nightingale's letter as a case in point, it hold a misconception from the clerical supervisor of the Community Planning Branch, Toronto, dated Nov. 30, advising that the township official plan proposal had been dismissed. This information was made public by myself in the absence of any other information from any source whatever. Subsequently, on my repeated references to the above noted letter, the chairman of the township planning board did in fact attempt to clarify the matter at a public meeting held at Rossmore.

I give the above information to point up my reference regarding the difficulty of the press in matters of this nature and the lack of communication between elected officials and the electorate.

Seldom do public officials pay credit to the press for good coverage however, one misunderstanding or error and there is an tendency to publicly denounce the press and to "set the record straight."

(F. A. Evans)
President
Ameliasburg Home Owners Association.

Avalanche of Mail

Ottawa Journal

Some organizations send us mail, the same mail, over and over again. They send it—usually a press release of marginal interest—to the editor, the editor-in-chief, the managing editor, the news editor, the city editor, the features editor, the editorial page editorial writers — anyone, we presume, whom the sender figures would feel slighted if not receiving three or four copies.

Does this result in an item getting into the paper 33 different times No, it results in an item getting into 33 different wastebaskets. Everyone knows everyone else has a copy so let them read it. Or worse, all the other copies of the lucky recipients decided the editorial page people should have a look at it. The results is not fair.

Multiply this avalanche of unnecessary mail by the number of organizations sending mail to each other in the world today, and a major human problem is evident, to the post office at least. The one sure way not to attack it is to send press releases to all the key people in the world.

Ottawa Offbeat

Much Talk, Little Action About Future of Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There are new discussions going on concerning this city, the capital of Canada.

Since the last world war there have been any number of talks, rumors and old wives' tales about the future of the capital.

In almost all of them there was the suggestion that the federal government should take over and establish a national capital area like Washington, D.C.

Oddly enough, no mention of such a move has been made this time.

Instead, current discussions centre on the report of Murray Jones, a Toronto planning consultant who advocates a much stronger municipal structure which could actually defy federal take-over.

And, just as oddly, all the area municipalities, including Ottawa, have objected to the plan.

For the smaller municipalities, of course, it would mean being swallowed up by Ottawa. That is, councils of surrounding towns, townships and villages would disappear and the whole area would be ruled by a council largely elected by the people of Ottawa.

Because of the objections, a compromise plan has now been suggested, whereby all the smaller councils would remain, but ruling over them all would be a metropolitan super-council.

We're still waiting for reaction to that.

The basis of all the talks, rumors, etc., has been that because the surrounding municipalities have much smaller tax than Ottawa (which has a population near 300,000) they tend to lean on the city in the fields of hospitalization and health and welfare services.

While some of the smaller communities enjoy lower taxes than the city proper, their property drive their incomes from the city and make use of some city facilities.

In an unusual example, the Village of Rockcliffe, surrounded by the city, pays higher taxes (on prestige property) but is not even booked into the city's water and sewer systems.

Wells and private tanks service the richest and most expensive homes in the area.

Other small but fast-growing communities on several occasions when the city grew out of them and annexed to demand water and sewer services. It was felt the people in them should pay the same taxes as the people paying for the services.

It is now felt this should be done on a wider scale and without piecemeal annexation, but by outlying communities are not so ready to give up their relative autonomy — nor to pay Ottawa taxes.

For taxes in the capital are high, among the very highest in the land.

This is because Ottawa is a one-industry city and that industry — government — does not pay taxes if it chooses not to do so.

Grants in lieu of taxes are paid and they have yet to become as big as a proper tax bill would be if all government property was properly assessed, even only as that of an ordinary householder.

PROPERTY TAX

If it could be taxed as a business, as is done in other cities to industries, the disparity between grants and taxes would be even greater.

But without this form of tax revenue, the city simply must tax the property owners a bit heavier each year to pay for extended services and increased school facilities demanded by an ever-increasing population.

And the reason the population is expanding is because government — federal government — is getting bigger and bigger each year.

This, of course, is why periodic suggestions are made that the government should take over the whole area.

It would then have to foot the bills, while maintaining property taxes at a reasonable level and making up the inevitable differences out of general revenues.

The people of Ottawa feel it is only fair that the rest of the country should share in the cost of maintaining the capital (they already do in part) since it serves the whole country.

And, not surprisingly, every survey made on the question in the city shows that the majority of residents perfectly willing to forego their municipal franchise in favor of federal rule and stable taxation.

But, then, most of them are civil servants anyway and quite used to the idea of letting somebody else look after them.

However, as things typically go in Ottawa, little is likely to be done.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 18th, 1945

"If the Hastings County Conservancy Committee accepts and carries out the suggestions made by the Provincial Government on the Moira River and river valley following the survey, we can prepare for a program which will make these plans tangible," was the opinion of Mr. Alex Lucas of the Ontario Dept. of Planning and Development as expressed to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon.

Mr. Lucas stated that there were four separate divisions in flood control, wild life conservation and contour control. The first plays a very important part in flood control, and should be protected. The conservation of wild life is not alone the responsibility of the government, and can only be protected if every sportsman plays his part. Contour cultivation is a comparatively recent idea, but it will virtually stop erosion and increase crops 30 percent.

Mr. Lucas concluded his address, stating that the government would send all experts to any part of the province, and expressed the hope that the Kiwanis Club would get behind the Moira River survey. Rotarian [illegible] tendered hearty thanks of the club to Mr. Lucas.

Avoid Change Says Indian

Letter to Brantford Expositor from E. P. Garlow

It has been reported in the press that the federal government is going to dump the Indian people in the lap of provincial governments, I wish to point out some of our treaties made in the time of King George III state that on various occasions the Mohawks and others of the Six Nations, manifested their bravery and so by their merits and characteristics obtained the treaties from the British.

We wish to retain our freedom and our Indian mode of life. A hand may make application for enfranchisement. The Six Nations Indian has not yet exercised its right under the Indian Act to seek enfranchisement because I believe the majority of our Indians are not capable of assuming the duties and responsibilities of citizenship.

Our council should not sit idle when the federal government proposes to transfer responsibility for the Indian people to provincial government.

Voter Apathy Widespread

Vancouver Sun

Voter apathy at the municipal level is an international condition. According to a survey by the University of Michigan, federal, state, and emotional issues such as politics and race can get out the vote but not local government. Neither the breadth or narrowness of the franchise nor the presence or absence of the ward system makes an appreciable difference.

Canada, the New Zealand survey showed, can expect from 30 to 60 per cent of eligible voters to turn out for a municipal election; South Africa 32 to 33 per cent; Britain, 30 to 40 per cent; Australia, 50 per cent; from 85 to 99 per cent. But that's because of compulsory voting.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By JAMES R. STAVELEY,
Employer Relations Officer

The local employment picture remained static during the past week, as represented by employment opportunities listed by local employers with the Belleville National Employment Service Office. The labor demand was practically the same for both the female and male worker.

A review of the employment trend in the community during the present year reveals a buoyant economy with the exception of the Rancroft district which is included in the local National Employment Service Office area. Throughout the year, there was a consistently strong demand for the skilled and educated worker, with a good demand for the semi-skilled and unskilled worker. This is particularly significant, in view of the fact, that there is no large accelerating industrial expansion taking place in the community.

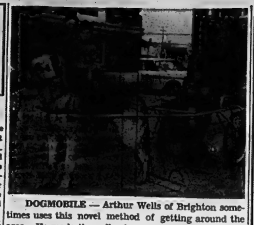
Elsewhere in Canada, this labor demand was, in some areas, most acute leading to labor shortages with the resultant loss of industrial production. This situation resulted in world known business enterprises sending their personnel representatives at various times during the year to the Belleville NES. for assistance in recruiting their labor requirements.

This past week has been no exception, as a company utilized the local NES office to interview prospective employees for permanent industrial plant employment. This particular company offers a starting wage rate of $2.05 per hour, plus shift premiums and other attractive fringe benefits. The stipulated requirements in this case, call for a Grade 9 education, and age range of 18 to 45 years, with a height of at least 5 foot 7 inches. Applicants possessing only a Grade 9 education must raise their standing to the Grade 10 level, by further study.

It is opportune at this time of the year to emphasize the importance of supporting the nation-wide Winter Employment Campaign in order to alleviate any seasonal unemployment by "Planning Now" to have that repair, alteration, expansion or decoration job done during the winter months.

The following job opportunities represent a few of those now available at your local NES office.

In the female division there are several positions open out-of-town, as follows:



A typist is required to supervise a staff of 4 other typists. The successful applicant must possess a Grade 12 education, plus a commercial training and the necessary experience. The salary would depend upon the qualifications.

Also required is a saleslady who can supervise a sales staff in a ladies' and children's wear section of a large departmental store. Supervising ability and experience and maturity are essential for this position.

An interesting opportunity is available for a qualified commercial artist to illustrate for a well established department store.

An attractive position is vacant in Manitoba to work as a clerk typist with a large airline company. The requirements will for at least six months' experience and only single persons will be considered by the company.

Still required for an industrial plant in the Toronto area are female workers to assemble communications equipment.

DOGMOBILE — Arthur Wells of Brighton sometimes uses this novel method of getting around the area. He made the sulky from metal tubing and two bicycle wheels. His German Shepherd dog pulls the cart at a fast pace with little effort.
(Wm. W. Reid photo)

The requirements call for a Grade 10 education, an age range of 18 to 43 years, good color vision, manual dexterity and to be righted handed. Experience is not essential as the company will train inexperienced employees. A medical examination must also be passed and the company will arrange to interview suitable applicants in the local area.

LOCAL VACANCIES

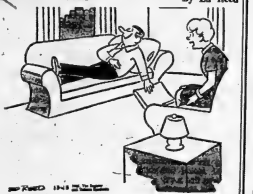
In the male division locally, a junior draftsmen is required by an electronic equipment manufacturer. Training will be provided in a specialized field. Some experience in electrical or mechanical drafting will be an advantage.

An active, healthy man, forty to sixty years of age or thereabouts, is need; to perform janitor's duties in a local school. This would be a full - time, secure employment.

A farm machinery dealer has an opening for a parts man. Qualified men are invited to telephone NES at once.

A glass company wants a glazier. Fair wages are offered, commensurate with demonstrated ability.

A man of smart appearance and top - notch driving ability and unblemished record is required by a charter coach company. He should be competent to undertake running repairs.



Another firm is seeking an alert young man who possesses a Grade 10 education to work and train as a stock clerk.

An attractive selling position is open in the office equipment field. This opening calls for someone possessing at least Grade 12 education, who is 25 to 30 years of age, with preference to a married man.

Employment opportunities, covering a wide range of occupations are available to those workers willing to work in other locations elsewhere in Canada.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking employment or thinking of re - entering the labor market please contact the local NES Office at 324 Church St. Belleville, or telephone 962-8681.

Bubbly Champagne Business Remains "A Vintage Art"

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

REIMS, France — Havana cigars and only those Havana; Scotch whisky comes from Scotland. And champagne — regardless of what it says on the bottle — comes only from 30,000 chalky, dun-colored legally defined acres of France near the Reims known as the Champagne district.

Except for two companies in the nearby village of Epernay, all the major producers are in this city of 140,000 persons, most of whom make their living from the bubbly. Those who don't make wine make bottles, corks, labels, glue, or shipping cartons.

Or they sell it. Though champagne isn't appreciably cheaper here than anywhere else, shop advertises the product with an empty Methuselam or so standing out on the curb. The wine list of the Lion d'or Hotel lists 86 choices from 40 producers (about all there are), including such little known types as natural, red, cremant, and half carbonated. In the Romanesque Medieval cathedral of Reims known for its brilliant rosette stained glass windows dating to the thirteenth century, has an angel-studded window of more recent vintage devoted to champagne - making.

Ever since Dom Perignon in the Abbey of Hautvillers came up with that famous but possibly apocryphal line about drinking stars (actually champagne was known and he'd been working on a formula for years), the industry has been trying to improve it. Champagne is sold in about every country of the world except the Soviet Union which, naturally, thinks it invented it and makes its own.

RECORD YEAR

Last year was the best in history, both a vintage and bumper crop. Some 70,000,000 bottles were brought in, an added 300,000 for their producers, a good part of which went to the farmers who didn't have big cars and have TV sets.

Champagne grapes sell for about 80 cents a pound, more than twice as much as other wine grapes, and are too rare to sell for eating purposes. You can't pick tonem off the vines on the Rhenima Mountain, the Marne Valley and Cote des Blancs in the autumn, however.

There are two basic types; the black pinot noir and the white Chardonnay, and they taste like champagne, all right. There are more than 40 growths of these two most of them used in the blend of each producer.

About 2,000,000 of those 70,000,000 bottles a year are produced by the venerable firm of G. H. Mumm and Co., France's second largest and the biggest exporter to the United States and Canada (a quarter of their production). Most champagne, incidentally, is consumed in France.

Mumm happily opens its doors and caves to tourists for showing their methods, compounded of everything from huge computerized automatic blending machines to 11-oil-fashioned winemakers. Their specialties are giving the bubbles periodic twists and shakes (a machine for the job has yet to be developed successfully) and tilting the bottles just so on racks and then letting the term on their noses in great piles that would fall over if they weren't just so.

SILL AN ART

Modern methods notwithstanding, champagne making still is basically an art. The annual crisis comes when the crop has been pressed, analyzed, and tasted. Then four directors of Mumm meet to splendid seclusion for the assembling of information on how much to vary the standard blend to accommodate the year's characteristics.

There are, of course, vintage years and they are so labeled and charged for accordingly (prices are fixed by agreement of the producers). The last great year was 1959. But the reason good champagne varies little from year to year is that each producer keeps a reserve supply in storage for mixing with lesser years. Mumm stores its wines in old enamel tiled cement tanks holding about 7,000 gallons each, since champagne generally keeps only about three years, so reserve has to be drawn after that time if it has not been sold.

The bubbles come from the wine's own skillful process of fermentation in the bottles, with periodic twisting, turning, tilting and uncapping to drain sediment until they are ready for corking, and shipping, the bottles with plastic stoppers and ordinary soda bottle keep down the loss of valuable pressure, which is about four times atmosphere in the red. For this reason, champagne from splits is not as good as in the larger bottles; the small ones are simply filled from larger ones, hence pressure — and bouquet — are lost. All this magnificent taken place at Mumm's in their fantastic 10 miles of limestone caves and cellars, 60 feet underground, where you may count 10 to 12 million bottles. The natural temperature of the caves is 44 degrees, exactly the temperature at which champagne should be served.

MATTER OF TASTE

The sweetness of champagne is a matter of taste. Though connoisseurs prefer the mouth-pursing dryness of "brut," Mumm and the others cater to all. Mumm's biggest seller in America is the slightly sweeter extra dry," though in England brut is labeled extra-dry because the word brut doesn't register with the average customer.

Champagne may be chilled in a refrigerator, it is done in Europe, though a wine should be added to prevent it becoming too cold. Too much chill accentuates the flavor and wipes out the bouquet. And if you don't finish the bottle, you may cork it up and save it; it will keep its bubbles for a day or so.

Contrary to everything you've ever thought, champagne should not be served in a wide flat stem glass; it doesn't show off the bubbles and it gets warm too quickly. It should be served in a tall thin one, preferably slightly rounded at the top to enclose the bouquet.

To open a champagne bottle without losing the bubbling your eye or the ceiling, remove the foil and wire carefully, then simply twist the cork in the palm of the hand between the thumb and forefinger, holding the neck of the bottle in the other hand.

Still wines also come from the Champagne district, but not all champagne comes from the champagne. France recently won a legal fight with Spain on the name, though it isn't ready to sue rich California yet. Poor Dom Perignon would turn over in his bumble mound of bones if he knew what was going on in the name of those little stars he drank for the first time three centuries ago.

More Indian, Eskimo Guides Said Needed

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's first girl guide commissioner for the Yukon and Northwest Territories said here Friday she hopes more Indian and Eskimo girls will be trained as leaders in the movement.

Mrs. David Ouchterlony, appointed commissioner last June, recently completed a trip to the Mackenzie District and Yellowknife, N.W.T. The 1,300 guides, brownies, rangers and guides in the area include the world's northernmost troop at Grise Fiord on Ellesmere Island, she said.

Troop leaders there are usually missionary teachers, wives of RCMP officers or school teachers. She'd don't know the Eskimo language.

"There are girls who have been guides who translate and interpret what the leader is saying to the children. We have had guide uniforms sewn in Eskimo syllabics, but the games and songs don't require translation for the leader they break the language barrier."

However, training more Indians and Eskimo girl leaders "would be an answer to the problem of constant moving of guide leaders from one place to another," she said.

Readers' Saturday Column

Question—I'm tired of packing lunches each a.m. and have decided to get with it and make up quantities and freeze them. Could I have some ideas for filling?—Mrs. E. R. H.

Answer—In anticipation of the new school year starting in September 1963 I wrote a column on making sandwiches for school lunches for a week that could be frozen. Readers gobbled it up. I am glad to have your request and to repeat this.

SATURDAY (Party)

Dinner Menu

LUNCHBOX SANDWICHES — MAY BE FROZEN

—Nearly Enough Ideas for One Week

HARD-COOKED EGG SANDWICHES (may be frozen)

Cover 4 eggs with cold water, cover and bring to boil and turn off heat. Let stand for 20 minutes to hard-cook. Chill in cold water. Peel and mash and chop or grind hard-cooked eggs. Add ½ cup genuine mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons mustard relish (I green hot dog relish, 1 teaspoon chopped green onion. Notes: 1) If you do not have the relish on hand use 1 tablespoon French mustard instead. 2) Chopped salad olives are a good addition too. Mix all of whatever you choose well. This amount will fill six 2-slice sandwiches.

Spread 6 slices of bread with butter. Spread remaining 6 slices with egg filling. Put pairs together. Cut each in half (or quarter) and wrap each in wax paper or saran. Using 2 plastic bags at once, slip 1 inside the other to make a double-strength bag. Slip wrapped sandwiches inside. Add a note telling what the bag contains. Fold top of bags over 4 times, fold the fold together and freeze.

When sandwiches are needed take out the number you need for the current lunch you are assembling.

VARIATIONS: Ham: You can use the same proportions of additions for ground ham sandwiches. • If you have a ham bone Sunday don't cut enough from the shank end to make 2 cups, lightly packed, when ground. Use it instead of the 4 hard-cooked eggs in above recipe. Make up in white, rye or whole wheat bread slice and wrap and label and freeze as above.

Beef— Substitute 2 cups lightly packed ground roast beef from Sunday dinner for the eggs in above recipe but add 1 teaspoon horseradish. Make up, wrap and label as above.

Chicken: Substitute 2 cups lightly packed ground boiled or roast chicken for the eggs in above but omit mustard relish or mustard and add finely chopped celery instead. Make up, wrap, label and freeze as above. Note: Marianne says Gary's favorite sandwich is chicken salad with currant jelly. Eleanor says David's favorite is peanut butter with blueberry jam. So get smooth peanut butter into the act occasionally if you want to keep your kids happy.

Successful Living

Appreciates Help From Family Agency

DEAR DORIS: My new husband and I appreciate the advice you give in telling couples to consult with their family agency. We are both "graduates," separately, having both been married before, and helped through the miseries of divorce.

My counselor was also kind and wise enough to warn me not to expect to receive the maintenance ordered by the Family Court and she helped me to plan a budget within my own earnings—with the maintenance cheques, when they did come, going into a savings account to cover emergencies.

Unfortunately, our problems are not solved when a maintenance order is made, even from an ex-husband who is employed full DORIS CLARK time. Family Court is just too busy making maintenance orders — they don't have time to enforce them if they come across a man who must be chased continually.

In my opinion, much bitterness is caused by disillusionment — and who can be more bitter against the world than a woman who thinks she can get at least 50% of her husband's earnings "to make him suffer," and instead finds that he is living off the fat of the land while she has to do without? It just does not work that way!

When I look back over the years of struggle (the first one was the worst), I can say, "Well, it really wasn't so bad — I managed to get by." And I think the secret is not to get oneself "in a flap;" take one problem at a time and work it out carefully, weighing the pros and cons, and at the same time doing a little thinking ahead for "if this happens."

Without the good and sound advice of a wonderful helper at our family agency and my pastor, and not being ashamed to explain to my children's teachers that they came from a broken home, I know I would not be where I am today. And your column, too, has done much to help me meet the "if this happens" problems. — CAME OUT ON TOP.

DEAR ON TOP: Score for our side! And thanks for saying so.

I couldn't agree more about the disillusionment which sometimes awaits the separated spouse with children to support. It's a wise woman who can find a way of bringing in enough funds to meet at least part of her own expenses.

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Ann Landers

Small Things Cause Trouble in Marriage

DEAR—ANN LANDERS: I'm a man who has been married for 21 years. My mother always used to say, "It's the little things that break up marriages. People manage the big things somehow." She was so right.

My wife has a habit that drives me nuts. Whenever we go out for dinner she never orders salad or dessert. Her items sang is, "All I want is a small steak and a vegetable." The minute my salad comes she puts her fork in it — "just to taste the dressing." If I don't pitch in fast I don't get any.

ANN LANDERS

With the dessert, it's the same story. She'll say, "Herman, it looks so good. I'll just take a smidge." Then she moves in for half or more.

This has been going on for 25 years. She knows I hate it but she does it anyway. If you can think of a solution you are a genius. — D. PRIVED.

DEAR D.: The experts tell us that the desire to eat off the plate of another person is a sign of genuine affection. So, consider it a compliment and pray for another 25 years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you do with a boss who throws things? I don't mean in a fit of temper or anything like that. He just throws things because he is too lazy to walk a few steps.

Instead of carrying the telephone directory to the stand he will heave it 15 feet. After it lands on the filing cabinet but usually it hits the floor. One day I'm afraid he will fracture my skull. This is entirely possible as we live in Dallas and our phone books are large and heavy.

He also throws rubber bands, paper clips and anything else that comes handy.

Why does he throw things and is there any hope of curing him? — CONSTANTLY DUCKING.

DEAR DUCK: Your boss probably makes mind bets as to whether or not he's going to hit his target. Tell him you want to get in on the betting, too. If he hits you he owes you $20. (P.S.: And no fair moving in the direction of the flying object.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Next week our 18-year-old son enters the Air Force. To be truthful, I can hardly wait till the kid leaves.

The boy's father has never encouraged him to accomplish anything at school. He has always said "If you just get by, that's good enough, son. If you're too smart nobody will like you."

One thing the boy's father has encouraged is beer drinking. The two of them sit down and put away eight steins apiece. They get loud and raucous but my husband insists they are not drunk because "beer is mild."

I'm glad to say that the service will straighten our son out. Please print my letter!. I'd like to put it in my husband's lunch pail. — BESSIE.

DEAR BESSIE: Please don't expect the Air Force to perform miracles. It can only work with the material it gets. I hope your husband's example will encourage a lot of military service vastly improved, however, and it may happen to your boy, so don't give up hoping.

Your husband's drinking does no harm so far except to beer-gunzling. Some alcoholics drink nothing but beer. (P.S.: I hope your husband enjoys his lunch today.)

Sine; stewardship — Mrs. Murney Johnston; supply — Mrs. J. B. Hagerman and Mrs. Stanley Keller; social functions — Mrs. Thomas Clements and Mrs. Wickens; nominations — Mrs. Albert Twiddy and Mrs. Frank McGee.

A Lift for Living

If Christ Is to Live Today We Must Hold The Baby

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Babies are tiny magnets that ting on our affections and draw out our secret tenderness until, in spite of ourselves, we show our better nature.

We may pride ourselves on being hard-headed creatures with our emotions under easy control; no soft sentiment can move us. Then we see a baby, or hear its cry or its first laughter, and we are surprised at our own soft-hearted gentleness. Before we can catch our words, a whimsical petition escapes our lips: "Do you mind if I hold the baby?"

I have sometimes wondered if the shepherds who visited Bethlehem that Holy Night long ago might have had one among them who abidy asked of Mary and Joseph, "May I hold the Baby?" Or, do you suppose one of the Wise Men from the East relaxed his stately reserve long enough to ask, "Please, would it be asking too much if I held the Baby?"

Or did gentle, gracious Mary, sensing a shepherd's yearning or a Wise Man's longing, ask, "Would you like to hold the Baby?"

Babies need holding. Child specialists have long known of this need and have emphasized it. But it was always so, since the first human baby was born. Babies have always needed to be held. They derive their sense of security and a sense of worth from being wanted and loved and from the warmth, tenderness and support of being tenderly embraced.

Even the strongest and mightiest of men once had to be held. It is difficult, isn't it, to imagine our ferocious ex-enemies being babies, unknown to the world, weak and utterly dependent upon a mother's care, crying in the night like millions of babies before them.

Washington, Lincoln, Nelson, Churchill, Einstein, Schweitzer, and all the world's other men of power were once tiny masses of flesh, frail, needing constant care. The strongest once could and walk, the eloquent once could speak; the brilliant were once dim of mind and blinded by the newness of the world into which they had emerged. All the world's greatest does lay helpless in a parent's arms.

NEED SUPPORT

What we have said about the Infant Jesus is true of all of God's gifts: they need to be held. They cannot be left suspended in the world without support. This is so concerning the loveliest abstractions we know, such as beauty, truth and goodness; they must be held by something solid and strong.

See how true this is. Attempt to retain the word "beauty" in your thoughts for two full minutes without attaching it to any specific beautiful thing. You cannot do it. Before the moment pass the word "beauty" becomes associated with a sunset, a splendid tiling, a starlit sky, or freshly fallen snow that spreads white blankets on the fields and white shawls over the trees. Or you remember the face of someone near and dear.

You see beauty not as an unsupported abstraction but as loveliness held by the form of something in particular.

When someone says "truth," your mind at once associates the word with a specific verity that means much to you or with a certain truthful person whose genuineness you have learned to trust.

Hear the word "goodness" and your thoughts quickly fly to some scene where unselfishness or helpfulness is held in the embrace of a certain generous deed or a particular gracious person. When one little lad was asked where his dad was, he replied, "I don't know, but I'll bet he's somewhere's a kissin' someone." Goodness was so vague abstraction to that boy.

This is the nature of all of God's good gifts: they cry out to be held. They need human support and warmth and love.

IN MANY WAYS

So Christ held the idea of God and the character of God for the disciples. The Eternal could be described in many ways, but the disciples said the best way to picture God is to say, "God is in Christ." He is compassionate as Christ is compassionate, patient as Christ is patient, loving as Christ is loving, forgiving as Christ is forgiving.

As John put it in the Fourth Gospel, "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth." The Word was never grasped by man until it was held in Christ's flesh. As the Baby grew, the Word was expressed in feet that walked and ran, in lips that spoke and hands that worked at a carpenter's bench and blessed little children and healed the sick with a healing caress.

How could Christianity ever become the dull affair some people imagine it to be when it carries such exciting news about God — the Creator of the vast immensities we call "the Universe," the Fashioner of stars beyond the reach of sex and worlds beyond the worlds we know, coming to lowly Bethlehem to be held again. If Christ is to live in today's world it will be in us.

He will speak through our lips.

He will walk with our feet.

He will perform His wonderful works of mercy with our hands.

Shall we give Christ that chance?

Would you like to hold the Baby?

Church Groups

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN

The Presbyterian Women of St. Columba held their December meeting in the church, with president Iris Stolesbury presiding.

Reverend N. W. Hutchinson conducted a devotional period and installed the new officers for 1966.

An invitation was read from Eastminster United Church to their forthcoming coffee party.

Muriel Hendrickson will assist Margaret Taylor in convening a dinner of the Boys' Brigade later this month.

June Dunsmore reported the Christmas cake project a complete success and recommended the same project each year.

Following the business the members wrapped and tied Christmas cakes which each had brought to be distributed to women in the district less fortunate than themselves.

Lunch was served by the hostesses.

C.G.I.T. CANDLE LIGHTING SERVICE

FRANKFORD — On Sunday evening the C.G.I.T. of Frankford presented its Candle Lighting Service in Frankford United Church. The theme was "Immanuel — God With Us."

The prelude, a medley of Christmas carols, was played by Miss Janice Clinton and the girls entered in a processional.

The readers were Janis Sharpe and Meredith Howe, Pearl Bates was the candle lighter.

At intervals through the service, two anthems were given by the C.G.I.T. choir with Cathy Morse, Brenda Wickens, Raelene Rowe and Debbie Moran assisting in solo parts.

During the service, the congregation took part in responsive reading. The girls recessed with lighted candles from the choir during the last hymn.

Rev. C. Dugan pronounced the benediction.

Everyone was invited to a social hour in Rose Lowery Hall where lunch were sang led by Sharon and Linda DeFoe. Humorous readings were given by Susan Chase.

The girls served Christmas cookies and coffee.

Christmas Concerts

GRACE U. C.

NAPANEE — The primary department of Grace United Church had a real, old-time Christmas concert with many numbers on the program. Tableaux, drills, pantomimes, and exercises were ably presented by classes as a whole, recitations, songs and instrumental music were contributed by individual junior artists.

Everyone in the crowded Sunday school auditorium had a good time.

The Rev. Guy Case, the minister, was chairman for the evening, and Mary Hunter was the pianist. Mrs. H. H. Langford is superintendent of the primary department.

Teachers whose classes presented group numbers were Iris Reid, Sheila Asselstine, Linda Thompson, Mrs. Allan Vander Bogart, Mrs. Eleanor Tack and Beverley Case. The classes of Mrs. Blanche Duff and Mrs. Beverley Hunter chose to present two tableaux.

Danny Asselstine gave the welcome. Linda Hunter gave a Christmas recitation, Rickey Sweet, Donny Longmuir and Carol Wartman were the vocal soloists, and Andy Larston and Donald Hart played instrumental solos. Andy at the piano and Donald with the accordion.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

The Sunday school concert in Trinity United Church was divided into two parts, with each class in the junior department contributing a sunbeam, carol singing by the delighted parents and friends, and the little folk of the primary department, each class by class stealing the show as they always do. The true Christmas was stressed in both sections of the program, although Santa Claus and bits of humor were there, also.

William Aylsworth is the superintendent of the junior department, with Mrs. Donald Alkenbrack, Mrs. R. O. Freits, Mrs. R. A. Ballantyne, Mrs. Frank Hutchinson and Mrs. Dougald Boone as his teachers.

Mrs. Wesley Story, superintendent of the primary department had Jane Spencer, Susan Davis, Janice Clinton and Lacey Poole to assist her.

The minister, the Rev. E. Irvine Johnston was the master of ceremonies.

SANTA'S VISIT

Santa Claus was a busy man in Napanee Wednesday evening, as he made personal appearances at Christmas concerts in two churches, and at a party for the Pet Milk staff in the arena. Everywhere he went all three occasions, gladdening the hearts of all the wee tots as he gave to each a Christmas treat, and sometimes other gifts.

He had assistance on all occasions. He did not make it to the Free Methodist Church, but the leaders took over the work for him, there. In each case there was a lighted tree, and appropriate decorations created the atmosphere of Christmas.

entertainment in the Free Methodist Church was distinctly different this year, with old and young alike absorbed in watching an outstanding new film of the Christmas story. "Glory in the Highest" portrays the nativity from the announcement in the villagers that they must go to be taxed, until the visit of the Magi to the Christ child. Not even standing room was available, but even the smallest tot was silent.

Children of the primary department gave the opening welcome and the junior choir sang when the film was finished.

Mr. Bill Hughes, the superintendent and the chairman for the evening, invited the ministers, the Rev. Gordon Hammond and Mrs. Hammond to the front and presented them with a unique Christmas tableau. The arranged in a small basket covered with gold foil. Tight rolls of bills formed the foliage for the poinsettias. It was the Christmas gift of the congregation.

The children dispersed to their basement classrooms, where each was presented, not only with a Christmas treat, but with a gift from the Sunday school, selected by his teacher.

U.C.W. Meetings

MARSH HILL U.C.W.

The December meeting of Marsh Hill United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. Leslie Finkle, with 13 members present.

Mrs. Harold Detlor welcomed all to the Christmas meeting and thanked the members for their co-operation during the past two years.

Mrs. Albert Clare presided over the Christmas program and worship service. Two members enjoyed singing several familiar Christmas carols.

Rev. Benson Hinch read the Scripture lesson with Mrs. Don Irish giving the meditation, "When Do You Expect?"

The Finkle sisters sang a carol, and Mrs. Ivan Clare and Mrs. David Little sang a duet. A vocal on the Christmas Story was enjoyed by all.

The members reported sending 21 cards and three letters and making six house calls and two hospital visits.

Letters were read from several Presbyterial officers.

Mrs. Leslie Finkle installed the new officers.

After the benediction the hostess served refreshments.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS MORN

"All this was a long time ago, I remember, and I would do it again . . ." — T. S. Elliot in Journey of the Magi.

* * *

"The Christmas season resembles a bright circle," declared a friend the other day, "for each new Christmas brings a memory gift of Christmases past, then as a departing guest, adds a gift of memory of its own . . ."

Perhaps too, we all have one special, unforgettable Christmas. If we may speak of ours, it was one spent in Italy while on tour with an English party of 60 members.

"It's time we went to bed," said room-mate Ethel soon after the delicious English Christmas Eve dinner served by our Florentine hotel, in honor of our party. There had been everything from roast turkey to brandy-flaming plum-pudding.

"Otherwise, we'll never get up in the morning," we agreed. "Such an early train is ordered for Naples. It's a good thing we're all packed and ready . . ."

Long before the last guest came off the lights, pushed open the window a trifle that looked upon the ivory-hook Florentine park in the square, before slipping in between white clean sheets, to fall asleep the instant our head touched the softest of pillows.

NOISY AWAKENING

But not for long. Suddenly, there were voices at the door. The clamor of it all shot the both of us, bolt-up-right in bed, thumping on the open door was a maid and porter, gesticulating wildly as they shouted at us in language not couldn't understand.

Ethel fished for her watch under her pillow, looked at it, shook it and mutigred, "It's stopped. I must have forgotten to wind it." She sleepily scolded in a "What's-the-matter-can't-you - see - we're - sleep ing?" tone to the open door was a maid and porter, gesticulating wildly as they shouted at us in language not couldn't understand.

name!

We found ourselves before a lift, with members of our party cramming the windows, waving, calling frantically, to hurry. We leaped onto the low iron steps of a coach just as a low, discreet, squeak of a little whistle blown by a train-guard, started the train, unperceptibly but unerringly soon gliding swiftly away, with two of the most thankful girls in the world on it.

Everyone now showered us with congratulations, fruit and bon-bons upon our narrow escape from missing both train and Naples, when suddenly Ethel burst into tears. "My watch, I've left it . . ."

Instantly all of us crowded around to reassure her that chances were she would find it waiting for her at our hotel in Naples but nothing would console her.

"Of course, I can always buy another watch," Ethel sobbed. "But — my mother always warned me to put it under my pillow at night. She said some day I'd be sorry. I just couldn't bear to have her say, 'I told you so!' Especially about this very one which I wanted so much and which she managed to give to me — last Christmas!"

But all's well that ends well as the saying goes, and we're happy to say that the watch was safely waiting for her in Naples — along with an unforgettable Christmas memory, for all of us.

Christmas is but a week away and in the words of Charles Dickens, we wish our readers all our "best wishes for your Merry Christmastide and good happy New Years, your long lives and your true prosperities."

Lines on Life

Man Born to Trouble

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

"Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die!"

These sentiments, we are told, are the morbid roots of our youth's frantic antics, their irrepressible promiscuities, the moral and physical debasements of a generation that knows that it is going nowhere.

The fears of the younger ones, who should be fearless, Eve said to be at the root of their maladies. Troubles — cheating in school, the rising tide of sexual aberration, the growing use of narcotics, the criminality of anti-social teen-agers. Fears of atomic destruction, so the theory goes, have made the new generation of calous toward planning careers and indifferent to all standards or morality.

And coupled to this terror of the bomb is the widespread notion that society has been so dehumanized by our machines that life has little meaning, anymore.

Actors meander from one stage to another, in theatre after theatre, where the same playwrights seemed to have been bought at the same factory: society is decadent and not worth saving, and the only intelligent thing for a young person to do is to reject the whole unhappy mess and to have no part in it. And why this? No persons exist anymore, anyway, they say — modern man has become a tiny number in a giant IBM computer, superannuated in the mighty mangles of the machine age. Why bother, then, about goals, values, standards, or ethics?

FRET ABOUT SELVES

It is probably true that no generation before us has been so fearful of the threat of total destruction on a global scale. But such a threat produces universal fears — fears for ourselves and our immediate kin — not social frights. Few lie awake in the morning about the future of the world; if they are sleepless at all, it is probably because they are fretting over themselves.

What is more: no age has surpassed this in the amount of evidence of fears of all forms: plague, disease, war and poverty have been absent in the face of any previous generation. Men were always obliged to recognize that life was an obstacle course and that, in Job's words, "man was born to trouble as the sparks fly upward." Fears of total destruction spawned by an atomic age seem to be just another excuse on the part of lazy men to stand up to the only age they will ever live in — their own.

Nor are the terrors of the machine age any the more genuine. They too provide abnormal flounderers with an alibi for their own aimlessness. Materialism, no previous generation has had it so good. And spiritually, too, the industrial age has brought the cultural riches of the past and present to our very doorsteps — if we would get ourselves off of our hands to reach out for them.

We cannot blame our short-handedness by ascribing human servitude to the machine. For those who would be free, the machine can emancipate. Those who have nothing to say are not even handicapped by the typewriter.

They who eat, drink and make merry are those who would do just these things, lie any case — dying now, tomorrow, or the day after but nothing to do with the case. Others who face the world instead of fleeing it, eat and drink, too. But they know the difference between means and ends.

And there's a very special merriment in this.

Suspend Two Orderlies at County Home

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Two orderlies at the Victoria County Home for the Aged here have been suspended following allegations residents were brutally beaten.

The suspensions were announced Friday night after a meeting between Edward Illit of the county solicitor's office and Byron Rogers, chairman of the board that administers the home. In this town 35 miles northwest of Peterborough.

James Growden, 64, of Lindsay, earlier presented charges of ill-treatment of residents to the board's monthly meeting.

Mr. Growden said he had seen four incidents of brutality during the last year while visiting his brother, Fred, one of 94 residents of the home.

TO CONDUCT INQUIRY

After hearing the charges, the board asked County Judge H. E. Richardson to conduct a judicial inquiry.

Mr. Growden said he saw orderlies bump one man's head against a wall and knock down another with a punch to the neck. He also said a broom handle was broken across the neck of one resident.

The latest incident occurred Dec. 2 when an orderly, whose breath smelled of alcohol, punched an 81-year-old man in the head, he said.

Mr. Growden said he reported two of the incidents to Superintendent Laughie Keeler.

Mr. Keeler said Friday he was not told about the alleged beatings and called Mr. Growden's charges "unjust," but welcomed the inquiry.

SUPPORT CHARGES

Support for the charges came from two women, one a former employee and the other now working there.

Mrs. Robert Aldrich, a nursing assistant until she quit two years ago, said she once saw a crippled person kicked along a corridor by an orderly. The orderly still is at the home and residents are terrified of him.

Mrs. Joan Charlebois, a cleaner at the home, said "it is common knowledge" the kind of treatment given residents. She added it was a common occurrence for the men to be placed in empty bath tubs and then have hot water poured on them.

The Golden Years

Dear Sirs: Your Retirement Should Be About Like This

By THOMAS COLLINS

A 67-year-old man, retired for two years, has seen fit to write a letter of advice to former colleagues who are still on the job and moving up toward age 65.

"Dear Driends:

"This is a New Year's letter, and therefore a letter of hope for what is to come. I am tempted to be cute about it, as retired men frequently are. But I'm afraid I'd look silly, as retirees who try to be cute frequently do.

"I want to tell you in a simple and honest way what I have learned about retirement in two years. If you'll listen, I think you'll learn something.

"Retirement is all right. So don't fear it. It has some problems. It's not all good. But it's all right, and in some circumstances it's wonderful.

"Money is your major worry, as it was mine. I have found money, in retirement, to be a contribution to all I ever knew about it. The more you have — almost without exception — the thinner your retirement will be. You will need the basics, which are food, shelter, clothing. I have seen many people getting these in trailer parks and in other economical retreats in communities in the cities built on $700 to $250 a month . . . and in almost all cases they are mingling with people and are happy. I have found that the more money a retired couple has, the higher level of living they adopt . . . and the higher the level of living the fewer contacts with other people. The rich retired man can't share a barbecue with a laborer working on his street, or sit on a river bank and fish with a couple of fellows and a couple of beers. He has to maintain a dignity that fits his financial status. And he loses out on one of the major areas of enjoyment in retirement.

"The rich retirement communities are dull, sterile, and lonely places. The cheap ones are bubbling with life. Go see.

THREE PROBLEMS

"Your three major problems in retirement will be loneliness, idleness and a feeling of uselessness. Know this now. Then figure your own peculiar way to solve them. There are no rules, no textbooks.

"Your major responsibility in retirement will be your wife. First, to help her adjust to you being home all the time; and second, to get your affairs in such shape that she will be provided for in case you go first.

"I think perhaps I have been most at good and as bad as most men. When I retired — and you may well have this same feeling — I was overcome with a thought I could now become a noble person. Not out of appreciation of your brimstone and eternal damnation — not really. But out of a belief that once a man is relieved of the pressures of a working world he has a clear track to be good. And that it is a duty of people to be good. I found it not easy. Jealousies, competition, compromises with what is right, selfishness — these die hard because for all your life you've fed them. I have found great satisfaction in fighting this battle. And slowly I am winning it. .

"I have found religion good. But only in the services, the Bible, and the prayers as I feel I want to say them. Not in the sickening I would warn you that you will get little satisfaction from being a busy-boy in the mechanics of your church.

FIGHT LAZINESS

"I have come to believe that three diseases kill you in retirement: cancer, heart trouble, and laziness. The laziness is because your body will, eventually, you and thus become a narcotic. Fight it.

"I have found that plenty of friends can be had in retirement, provided you're not obnoxious and not a cheapskate in returning invitations. Everybody you meet would like to have many friends. But most tall - party friends and retired friends aren't the answer. The former drift away to a better bar; the latter fade away too quickly. People in the 50's who can converse are the ones who feed and who will be around for a while are best.

"I have found that retired people who develop self-sufficiency — who read books, have a minor hobby, watch TV, even do papers so they have something to talk about, and fill up their days without outside help — are the happiest.

"Thus, my New Year's message to you Study it. And don't protest too loudly that you'll have a good retirement. Those who do are the guys who don't.

"Love from Freedomland,

"Josh H. Wharton."

Gets New Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Gerald I. Bildson, 33-year-old Kingston school principal convicted last month on charges of conspiring to juvenile delinquency, Friday was granted a new trial.

Prayer Book Is Revised In England

LONDON (AP)—The Church of England has taken a step toward bringing itself up to date with its first major revision of the prayer book in more than 300 years.

The measure, published Wednesday, includes alternative forms of service recommended by the archbishops of Canter bury and York and approved by Parliament. They may be used in all English churches as from May 1 next year, if further approved by a two-thirds majority of the church assembly.

Among the changes:

—Simplified forms of morning and evening prayer with omission of the prayer for the monarch and Royal Family, but not obligatory.

—Three new litanies for the state, the church, and the common good.

A simple form of thanksgiving after child birth instead of the outmoded churching of women.

—A prayer for use at the burial of suicides.

—A draft order for holy communion that would allow the maximum amount of experiment in the interpretation of eucharistic doctrine.

South Africa Has Bilingual Problem But Black Majority Unifies Whites

Canadian Press reporter Joseph MacSween found during his stay in South Africa that the republic has problems of bilingualism fairly similar to Canada's. He discusses some of the comparisons in this story.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

PRETORIA (CP) — National politician Hermann Lampen switched from Afrikaans to English for a few sentences and remarked jokingly:

"I'm doing this for the edification of the representatives of the English press, who might not be sufficiently well-educated to understand Afrikaans."

That seemed a mite unfair to the 10 journalists dutifully scribbling notes for English-language newspapers and the South African Press Association. Seven of them were Afrikaners.

Anyway, it illustrates that South Africa, like Canada, has bilingual and bicultural problems within the white population, aside altogether from the far greater black-white struggle.

The ratio now is about 60 to 40 between the Afrikaans- and English - speaking South Africans. Tensions between these groups led to combat in the Boer War and have since come together than ever before.

The reason is simple: A total population of 17,421,000 they are outnumbered 5 to 1 by non-whites. They live down here at the "sharp end" of a continent seething with black nationalism. They number only 3,333,000.

Musing over South African problems with a population figures, one Afrikaner murmured wryly:

"Perhaps there's nothing wrong with Canada's existing racial relations that wouldn't be solved by the influx of 100,000,000 non-whites, give or take a million or so."

WARM TO VERWOERD

English - speaking residents tend to vote more or less solidly for the United Party but now whose considerable warmth for Dr. Hendrik Verwoerte's Nationalists. All prime ministers of whatever party have been Afrikaners.

A Cape Town Nationalist

BILINGUALISM CAUSES FRICTION IN SOUTH AFRICA — Although English - speaking South Africans now vote in considerable numbers for the Nationalist Party of Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd, the language issue causes ill-feeling in the country. Afrikaners, although in the majority, tend to identify with French-Canadians and point to parallels between Canada and South Africa. (CP Photo) editor said there is no doubt Afrikaners, although the majority race here, tend to identify themselves with the French-Canadians, perhaps owing to a common experience of conquest and lack of economic strength.

As the French were the first in Canada, so the Dutch were the first settlers here 313 years ago and evolved the Afrikaner — "the man of Africa." Prominent in the Afrikaner makeup also are the strains of German and French Huguenot immigrants, whose Protestant faiths blended with the Dutch Reformed Church.

Although the British won the Boer War in the beginning of the century, the Afrikaners believe it is only in recent times that their English - speaking compatriots have made a "total commitment" to South Africa. The feeling here is that South Africa is doing better than Canada in a bicultural way.

"You can have efficiency and a bilingual country only by having bilingual public servants in no other way," was the flat opinion of Dr. J. J. N. Cloete, head of the University of Pretoria's public administration department.

Cloete, as it turned out, was studying the interim report of the Canadian royal commission on bicultralism and bilingualism, for which he has prepared a paper when a reporter went to see him.

"There's a certain parallel between South Africans and Canadians," said the Afrikaner editor.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and James Barrie Hertzog had worked together for the Dominions in the Balfour declaration of 1926.

"Hertzog was agting under pressures similar to those in a certain extent Mackenzie King was acting under pressures arising from the French-Canadian position.

"Although the French-Canadians are a minority over there, there were many parallels between their fight for language equality and Afrikaners' struggle.

"I don't want to sound patronizing or superior, but I think we've done just a little better, especially in the last few years.

"Mackenzie King is always struck me as a compromiser, sweeping under the carpet anything that would inflame English-French feelings. In South Africa, we look under the carpet for more dirt.

The Afrikaners, traditionally farm people, have been streaming into the cities and into government service in recent years and have the inside track on English-speaking applicants for government jobs.

ETHNIC LANGUAGE

But Cloete emphasized that language tests are being enforced more than at any time in the past—"it is a question not only of rights but efficiency."

"One must conduct tests properly and not just use opinion," Cloete added. "This has caused a lot of ill feeling in our public service and you will find it in the universities."

An amusing sidelight on the situation derives from the fact that English and Dutch used to be South Africa's two official languages and only in 1925 was Afrikaans "included" with Dutch.

"If someone came along" day and wrote an examinati in Dutch, he would be legal entitled to the rights," said Clo with something like a shudd "Actually our young peo don't understand Dut Our language is closer Flemish."

Afrikaans, spoken nowhe else in the world, evolved between South Africans and Canadians," said the Afrikaner editor.

"Although the French-Canadians are a minority over there, there were many parallels between their fight for language equality and the Afrikaners' struggle.

"I don't want to sound patronizing or superior, but I think we've done just a little better, especially in the last few years.

PETER BOROUGH (CP)— Canadian General Electric Co. announced Thursday that Chairman Ian F. McRae, 61, will retire Dec. 31.

Growth Trends Remain Strong In Canada - Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Growth trends remain strong in the Canadian economy for the long term, domestic productivity and exports must be increased to avoid foreign exchange difficulties, Trade Minister Sharp said Friday.

The 5-year-end review of the 1963 economy and outlook for the New Year, the trade minister said there now is little if any slack in the country's productive capacity.

Consumer spending continues strong, especially for durable goods, and business investment in new plant and equipment will increase 10 to 15 per cent in 1966 over the high levels of the past year.

Mr. Sharp said the increase of nine per cent in the gross national expenditure expected to recorded for the whole of 1965 represents a gain in real output of about six per cent. The real output increase in 1964 was 6½ per cent.

"Against (the) background of rising demand in both foreign and domestic markets, economic activity in Canada should continue to move steadily forward," his statement said.

"However, with less slack presently available in the economy, it would be difficult to maintain the six to six per cent real output advance of the past two years.

Mr. Sharp said there is growing pressure towards external imbalance in the Canadian economy. The current account deficit rose sharply this year to a projected annual rate of $1,000,000,000.

"A continued slump of business activity in 1966 is likely to bring a further strong rise in imports. To meet this coming pressure on our exchange position, we must make the most of opportunities available to us in both foreign and domestic markets."

He called for increased productivity, improved competitiveness, and an all-out sales effort.

Canada will still have to depend on foreign resources to finance expansion and development, but foreign capital is not so easily available, he said.

"Increasingly, Canadians should aim to finance their development from their own savings and bring their spending more closely into line with Canada's own productive capabilities.

"In this way, Canada's reliance on foreign borrowing can be kept within reasonable proportions."

The trade minister said export figures for the past year are expected to show an increase of about 10 per cent. Completion of deliveries of wheat under the first major contract with Russia affected the over-all trend of export figures for most of 1963, but deliveries under the new contract will give new impetus to them for the balance of the year.

Imports rose sharply—by 12 per cent in figures so far available—as a result of strong demand in all major sectors of the economy. Most of the increase was in machinery and equipment, automotive products, consumer goods and production materials.

HITS PEAK

Part of the upward pressure for more imports resulted from the fact that domestic production is running at capacity.

Mr. Sharp pointed to these factors in the current economic environment:

—The U.S. economy is sustaining its advance, promising further market expansion for Canada.

—Japan and major West European countries expect renewed growth at normal levels, further enhancing market possibilities.

—Wheat contracts with Russia and mainland China will mean substantially increased transportation activity.

W. J. "Bunny" Ahearne, arrogant little czar of all the hockey rackets, should abdicate and let the global puck proletariat form its own government and establish a universal playing rules policy.

Prior to this season the gilded pooh-bahs of the National Hockey League belted sweaty snouts and announced that Europe's top puck squads would never cross sticks with their proteges of the mouled ranks.

"BUNNY" AHEARNE

The European "amateurs" (if ever there was a misnomer that's the being on the cake) they stated, were not in a class with our Howe's, Hull's and professional what-have-you and, in effect, should not be allowed play-wise in the same rink.

The melody has ended but the lyrics have done a complete about-face. A couple of winters ago the Smythian presidium of the Toronto Maple Leafs announced to the hockey world in general and to the European puck pashas in particular that never would a Lead team be allowed to cross their spears and rapiers with a top continental club, east of here.

The other day the Leafian edict said "We'll play the Russians any place and at any time." El Samivel Pollock who wears the managerial togs of the Montreal Canadiens, announced from the eastern metropolis minarets that the time was coming when the Europeans would equal the NHL clubs—and a world pro hearse loomed in the near future—or words to that effect.

To which the "Bunny" from Britain, visioning, no doubt, the disappearance of his financial carrots from the world puck scene, and tongue-in-cheek replied, "the Russians can play any NHL team providing the rules of our league are changed next year."

Then Mr. Ahearne chomping angrily laid a Toronto columnist via telephone: "I have not heard ANYTHING from the Russians that would support this. It would be intimidating if they did make such a move for they have so little to gain. They are quite confident they have already passed the NHL clubs in passing and skating techniques, and hold a big lead over them in the purely aspects of body checking."

"Why, I ask you," the Bunny gurgled, "would the Russians want to demonstrate what they already know. It doesn't mean a damn thing. I have more on the radio here the Maple Leafs are keen to play the Russians. The answer is quite simple: let them come under the international federation."

That in this agent's opinion is a lot of hogwash, balderdash and cockaurum. And, adding an onion to the tripe, was Ahearne's statement that his plan in trying to raise eight teams as strong as the Russians was designed to help Canada."

The debonair, palm-licky Briton would willingly give hockey Canada back to the Indians—if they would accept it. He tried to force back-to-back games with Russia and the Czechs in Prague in 1962 when the Maes were there. "Why not?" he smirked, "the Russians will beat the hell out of you anyway. I've seen both teams play". The Maes won 5-1.

What Ahearne fears is that the Russians and other European clubs who may improve to the point where Pollock's imaginary world league could become a reality, will belt him to the tune of the Iron Curtain Splithead and go ahead and form their own federation.

Such a move would hit the Ahearne anatomy in its tenderest spot—the wallet. The pompous little dictator has had his fingers on the financial pulse of not only hockey, but teams, rinks, accommodation and gravel since before Hitler started that World War series back in 1939.

His holier-than-thou concept of professionals and amateurs in hockey is as phony as a three-dollar William. Like Robinson Crusoe's man Friday said when he spotted his first Scotch beau Jayne Mansfield, "it's a damn lie, there ain't no such thing." Amateurs, that is.

And this annual bickering about the Russians being good as an NHL squad is getting a bit frayed. Now that the bigtime seagulls are willing to cross swords with their Soviet counterparts, let's settle it the only way—on the ice.

Boyer Made Good ★★★★★ Punch Hunch Paid; Now A Problem ★★★★★ Somebody Must Go

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Little more than a week ago Punch Imlach, Toronto general-manager-coach, called up Wally Boyer from Rochester Americans to bolster the Maple Leafs. But Imlach didn't know Boyer would play well enough to become a problem.

His sterling performance in three games for Toronto shows he's playing too well to be sent back to the minors, but the deadline is approaching.

The five-foot-seven centre has scored two goals and assisted on three others since joining the National Hockey League club from the Americans of the American Hockey League. Before coming to Toronto he played eight years in the minors.

After he plays in Toronto's game against New York Rangers tonight, Boyer has one more game to play under the NHL's waiver rules.

All six teams see action during the weekend. Boston Bruins are at Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks at Detroit Red Wings in Saturday's other games.

In Sunday's action, Montreal is at New York, Toronto visits Boston and Detroit goes to Chicago.

'HE'S TOO VALUABLE'

Imlach said in an interview Friday:

"If I play Boyer Sunday, that means I have to waive him out of the NHL. He's too valuable to be waived for someone else to grab. I'm going to have trouble again. I can just see it."

PUNCH IMLACH

Boyer has been playing on a line with Bril Smith and Ron Ellis which has scored six goals and assisted on five in four games. The Leafs have won three of those games and tied one.

Toronto will be without defencemen Al Arbour and Bob Baun and centre Peter Stemkowski.

The Bruins, winless in 10 games, have recalled goalie Ed Johnston from Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League.

However, Bruins coach Milt Schmidt said rookie Bernie Parent will be in nets against the Canadiens tonight.

Johnston, a three-season netminder with the Bruins, was loaned to the Western League club after suffering a knee injury in the third game of the schedule.

Montreal coach Toe Blake is making a astonishing switch in the game and Charlie Hodge will take over from Gump Worsley. Blake also said he will make some line changes follow-

Rollins Jrs. Whip Cobourg 6-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Spurred by Wayne Brant's superb goaltending, Belleville Rollins Construction tamed Cobourg Cougars 6-1 here last night to register their third consecutive OHA Eastern Junior "B" victory.

The win, before close to 2,000 roaring youngsters, kept the club at worst in fourth place, depending on the outcome of two other games last night.

The children were out for their special, once-a-year "Pony Night" and the lucky winners took home a live pony, two bikes, half a dozen hockey sticks and some theatre passes as well as seeing the home team win.

Rollins built a 6-0 lead before Brant lost his shutout bid on a partly - screened powerplay goal by Keith Boundy midway through the third period.

He deserved better fate. Brant robbed the bustling Cobourg shooters time and again, especially in the first two periods when the losers outshot Belleville 15-14 and 10-9. Rollins had but one spurt in the third for an overkill 46-36 margin - but Brant's saves were much the tougher throughout.

Belleville also bagged a pair of powerplay goals—one another with the clubs five aside and scored twice while Cobourg had the manpower advantage.

Bob Boyle and Doug Potts netted two goals each with Jim Pringle and Dave Muir notching the others. Grant Hagerman and Larry Stewart earned assists each, Ray Summers, Carl Boomhower and Pete Fleming singletons.

Pringle converted Summers' pawout for the opening goal at 6.33 with Cobourg short a man. Brant pulled off three rapid saves at the ten minute mark and at 11.40, Boyle made it 2-0 on a good play with Hagerman. Boyle worked in close before sinking a low backhand. Later the same pair broke in alone from a Cobourg powerplay but hit a goalpost and the period ended 2-0.

Brant continued to stop everything thrown his way as Rollins went up 5-0 in the second. Boyle's quick shot surprised Rick Austin with a mate in the sin - bin at 16.32.

Each side was penalized shortly after and Muir made it 4-0 at 18.02. Either was still off when Potts took Stewart's pass back to the blueline and worked in close to score a pretty one at 19.45. Brant's key saves of the period were on Gord Stevenson twice and Bambridge.

Potts and Stewart again teamed up to make it 6-0 early in the third, again while Belleville was shorthanded. Then the penalties caught up and Boundy's blith shot found the net with Brian Gillis assisting, at 11.31. Both sides missed some great later bids, Austin stopping Hagerman once on a clean breakaway, and he was credited with 27 saves this period to cap a strong night's work.

Belleville took 11 penalties and Cobourg eight, all minors.

Rollins' next game is in Hastings, on Wednesday, against Peterborough.

Juniors, Bantams Complete Sweep

Quinte Swamps Trenton

By ROBT. SNEFFELIN

The lamb was led to the slaughter at Quinte secondary School last night. Quinte Seniors played the part of executioners as they trounced an un-inspiring Trenton team 85-20 to the opening game of the Bay of Quinte COSSA "A" basketball schedule.

Quinte dashed away to a 21-3 lead in the first quarter, and added as much in the second period. The winners used a fast break to their advantage over the sluggish visitors. This, coupled with sharp passing, good rebounding and shooting, was far too much for Trenton. They had the ball stolen from them numerous times by the alert Quinte defence.

Ted Lessels and Bob Moon led Quinte in scoring and hustle. Both of them contributed 16 points. Tony Meddings had many rebounds and scored 12 points, as did Jack Reppard. John Wright slammed in 10 points.

For the losers, Mike O'Neill was the lone player in double figures, scoring 11 points.

In the Junior contest, Trenton squeezed out a 46-40 win. The winners were aided by the very erratic passing and shooting of Quinte.

The game was quite close throughout, but Trenton was nearly always one or two points ahead.

Of serious consequence to Quinte was that Phil Buddle, their rebounding and scoring stalwart, sat out much of the game because of foul trouble.

Ron Shantler led the visitors with 16 points, while Pat Larry, Al Stewart and Bob Pinke followed with 10, 8, 8 scores NHL.

For Quinte, Dave Middleton hooped 11 points, Eric Emerson and Phil Buddle followed with 10 and 8.

Quinte Bantams pulled off an exciting 32-31 win over Trenton in a very sloppily played game earlier in the evening.

Ron Locke sat in the hero's chair, scoring the winning point on a foul shot with less than 10 seconds remaining.

The victors had to come from behind in the late stages of the battle, as they trailed by four points with moments remaining. Wayne Milton led losers with scoring threat, fouled out late in the fourth quarter to make things slightly easier for Quinte.

John Mywaart and Ron Locke had eight points each, Howard Vanluven, Peter Middleton and Joe Scott brought up the rear for Quinte.

Trenton scorers were Andy Fesar and Wayne Miller.

Blues Whip U.S. Team

BOSTON (AP) — University of Toronto Varsity Blues easily outskated Northeastern University Friday night, scoring six goals in the third period while surging to a 9-1 victory.

The game was part of Boston Garden's third annual Christmas college hockey festival.

Toronto's high scorer coming into the game, Hank Monteith, got the first goal at 5:37 of the first period but slammed against a pipe in the Northeastern area a few minutes later and left the game. He suffered a badly bruised thigh.

Pete Burwash scored two goals for Toronto, and Murray Stroud got two and two assists. Ward Paffi set up five of the goals.

Toronto's captain, 24-year-old Bob Attersley, scored in the third period.

Goalie Bill Stewart made 41 saves for Toronto, providing a tough defence to match the offence. Gary Thronicot of Northeastern made 39 saves.

BCI Teams Win Over Brighton

By DAVID TEMPLER

In the first scheduled game of the season last night BCI swept the Brighton courts to begin another campaign.

The senior collegians triumphed by a score of 86-47 with Bob Boyd and Tom Lornie leading the winners with 27 and 23 points tried different offences trying to find the best combinations for the coming year but BCI's speed and experience were key factors in the result.

The junior game found the promising Collegians five more than doubling their opponents with an 83-40 score. John Chalmers led BCI with 29 points and Ray Thibeau got 13. As in the senior game, experience and ball control made the difference in scores so large.

Reds Weren't 'Tired' In This One

Whip Nationals 6-2

WINNIPEG (CP) — Russia continued to plague Canada's national hockey team with precise passing and skillful positional play and downed the Canadians 6-2 in an exhibition game Friday night.

The Canadians' poor skating, erratic passing, penalties and a weak defensive corps opened the door for Russia's third victory over Canada on the current tour. The Russians won 4-0 and 8-6 last, week.

Veteran forward Vyatcheslav Starshinov, who won the individual scoring title during the 1965 world hockey championships in Tampere, Finland, led the Soviet club Friday with three goals.

Starshinov scored one on his power play and another while his squad was short - handed. Vladimir Vikulov, Victor Polupanov and Vladimir Breshnev scored the others.

Defencemen Paul Conlin and Terry O'Malley scored for Canada.

The game, before 9,800 fans, was refereed by Gordon Kerr of Winnipeg and Nikolai Sveikov, 30, a Russian referee making his first appearance in an exhibition game in Canada. Sveikov was a field judge at the 1961 world championships.

BLAMES POOR SKATING

Canada's coach Jackie McLeod said poor skating was the deciding factor in Friday night's game.

"I can't understand it. We skated well against the Russians in Quebec City but just couldn't do anything at home," he said.

"But I still feel we can come back against those guys."

The Canadian team took a 1-0 lead in the second minute of play when Conlin slapped a 15-foot screen shot into the net.

Russia's first big chance came at 7:33 of the first period when Canada's Fran Huck received a spearing penalty. They capitalized in 18 seconds when Breshnev's shot whistled past goaltender Ken Broderick after hitting a glove and a goal post.

Starshinov's first goal came at 16:26 — 27 seconds after O'Malley went to the penalty box for holding the puck. Fifteen seconds later Starshinov rammed home his second goal on a pass from Boris Maiorov to put his team ahead 3-1.

O'Malley got a goal back for Canada when his shot was deflected off a skate past Russian goaltender Victor Konovalenko in the last minute of the period.

MISSES CHANCE

The Canadian team failed to cash in on four-minute player advantages early in the second, including 47 seconds when Russia was two men short.

Three minutes later Vikulov put Russia ahead 4-2.

At 13:39 Huck took another minor penalty and in 23 seconds Polupanov made it 5-2.

Less than three minutes later Maiorov blocked a shot while Russia was a man short and broke away with Starshinov against a single Canadian defencemen. Starshinov finished off the play with his third goal of the night.

The Canadians showed a little more steadiness in the scoreless third period but were unable to penetrate a solid Soviet defence. The Russians concentrated on protecting their four-goal lead and didn't press the attack.

Russia will play Spokane Jets at Spokane, Wash., today and meet the Canadian team again in Victoria, B.C., Monday.

The Canadians will meet Finland in Vancouver Sunday.

Wins Lou Marsh Trophy

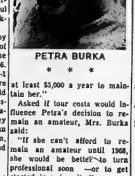
Petra, Outstanding Athlete

TORONTO (CP) — Petra Burka, world, North American and Canadian figure skating champion, has been named winner of the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy as Canada's outstanding athlete.

Miss Burka, 18, is the seventh girl and fifth figure skater to win the Marsh Trophy. Barbara Ann Scott, the only other Canadian to win the ladies' singles world championship, won the Marsh award three times. Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul won it in 1959 and Don Jackson won in 1962.

The trophy was donated by Charles E. Ring in memory of a former sports editor of the Toronto Star who died in 1936.

Miss Burka won by a 4-1 decision. Also nominated were Dan Sherry, who set a world swim record this year, harness-racing driver Bob Feagan, Fiscita Weidel, a fencer, hockey players Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, golfer George Knudson, track star Bill Crothers and boxer George Chuvalo.



BIDS FOR OLYMPICS

Miss Burka's mother and coach, Mrs. Ellen Burka, says it is unlikely Petra will turn professional in the near future because the attractive young champion wants to enter the Olympics.

But Mrs. Burka added: "Unless my daughter turns up suddenly, similar to those available in other sports, it will be impossible to maintain her as an amateur for three more years."

Mrs. Burka, who has turned down offers as high as $100,000 for Petra to skate professionally, says her only income comes from teaching skating.

"Petra gets her expenses," Mrs. Burka said, "but as champion, she must always dress nice and look the part. It costs money.

PETRA BURKA

If she can't afford to remain an amateur until 1968, she would be better to turn professional now — or to get started in university."

Habs' President Speaks Out

What's Up Doc?--This, Bunny!

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League stand ready to participate in international hockey competition providing certain conditions are met, J. David Molson, president of the Canadiens, said Friday.

The club president outlined the conditions in a prepared statement:

1. Any team presenting a member of the International Ice Hockey Federation must declare itself professional and be openly recognized as such. 2. Any encounter must be played under National Hockey League rules.

3. Financial arrangements satisfactory to the Club de Hockey Canadien would have to be negotiated.

"In terms of an official challenge by any member of the IIHF to the NHL for world hockey supremacy, such teams as the Canadiens, I believe, would be honor bound to accept."

"This is entirely in their own interest, in terms of being able to assist them in achieving standards comparable to the NHL," the statement said.

"In establishing these conditions, I feel that professional hockey is taking a realistic approach to the present situation. Until such time as there is agreement on these conditions the expansion of professional hockey on a world basis can never be attained," Mr. Molson said.

London Ties Marlies

Flyers Romp To 7-1 Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frustration is becoming the name of the game for Toronto Marlboros when they play their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A rivals, London Nationals.

The Nationals trained with the Marlboros last season and picked up Neil Clark, a 15-goal scorer with Toronto last year.

Now in the season series the Nationals became walkovers for every team in the league except Marlies who were forced to scrangle for a 2-2 draw on home ice Friday night.

The Marlies have beaten London only once in four games this year. The Nationals have won once and tied twice in games in Toronto.

In other action Friday night, Niagara Falls Flyers won their second game in their last nine starts with a 7-1 romp over Hamilton Red Wings and Kitchener Rangers took their unbeaten streak to five games with a 2-1 decision over Montreal Junior Canadiens.

CLARKE SCORES

In Toronto, Clark added to Marlboros' woes by scoring one of London's goals. The other cams from Randy Murray, Barry Watson and Jerry Heinbach salvaged the draw for Toronto.

The tie put Toronto in fourth place, a point ahead of Montreal, but left London last in the nine-team loop.

In Niagara Falls, the Flyers' impressive victory came without five members of their regular lineup.

Jean Pronovost scored two goals to lead Niagara Falls. The others were divided among defencemen Guy Allen and Bobby Orr and Jim Lorentz, Rosaire Paiement and rookie Tom Webster.

Dan Lawson scored for Hamilton.

Kitchener moved into a sixth-place tie in Ontario West with their win. Ken Gratton, Bob Cook and Bob Jones got the Rangers goals in Montreal. Michel LaPalme scored before suffering a leg injury.

The Tee Pees set back the Generals 10-0 with Bruins piling up an 8-0 score over the Maroons.

Stephen Cowan's four goals spearheaded the Bruins offensive with Robert Kirk close behind with three. Terry Coveney got the other.

Four consecutive goals in a row got the Tee Pees off and running in the first period. Dave Sullivan scored a pair and James Nugent a single in the second frame with Roland Walton topping off the win with three in the final period.

NFL Lowers Curtain

Thrill-Packed 'Guess - Who' Final Acts

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Will the National Football League's Western Conference race be settled in 24 hours,-or 168?

That's the intriguing situation that exists as the NFL begins the final weekend of regular season action today with Green Bay Packers, Baltimore Colts and Chicago Bears separated by only one game in the battle for a Jan. 2 championship berth against Cleveland Browns.

By nightfall Sunday, one of the three will be crowned the western king, or they will have to decide the issue in a playoff the following Sunday.

The Western struggle begins at 4 p.m. EST today, when the defending champion Colts meet Los Angeles Rams. Green Bay is at San Francisco 'diers Sunday while the Bears are at home to Minnesota Vikings.

In other games Sunday, Dallas Cowboys are at New York Giants, Cleveland at St. Louis Cardinals, Detroit Lions at Philadelphia Eagles, and Pittsburgh Steelers at Washington Redskins.

The American Football League, with San Diego Chargers and Buffalo Bills crowned and ready for the title game next Sunday, rides out the regular season this weekend with nothing on the line but pride. Houston Oilers and Boston Patriots clash in Boston in the only game today.

In Sunday games, Oakland Raiders are at San Diego, Buffalo at New York Jets, and Denver Broncos at Kansas City Chiefs.

The NFL Western race right now shows Green Bay first with a one half game lead over Baltimore, and Chicago another one-half length behind.

There are these, possibilities:

—A victory for Baltimore Saturday means the Colts would have to win Sunday to nail down the title without a playoff.

—A Baltimore victory and a Green Bay loss would make the teams into a playoff Dec. 26 at Green Bay.

—A tie for Baltimore would give Green Bay the opportunity to win the title by either beating or tying San Francisco.

—A Baltimore victory and a Green Bay defeat would make the Colts champions.

—Chicago must win and both Baltimore and Green Bay lose in gain a tie.

In that event, with the Bears and Colts deadlocked, the teams would meet in a playoff Dec. 26 at Green Bay.

The Packers, with a 10-3 record and momentum, are coming off last week's 42-27 victory over the Colts. The Colts, on the other hand, may still be recuperating from last week's 27-20 mauling by Cleveland.

The Bears, with a 9-4 record find only an outside shot, should get by Minnesota, with Hall of Fame Record - breaker Gale Sayers trying to stay ahead of Cleveland's Jimmy Brown in the touchdown scoring race. Sayers, who scored six times against the Vikes leads Brown 21 to 20.

The Colts, with a 9-3-1 record and starter in a playoff game, likely will run into difficulty with the Rams, who suddenly have started winning behind quarterback Roman Gabriel. Baltimore will start halfback Tom Matte at quarterback with Johnny Unitas and Garry Cuozzo sidelined.

Lee Majors, Without Acting Experience, Becomes Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—He's 24, looks like a blonde Elvis Presley and has the build of a football halfback, which he once was.

His fans see a brooding quality of a James Dean, which is quite natural. Dean was a boyhood idol of Lee Majors, one of the stars of The Big Valley TV series.

The show's producers, knowing a good thing when they see one, threw the focus on Majors in six of the first 10 segments—not bad considering he's up against formidable co-stars in Barbara Stanwyck, Richard Long and Peter Breck.

It is even more remarkable when you consider that Majors never earned a dollar from acting before he was cast in The Big Valley.

"When I was younger, I read everything I could find out about Jaines Dean," says Majors. "A name that stuck in my mind was Dick Clayton, who had been Dean's agent and friend. I went to see him and asked if he had any ideas of how I could become an actor. He wasn't interested in me as a client, but he suggested I take some acting lessons."

Majors did so, studying with a coach at MGM. Clayton kept track of his progress, refusing to peddle him for minor roles. Majors had never acted except in a drama class when he won the role over 500 others in The Big Valley.

His future: unlimited.

VOTE FOR CHANGE

Pet Milk Holds Family Yule Party

NAPANEE — The annual Christmas get - together of the Pet Milk Co. in the areas Wednesday evening was a festive affair, with the 45 employees and their wives or husbands and over 50 of their children joining in a grand family party. P. A. Granger, production manager of the head office in Toronto, was the guest of honor at the hour at one and the same time, and took a fatherly interest in everything and everybody. He also served as the agent for Santa Claus, who came in due time, bringing a gift with him for every child.

From 7.30 on, there was something doing every minute, including interested those who could skate, with the tiniest children assisted inevitably by Mrs. Arnold Hennessy, who provided them with costumes and instruments and trained them into a rhythm band. Walter Hill, who is long past his 'teens, was also their performer on the ice.

Next came a broom ball game for the men and older boys, the lively old team compelled by Carl Baldree and the blues by Baden Wheeler. Nobody is quite sure who won, although the reds claim to be the victors. Not that it matters, as everybody had fun.

CHILDREN GIVE CONCERT

Once back in the auditorium all the parents and all who weren't, were treated to a concert presented by the children, songs, recitations, and all the things children do at concerts. Those taking part included Kari, Ralph, Carol, Shirley and Wendy Browne; Susan and David Winter; Billy Cook, Claude Hewitt, Maurice Wallace, Mary Ladenheim, Theresa Cassidy, and Gordon Hennessy. Shirley Winter was the pianist for the evening.

There was an orchestra, also, to accompany the carol singing and to play several numbers. It was composed of Bob Russell, Melinda Sechetto and her brother Ernie, Carol Dudgeon and Mrs. Hennessy.

Refreshments for everybody were served by this time, and there was an abundance of everything.

Then came Santa Claus, laden down, with Ernie the Bunny to help him. He was a Peter Rabbit on two long ears of fur. Everybody was joined in the merriment.

QUESTION: We enjoy your travel columns ever-go much, particularly items pertaining to Florida. As we are considering another trip to Florida would you tell us what new places of interest we could visit? — T. H., Belleville.

ANSWER: Anyone who strays from the beach long enough will find a new array of tourist attractions competing for his dollar in Florida this winter.

One of the most interesting additions is at Tampa's free Busch Gardens. A 13-mile monorail will take visitors 30 feet high over the beer baron's gardens and over the African animals housed there, including a herd of zebras.

At St. Petersburg the new movie version of the Bounty, from "Mutiny on the Bounty," is on permanent display and South Sea setting that even includes a breadfruit tree. It costs adults 50 cents and children 50 cents. It was built in Nova Scotia.

Newest recreation area in the state is Denedin Beach on the Gulf Coast. Formerly known as Caladesi Island, it has been joined in the mainland by a $2,000,000 causeway. It features three miles of the best beach in Florida and is a half a mile wide.

A new sightseeing float, La Carmen, will take visitors to Tampa on a tour of Ybor City, an offbeat Latin quarter.

It'll make stops at cigar factories, Cuban bakeries and social clubs. Tour starts at Jackson and Nebraska, probably the best of the state's man-made attractions and the water show is superb.

Lineman Signs For $400,000

NEW YORK (AP) — All-America linebacker Carl Mc-Adams signed the richest of the most lucrative professional contract ever for a lineman, Sonny Werblin announced Saturday on behalf of the American Football League's New York Jets, said Friday.

Werblin, who last year signed Joe Namath, Alabama's star quarterback, to a contract reported to be worth $400,000, indicated he shelled out about $200,000 to get the 6-foot-4, 250-pounder from Wild Hoss, Okla.

Britain Airlifting Oil To Zambia

J. Lester Shiels Killed On Trip To California

Former mathematics instructor at Belleville Collegiate Institute and well known figure in the city and district, Mr. J. Lester (Les) Shiels, 270 Ann Street, has been killed in an auto accident, while on his way to visit his son in California.

Killed in the crash at Needles, California, on Saturday besides Mr. Shiels was his sister-in-law Mrs. Ann George of Beverley Hills.

Mrs. Shiels suffered a fractured skull and punctured lung but is reported to be in fair condition in hospital. She is being transferred to another hospital nearer her son's home at West Novina, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Shiels with Mrs. Shiels' sister, who had been visiting here since last June, left Belleville on December 12th en-route to visit their son, Patrick. They were within 300 miles of their destination when their car was involved in a head-on crash.

It was not known here whether any persons in the second car were hurt or killed.

J. LESTER SHIELS

Following their visit with their son Mr. and Mrs. Shiels planned to go on to Australia on an extended retirement trip.

WILL BE BURIED HERE

Mr. Shiels' body will be flown back to Canada for burial. The funeral (possibly on Thursday) will be held from St. Michael's Church with interment in St. James' cemetery.

Says Rusk Sabotaged Peace Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration found itself caught up today in a stormy dispute over its publication of correspondence reporting and probing a conditional peace offer from North Viet Viet Nam.

The storm overshadowed the central question whether Hanoi had in fact made an authentic approach for a settlement on its own terms and might yet respond to a U.S. request for clarification of conditions in it.

President Johnson could try to revive the roundabout peace exchange with President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam by sending some kind of new message in Ho's direction, but administration officials said today that there has been no decision on any new U.S. action.

The secrecy covers were torn from the incident last Friday after the St. Louis Post - Dispatch reported that a new peace offer from Hanoi had been rejected by the United States.

Amid denials from If a suit that any peace feeler had been sent, Dr. Giorgio La Pira, former mayor of Florence who was one of the principal intermediaries in the affair, insisted that the offer had been made.

His travelling colleague, Professor Mario Primicerio, ac-

Astronauts Begin Three Days Of Intensive Medical Checks

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr., who sailed far enough during their two weeks in space to make 19 round trips to the moon, begin three days of medical checks here today to determine what physical rigors space travel has on man.

People who talked with the astronauts said their main complaint of the 14-day flight was the confinement—they couldn't stretch out. They asserted they dreamed a lot during the mission, sources said. Borman was quoted as saying that Lovell was dreaming "all the time."

Food on board the spacecraft —some of it dehydrated—got tedious and somewhat objectionable toward the end of the flight, the sources noted.

Persons who talked with the astronauts quoted Borman as saying he thought future spacemen should not have to fly in bulky space suits on long-duration flights. And if a "back up" pressure system is needed, Borman suggested it be built into the spacecraft rather than the space suit, sources noted.

The two Gemini 7 pilots flew much of their mission in their underwear.

Borman and Lovell are scheduled to stay at Cape Kennedy until Wednesday, concentrating on medical examinations. They then plan to fly to the Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston, Tex., to begin eight days of telling and retelling the story of their marathon flight in project officials.

Viet Nam Main Subject Discussed by Premiers

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet is expected to deal today with a request from Zambia, Rhodesia's neighbor, for an unspecified number of transport planes to assist in an airlift of oil to that land - locked Commonwealth country.

Zambia normally gets its oil through Rhodesia. Britain and the U.S. have imposed oil sanctions on Rhodesia and are trying that France, Italy and The Netherlands will fall in line.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain supported Zambia's request in his four hours of talks here Sunday with Prime Minister Pearson during which Viet Nam was the main subject discussed.

Mr. Pearson is scheduled to hold a press conference today after the cabinet meeting.

Mr. Wilson held one before his Sunday evening departure for London by RAF domet jet and said very serious economic difficulties are already developing in Rhodesia as the result of sanctions. Canada has embargoed 90 per cent of imports from Rhodesia, valued last year at $4,300,000.

Mr. Wilson said it is impossible to form a view on the exact time when the economic dislocation in Rhodesia will turn itself into a return to constitutional government.

British sources said they expect the economic pinch to

Viet Cong Birthday Peaceable

SAIGON (VP) — The Viet Cong apparently decided to mark the fifth anniversary of their National Liberation Front today by sparing Saigon from another round of terrorism.

By sunset, there were no reports of any bombings or grenade throwing incidents in the city of more than 1,400,000. But officials warned that despite the lightest security in years, the threat of Viet Cong birthday terrorism would probably continue until the new year.

Rhodesian Tax On Coal Boosts Price 6 Times

LUSAKA (CP - AP) — Britain began an oil airlift to Zambia Sunday as leaders of Kenya, Ethiopia and Uganda called for another African summit conference to agree on action against Rhodesia.

But Zambia, which imports most of its coal and coke from Rhodesia, had to start paying about six times more today for the fuel because of a new Rhodesian-imposed tax. Zambia also began rationing gasoline today.

The airlift began with the landing of an RAF Britannia bringing 2,370 gallons of diesel fuel from Dar es Salaam in neighboring Tanzania.

The airlift began after the white-minority government of Rhodesia cut off the flow of oil to landlocked Zambia.

The Rhodesian action was in retaliation for the oil embargo Britain imposed against Rhodesia last Friday to tighten the economic vise on the government of Prime Minister Ian Smith. He declared Rhodesia independent Nov. 11 after refusing to yield to British demands for steps toward eventual African majority rule.

A joint British-Zambian communique said Britain is paying for the airlift as an emergency measure until the improvement of surface routes from Negro-ruled neighboring states to the north.

Britain also announced it is spending £3,300,000 ($10,300,000) in improving the 1,000-mile dirt road across Tanzania to Mbeya in Zambia.

Meanwhile, oil is well on the way to Zambia on other routes by road, rail and lake.

TANZANIA CO-OPERATES

Although Tanzania has broken relations with London it has agreed to co-operate with the British government in keeping oil flowing to Zambia.

A number of African states insist that Britain use military force to oust Smith, but Britain has limited its actions to economic and diplomatic pressure.

In another Rhodesian move against Zambia, Prime Minister Smith announced that the tax on coal to Rhodesia's northern neighbor was raised to £3 ($15) a short ton from the previous rate of about one shilling ($1.12) ton.

The coal is vital for the operation of Zambia's copper mines.

Smith said the increase, plus an export levy of £4 ($24) a ton on coke, would add nearly £10,000,000 ($30,000,000) a year.

"I hope this will meet our present requirements," he said. "If not, we will have to con-

de Gaulle Victor In Election

By PETER BUCKLEY

PARIS (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle was given another seven years Sunday to guide the affairs of France.

At the age of 75, with decades of military and political life behind him, the wartime Free French leader received a mandate from the voters to exercise until 1972, if he wants to, the enormous powers of the French presidency.

Re-elected on the second ballot, Le Grand Charles can turn his attention now to the Common Market, relations with Western Europe, the United States, China and the Soviet bloc, France's defensive alliances and a backlog of domestic needs.

De Gaulle got roughly 55 per cent of the valid votes cast Sunday, a good bit short of the "frank and massive" support he had originally demanded but still a firm 10 per cent more than Francois Mitterrand, the 49-year-old candidate of the united left and his sole opponent on the second ballot.

Despite pre-Christmas occupations and generally damp weather, the turnout was nearly 85 per cent of the eligible voters, almost equalling the record number who voted in the first ballot two weeks earlier.

Complete returns from European France and all overseas territories except Guiana and Polynesia gave de Gaulle 13,063,134 votes, or 55.18 per cent. Mitterrand got 10,609,744. More than 24,000,000 of the 28,558,708 eligible voters went to the polls. There were nearly 700,000 spoiled ballots.

It took two ballots to re-elect

New Ministers Are Sworn In

NEW MINISTERS SWORN IN — New members of the federal cabinet are seen at Government House Saturday following the swearing-in ceremony. Left to right are Immigration Minister Jean Marchand; John Turner, minister without portfolio; Agriculture Minister J. J. (Joe) Greene; and Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote. The fifth new cabinet minister, Trade Minister Robert H. Winters, is to be sworn in early in the new year. (CP Wirephoto)

OTTAWA (CP) — The first phase of Prime Minister Pearson's new-look cabinet shuffle was completed Saturday with the swearing-in of four new ministers and new oaths of office taken by four others.

The next step will be reassignment of cabinet portfolio responsibilities by order-in-council, and the addition of Robert H. Winters as trade minister early in the new year. Then Parliament will be asked at the session opening Jan. 18 to revise cabinet portfolio legislation.

Prime Minister Pearson was in a light-hearted mood when he presented his new ministers to Governor-General Vanier and attended the swearing-in ceremony Saturday at Government House.

Mr. Pearson posed for pictures with Gen. Vanier and the new ministers and then told them: "Now, go to work, boys."

In the informal press conference which followed, Mr. Pearson found himself at the back of the crowd momentarily. He grabbed a reporter's notebook and pencil, shouldered his way through the crowd, and asked in mock reporterial fashion: "Now, tell me, how do you like your new job?"

Mr. Sharp would not tell reporters whether he plans any major changes in economic policy.

FIRST CALL with Bonnie

"That's that!"

German Evangelical Church Would Accept Loss of Land

By LIONEL WALSH

BONN (Reuters)—Pierce and Miner agreement is raging in West Germany over whether the Germans should renounce their claims to territories in the East lost to Poland and the Soviet Union.

Only a few years ago, the idea of giving up the land beyond the Oder - Neisse line, drawn provisionally by the victorious allies of the Second World War, was unthinkable.

Refugee organizations clamoring for their "right" to the "lost homeland" in Pomerania, Silesia and East Prussia were almost unopposed in public debate.

But the German Evangelical Church now has boldly called on Germans to think again about the wisdom of insisting that this large chunk of the old German Reich remains German territory, although it now is inhabited by Poles and, in the case of the northern half of East Prussia, by Soviets.

The church, in a memorandum calling for conciliation with Poland, says that its return of the Oder-Neisse territories, representing nearly one-quarter of the Germany of 1937 is impossible without endangering the Polish state.

The memorandum, now being discussed at parish level, declares that Germany must in future respect the living rights of the Polish people, and leave them the space which they need for their development."

Refugee organizations are appalled. They claim to speak for 10,500,000 Germans driven from their homelands, and form a powerful political lobby.

Politicians have in the past been unwilling even to hint at "renunciation" — a damning word in the German political vocabulary.

Prominent churchmen have been bombarded with-abusive letters, described by Bishop Hans Lilje of Hanover, who is once imprisoned by the Nazis as "a manifestation of pathological hatred."

But other voices have praised the church for its realism. One Silesian woman wrote: "It had long been clear to me that the clergy were the only people who could check the unfortunate behavior of the refugee organizations."

In fact, observers here note an increasing feeling of dissatisfaction with the long-standing official government policy that the final settlement of the frontier problem must be part of an all-German peace treaty.

A growing number of Germans consider that if there is ever to be any hope of pacifying East and West Germany, this can only come through gradually easing distrust and establishing normal relations between the two states.

Hungerford's Approval Conditional

Although the Moira River Conservation Authority is prepared to go ahead next year with water level control dams in the Moira below Stockdam, it is still not definite that construction will get underway.

Last week at the full Authority meeting at Canniton it was reported that both the village of Tweed and Tudor township of Hungerford had given approvals for the dam construction but now it has been noted that Hungerford's approval was "conditional" on certain financial arrangements being made.

22 Moose Killed on Short Piece of Road

IGNACE, Ont. (CP)—Highways department sanitag operations in the Ignace area of northern Ontario have lured so many moose to Highway 17 from inland areas, that moose hunting success has reached almost 100 per cent.

The department of lands and forests says the snow clearing operations have turned Highway 17 into "a veritable salt lick." During one December weekend, 22 moose were killed within three quarters of a mile of the road in this area, 130 miles northwest of Port Arthur.

de Gaulle

de Gaulle, finished of the single ballot that had freely been predicted when he announced his candidacy at the beginning of November.

On the first vote Dec. 5, with no absolute majority needed for election, de Gaulle won less than 45 per cent of the vote, while Mitterand drew 32 per cent. Four other candidates split the remainder and were eliminated from the running.

All four runners-up directed their supporters to oppose de Gaulle, and only about half obeyed, apparently preferring the candidate they knew to the man of his left. The wide-open support Mitterand enjoyed from the Communist party made his candidacy suspect in the eyes of many who had opposed de Gaulle in the first round.

SEES REAPPRAISAL

Premier Georges Pompidou told a press conference three days before the second ballot: "After what has happened after all that has been said and discussed, de Gaulle will be led to re-appraise his actions. He will remain faithful to his basic premises, I'm convinced. But it is possible that he may adopt another, what he has learned during this enormous confrontation. We will see what happens."

But even Pompidou has never pretended to speak the genius of de Gaulle. Many of the nation's relative strength will persuade de Gaulle to alter his methods of dealing with the outside world or with France's domestic shortcomings is an open question.

If anything forces his hand, it could be the elections for the National Assembly scheduled for 1967. At present, the Gaullists control their allies command an absolute majority.

Mitterand told reporters Sunday night, after conceding victory to de Gaulle, "I will get right to work preparing for the 1967 elections." A meaningful hint that the opposition leader will make a conciliatory move to attract a coalition of Socialists, Radicals and Catholics.

STARTED ALONE

But a repeat of a socialist splinter party who had held a dozen cabinet posts during the fourth republic, Mitterand started his campaign alone. He soon had both socialists and Communists behind him. For the second ballot, he had tried to rally all the anti-de Gaulle vote, and even managed to get extreme right-wing support, but the tide wasn't strong enough.

De Gaulle himself remained in seclusion at his estate at Colombey - les - Deux - Eglises in eastern France, and made no public statement on his victory.

De Gaulle faces two items of unfinished business in international affairs.

He has opposed any moves toward supra-nationality by the Common Market administration. France's five ministers have scheduled a meeting in Brussels today in the hope of impasse, and will be hoping for some word from de Gaulle that he is ready to talk again.

The second major international item on de Gaulle's agenda is a form of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. De Gaulle has called for an end to military integration in the 11 - nation alliance, and has warned that if a basic change is not made, France will bow out by 1969. Concrete proposals by de Gaulle for changes in NATO are expected to be made to his major allies early in 1966.

De Gaulle begins his new seven-year term Jan. 8.

Record Volume of Crops Produced by U.S. Farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. agriculture advanced on many fronts in 1965, producing a record volume of crops and the highest average income per farm in history.

Other developments included a cut in government-held surpluses of some commodities, an increase in exports, an expansion in the quantity of food made available for the needy at home and abroad, and a further reduction in the cost of farm to relation to consumer incomes.

The year found technology humming at a faster pace than agricultural output. Thus fewer workers were needed to help farmers.

Congress enacted new farm legislation on cotton, wheat, feed grains, rice, dairy products and surplus cropland, giving those farmers a larger portion of the crop returned in payments made by the government and less from the market place.

Output of food and fibre crops during the year was an estimated 3 per cent higher than in 1964 and 4.5 per cent above the previous high in 1963. This is the sixth consecutive annual increase in acreage—an accomplishment attributed mainly to better technological advances.

Production of meat animals declined slightly as marketings of cattle and hog prices in 1964 had discouraged producers. A small increase in cattle and hogs is expected in 1966.

The agriculture department estimated that farm income totalled $14,000,000,000 in 1965. The highest since 1953 compared with $12,900,000,000 in 1964.

Largely because the number of farms continued to decline, the average net income per farm reached a record high of $4,150 in 1965. This was about 11 per cent higher than the 1964 figure of $3,740 and nearly 40 per cent higher than the 1960 average of $2,958.

Farmers were using more machinery, more and better fertilizers, and improved crop varieties. Demand for labor declined an estimated nine per cent during the year. A further reduction is expected in 1966.

Tree Can Be Fire Hazard At Christmas

The Christmas tree, which brings joy to children can also be a terrible threat to the little ones unless parents follow the safety rules for a happy fire-safe holiday season. Fire Chief Ken Everett today said that a happy Christmas can change, in a few seconds to family tragedy, the time when the rules are neglected.

The fire chief calls on the public co-operation this year to pay special attention to the following points:

Keep a fresh green tree and keep it outdoors or in an unheated garage until you are ready to decorate it. Open doors, keep the tree in water, after cutting off one or two inches from the butt. Replenish the water supply at regular intervals.

Check electric lighting strings for frayed cords or short circuits. Buy only C.S.A. approved lights and avoid using non-flammable decorations.

Make the tree a no-smoking area and keep matches out of the reach of little hands.

Clear gift wrappings away from the base of the tree as soon as the gifts are opened. Have a large carton handy, just for wrappings. Even a moist tree will burn if ignited by wrapping around the base.

Be sure the tree is set up well away from such sources of heat as fireplace, radiators or TV set. Be sure also that it does not block access to doors or windows in the event of fire.

Especially at Christmas, never leave small children unattended in the home.

Switch off tree lights when leaving home or going to bed, and have a happy, fire-safe Christmas.

Chief Poole points out that tests have proved that a tree set up with its base in water is the safest tree. If the tree has already dried out before it is set up, however, it cannot regain its safe moisture level. A dry tree can be ignited by a match, to burn violently to a charred state in 18 seconds.

Extra attention to fire precautions, says the fire chief, should head the list of a sensible family's preparations for a happy Christmas season.

12 Accidents Reported Over Weekend

City police had a busy week-end with a total of 12 accidents reported. Charges are pending in seven of them.

Police report the Bleekman car was proceeding east on Dundas Street when the accident occurred. Bleekman and two passengers, Ross Harris of Canniton and Larry Jones of R. R. 2 Belleville were not injured.

Damage to the car was $500 and $700 damage was done to the Belleville Utilities pole. Charges are pending.

At 12:05 a.m. Sunday, a car driven by Earl Murray Bennett, 29 Mikel Ave., was proceeding south on Bleecker Ave. It struck a combined Hydro-Telephone pole. There were no injuries. Damage to the car was $350 and to the pole, $200. Police say charges are pending.

At 12:35 p.m. Saturday, a car driven by Edward Fitzgibbon, 12 Grove St., was in collision with a car driven by Ronald Langabeer, 60 North Park St., and another, driven by Grant Everett McCoy, 9 Pearl Street.

The accident occurred on North Front Street near the drive-through car wash. Police say charges will be laid in the accident. Damage to the Fitzgibbon car was $300, while the Langabeer car's damage was $225 and the McCoy car, $10.

There were nine other city accidents on the weekend, all of a minor nature. Charges are pending in four of the nine.

Six Injured When Car Hits Tree at Trenton

TRENTON — Robert Jackson of 221 Marmora Street was taken to Belleville General Hospital around 8 a.m. Spalfay, suffering from injuries he received in an accident at the intersection of West and Marmora Streets, which occurred around midnight, Sunday.

Jackson, who suffered a mild concussion and a fractured nose, was one of six persons injured in the one-car accident. Two Rushnell ambulances were pressed into service to take the injured to Trenton Hospital.

The car, driven by 27-year-old Richard Wentzell of Trenton, went out of control and travelled 37 feet on the lawn at 115 Marmora Street, coming to a stop when it struck a large maple tree, head on. Wentzell was most seriously injured, suffering a severed scalp, bruised arms and internal bruises when he was thrown from the vehicle. Other passengers were also thrown out.

Others injured were 25-year-old Richard Gordon of 100 Victoria Street, who suffered bruises and abrasions to his head; 18-year-old Miss Dorcas Ann Ostrum of Oshawa, who suffered cuts over his eye and bruised legs; 26-year-old Joseph Crawford of 100 West Street, who suffered a lacerated scalp and 25-year-old Shirley Ann Hall, who suffered a bruised shoulder and a lacerated arm.

Wentzell and Mrs. Crawford are still in hospital.

Damage to the car was set by Trenton police at $600.

Two Escape As Car Rolls

TRENTON — Twenty-year-old Lawrence Moran of Oshawa and 23-year-old Neal Montgomery of Frankford escaped serious injury last night when a car, driven by Moran, went out of control on the Wooler Road. The vehicle rolled over several times, travelled along a ditch, bounced over an its roof, cleared a four-foot culvert and ended up on its wheels. The roof of the car was torn out on the driver's side.

Montgomery received cuts and lacerations to his wrists by flying Kevin Flynn at Trenton hospital and released. The two men walked away from the car, following the accident.

Various Items Discussed at Red Cross Meet

At the December meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross, Mrs. Ketcheson reported that the Blood Donor Clinic had 2846 days on 256 cases with 433 children and 19 senior citizens. The supervisor has made 673 calls.

She also reported that under Emergency Measures 1,000 families had received assistance. Some had been referred to their own branch.

The report of the Disaster Committee under Mrs. H. McCabe showed that 1,000 calls had been given help after the explosion and fire on Pinnacle Street. Several families including 36 children had been given aid after the fire in a Trenton block. Torontos had sent bedding and pillows. Mr. Davis of the Welfare branch had also given considerable assistance. A family with three small children at all events had received aid after a fire that left them with nothing.

An "In Plant" Blood Donor Clinic was held at the Northern Electric on Monday. The next mobile clinic will be held on January 26.

Mr. Workman reported that 230 boys and girls had taken Safety classes every Saturday at the Tope Motel pool.

An Instructors Course is planned for Easter week for four days.

The Senior Citizens will have a Christmas party and a tour of the city to view the Christmas decorations on December 21.

SAYS IT'S FORCED

The prime minister said Britain's economic boycott forced Rhodesia to increase the tax.

The price of coal to Rhodesia — before the new royalty charges — ranged between £1 and £5 (S3.75) a ton.

Now with a £5 royalty charge, it will cost £6 (S18) to £10 (S37.5) a ton.

Zambia imports more than 700,000 tons of coal annually from Rhodesia.

Smith has already threatened to raise the railway rates for carrying Rhodesian copper through Rhodesia in the Mozambique port of Beira.

take firm hold soon after the Christmas holidays.

Canadian informants said Mr. Pearson would tell Mr. Wilson to call an extraordinary meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers to deal with the Rhodesian problem.

However, aides in Mr. Wilson said this appears unlikely at the moment.

Two African Commonwealth countries, Tanzania and Zambia, have announced broken diplomatic relations with Britain because the illegal Rhodesian government has not already been toppled from power.

Mr. Wilson said Britain is "willing to consider" going to a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Lagos, Nigeria for Jan. 10 in Lagos, the Nigerian capital.

Informants said it now does not appear that this conference will take place. Mr. Pearson has said he is ready to attend such a meeting if one is arranged.

DANGER GROWS

Mr. Wilson told reporters that every day increases the danger of intervention by other African countries in Rhodesia.

The sooner there was a quick return to constitutional rule in Rhodesia, the easier would be the task of restoring the economy.

Mr. Wilson repeated that Britain feels the problem shouldn't be settled by military force. Britain has never proposed using Canadian or its own forces in the situation.

Some African nations were advocating measures which Britain didn't regard as right or practical.

"We are going on doing what we believe to be right," Mr. Wilson said, while wouldn't be "pushed into" actions it considered wrong.

He said he believes the Commonwealth will emerge from the Rhodesian crisis no less strong.

Mr. Wilson said Canada has taken a constructive, cautious and definite line on Rhodesia and that he had expressed his appreciation for this to Mr. Pearson.

REACH UNDERSTANDING

Mr. Wilson said he and Mr. Pearson had reached a high degree of understanding on their respective positions during their "intensive" discussions. There were very few world problems they had not ranged over.

He said he had reviewed the British defence problem with President Johnson and Mr. Pearson. Britain would have to eliminate or shave some of its defence commitments.

Mr. Wilson also said he hopes that "before long" there can be some joint action by Britain and Russia on getting negotiations started on Viet Nam.

The two countries were co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which established, among other things, the Canada - India - Poland truce supervisory commissions in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

Mr. Wilson said his government has been trying to persuade Russia to help arrange a conference in Indochina.

However, the key to negotiations lay in Communist North Viet Nam and so far there was no clear evidence that Hanoi was willing to negotiate.

DETECTS CHANGE

Mr. Wilson said his "sensitive antennae" have detected a "slight whisper, a marginal change" in Hanoi's attitude.

He looks forward to close co-operation with General de Gaulle, who was recorded election in the French general election run-off.

Mr. Wilson said he did not want to comment on specific policy questions in France, which he described as friendly ally of Britain of long standing.

A reporter asked at a press conference for Mr. Wilson's comment on France's participation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Speaking for Britain, he said, he intends to make a viable success of NATO and he hoped President de Gaulle "will be as anxious as we are to do so."

Sharing of Canada's Water Surplus With U.S. Provokes Varied Reactions

By KEN CLARE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has plenty of water and this led to public debate in 1963 on whether the surplus should be exported to the United States or not.

Even the shades of opinion had shades.

Larry Standing problems of declining Great Lakes water levels and river and lake pollution took a back seat to the great water export debate.

Northern Affairs Minister Laing, whose department oversees water resources, was the chief government spokesman at least until the campaign for the Nov. 8 election.

Then Prime Minister Pearson said the federal government plans to discuss water export with the U.S., but Canada would have to be careful to meet her own needs first. Water export, he said, could be as important as oil, wheat or anything else sold abroad.

This seemed a little different from the line laid down earlier by Mr. Laing, who said earlier the U.S. should not look to Canada as a potential source of unlimited quantities of fresh water which can be tapped at any time.

TAKES LONG-RANGE VIEW

Mr. Pearson said later there was no decision to be made by Mr. Laing was looking at the immediate future. The government was looking at the long-range ahead. No water would be exported in the immediate future.

Conservative spokesman Alvin Hamilton suggested that Canada should trade water to the U.S. about exchanging water for guaranteed markets southern Canada for Canadian industrial products.

This too seemed slightly at odds with the policy of Conservative leader Diefenbaker, who rejected one water diversion scheme on the ground it would chip away at Canadian sovereignty and disipate the country's resources without consideration.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his party intended to bring in a national water policy to safeguard this natural resource.

The diversion project mentioned by Mr. Diefenbaper is a $100,000,000,000 scheme to wet water collected from rivers in British Columbia, the Yukon and Alaska.

CREATE RESERVOIR

Part of the flow would be redirected into the Rocky Mountain trench to form a 300-mile reservoir in B.C. with its southern tip in Montana. From there it would be channelled into U.S. rivers and canals.

The project is the brainchild of the late Ralph M. Parsons engineering firm of Los Angeles and New York. The firm has been promoting the scheme in government circles on both sides of the border for years.

It has all sorts of interesting sidelights including a transcontinental canal that would carry ocean vessels over the Rockies and across the Canadian prairies.

Another diversion scheme still attracting attention has been advanced by Tom Kierans, a Sudbury, Ont., consulting engineer.

He wants governments to get together and collect river water flowing into James Bay and redirect it "grand canal" that would carry it int. the Great Lakes. This would help raise the lakes levels and revive the U.S. with a more stable supply.

CANADA COMES FIRST

During the federal-provincial conference last July, the federal government issued a water policy statement that concluded Canada would give up water only if it was in her national interest to do so.

One of the last words on the problem came from John Turner, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Laing. In a Washington speech, he took the Canada first approach, but said if water was "considered" a continental resource, markets should be viewed on the same basis.

He said that if Canadian water was offered for export, it might be in return for access to U.S. markets for Canadian goods, not for money.

This seemed to be akin to what Mr. Hamilton was saying.

Many politicians seem to be saying to the U.S.: "We've got it and we're going to use it the way we see fit. But if we have some left over and you really want it, maybe we can be sufficiently tempted to give you some. On our terms, that is."

New Zealand's Largest City Is Built Atop 63 Volcanoes

AUCKLAND (CP) — Auckland, New Zealand's largest city with a population of 570,000, stands on a unique site. The city is built on, around and among some 63 extinct volcanic cones and craters. A noted visiting volcanologist has just informed the city council no sooner or later there is bound to be another eruption.

Auckland's volcanoes are only babies as volcanoes go. The largest and newest, an island in the harbor, built up 700 years ago, say geologists. It stands nearly 1,000 feet high.

More than a dozen grass-covered hills, from 200 to 600 feet high, dot the city and suburbs and form attractive parks and viewpoints.

Many other former volcanic vents are less obvious. Some are completely built over, some have been entirely quarried away for railway ballast or building shingle. Some are little more than depressions in the ground, which once gave off volcanic blasts.

But the whole complex is of intense interest to volcanologists, who eagerly study the system and the evidence still available as to the pattern of activity.

No Auckland volcano has been active since the early European settlement, or even in the annals of the Maori inhabitants who arrived several hundred years before the white man. Some excitement was caused a few years ago when a rise in temperature was noted in the soil of a suburban area, but the activity, if such it was, subsided.

COUNT ERUPTIONS

But, say the geologists, there have been some 30 eruptions in the past 50,000 years, or an average of every 1,000 new years. There might be several close together and then none for a long time.

Dr. G. P. L. Walker, senior lecturer in geology at the Imperial College, London, now visiting New Zealand, said, "It would be very surprised if there is not one within 300 years—probably sooner."

But by way of comfort to Aucklanders, Dr. Walker added that the damage would probably be spread over "only a few hundred acres." There would be several days' warning. First there would be earthquakes and steam rising from the ground, and then the eruption.

The warning has failed to cause any panic or even excessive alarm in Auckland. No citizens now living expect to be alive in the next century, when geologists say the odds against an eruption occurring during the lifetime of any living persons are great.

Russians Use Checkpoints To Fight Cattle Disease

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The first indication that you're approaching a checkpoint comes when you see a long line, like a level crossing barricade, silhouetted against the sky at 45-degree angle down the highway.

Entering the check zone you go over a big bump guaranteed to slow you down so that your tires get well covered with the mixture of sawdust and chemical disinfectant laid out on the road.

In a moment you're on your way again, though sometimes there is a holdup as the bar comes down to stop a truck so that the on-duty policeman can examine its cargo. Transport of animals, birds, vegetables, hay and other farm produce is strictly controlled.

By such methods, authorities are seeking to bring under control a major outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease that has been ravaging cattle herds over a vast area of the Soviet Union.

TWO YEARS AHEAD

Little has appeared on the epidemic in the Soviet press. But from various indications and circumstantial evidence Western experts conclude that the highly contagious disease has been racing unchecked through much of the Ukraine, Byelorussia, south of the European Federation, and possibly the Baltic republics. Hundreds of control points have been set up on highways in the western part of the country.

One expert estimates that areas with 40 per cent of the Soviet Union's cattle population have been hit by the virus. He predicts that the toll in lost meat and milk production will be staggering.

Hungary, with a far smaller cattle population than the Soviet Union, had a foot - and - mouth outbreak last year that cost up to an estimated $90,000,000.

Western observers are less than impressed with the means used to try to control the Soviet outbreak, which to some extent get an exercise in closing the barn door after all the animals have fled.

FEW DESTROYED

In Canada and other Western countries, the standard way of dealing with the disease is to slaughter infected herds and impose strict quarantine regulations.

In the Soviet Union, as far as is known, few if any cattle have been destroyed, apparently because responsible authorities are unwilling to face up to the economic losses involved. And quarantine measures may have been longer to put into effect than they should have.

Though it is only in recent years that the Communist-ruled present outbreak have become visible, it may be several months before Western travelers remembers seeing a checkpoint on the Moldavian - Ukrainian border as long ago as last July.

There is no way of telling whether a separate outbreak occurred that summer or whether it was a connection with the later epidemic, origin of which has been ascertained by Western experts.

CUTS MEAT OUTPUT

Foot-and-mouth disease, while fatal in only a small majority of cases, takes a heavy toll in meat and milk production of affected herds. It attacks animals' live parts of an animal's body, including both the tongue and the soft tissue of the feet.

The result is that the animal can scarcely move and can concome emaciated, and dairy cows dry up.

The present epidemic is also believed to be taking a toll of Soviet hogs, and possibly some sheep and goats.

The epidemic struck at a time when Russia's livestock industry had just nicely recovered from the disastrous grain harvest of 1963, when fodder shortages led to the destruction of large numbers of animals and undermined the health of others.

Reds Planned Terror Drive In Indonesia

SINGAPORE (AP) — Indonesian communists planned to launch a terror campaign against tens of thousands of persons if the October 1 coup attempt had succeeded, highly reliable sources say.

The campaign of horrors was to include eye-gouging and other mutilation as well as murder, the sources said, and the victims were to include U.S.; British and other Western diplomats and their families.

The sources gave this account:

The army recently discovered the plan in the diaries of some 600 cadets of the communist party (PKI). The campaign, restricted to Jakarta, was to be carried out by fives or four to six communists each.

The tall members kept detailed notes on their intended victims. Some cadets kept dossiers on the victims' homes with bedrooms carefully marked.

The terror campaign was to follow the slaying of top army generals and ranking Col. 2 to 5, winding up with a public execution of 600 "bureaucratic capitalists" in Jakarta's main square.

Lord Thomson Gives Views On Africa

By NICK FILLMORE

HALIFAX (CP)—Lord Thomson of Fleet says it is inevitable that the Negroes will rule the white minority rule their own country.

"A change has to take place in Rhodesia and the rest of Africa," he told a press conference Sunday. "There's no doubt the Negroes will run their own countries. It's just a matter of time."

The Canadian-born publisher was in Halifax to be guest speaker Sunday night at a provincial dinner for Halifax business man Col. Sidney Oland.

"Within 10 years I expect government came along I thought the change might take 20 years," he said, and added: "Now the change will take much longer, perhaps dozens of years."

AREN'T PROFITABLE

Lord Thomson, who owns a string of newspapers in Rhodesia shut down by the Smith government, said it isn't profitable to establish newspapers in Africa, "but some day a great field for news will open up across the entire African continent."

He said he has kept newspapers that are losing money for political reasons because the people need this "educational help" from considered interests. The Thomson Foundation, he said, trains promising African Negro journalists and business men and sends them back to their nations to work.

A new member of the British House of Lords in 1964, Lord Thomson said he is resentful that his Canadian citizenship was taken away. "I feel I'm better as a citizen of country all the time," he said, "it seems Canada doesn't want me to be Canadian."

He predicted Canada would be "booming right along" in 1968, but Britain had to overcome several problems. "England has been going too fast for two years, now it has to slow down in a hurry. The government must bring its financial affairs in order."

Industrial Development Creates Critical Shortage Of Housing, Skilled Workers

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP)—Industrial development on the Niagara Peninsula has created a critical shortage of housing and skilled workers, says the Niagara Regional Development Association.

Ross Richards, general manager of the association, says in a December news bulletin the housing shortage is the worst since the Second World War and industries are "searching frantically the world over" for skilled workers to fill jobs.

"Industrial and municipal officials say plans for future industrial expansion all over the peninsula are so great that the housing shortage has become a crisis. And the lack of men to fill jobs now open is equally as serious."

The bulletin says the recently negotiated Canada - United States auto pact agreement is expected to provide jobs for at least 2,000 persons in the St. Catharines - Welland - Port Colborne area.

"Announcement is expected within the next few weeks for the construction of two large multi-million dollar plants and a major addition to a third major industry, all to produce auto parts for distribution in Canada and the U.S."

The plants are expected to be located along the Welland Canal.

Construction is expected to start within the next year but the firms involved have not been identified.

THOUSANDS WORK

Construction has also been resumed on the phase of the $100,000,000 twinning project on the Welland Canal. Between 4,000 and 5,000 men are expected to be employed on the project this winter until the end of 1970.

Bert Patterson, Welland industrial commissioner, said not all the new work force can be found, but homes for the men must also be provided.

"The housing situation in the area is very bad," he said, "there are just no houses to be rented."

Welland is the industrial city industry in the Welland area has climaxed in the last two years. There is 100 per cent employment.

Five new major industries, employing 1,000 persons, have located in Welland in the last two years.

The association said one local industry last week sent representatives to Scotland to interest workers there and encourage them to come to Canada.

St. Catharines reports a similar shortage of housing and skilled labor.

TRENTON — The funeral of Mr. Arthur C. Brummel of Longpoint St., Trenton, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home to St. Peter's Church on Saturday morning. Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. G. Clancy, who also officiated at the entombment rites at Mount Calvary Cemetery vault.

In failing health for the past year, Mr. Brummel died last Thursday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Augter. He was in his 79th year. A lifetime resident of the Trenton district, Mr. Brummel was a retired carpenter, and had formerly been a member of one of Trenton Citizens' Bands.

He is survived by one son: William of Trenton and Patrick of Belleville, and by six daughters: Mrs. Alvin Brummel Mrs. A. Northrop (Helen) and Mrs. Thomas Auger (Margaret), all of Trenton; Mrs. R. INCENSE COVERS SMELL

WARRINGTON, England (CP)—A brewery is helping to keep churchgoers warm in this Lancashire town. The heating system in St. Anne's church broke down and would have cost more than £500 to repair. But the owners of the brewery next door offered to pipe waste heat from the brewery to the church after processing the beer.

Birthrate in City Said on the Decline Despite More Marriages

Whether it is because of the "pill" or for some other reason, the birthrate in Belleville is on the decline.

And this is despite the fact the number of marriages is on the increase as post war babies become of marriageable age.

Statistics from Belleville General Hospital show that in the past 11 months the number of births has decreased by almost 15 per cent. At the end of December this year births at Belleville hospital numbered 1,143. In the same period last year the total was 1,322.

Births during November, 1964, at the hospital totalled 101 while the same month this year saw but 89 births.

NATIONWIDE TREND

One Belleville doctor who wished to remain anonymous, said the birthrate drop in Belleville reflected a nation-wide trend and was felt to be a combination of two things. (1), the oral contraceptive "pill" now seeing increasing use, and (2), a consciousness on the part of parents of the population explosion and their concern of this fact.

On the other hand City Clerk Adam Stalker confirmed that the number of marriages is on the increase.

The recent drop in Belleville area births has already come to the attention of local school authorities, who are beginning to wonder if the trend will reflect a possible change in the future classroom requirement picture.

THINKING NOT CHANGED

Public schools administrator L. A. Kelk says that the fewer births have not yet changed the thinking of the school board.

Mr. Kelk said that consideration of changing birthrates was a bit too early for school board to take as an indication of future classroom requirements.

A much clearer picture of classroom requirements could be ascertained by using school enrolment figures of children already in school, he said.

Political Expediency

For all their idealism and concern for human rights, there is more than a touch of frailty in the conduct of affairs by the nations of the world. And no more so than in this country, not to mention the United States and Britain, and the independent states of Africa.

Canada practises its own subtle form of discrimination—against the Indians, for example.

And the United States, recent legislation to the contrary, has a long way to go before it can say the Negro in that country has equal rights with white Americans.

Britain is hell-bent on throttling a quarter-of-a-million whites in Rhodesia and does not care if 4,000,000 Africans also suffer in the process. Yet that is one result of its economic sanctions against Rhodesia. The Salisbury government has indicated that thousands of Africans from neighboring Zambia and Malawi will lose their jobs in Rhodesia and be repatriated to their homelands.

Yet trade must go on, if not between one group of countries, then with another. For self-interest and economic expediency are paramount. Thus we had former Conservative Trade Minister George Hees suggesting recently that Canada could supply Britain with the tobacco formerly obtained from Rhodesia.

Prime Minister Pearson has been visiting Trinidad and Tobago whose leader, Dr. Eric Williams, is reported to be interested in supplying Canada with sugar formerly obtained from Rhodesia.

Canada has joined with other nations in ostracizing Communist China, denying the Peking government a seat in the United Nations. Yet we sell it millions of bushels of wheat.

The United States some years ago clamped a trade embargo on Communist Cuba. Yet Canada, friend and closest neighbor of the U.S., steps in and fills the breach for a government starved of agricultural and other equipment previously obtained from the Americans.

Nor are the newly-independent countries of Africa above putting material needs before principles. Thus we find that while calling for sanctions against South Africa, because of its apartheid policies, some of these nations are still being supplied with goods—through third parties —by the white-dominated republic.

So it goes on. When all is said and done, it is the greenbacks—of whatever shade or denomination or origin—that count most in this world. And not principles, but expediency. Mostly anyway.

Medical Aid for Viet Nam

While active participation by Canada in the war in Viet Nam has been ruled out, for the time being at least, there are other ways in which this country could contribute more than it does, to the humanitarian reasons alone. This is in the medical sphere.

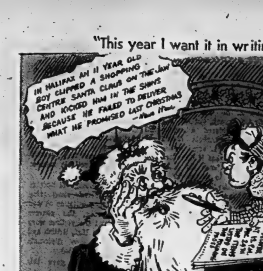
A Canadian doctor, Alje Vennema, who has spent 18 months in Viet Nam, is back home trying to recruit doctors and technicians for medical teams.

At a press conference in Ottawa last week, Dr. Vennema said: "I would like to see Canada come up with more medical teams. We should send one more in Viet Nam for medical reasons rather than for political and military ones."

Dr. Vennema, a 33-year-old bachelor, said that for the 15 million people of Viet Nam, there are only 1,200 doctors, half of whom are in the armed forces. In provincial hospitals, about 15 per cent of the civilian patients have been injured in the war.

He said the Vietnamese need public health services more than anything else. Much of the illness results from lack of food, housing and soap. Ninety per cent of the population harbors intestinal parasites, while tuberculosis and other chest conditions are common.

It seems that not only Canada, but other countries as well, could contribute much to the alleviation of these conditions. Spain, for example, has announced it is sending a medical unit to Viet Nam. In the broader sense, such assistance could do much to improve the people of the country for the brighter future which one day, sooner or later, they must enjoy.



Cyclone's Toll

A death toll of at least 17,000 has been reported as the result of a devastating cyclone in East Pakistan. Coming on top of the recent armed conflict with India, this is a fearsome blow to that part of the world.

It is an old story, of course, in Asia and it is ironic to realize that the tragedy will mean fewer hungry mouths to feed in a country where the population explosion is a stark feature of the economic scene.

In the face of such a calamity, Canadians might pause for a moment to reconsider how free we are in this country from the ravages of nature.

We should give thanks for our good fortune. Especially now, at Christmas time.

To Your Good Health

Several Treatments For Grave's Disease

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is Grave's disease? Has a cure been found for it? — R. F.

Dear Doctor: About five years ago I had an operation for an overactive thyroid, a part of the gland was removed. Now I am having the same trouble. Is it possible for the thyroid to act up again? — Mrs. R. B.

Grave's disease is a severe form of hyperthyroidism (overactive thyroid). It features such symptoms as rapid heart beat, nervousness, prominence of the eyeballs.

Yes, indeed, there is effective treatment. The method depends on age and other factors. In some instances antithyroid drugs slow down the gland's activity to a suitable rate. In other cases radioactive iodine does the job. In still others, surgical removal of part of the gland is preferable.

It is possible in some cases for the remaining portion of the thyroid gland to become overactive, although this is not by any means the usual experience. When this occurs, further surgery or one of the other methods is in order.

Dear Dr. Molner: Enclosed are 20 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." Does drinking about three glasses of cold water a day harm the stomach? — V. K.

The booklet is on its way, and there are several ways of combatting constipation, as you'll see. No, I can't see how three glasses of cold milk could hurt you unless (and this is rare) you happen to be allergic to it. And if you customarily drink that much milk, we can be confident that you aren't.

Dear Dr. Molner: Two of my children are in the hospital with histoplasmosis. They both had pneumonia.

Our doctor called a lung specialist because of it. The children were also given a skin test.

I don't believe in changing doctors in the middle of the stream but I can't get my family off my back. They seem to think I should change doctors and take the children to another hospital.

Our doctor told us this is a fungus infection and hard to get rid of, and he doesn't want to release the children from the hospital until they are out of danger. — Mrs. I. N.

• • •

Your doctor is obviously "on the ball." Histoplasmosis is a fungus which invades the lungs. There is, as yet, very little direct treatment for it. The important thing is to give the patient rest and be alert for any complications, so as to stop them before they become serious.

Years ago histoplasmosis was considered a rare and deadly disease, because only the severe cases were recognized as being that.

Today we know it is not rare, but is often mistaken (unless a known tests are used for "flu," bronchitis, and tuberculosis.) Sometimes because pneumonia isn't one disease. It is several diseases, varying according to the kind of bacteria, virus, fungus or other organism which is the cause. So histoplasmosis is a fungus type.

When you have a doctor with the know-how to recognize this disease, and has had a special test confirm it, and is obviously being wisely careful to keep the children hospitalized until they are cured, I'd most certainly be thankful. Politely ignore the relatives who want you to change doctor or hospital.

English - speaking American settlers in Texas declared their independence 130 years ago today—in 1835 defying the Spanish government of Mexico, traditional rulers of the land. An army under Santa Anna set out to overthrow the Americans. After inflicting two bloody defeats on the unimaginative settlers, at the Alamo and the Massacre of Goliad, the Mexicans were conclusively defeated at the battle of San Jacinto. With Sam Houston as president, Texas maintained its independence 10 years before joining the United States.

1620—Peter the Great ordered the Russian New Year to be reckoned from Jan. 1 instead of Sept. 1.

1886—A British force beat the dervishes at the battle of Suakin, in the Sudan.

First World War

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—London was heavily bombed at night; British naval and RAF aircraft attacked Tripoli and Bardia; Luftwaffe units dropped bombs by mistake on Dun Laoghaire, near Dublin in the (neutral) Irish Republic.

Exasperating

Potassium Vital to Brainwork

Montreal Star

Some of us can remember being told that fish is a brain food, to suppress our protests at having to eat fish. (Some can remember being told, when we protested that we didn't like it, "You don't have to like it; you just have to eat it.") A later, and supposedly better informed, stand on the matter was to say that any good food, in proper amounts, is a brain food, none more so than others.

There could have been some basis for that belief in fish in the first place.

In the November issue of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, there appears an article on the brain and its functioning. Some things do make it work better. The author, E. Roy John, is director of the brain research laboratories in the department of psychiatry in the New York Medical College.

It has been discovered, writes Dr. John, that a little extra potassium in brain tissue improves learning, just as added sodium has the opposite effect.

It is also among the things discovered by Montreal's Dr. Seyel that potassium helps us to stand up to stress, as well as to make us brighter.

Now, quite a number of things are generally good for us, as brain foods, on the basis of their potassium content, swordfish, blackstrap molasses, almonds, potato, figs, lima beans, parsnip, leafy vegetables But you will notice that fish is not among them. Fish somehow got credit for an effect something of the was producing. It could obviously be only one thing. No one smears his fish with blackstrap molasses, or combines it with avocado or figs, but many people eat fish with potato. A very intelligent way to do so is in fish chowder, one of the finest dishes in the world. What in a good fish chowder feeds the intelligence, the body or the flavoring?

There is an opening here for a good fable, of the sort Charles Lamb recommended to trace the history of roast pork back to a burned home and a handful of blistered fingers.

Hypocrisy of Black Africa

Vancouver Sun

A news item from Johannesburg introduces a note of the absurd, if not of the hypocritical, into the African situation.

Despite the violence of black African sentiment against apartheid, South Africa's exports to independent African countries have been increasing.

This is interesting indeed. These countries have sponsored anti-apartheid resolutions in the United Nations. They have imposed their own embargoes on trade with South Africa, but they apparently get around them by doing indirect trading through third countries.

Recently they prevailed on the UN to again condemn South Africa and got a motion to impose economic sanctions through the Assembly.

But the sanctions have not been imposed as yet and some people are so cynical as to doubt they ever will be.

Black Africans seethe with fury against Britain because it won't send troops to Rhodesia. They threaten trade boycotts and diplomatic breaks. Do they really mean it? Maybe not, so don't they? Prime Minister Wilson probably reads the trade news from Johannesburg too and could hardly be blamed for a slight skepticism.

Competition and the Bank

St. Catharines Standard

A new bank act which really meets the demonstrated needs of the community at large is essential if the banks are to play their full part in the growth and development of the Canadian economy. This statement on the part of G. Arnold Hart, chairman of the board of the Bank of Montreal, was made in connection with his charge that the draft banking legislation introduced in Parliament earlier this year fails to take into account the vast changes that have occurred in recent years. He was referring to the changes in the Canadian financial system and the environment in which it operates.

Reporting to the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, Mr. Hart emphasized that the financial system of this country has been greatly weakened if the slow erosion of the position of the banks is allowed to continue. What he urged was a free hand for the banks to compete, and nothing more.

By inhibiting the growth of the banks relative to other financial intermediaries, which are not similarly subject to central control, Mr. Hart claimed that harmful weaknesses are created.

Urged was that the banks be permitted to offer a full range of personal financial services, and noted was that otherwise the public would be forced to seek more expensive accommodation elsewhere.

The argument is not new, but presented by Mr. Hart provides a brief analysis on why banks are asking that the services they are able to provide be increased.

The Porter Commission in its report to the government recognized the need for change in the bank act, but little attention has been paid to its findings. Perhaps the new Parliament, will take time to study the recommendations of the Porter Commission, and to revise the bank act accordingly.

Downing St. Poltergeist

London Letter in the Manchester Guardian

I have a new theory about the troubles — structural, not political — of 10 Downing St. It comes from Hector Bolitho, who has written a history of the house.

He recalls that Pepys called George Downing a "perfidious rogue" and that Winston Churchill described the house and its neighbors as "shaky and ramshackle built by the profiteering contractor whose name they bear". He wonders if Downing Street weren't built on dwells in No. 10 and, whenever there is a political crisis, tramples on the floors and shakes the fireplaces out of their settings.

Masons had to be called in when parts of the house began to collapse at the time of the 18th century British and the American colonies. When Pitt died in 1806 about £2,200 had to be spent on repairing the house safe. Again in 1825, when the country was suffering a financial crisis, the masons had to move in for further repairs. In 1832, when the Reform Bill was passed, the poltergeist rampaged, moving floors and walls to the tune of £1,247 in damage.

No. 10 had to be repaired once more in 1846 when Lord Roseberry's Government was defeated. Now, at the height of the Cold War, another rise, after a very expensive reconstruction, there is dry rot in the floors and walls. Repairs may cost another £15,000 Downing's ghost walking again?

Those Dimly-lit Restaurants

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

In recent years, dimly-lit restaurants have become the fashion in many metropolitan centres. It has also been the salvation because that a flood of complaints has come from elderly people, who find it difficult to find their way to a table. Also, they find it something of a chore to eat their food in such establishments even though the tables are equipped with candles or some other soft-lighting device.

This information comes from Martin Loeb, director of the University of Wisconsin Social Work School, who addressed a group of lodging and restaurant workers recently. Loeb has the Milwaukee Journal adopts a rather light-hearted attitude. But it asks why limit the complaints to elderly folk?

The newspaper says editorially: "Some restaurants, particularly those in which candlepower falls as the prices rise, are so dim the diner virtually needs a guide dog to conduct him to his table. Next, young whippersnappers with 20-20 vision and the required intake of carotene for night vision sometimes find themselves groping in the murk, showering pepper on the torte and catsup in the coffee."

The Journal suggests such establishments could equip all customers with miners' headlamps, although this might not please the lady with an expensive hair-do.

It also suggests miniature flashlights could be provided along with the oyster forks.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 20th, 1945

It was decided at the last meeting of the year of the Public Utilities Commission to rebuild the purifier at the gas plant in order to eliminate the obnoxious odor that has been prevalent in some places where gas is used. Mayor Frank Polwell inquired as to why city water used by the firemen to flood the collegiate rink was not available. Mr. O. R. Scott, utilities manager, said that no cushions were erected and it would be useless to put on a great quantity of water at the present time.

Employees of Stephens-Adamson Co., together with their wives and children attended an enjoyable Christmas party staged by members of the SACO club at Tabernacle Church when 250 kiddies and grown-ups entered into a program of carol singing and numbers by youthful members.

30 YEARS AGO

December 20, 1935

Earl W. VanHarlaem, KC, of Tisdale, Sask., has been re-elected for the second time as mayor of that town. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William VanHarlaem of Sidney township. He taught school in some local schools in his district.

Boxing Day, Monday, Dec. 26th, will be observed as a holiday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lowe of California are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Chisholm, Foxboro.

At the turkey shoot which was held in the armouries under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion the following were winners and each received a turkey: Earl Ketcheson, Foxboro; Tom Jordan, R.R. 7, Belleville; W. J. Woodcock and G. M. Davison, Belleville.

40 YEARS AGO

December 20, 1925

From our file copy at this time in 1885: "The new building at the Albert College Belleville will be opened on January 8th."

The Rev. N. S. McKechnie, pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, has declined a tempting offer of the pastorate of a large church. He has been here four years and likes Belleville.

The Belleville Poultry Show will be held in January. The officers of the Poultry Association are: hon. president, E. Tummon, MP; W. H. Ireland, MPP; Charles E. Hanna and Col. Ed. D. O'Flynn; vice-president, C. Waddell; treasurer, W. J. Thompson; secretary, W. H. Govier; judges, R. Oke and W. J. Thomson.

50 YEARS AGO

December 20, 1915

Mr. Albert Woodley of Detroit spent a few days over this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Woodley, Murney St.

Mr. John Taylor, John St. at Queen St., is visiting relatives in Hamilton.

The city merchants report business as being excellent.

The annual meeting of Benjamin Loyal Orange Lodge, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Wor. master, R. Bateman; deputy master, C. Johnson; chaplain, R. Lockington; financial secretary, E.C. Sprague; treasurer, Alex Walker; lecturer, Geo. Hall; director of ceremonies, W. Merritt.

Traffic Check

London Free Press

In Jacksonville, Florida, a wise judge has conceived a modern equivalent of the Sheriff Letter for teen-aged traffic violators. Repeated offenders must carry on their car's rear, foot aluminum sign bearing the legend: "Beware I Am a Traffic Violator." Police plan to make sure-it stays on the vehicle for a minimum of two months. This punishment accomplishes more than any fine or lecture ever could.

More on The Meaning Of Words

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the most fascinating studies I know is the way in which words change their meanings — not merely over the centuries, but sometimes within a generation or two. Dictionaries can scarcely keep up with such rapid shifts in meaning.

One of the most common and obvious is the word "presently." Until modern times, it meant "now" or "immediately" or "at once." Today, however, when someone says, "I'll be along presently," he means "soon" or "before long" or "in a little while." The old meaning is gone.

The same has happened, of course, with hundreds of words. During the middle English period, the word "wan" meant "dark"; somehow, the whole meaning became reserved instead for "pale," and the older sense has disappeared without a trace.

A modern example of another word turning into its opposite is "livid," which should describe a bluish leader color; but most people use it to describe a red or purplish color. A man who "turns livid with rage" should get paler, not redder. Still is by a confused association with "vivid" or "lurid."

"Buxom" has had a career that should interest psychologists as well as linguists. It originally meant "obedient," and had no connotation of "plump" or "busty." The British bride of early times promised to be "buxom and bonny" to her husband, which meant she would be obedient and pleasant. Since skinny women were thought to be intractable and wanton, the word gradually came to mean "pleasingly plump."

Some words narrow their meaning over the years; others extend them. The most flagrant extension in our time, perhaps, "alibi," which was originally a plea that the accused was somewhere else when the crime was committed. Today, "alibi" means a reason or excuse of any kind, and one just one having to do with place. Recall Lardner's "Alibi Ike."

One word that has been narrowed (with, on the whole, regrettable results) is "discipline." This once meant "training and control," and comes from the word "disciple." Now it is almost wholly used in the sense of "to punish," and one special way of disciplining has been turned into the whole meaning of the word.

In the 20th century, "religion" has moved out of the churches and into the world. We now speak of "the religion of Communism," or "the religion of money," to describe an overriding system of beliefs, whether such beliefs are theological or not. And possibly we are right in doing so.

Erhard Opens Washington Talks With LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and President Johnson open two days of talks today with the emphasis on West Germany's efforts to gain a larger role in Europe's nuclear defences.

The West Germans have no nuclear weapons and rely on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a deterrent against what Erhard has said are 1,000 middle - range Soviet missiles aimed at Western Europe.

Erhard was expected to present a plan for expanded control of those nuclear weapons now in Western Europe.

Administration officials knew in advance the broad outlines of his proposal, but declined public comment until after Erhard fills in the details. —

As understood here in the West German chancellor's arrival, this would involve general support for the establishment of an Atlantic nuclear force.

The Erhard-envisaged force, as understood in Washington, would be a fleet of American and British submarines equipped with Polaris missiles and owned jointly by interested nations. At the outset this probably would include the United States, Britain, West Germany, Italy and The Netherlands.

Thus, France — Germany, Italy and The Netherlands—would have a bigger say in the use of nuclear weapons.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were narrowly higher in moderate trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

In the industrial list Maclean Hunter gained ¼ to 34, Moore Corp. ¼ to 70, CPR ¼ to 63¼ and Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 32¼. Losses of ¼ went to Algoma Steel and Atlantic Sugar at 60¼ and 24¾.

Speculative activity was limited to a couple of issues with D'Eldona off 9 at 94 cents on volume of more than 128,000 shares. Joanmith gained 2½ to 28 cents and turned over 91,500 shares.

Pine Point lead senior metals with a gain of ¼ to 69 while Campbell Chibougamau advanced 25 cents to 7.

Among western oils Canadian Delhi jumped 35 cents to 3.10 while Aramec climbed 10 cents to 2.60.

On index, industrials were up .09 to 164.35, golds .43 to 156.18, base metals .12 to 83.06, western oils .37 to 104.57 and the TSE index .12 to 155.17. Volume at 11 a.m. was 990,000 shares compared with 1,220,000 at the same time Friday.

Says Rusk

cused State-Secretary Dean Rusk of sabotaging the bid. "Secretary of State Dean Rusk is to be blamed," he said, "because he obviously wanted this mission to fail by disclosing in advance what had been done."

Later the 24-year-old linguist denied having said this, but the journalist who interviewed him said the quote was correct.

State department officials, calling the charge outrageous, said the publication was forced by concern for what they contended was a partially erroneous account which already had become public. Rusk was reported angered and upset by the criticism.

Arthur Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to United Nations and another who played the role of go-between, said Sunday on ABC's Issues and Answers the administration would have "preferred to carry on this discussion in privacy" but was faced with a "crisis of confidence" with the public over the credibility of its peace policy. Goldberg said the administration acted correctly in releasing the correspondence.

Goldberg said he did not think disclosure of the exchange over peace negotiations would hurt any chances that now exist for such talks.

He said:

"If there is a genuine desire on both sides to negotiate, that desire will surmount whatever the difficulties are of disclosure."

North Viet Nam itself announced the whole thing Saturday as a hoax and in effect denied that a peace probe had been made.

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was down 3/32 at $1.07 17-32. Pound sterling was down 7-16 at $3.01 3-16.

Steel Industry Sets Records Of Two Kinds

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)— The U.S. steel industry set a quartet of major records in 1965, including one for headaches.

Domestic consumption, shipments and production all topped records set in 1964 as the industry enjoyed its third good year in a row.

With a surprising boom in auto sales pacing a healthy economy, steel men were looking ahead to 1966 for another fine year.

Despite the industry's performance in 1965, however, steel men said profits failed to keep pace and imports poured into the country at a record clip.

Labor costs went up in May with the signing of an interim contract with the United Steelworkers of America and rose in September with agreement on a new 35-month contract.

On top of it all, the government kept a wary eye on prices.

Production reached 128,000,000 tons, breaking the record of 127,100,000 set in 1964. Shipments were 89,500,000 tons, compared with the record 84,900,000 the previous year.

Domestic consumption topped 90,500,000 tons. The previous all-time high was set in 1964 when 83,900,000 tons were used.

Foreign imports, meanwhile, outstripped 1964's record 6,500,000 tons in the first eight months as domestic users unable to build their strike-hedge inventories fast enough were turned away from overtaxed American mills.

When all the figures are in, analysts say, more than 10,000,000 tons of foreign steel will have entered the U.S. in 1965.

Although some of the bigger producers reported record earnings for the first nine months of the year, lower profits were expected for the majority in the fourth quarter as users worked off their inventories.

Crew Cut Dead in U.S. Now It's Hair All Over

By SID MOODY

NEW YORK (AP)—After ages of close - cropped conformity those male Americans who have any have let their hair down. Over over their ears. Over the forehead. Over the neck. And among your shavers, over their parents' dead bodies.

Blame the Beatles. Most barbers do. "The crew cut," said one, "is dead." Hair is everywhere.

Sprouting as lavishly as the male locks is a brand new branch of high fashion dedicated to cultivating the top and sides of the masculine head. Barbers are no longer barbers. They are hair stylists. Hair is not cut. It is styled, with a straight razor, hair spray, shampoo and dryer. A shave and a haircut are not two bits. To get the right set and trim and wave can take over an hour and $30.

To help prepare barbers for the new upsweep in fashion the U.S. government has launched a $250,000 training program in co-operation with the barbers' union to acquaint its members with techniques of hair styling.

While the Beatles have threatened to turn male boys-agers into a generation of sheepdogs, barbers and customers alike have combined television, the comics and even history books to bring lustre and beauty to the bangs.

NAME STYLES

Perry Como, an ex-barber, has a hair style named for him. So does Prince Valiant of the funnies. So does Julius Caesar.

There's the John-John, named and patterned after John F. Kennedy Jr. and the Princeton (a crew cut gone to seed), the Class President (a digger that compromise between rampant folistion and a brush cut), the Clubman (named for the one not extremely long), the Peter Gunn and the Man From U.N.C.L.E., both inspired by their televised namesakes.

In San Francisco barbers have skimmed a nice line with the Convertible, which is shaggy enough for the electric guitar crowd but just short enough to allow the wearer to go to school.

Most of these are specialities ot the beardless set and have many L.A. barbers tearing their own hair.

Long hair hurts business, said a Boston barber. "They see a guy with long hair and decide to wait another week for a hair cut."

"These guys get a haircut once a year," said another barber in Columbus, Ohio. "They have to restyle their whole head."

"Let's face it," said a Los Angeles barber. "I'm a barber. I get paid to cut hair. I don't have to like what I'm cutting, but as long as they pay, there's no problem. But I do get the urge every time some young, nice-looking kid with a mop sits down in my chair to shave him bald. Just once."

Says Jay Schring, a Los Angeles hair stylist to whom such as Frank Sinatra and Chad Everett entrust their locks: "I don't see any end to the long-hair trend. After all, it's very popular with the teen-agers and 30 per cent of our population will be teen-agers by 1970."

PRICES VARY

Price isn't the reason, even though haircuts are up to as much as $2.25 (no tip) in Cleveland and Chicago. (If you happen to be in the neighborhood of Natalia, Ga., drop in. Haircuts are $1.)

It seems the longer the hair, the longer the sermon.

"Men are more conscious, more vain about their hair than they ever have been," said Johnny Russo, owner of the Esquire Salon for men in suburban Baltimore. "They are finding out their hair can be styled—if they have any to start with."

Waldo Roenel (Mr. Waldo to his clientele) runs a hair salon for men in suburban Baltimore, by appointment only. The waiting room has sofas, a coffee table and paintings on the wall. The treatment includes vibrators, a beating cap and dryers and takes 1½ hours.

In San Francisco Mac Blums, an establishment which has outgrown the barber shop and obtained a beauty shop licence to operate as a "men's grooming establishment," comforts 11s customers with deep-pile rugs and overstuffed chairs. A hostess serves champagne. Each chair is in an individual compartment. A shampoo comes first, followed by "hair styling." The result is sprayed with a scent of gin and the bay area sophisticate's answer to bay rum. Tab: $5.

In New York there is Jerry Spallina of "Jerry's Hair Stylist to Men," who styled David McCallum for the Man From U.N.C.L.E. When Spallina does the job himself, he charges $25.

The customer picks the style he wants and then goes through shampoos, razor trims, setting with special hair stiffeners, heat treatment under a hair dryer and a parting spray of "masculine scent."

Styling is "in," and the old immortal emporium with its candy striped -pole, spittoons and well-thumbed back copies of the Police Gazette may be in for a tripming.

"There now, you wait right there for 30 minutes, Bob."

Resident Receives Letter From Son in Malaysia

Editorial Note:

The following is a letter received by Mrs. J. A. Dills of Belleville from her son, Dwight George Dills, a teacher at the Kuching High School in Sarawak, Malaysia. The Dills family who arrived in Malaysia in August will spend two years there as a participant in the External Aid Program. Previous to his departure from Canada, Mr. Dills taught for six years in Brazil. The late Rev. J. A. Dills, the writer's father, was minister of Holloway Street United Church here for five and one-half years.

c/o Kuching High School,
Kuching, Sarawak,
Malaysia.

Dear Loved Ones and Friends:

First of all Cornelia, Clifford, Sandra, Corie and myself, want to take this opportunity to wish you a Very Merry Christmas and all the best that the New Year can bring. Although many miles separate us we shall be thinking of our loved ones and all our wonderful friends. Just imagine, this will be the first time in ten years that Cornelia and I will be able to celebrate in warm, green Malaysia.

Some of you will undoubtedly be wondering what the Dills are doing out in South East Asia. For your benefit, I shall briefly explain. Last December I applied to the External Aid Office, Ottawa, for a teaching assignment to one of the newly developing countries in Africa, South East Asia or the Caribbean. This assistance is offered by the Canadian government under the Colombo Plan. Luckily my application was accepted and I was nominated for a teaching position here in Sarawak. The apointment was not confirmed until May 5th, and from then on our lives became involved in making plans, reading all we could about Borneo and Sarawak in particular, in trying to tie up loose ends before our departure. After a 5-Week Summer Course in Toronto during the month of July—teaching English as a Second Language—which, by the way, I managed to pass! All of this culminated in a 2 day briefing for all External Aid people and families, which was held in Montreal at MacDonald College.

We left Montreal Thursday morning, August 27th via Canadian Pacific and arrived in Vancouver around noon that day. You may well imagine our delight, when, upon our arrival at the hotel, we were greeted by a good friend, Bruce Hay, whom many of you know. His presence there was really of God-send since our rooms were not ready and wouldn't be ready for three or four hours. Bruce generously allowed us the hospitality of his room. We were supposed to have left Vancouver the following day at 3 p.m. but our plane was delayed ten hours. I can assure you that this delay was an unfortunate start to a very long, tiring trip.

We arrived in Tokyo at 2.00 o'clock Saturday morning—we missed a day crossing the International Date Line—so find everything closed. Our stop here was only 70 minutes. Next stop was Hong Kong, a city that we most certainly intend to visit and spend some time in. It was just sunrise and the view of the city below as we were coming in for a landing was really beautiful. We were at the airport in H.K. for nearly two and one-half hours. Again we found the shops closed, much to our annoyance. We had heard so much about this city being a shopper's paradise, and it really it . Some of our more adventurous companions managed to find some shops open and did some purchasing of radios, cameras, binoculars, etc. From H.K., we flew to Bangkok, Bangkok, the city of legend and romance, but city we were unable to see—we had to stay at the airport for nearly three hours! You must be getting the picture now, I am sure.

FRUSTRATING TRIP

The trip was most frustrating. Here we were in easy contact of these romantic spots and unable to enjoy them. From Bangkok we made our way to Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaysia. Here we were met by a Mr. Livingston, third secretary of the High Commissioner's office, and another Canadian chap whose name I have unfortunately forgotten. We were escorted to the Station Hotel, a relic of bygone years, and shown to our rooms which were to be our home for the next two years. At this point we were all too worn out to care much about the town, my job, housing or any other things.

For the first week we stayed in the Government Rest House, a comfortable and attractive building which is located quite close to downtown. After a good night's rest we were anxious to begin an investigation of the town. We didn't waste any time. The following morning after our arrival, all of us were up bright and early and made our way downtown on foot for breakfast. Our first impression was a very good one and this impression has deepened with the passing of three months. We love it here. The shops and streets are very interesting and contain so many fascinating things. Carpenter Street is just one of the many interesting streets which has shops of nearly every type and description—Asian, Indian shops, numerous tailors, electrical shops, dress-makers, beauty shops, Chinese and Malay restaurants, novelty shops, with imports from all over the world, furniture makers, basket weavers, a Buddhist temple, a sidewalk shoe-maker, book stores, stationary store, Chinese grocery stores and several street vendors. I am sure all of you would like the rattan furniture that is made here, as well as the beautiful basket work and rugs which are also made from rattan or rushes of some sort.

OTHER INTERESTS

Other things which intrigue us are the market, which is located beside the Sarawak River; the open market which is an eating place located in one of the central squares — the Chinese food served here is superb; the open storm sewers which bothered our 'sensitive' noses at first; the friendliness of the people, both Malay and Chinese; the native mode of dress — the Malay women wear sarongs which are really very attractive and many of the Chinese women wear a kind of pants and tunic; many a floral design; the numerous bicycles and motor scooters both of which are a real hazard on the roads; the tourists (no?) who chase us (or should I say wails) from the minaret of the mosque every morning and evening; the rain; canpans which infest the river; the 'boom' which goes off every evening at 8 o'clock from a cannon located at the Astana, which is the governor's mansion across the river and many other things too numerous to mention in a short letter. How we wish you all could be here to enjoy many of the things we are enjoying. Mind you, everything is not ideal.

The heat, especially in the afternoons, is oppressive and is made worse by the high humidity. Do we get much rain? You are joking, of course. We are right in the Monsoon area and believe me when I tell you that it can rain. The average rainfall is 125 plus inches a year. From November to March are the rainy months — the Landas season — and we can look forward to a heavy downpour practically every day around o'clock in the afternoon. This rain is usually accompanied by thunder and lightning. The unusual thing is that the air will clear and the sun will shine suudenly. Fortunately we have found the nights very cool and pleasant.

EAGER TO LEARN

I am teaching English Language and Composition in a Grade nine High School. The school is in the process of changing over to the English medium of instruction and Chinese (Mandarin) will be taught only as a subject. I have the translation class — Form 21, which would be equivalent to our Grade 10. While their ability to read and comprehend English is quite good, their oral English is pitifully weak and I am in the process of trying to remedy this situation. Certainly the kind of teaching I am doing here is far removed from the kind of teaching I was doing in Ontario. But let me assure you that I am thoroughly enjoying the experience. My pupils are most keen to learn and their co-operation in class is remarkable. I can say without exception that every one of the 120 students I teach are eager to learn, a fact which is not always true of our youngsters at home, unfortunately.

By the way, our house is beautiful — a government house, and very large.

Again, Merry Christmas. With love and best wishes,
Cornelia, George and children.

Last Year To Play Santa For Collectors

CHRISTMAS ISLAND, N.S. (CP)—This will be Margaret MacNeil's last Christmas for receiving letters addressed to Santa Claus and for playing Santa to stamp collectors.

In January, Mrs. MacNeil, 72, retires as postmistress of this Cape Breton village. She has held the job since 1941.

"She doesn't like leaving," says her son Michael, who helps out at Christmas. "She's still spry and the job keeps her occupied."

Like every post office, the one at Christmas Island is busy at this time of year but there's an added task. Many stamp collectors—Michael estimates 200 to 300 a year—send stamped self-addressed envelopes and Mrs. MacNeil obligingly cancels them with a Christmas Island postmark and sends them back. Most of these requests are from the United States.

The post office also gets its share of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

Actually Christmas Island isn't on an island and its name has nothing to do with Christmas. The real island is a tiny dot of land a few yards off shore in Great Bras d'Or near the entrance to Bras d'Or Lake. And it is said to have been named after an Indian Christmas buried there.

Successful Living

Memory Blacked Out, Was It Due Old Shock?

DEAR DORIS: Four years ago my husband was killed in an accident. I saw the accident and was with him when he died. I was never treated for shock.

Then tell me it should go over but I don't know. Two weeks ago I was going to work and I crossed the street. It was the last I remember. When I came to I was two blocks in another direction from where I was going. I do not remember anything and must have walked around half an hour.

I have never been to a doctor as I feel well otherwise. Tell me what I should do, and was it a blackout or amnesia? — DAZED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DAZED: My psychiatric consultant would send you first to a general practitioner for a checkup. Blackouts like yours are often caused by a physical problem.

Falling any clue here, are you worrying about something? Stress, strain — something psychological — may well be at the bottom of it. Persons don't regularly wander about with no memory of where they've been or why.

I'd hardly be the one to link it up with any specific nightmare in your past. That's a job for a psychiatrist, if it comes to that.

DEAR DORIS: Will you please send me exercises to do away with the "dowager's hump." I have never seen or read of them but doubtless there are some. — D. HUMP.

DEAR D. HUMP: That rounded, stooped look is easier to prevent than correct. But posture-improving exercises will halt the trend. They will certainly make you look and feel better.

Any deep breathing exercise is good, with its action in expanding the chest and squaring the shoulders. Shoulder rotating and arm-swinging routines can help.

Avoid slumped shoulders when working or reading; adjust your eye-level and work surfaces so that you are not everlastingly bent forward.

And send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope enclosing ten cents for my leaflet "Don't Slump Into a Hump."

DEAR DORIS: Last night my girl friend and I had two boy friends over at my house. We just sat and talked. I had to leave the room a couple of times (washroom and to fix my hair, etc.)

Well, after I came back Jenny told me that the guy that I was going around with didn't want to see me any more. Now why would he want to do a thing like that, when we were just getting to know each other better?

Did I do something wrong? Am I too quiet for him? Why am I having so much trouble understanding these guys? I've had boy friends before and no trouble at all. — THE END.

DEAR END: Far be it from me to get into your "Walk-Out's head and say what put him off. But one thing I do know is that a boy who is not terribly mixed up himself won't forget his manners enough to walk off without a word!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: When I realize how lucky we are at Christmas I worry about the people who don't have it so good. But I can't get out to shop anyway and I don't just know what to do about it. I end up doing nothing. — LUCKY ONE.

* * *

DEAR ONE: The answer is as close as your telephone. Take your pick: family agency, social planning council, child care service, minister, priest, service club.

No need to shop. The unemployed or injured breadwinner with many mouths to feed and no cash for Christmas will know what to do with a cheque, if it is handed to him by the personal or agency consultant who is helping him to manage.

Fathers and mothers know what little Sally and Danny are longing for. Putting cash in their hands — anonymously — is the very best way you can share your plenty.

* * *

Confidential to LOVERS' CONCERTO: Tell him — with your nicest smile — that you enjoy dates with him, but are not ready yet to go steady with any man. For a reason, three is still no necessity for you to give him any. That's your decision, and a good one, at 16.

(Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Doris can put you on the right track.)

Lead Figure In Civic Politics Dies

HALIFAX (CP) — Mrs. Abigail Amanda (Nike) Lane, a leading figure in Halifax civic politics and a freelance broadcaster, died in hospital Saturday of a heart attack. She was 67.

Mrs. Lane, a native of Halifax, contested a civic byelection in 1951 and launched a whirlwind "kitchen campaign" with a committee of dozens of housewives. She won by more than 300 votes.

Mrs. Lane served on several city council committees and in 1955 became the city's first woman deputy mayor.

Known for her outspoken opposition on many civic projects, she had a career as a radio broadcaster which lasted more than 25 years.

At the time of her death she had a morning open-line program on a Halifax radio station.

WAS EDITOR

In the early 1940s, Mrs. Lane became women's editor for the Halifax Chronicle, leaving in 1948 when The Chronicle and Herald merged.

She was active in the provincial and federal Progressive Conservative organizations, and was Nova Scotia president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire and chairman of the Nova Scotia centennial grants committee at the time of her death.

Mrs. Lane, national vice-president of the Canadian women's Press Club and a past-president of the Nova Scotia branch, had been a housewife for 18 years when she went into business "on a dare" from her husband.

Women in Headlines Challenge Set Ideas

By CAROL KENNEDY

The controversial romance of a royal princess which rocked a European throne in 1965 could have far-reaching effects when the wedding rolls around in 1966.

The dispute surrounded Holland's Crown Princess Beatrix, 27, whose engagement to West German diplomat Claus von Amsberg last June started a three-way rumpus among palace, parliament and people in a way it was symbolic of a year in which women's decisions frequently involved controversy.

Whether solemnly taking up the cause of Rhodesia's black millions, or frivolously flashing four inches of leg above the knee, the women who made headlines in 1965 challenged set ideas, started arguments and generally blazed a trail of individualism.

In the case of Princess Beatrix, who spent her wartime childhood in Ottawa, the future of the Dutch monarchy could hinge on how well von Amsberg manages to overcome the bitter Dutch memories of the Nazi occupation.

Resentment has been expressed in protest petitions launched by former resistance fighters, and may flare again as the March marriage approaches. One small left - wing political party has openly called for a republic and the matter has been debated in the Dutch press with blunt frankness.

CROWN OUT OF FAVOR

The monarchy, under heavy fire lately, has had to cope with two unpopular royal matches within two years.

In 1964 Princess Irene, second in line to the Dutch throne, gave up her succession claim to marry a Spanish Bourbon prince rather than renounce the matter debated in parliament, as Dutch law requires. The match and Irene's conversion to Roman Catholicism caused friction in half-Protestant, half-Catholic Holland.

But the nation reacted even more sharply to the news that Queen Juliana's heir planned to marry a man who had served in Hitler's army during the Second World War and who as a teen-ager had been a member of the Hitler Youth movement.

Queen Juliana and German-born Prince Bernhard publicly supported their daughter's decision, even taking the unprecedented step of submitting to questions on Dutch and British television.

Another young woman who made news in 1965 was Joan Todd, 22-year-old daughter of Rhodesia's former prime minister Garfield Todd, who spoke in her father's behalf at an Edinburgh "teach - in" after Todd had been restricted to his farm by the Ian Smith government.

BLUFF CALLED

The dark-haired, soft-voiced Rhodesian girl, a journalism freshman at New York's Columbia University, quit her studies to become a roving spokesman for the cause of Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Negroes. In Canada, the United States and Britain she pleaded for stiff action against Smith's white - supremacist rebel regime and later successfully tried to dramatize the liberal dilemma in Rhodesia by returning to her homeland in expectation of being arrested by Smith, who cannily ignored her presence.

Conventions were challenged by the older generation too. In Britain, the solidly later heights of the legal profession were scaled by Mrs. Elizabeth Lane, the first woman in British history to be appointed a High Court judge, her achievement posed a diverting problem for London's tradition-crusted legal circles—whether to ignore her title by sticking to the custom of calling a judge "Your Lordship," or to bow to the wind of change.

Logic and "Your Ladyship" finally won the day.

ANOTHER APPOINTED

A month after Mrs. Lane's appointment, an Australian woman achieved the same status. Mrs. Roma Flinders-Mitchell, appointed judge in the Supreme Court of South Australia, also ranks as the Dominion's first woman Queen's Counsel.

One of the year's best cocktail-party topics was provided by Britain's top model, 24-year-old Jean Shrimpton. The leggy blonde, publicizing British fashion on an Australian tour, hiked her skirts four inches above the knee at a dressy Melbourne race meeting, shocked local dowagers and gave the biggest boost to short skirts since the Charleston.

Elsewhere in the world of women's news, Queen Anne-Marie of Greece gave birth to a daughter, helping to steady the monarchy's shaky hold on Greek affections. Belgium mourned the death at 89 of its beloved dowager Queen Elisabeth, who helped to rally the nation through two wartime German occupations.

Mr., Mrs. Wilbert Cross Wed for Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Cross were honored in Canniford Orange Hall recently on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, when 70 of their relatives sat down to an anniversary supper complete with a 3-tier wedding cake.

When the supper and toasts were finished a presentation letter was read to the couple and they received many gifts. Among the numbers on the program for the evening was a mock wedding acted out by their nieces and nephews.

Four days after the supper, on the date of their wedding anniversary the couple were "at home" to their friends, neighbors and relatives.

On this day they received a telegram of congratulations and a visit from Les Grills, M.P., a plaque from the Provincial Government, as well as letters of congratulations from John Diefenbaker and Charles Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. Cross were married 50 years ago at the "bride's home" in Belleville. They lived most of their married life on their farm at Roslin, moving to Canniston eight years ago due to Mr. Cross' health.

The couple have one daughter, Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan of Ivanhoe and four grandchildren.

Study Guild Discusses Yule Customs

Members of the Belleville Women's Study Guild met at the home of Mrs. S. C. Elsie, Northwood Crescent, for their December meeting, and were welcomed into a warm seasonal atmosphere. A snow-covered church scene, on a table in the entrance hall, greeted arriving members with carols which seemed to come from the beautiful stained glass windows, and provided appropriate background for the evening's theme — Christmas.

President, Mrs. E. Roulet, chaired the brief business meeting. Members were advised of an event to be sponsored by the Department of Economics and Development in February, the program to include consumer activities and discussions, as well as a fashion show, for which tickets will be available to members.

The worship service was taken by Mrs. E. A. Orr, with the theme "The Wonder of Christmas," which is seen when one looks beyond the gifts to the tidal wave of goodwill evident at this season.

The evening's program was taken by Mrs. George Wishart and Mrs. C. E. Plummer, and began with Mrs. Wishart reading Agnes Sly Turnbull's story "Little Christmas."

DISCUSS CHRISTMAS TRADITIONS

Mrs. Wishart and Mrs. Plummer next led the group in thinking of seasonal words beginning with various letters of the alphabet, and from these words the members concocted a pot pourri of Christmas. Mrs. Plummer read the poem "The Innkeeper Makes Excuses." The letter "H" inspired the words holy, and home, and Herod — and also — "hungry" — and the thought of millions who go hungry even at Christmas, and of the moral wrong that waste is. "I" inspired thought of toys and turkey, and the word "tradition" led members to a sharing of the varying traditions which were a part of each one's seasonal celebrations.

Mrs. Plummer read a poem which says that man is "at his finest towards the finish of the year," and at Christmas "almost what God sent him here to be."

Refreshments appropriate to this special meeting were served by hostesses Mrs. G. E. Maybe and Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, as the group enjoyed a further sharing of Christmas traditions and experiences.

U.C.W. Meetings

GILEAD U.C.W.

GILEAD — The Christmas meeting of Gilead U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Gerald Swan on Wednesday afternoon with 12 members and seven children present. Mrs. Lyle Martin presided. This being the final meeting of Gilead U.C.W., a motion to disband was in order. Each member will accept compliments from the church of her choice. Invitations to join with Bethany, Carnahon and Carmel were received. The surplus funds will be used to further U.C.W. work and will be divided between Quin-Mo-Lac camp, the Victor Home in Toronto and "Over and Above" gifts. Presentations will be made to former members now residents at Hastings Manor.

The worship service, centred on the Christmas theme, was conducted by Mrs. Roy Huffman. Mrs. Ethel Yorke read the Christmas story from Luke's Gospel and the meditation was given by Mrs. Helena Embury.

Mrs. Carman Huffman led the remainder of the program consisting of readings, solo sung by Mrs. Orland Bertrand of Holloway Street U.C.W., a reading by Mrs. Mabel Treverton and a piano solo by Mrs. Ezzyll Martin. Mrs. Ethel Yorke closed with prayer.

Mrs. Gerald Swan presented Mrs. Mabel Treverton with a gift from the group she had served so faithfully.

An exchange of cups and saucers to serve as reminders of fellowship together was conducted by Mrs. Carman Huffman.

A number of gifts were received for a neighboring needy family to be distributed Christmas Eve.

Everyone Gets Depressed But Feeling Should Vanish

OTTAWA (CP)—Everyone occasionally feels unloved, inferior, discouraged, guilty, tense, frightened, anxious.

But when these feelings hang on, are intense or frequent, they may be symptoms of mental illness, says the Canadian Mental Health Association.

In other cases, a victim's personality may alter, he may lose the line between the real and imagined, may suffer deep depression or elation, hallucinations, delusions and false beliefs and perceptions.

Someone with severe emotional problems can also develop physical symptoms such as ulcers, allergies and skin conditions.

The spectre of mental illness may not be as large and black as it was a few years ago, but it is still often considered a thing of shame not to be able to cope with your problems.

For this reason there are many who need help but prefer to try to conceal their problems instead of seeking assistance.

This can be tragic because, like any illness, mental disorders can often be treated more easily and effectively if caught early.

For example, some may respond to temporary "hurdle" help intended to carry them through a difficult period.

When mental illness is suspected, a good person to see first is your family doctor, says Mrs. M. C. B. Hotz, executive director of the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

He may not feel qualified or have the time to take on prolonged therapy. But if he feels it is warranted he can refer you to a psychiatrist, a mental health clinic or the psychiatric unit of a general hospital.

Your ability to pay, the extent of your medical insurance coverage and the services available in your community can be taken into account when your doctor suggests the next step.

Some social agencies such as family service bureaus accept persons without referrals. Because they are supported by United Appeal funds, they base their fees on the patient's ability to pay.

"Sometimes people go to a family service agency with a mental health problem because it manifests itself as a family problem," says Mrs. Hotz. "Family service centres are in a good position to narrow down who is starting friction since they deal with the whole family."

Their staffs can offer various suggestions to help cut down tensions in a home. They may also refer one or more members of the family to a mental health clinic or psychiatrist.

Another person who may be in a position to spot signs of mental illness is the public health nurse and she should also be acquainted with various services so that she can direct the patient to the right place.

The CMHA recognizes that there now are more people qualified to help but it still wants to broaden the circle. Teachers and clergymen are included in educational campaigns geared to show them how to spot problems, how to advise on them, how and where to refer people and, equally important, how to recognize where their own competence to deal with a problem ends.

A CMHA pamphlet says disabling mental illness requiring long-term hospital care is slowly and steadily declining. Even though the causes of only a few types of mental illness are known, treatment has been found for many disorders that resisted all known methods only a few years ago.

But it adds that the advances give no reason for complacency.

"If no further progress is made in the prevention of mental illness, at least one out of every 10 babies born this year is destined to spend some part of its life in a mental hospital."

SAY TERROR PLANNED

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Indonesian—Communist party planned to murder and mutilate tens of thousands during a massive terror campaign if its coup attempt had succeeded last October, highly - reliable sources reported Sunday. American, British and other Western diplomats and their families would have been victims of the campaign, they said.

Canadian Births Down 7 PC From Last Year

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Have birth control pills defused Canada's population explosion?

It may be years before scientists can give the answer.

But it's a fact that the number of births in Canada in 1965 is about seven per cent less than in 1964.

Population experts look on this as an unusually sharp drop. But they haven't enough information about use of birth-control pills to say whether it's a factor. They can only suspect it may be.

This information may come in time from studies by a federal health department committee examining available data on adverse effects of birth - control pills.

Births have been declining steadily since 1959 when they reached a 10-year peak of 479,-275. The decline accelerated from year to year until the 1965 plunge.

Latest figures show births in the first 10 months of 1965 at 365,721. This was down 7.5 per cent from 385,633 in the corresponding period of 1964. The drop was general, being reported in every province.

In other words, if the 1959 peak, the record of births has been: 478,551 in 1960; 475,700 in 1961; 469,021 in 1962; 465,767 in 1963, and, 452,915 in 1964.

MARRIAGES INCREASE

While the number of births is dropping, the number of marriages is rising rapidly in every province.

"We know that births have been going down consistently for the last few years despite the fact that the age structure is getting more favorable for higher births," says one population expert here.

Age structure is one of the big problems in finding the cause of the decline in births. Twenty-two per cent of women in Canada now are in the most fertile age group — 15 to 29 years. In the next few years the proportion will rise sharply as the big crop of baby girls of the late 1950s grows up.

Scientists say that if births then continue to drop, they can be sure something unusual is going on.

It's then that precise data on use or non-use of the pills will become vital. Federal authorities say there is ample indirect evidence, in stock market action and company financial statements, that the pill makers are doing a big business.

Census takers are reluctant to ask women questions about use of the pills because of possible misinterpretation of their intentions. They recall food public protests a few years ago that they were doing a Kinsey-type sex study when they asked one question in the census about numbers of children.

MUST BE PRESCRIBED

Birth-control pills are available in Canada only on a doctor's prescription. They have been on the market for 10 years. There are 12 kinds made by six companies.

In addition to pills, there are a variety of long-used contraceptive devices, some mechanical and some partly mechanical and partly chemical. By law, these too are supposed to be dispensed only on a doctor's prescription.

Pill sales information might help explain one puzzle—early in 1965 have births fallen off steeply although they have been sold for years.

Has use of the pills increased suddenly?

One population scientist thinks this may be so, saying that women's attitudes toward childbearing seem to have changed since the years just after the Second World War.

After the war, women began bearing children at an earlier age and bore them more frequently than now appears to be the case.

In recent years, public attention also has been focused directed at birth control to a greater extent than before. This is said to have been in part to widely - publicized examination of the question by the Roman Catholic Church.

As public interest and debate grew, knowledge of birth-control methods became more widely diffused.

One federal demographer—a scientist who specializes in population questions—connects the decrease in births to the population shift to urban from rural areas. In the past, birth-control methods caught on first among urban dwellers.

So the continuing shift of population from country to town and .... and adoption of new, more publicized methods of contraception, such as birth-control pills may have resulted in a marked drop in births.

Scientists would like to replace speculation with examination. They hope that current studies in the United States of the effect of birth control on population will impel scientists to examine what's happening in Canada.

These studies are pertinent to such practical questions as providing enough schools and hiring at economic expansion to provide jobs for coming generations.

In the U.S., there are about 31 demographic research and training institutions. Canada has none. However, the University of Western Ontario and the University of Alberta soon will be actively in the field. The University of Montreal also is making plans for a training centre.

Alpha Lambda Holds Yule Meet

A constructive evening was enjoyed by members of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, during their annual Christmas meeting held at the home of Mrs. Margaret Bakay.

All members contributed food items for use in a Christmas parcel to be distributed to a needy family in Belleville.

The meeting continued with a business session during which members were pleased to learn that the Bazaar and Gold Ball was a financial, as well as social, success. This will enable Alpha Lambda to continue their beneficial projects.

Mrs. Ruth Swansburg, program speaker for the evening, was introduced by Mrs. Clara Davenport. Her topic was "People."

Beginning with the glacial period, Mrs. Swansburg discussed evolution up to the present time, illustrating each period with its cultural and material accomplishments, and relating this to the progress of humanity. Mrs. Lorene Sieir thanked Mrs. Swansburg on behalf of the sorority.

The evening closed with refreshments served by Mrs. Bakay and co-hostess, Mrs. Pat Burrows.

CARMEL U. C. W.

The members of Carmel United Church Women held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. M. Robinson. The president, Mrs. E. Urch, opened the meeting.

The decision to donate funds to Carmel Sunday School and the United Church student minister fund were the result of the business portion of the meeting.

Miss M. Jones presented to the group the proposed slate of officers for 1966-1967.

In charge of the program was Mrs. J. Lucas who began with a thought provoking meditation. "There is so much singing and merry making at this time of year that we have little time for meditation for true meditation on the real meaning of Christmas. But if our praise is to be real it must have its source in lives that have undergone and received the message of Christmas. To reconsider what the day means will help us to keep it in spirit and in truth. The hope of peace on earth, goodwill towards all men is the deepest longing and need of mankind today."

A reading was given by Miss M. Jones followed by a round of carol singing. Miss B. Brunnell gave a reading dealing with "What do People Really Like for Christmas". The meeting was closed and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

AXE VICTIM DIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 12-year-old girl died Sunday of injuries inflicted nine days earlier when five members of her family were slain. The condition of Marianne Kosberg had grown steadily worse despite surgery. Her parents, Osborne and Dorothy Kosberg, and three other children were slain in their beds with a double-bitted axe.

CHRISTMAS BOUQUET

Dear Susanna: Long dried spikes of mullein can be used in making Christmas bouquets. I paint these with one of the quick drying white paints (latex or acrille) and then roll them in glitter while still damp.

Various effects are obtained by using a mixture of colors or the straight red, blue, silver, etc. This is an economical way to extend our purchases of poinsettia and holly.

There are many other uses for this fascinating white paint at Christmas time. Painting branches of all kinds to use in arrangements is also one of my favorites — J. H.

Take a few stalks of green oats and cover the husks with colored foil saved from candy wrappers. These make a pretty bouquet by themselves, or they are most attractive when poked in with a grouping of other artificial flowers and weeds. — Mary Wisner

EGG WARMER

Dear Susanna: How do you like my tip for bake day? If you have just taken the eggs out of refrigerator but need them in a couple at room temperature in a hurry, break them into the heating bowl and place this in another dish containing warm water. They will be ready while you are preparing the other ingredients.

As for standing on a rug while ironing I've done this for years and it's a great help. The one's that baby my feet the most are those thick braided rugs.—Mrs. B.C.

CUT TO SAVE

Dear Susanna: There isn't only comes a time when it is impossible to squeeze any more lotion or cream from a plastic squeeze bottle — but don't be fooled, there are always a few more applications inside.

It is worthwhile to cut these soft containers with a pair of scissors — you will be pleased with how much is still left. I also cut the cleanser cartons, and get considerably more powder from them. — Mrs. G. Hughes

Farmers' Union Holds Banquet

Ann Landers
Policeman Pleads for Christmas Moderation

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been a police officer for over 19 years. The problem I am writing about is one I've had to deal with every year when I've pulled Christmas duty. I am talking about the Christmas Eve family fight. We get more calls from neighbors to go out and settle family fights on Christmas Eve than on any other night in the year, including New Year's.

You walk into a house which is gaily decorated, the tree is aglow, beautifully wrapped gifts are under the tree, and the husband and wife are throwing things at each other. The kids are crouched in the corners scared out of their wits.

About 90% of the time you are able to patch things up and nobody is arrested. But the holiday has been spoiled for everyone.

I wish parents could learn to control their drinking, their tempers and their tensions so that their children might remember Christmas as a happy time instead of a nightmare when the police had to come to break up a fight between Mom and Dad. Thank you. — OFFICER CHRISTMAS BLUES.

DEAR OFFICER: All of us are in your debt for an eloquent letter. Peace is in the house and goodwill toward one another should be an integral part of family life, not only during the holiday season, but every day of the year.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A relative of Charles Darwin appeared on a radio program recently and revived an argument in our house that I hoped was dead. About five years ago my husband and I really went 'round and 'round about this and now he's at it again.

My husband has scads of literature to support the theory that man descended from the monkey. He has shown me charts and pictures of skulls which describe the evolutionary periods and I must admit that some of the first men and some of the monkeys look like they are pretty close relatives.

I am a religious person, however, Ann, and my early teachings make it impossible for me to accept this Darwin stuff. I would appreciate it if you would give me some support so I can convince him he is wrong. — FIGHT RENEWED.

DEAR RENEWED: Save your breath to cool your soup, Lady. You won't change your husband's mind. He'll just show you more charts.

The origin of man has been a favorite argument for ages and the scientific findings are all on his side. Considering what man has done to himself these last 50 years I think the monkeys have a right to complain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 11-year-old son accidentally left his bicycle in the driveway which we share with the neighbors. Our garages are side by side in the back.

The woman next door is the world's rottenest driver, as well as the meanest person alive. I am sure she ran over the kid's bike just to teach him a lesson.

Right after she did it she had the gall to drag the pieces of bike over to our house and yell up a storm that our kid almost gave her a heart attack. She said, "I thought for a minute I had hit the boy and I almost died by the wheel." Then she began to holler about irresponsible kids and terrible parents.

My husband says she should buy our boy a new bike. What does the law say? — BURNED APLENTY.

DEAR BURNED: I'm no lawyer, but I can tell you what I say. I say your son doesn't deserve another bike until he learns to take care of one. And it's up to his parents to teach him.

CHRISTMAS IN GERMANY

If well-laid plans do not "gang agley" today at about 6.30 a.m. a little car will have left 1 Gelsenwasser in Gelsenkirchen, Westphalia, Germany and headed south eighty miles on the Autobahn to Dusseldorf Airport.

Why?

Because a K L M Royal Dutch Airlines Jet flight will have left Montreal the night before and flown over the Atlantic heading ultimately for the same spot. And who is going to be aboard those two vehicles? Marianne and I — that is who! For heaped up measure I hope Herbie and the children will be there too, at Dusseldorf Airport.

So when you read this, your food columnist will be starting a Christmas vacation to be with her loved ones in Germany.

But what a flap to get ready! I have baked and cooked and dictated columns until my head is spinning. I hope all the recipes and the resultant products pleased you. We have done our human best to be accurate and to answer the stacks of mail which have arrived asking for more . . . more . . . more . . . (Please hold back your requests until after January 13th.)

You can depend on any recipes that my sister Peady tests. This one is for a simple gingerbread which she made and brought to my house along with some applesauce for dessert last night.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Salisbury Steaks: Hot Chili Sauce; Scalloped Potatoes; Sauteed Quartered Green Peppers; Shredded Cabbage Salad with Dill Dressing; Lemon Meringue Pie; Tea.

PEADY'S GINGERBREAD:

2 cups sifted cake or all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons single-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 2 teaspoons powdered ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup shortening, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, 2/3 cup molasses, ½ cup sour milk (or ½ cup milk and ½ sour cream, see below).

Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder, soda, ginger, cinnamon and salt 2 or 3 times. Cream the shortening well and gradually cream the sugar into it. Beat in egg and molasses. Add flour mixture alternately with sour milk (or sour milk and sour cream which was the combination Peady used). Beat just until batter is smooth. Pour into greased paper-lined-on-bottom pan approximately 11 x 7 x 2" and bake 30 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Or if this is baked in deeper pan of smaller area it may require 70 to 75 minutes. Lovely served with with applesauce or topped with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

Mrs. W. Rose, Frankford, was hostess to the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute on Wednesday with 21 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. L. Bewley, president, conducted the business meeting. Secretary, Mrs. R. Sickle, reported that six card tables had been purchased for use at the euchre parties.

In response to a letter from the Mental Health Association, members agreed to provide Christmas gifts for female patients in the Cobourg Hospital.

The next euchre party, to be held January 7th, 1966, will be convened by Mrs. L. Bewley, and Mrs. F. Jordan.

Mrs. F. White, and Mrs. A. Meyers thanked members for gifts and cards, while they were ill. Mrs. P. Jordan thanked members for the gift sent to her small son who is in hospital and Mrs. A. St. Hillaire thanked members for the flowers sent after the death of her mother.

The president turned the meeting over to conveners Mrs. C. Curtis and Mrs. M. Dickens who had arranged a Christmas program. Members joined in the singing of carols, Mrs. F. White, Mrs. Jermyn Palmer, Mrs. D. Sandercock, and Mrs. H. Dickens gave Christmas and humorous readings and Mr. Rose sang a solo. Mrs. W. Jaffery and Mrs. A. St. Hillaire won contests.

An exchange of gifts handed out by Santa Claus completed the program. Mrs. Bewley thanked the hostess and the conveners and Mrs. Rose and the executive served lunch.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — Last January it was announced that the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital would pay a $15 premium per boar on the first 10 approved boards purchased by Prince Edward County Hog Producers in 1963, this premium to be in addition to the premium paid by the Ontario Department of Agriculture under the Ontario Boar Premium Policy. At a meeting of the directors held on Dec. 2, it was agreed to pay the same premium on another 10 boars during the current year. Breeders who have purchased approved boars and have not applied for this premium should make application to the secretary, Ross Pierson, R.R. 1, Wellington.

The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Cheese Producers was held in the Department of Agriculture Board Room, Picton, on Dec. 10. The main speaker on the program was Hector Arnold, chairman of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board. Mr. Arnold reported that the Board had a successful year with a good demand and firm prices prevailing for cheddar cheese throughout the season.

Ivan Bell, Agricultural Representative, reported that a preliminary meeting of the officers and directors of the Cheese, Concentrated and Fluid Milk Producers in Prince Edward County had been held on Thursday, Dec. 9th. It was recommended from the meeting that a general meeting of all cheese, concentrated and fluid milk shippers be held at the earliest opportunity to consider the establishment of a county milk committee.

Officers elected by the Cheese Producers for the coming years are: president, Orville Hanley, R.R. 2, Picton; vice-president, George Foster, R.R. 2, Picton, and secretary-treasurer, Charles Froleigh, of Bloomfield.

Present indications are that mice are quite plentiful in orchards this fall. To avoid injury to trees it is important to take some preventive measures.

Besides cleaning up around trees and mowing the weeds and guards, it may be wise to use poison bait or sprays. The cracked corn-fine cracked bait have proven to be effective and is one of the most popular kinds used. Prepared baits can be purchased commercially or be made at home.

For further information on how to prepare baits consult the Ontario Department of Agriculture office, Picton.

A committee of five apple growers was elected to what is known as the District Apple Producers' Committee in an election held at Belleville on Dec. 7th. This committee, elected from the district comprising the counties of Frontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Peterborough and Prince Edward, consisted of Ted Rutcher, chairman; Howard Weese, vice-chairman; H. "Mac" Hicks, David Waitara and Earl Cronkhook. This committee will give grower representation to the Ontario Tender Fruit Products Marketing Board which will be concerned with the promotion and advertising of Ontario apples.

Common Mart Partners Meet

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Ministers of France's five European Common Market partners met here today in the aftermath of the French presidential election to discuss the next moves to draw France back into the community.

The opposition uppermost in their minds was likely to be whether Charles de Gaulle's re-election in February will mean any change in France's hitherto uncompromising stand towards the community.

France has been boycotting meetings of common market institutions since July when a crisis flared over farm financing measures and has been the arsenals for a federal-type community budget over which the European Parliament would have greater control.

Tyendinaga

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Joseph B. Brant and Mrs. Brant of Gloversville, N.Y., will arrive Thursday to spend Christmas and the weekend with Mr. Brant's brother, Earl J. Brant and Mrs. Brant.

Joseph Bill of R.R. 1, Deseronto is in intensive care in the Belleville General Hospital.

All Saints Church and Christ Church will hold a combined Communion service in Christ Church Christmas eve, beginning at 11 p.m. A Communion service will be held the following Sunday. There will be no service Christmas Day.

S.S. PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Marcele of the York Road opened their home Monday evening of last week for the Christmas party of All Saints Sunday school. The kiddies had a wonderful evening of singing games and then consuming quantities of chocolate milk and cookies. Each was presented with a gift and a bag of candy. The evening was arranged by Mrs. Garnet Lewis and Mrs. Carl Marcele. The bone of Mrs. Marcele was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Mid-1966 Parley Will Draft Five-year Tax-sharing Pact Between Ottawa and Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal-provincial conferences are likely to return to the old days when Ottawa told the premiers what they were getting and that was that. The era of co-operative federalism has progressed too far to turn the clock back.

But as government leaders prepare for a multi-billion-dollar share-the-taxes exercise next year, there are indications that a period of retrenchment might be in the offing.

In his plea for a majority government in the recent election campaign, one reason given by Prime Minister Pearson was a need for a strong position from which to bargain with the provinces.

Trade Minister Sharp spelled this out in a campaign speech when he said the Liberal government would have to face in negotiations provinces representated by majority governments.

"I don't want to see the federal government in a disadvantage," he said. "We also want that (majority) position."

The electorate didn't respond in sufficient force to this plea, and the government was returned with less seats—thereby of a working majority.

The Liberals perhaps can take some consolation in recent statements by three provincial premiers—John Robarts of Ontario, Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan and Duff Roblin of Manitoba—which may be interpreted as an invitation to the federal government to proceed particularly with Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec.

The premiers' alarums at this time are significant because, of the scores of federal-provincial conferences held on financial and political level during the last three years, the heads-of-government have rarely exceeded mid-way through 1966 is seen as the most important.

It must draw up a new five-year agreement on how the federal and provincial governments will share tax fields and replace the existing agreement which expires on March 31, 1967.

It will also map out a new system for contracting-out of federal shared-cost programs, and work out equalization payments to help the less-wealthy provinces.

How the money pot is shared will determine how well all governments can do in implementing federal its task of promoting economic development and holding the country together. The provincial their responsibilities for paying mounting education and other costs.

The Pearson government turned over some extra money to the provinces for the first years ago. This and the appointment of a tax structure committee helped to pave the way claimor for money for the time being.

Officials from all governments have been compiling mountains of facts for the committee to hand to their chief leaders to use at the bargaining sessions. Some of the policy studies have been completed and others are in preparation.

WANT OTTAWA STRONG

With so much money at stake the premiers might be expected to unfold their demands now. They may yet, but three of the premiers at least are talking a different line.

They are talking about strong central governments, strong federal government and strong national policies—all concepts requiring spending on the part of the federal government.

Mr. Robarts says "there are potential dangers in a weak and strong unified central government which will be directly responsible for progress and forward national economic policies."

Three we permit provinces to develop empires we are going to be in trouble nationally."

He claimed on another that Mr. Lesage apparently thought the finger was being pointed in his direction because he contended quickly, criticizing the Ontario leader's views as being "too far to the centralist side."

The Quebec premier said he favors a strong federal government "provided that it is strong within its own jurisdiction."

While Mr. Robarts was calling for strong national economic policies, Mr. Lesage said regional planning by the provinces is the only possible way to tackle poverty problems effectively.

Mr. Thatcher told a Montreal audience that if provincial governments continue to seek more money from Ottawa it will threaten confederation.

He did call Canadians require minimum living, education, health and welfare standards, and this can be accomplished only if Ottawa retains adequate taxing powers.

"That is why I say that the time has come for provincial, not only municipal governments, to stop raising the federal treasury."

Mr. Roblin echoed Mr. Robarts' call for a strong central government. Some provinces, including his own, never would have survived without a strong federal administration, he said.

Whatever 1966 holds for federal - provincial relations, the year now ending was busy with inter-government activity.

Most premiers responded favorably—some of them grudgingly—to the prime minister's offer to pay half the cost of provincially - administered medical insurance programs, provided they meet basic conditions.

The federal government, over the protests of provinces, successfully defended in the Supreme Court the decision whether off-shore mineral rights are within federal or provincial jurisdiction.

External Affairs Minister Martin ignored a controversial master agreement with France to permit provinces to enter into agreements with France if they are within the limits of the master pact.

There was evidence that both levels of government are holding more joint planning studies than ever before in such areas as territory, regional development, manpower development and other economic problems.

Outside the conference room, Premier Lesage carried the message of Quebec's quiet revolution across Canada. He said Ontario resident's and most students gave him the best response.

The Fulton-Favreau formula for amending the constitution now lies dormant, although it still may have a chance if Premier Quebec legislature before the federal Parliament may act on it.

Its critics in the provincial Union Nationale and the federal opposition parties say its provisions would put Canada in a constitutional strait - jacket, since future amendments almost impossible.

The demands for constitutional changes have been abated in Quebec for the time being anyway. Only Favreau, minister of the province Council, now says there should be a thinking period, before any major revising job be started.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker proposed a constitutional conference to bring the Northern North America Act up to date. But Mr. Lesage tells Quebecers he doesn't like any constitutional changes which permit us to develop empires we are going to be in trouble nationally."

What Ice Will Carry With Safety

TORONTO — Lakes and streams soon will be ice-covered. It is a wise precaution to know how much weight various thicknesses of ice will safely sustain before venturing upon them, trusting your safety, perhaps your life.

Slush ice, for instance, is only half as strong as clear blue ice. Clear ice is 15% weaker than clear lake ice.

A sudden application of brakes on a fast moving vehicle increases its weight pressure on the ice in proportion to the ratio of deceleration to gravity.

Continuous travel over the same area of ice will weaken it, much as metal is spread.

Following are ice strength figures tabulated by the Lambert Safety Association:

Inches	Safe Load
2	One person on foot.
3	Group in single file.
7-1/2	Car (1-Ton gross)
8	Light Truck (3-1/2 Ton gross)
10	Medium Truck (3-1/2 Ton gross)
12	Heavy Truck (6 Ton gross)
	10-Ton

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem ?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A property with too much or too little improvement for the area is a poor investment. This concept ordinarily is not understood by laymen. An explanation of this phenomenon given below should be enlightening to our readers.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My wife has seven brothers and sisters. All of them live in one section of town. She wants us to build our new house in this location. The only thing I can see wrong with the plan is that houses in the area have a price range of $15,000 to $20,000. The house we have selected will cost $32,000 to build. A favorable point is that we can buy a lot for $3,000 in the area my wife favors, whereas a lot in the part of town I like may cost about $7,500. Since I am outvoted eight to one in the family, I urgently need your opinion. — A Minority of One

ANSWER: Being a prudent man, I refuse to get into the relationship and reply from the standpoint of real estate economics. You will notice a heavy potential loss from the moment your house is completed. You will be burdened by "over-improvement."

Your $33,000 property ($32,000 house and $3,000 lot) will be sold in a $15,000 to $20,000 neighborhood will be worth, at the best, about $25,000.

There is a definite relationship between land and building cost that must be maintained if one is not to suffer market depreciation of his home. It has been found that a lot cost of $1,500 in the area you favor is within the allowable limits.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: At first glance it may appear that I'm trying to get something for nothing, but this is not true. My old friend is selling me his home worth about $20,000, for $13,000. Since I have no money, I'd like to get a $15,000 mortgage (the total purchase price). Can this be arranged?

ANSWER: Normally, mortgage lenders base the amount they will loan on the lower of two amounts — the purchase price or the appraised value — the lower of the two. Assuming the latter is correct, you have the $15,000 sale price will control.

However, there are some mortgage lenders who will recognize market value as the basis for amount of loan. Yours, a lender following this policy would grant you a $15,000 loan (assuming the property is worth $20,000). There is no published list of lenders following this policy, but I would recommend that you inquire of realtors concerning lenders in your area who follow such a policy.

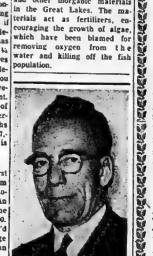
Dear Mr. Meltzer: At least once a month I must pay $25 to pump out my cesspool. Otherwise the bathrooms and kitchen become unusable.

I don't understand why I am having trouble. I am told that the ground has good percolation and drainage for it is mostly sand. We are now working on our third cesspool. In each case the cesspool has worked fine for about a year, then it overflows. Can you help us? — Should Have Stayed in the City.

ANSWER: Your type of cesspool trouble is common and the solution is relatively simple. Your cesspool clogging is being caused by grease from the kitchen sink. The grease and oils are drawn into the openings of the cesspool by liquid escaping through the walls of the cesspool and eventually closing these openings.



Chemical cleaners and acids dumped into the cesspool, will provide some of the openings, a much better and more permanent solution is to install a grease trap in the waste line coming from the kitchen sink. The total cost is about $100.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to answer personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

POLLUTION MEN MEET

CLEVELAND (AP) — Water-pollution control officers from five states met Friday to discuss methods of cutting down on phosphorus and nitrogen and other inorganic materials in the Great Lakes. The materials act as fertilizers, encouraging the growth of algae, which have been blamed for removing oxygen from the water and killing off the fish population.

Indonesia's 3-year Drive To Crush Malaysia Slows

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—Indonesia's three-year-old campaign to crush the Malaysian Federation is still on, but has slowed down amid the political-military crisis in Jakarta.

There is no hope that 1964 may see further slackening of President Sukarno's so - called confrontation policy. However, such predictions are guarded.

According to available intelligence reports, there has been no reduction of Indonesian guerrilla and regular forces on bases ringing Malaysia, particularly on Borneo island.

No firm figures have been given out, but their numbers are said to run into the thousands. They are part of the buildup that began a year ago, and that prompted Britain to pour forces into Malaysia.

The Indonesians presumably could, given the command, stage a major offensive, by sea against the Malaysian mainland and through various entry points in the long waterway separating Indonesian and Malaysian Borneo.

A large-scale attack was considered highly possible in the days when Sukarno still ran his country's foreign policy single-handed, with help from the Communists.

But since the Oct. 1 Communist-backed coup attempt in Jakarta, the Indonesian Reds have been put on the run by the army.

Sukarno no longer calls all the shots, and his top confrontation advisers—including Deputy Premier-Subandrio and Communist boss D. N. Aidit—have been muted.

Moreover, there's a reduction in the efficiency of the armed forces, with the army too busy chasing the Reds at the moment and the air force weakened by charges that some of its personnel were involved in the coup attempt.

The general here is that Indonesian military leaders, now more in control of their own affairs since the failure of the coup, are not likely to indulge in military adventures during the present circumstances.

Pope Prays For Peace In Viet Nam

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul has urged the pursuit of recently-reported proposals for peace in Viet Nam in order to bring about a Christmas ceasefire followed by negotiations.

Speaking from his apartment window to about 20,000 persons in St. Peter's Square for his Sunday noontime blessing, the Pope said:

"We applaud whoever adapts himself loyally to end the dangerous conflict. We would wish that—at least, at least! — the ceasefire proposal perhaps be heeded and brought about so that Christmas be for everyone a day sacred with peace."

The Roman Catholic pontiff did not specify the proposals he had in mind.

Pope Paul said:

"We have heard reports about negotiations for resolving the conflict. We have heard of several proposals for a ceasefire, a cessefire of arms at least for the holy day of Christmas. And we know of so many good-willed men of state who seek to resolve the issue.

"But we know especially that millions of hearts tremble, suffer, wait for the return of peace.

"We recommend this to the wisdom and hearts of responsible leaders. We hope that from the ceasefire there would follow reflection and negotiations, then finally the spirit-brium of concord and peace. Let us pray together and wait for this. . . ."

Pope Paul began by speaking of his distress that fighting has goes mankind.

"The word that rises today from our lips for this weekly greeting is the wish for a merry Christmas. A merry Christmas for you, for the city of Rome, for all the church, for the world.

"But we cannot hide that our soul is full of sadness over very many divisions, battles and antagonisms that disturb humanity and that, in some places, sustain conflicts between peoples.

COST INDIA FOOD

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Insects, rats and bad storage destroy half of the food produced in India, says a report published Sunday. The report, produced by the Central Technological Research Institute in Mysore, says if scientific methods are applied on a nationwide scale to prevent losses, India would become not merely self-sufficient in food but would have a surplus.

Walking Out May Have Hurt the African Cause

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

African demonstrations of anger at Harold Wilson's policy towards Rhodesia's rebel white minority have alienated British public opinion and probably added to the British prime minister's popularity at home.

Ironically, severing diplomatic relations with Britain and walking out during Wilson's speech to the United Nations in New York last week may have hurt the African cause.

By roughly scorning Wilson's plea for time and a bloodless solution in Rhodesia, the Africans could be driving British popular opinion in the direction of making a deal with Ian Smith's rebel Rhodesian regime.

Even as Wilson was being snubbed by an African walkout at the UN, British Conservatives sympathetic to Smith were collecting signatures on a 100-name parliamentary motion interpreted in some quarters as seeking negotiations with the Rhodesian rebels.

Wiser African leaders must have been aware beforehand that directing their public anger about Rhodesia against British might backfire.

BASED ON FRUSTRATION

But decisions to break off relations or snub Wilson at the UN were based on frustration at what most Africans clearly regard as British equivocation over Rhodesia. Internal African power struggles also may have been a factor in forcing the pace of the hate-British movement.

British motives are widely suspect in Africa, no matter what Wilson says about Rhodesia being a global moral issue British talk about abjuring the use of force against "kith and kin" in Rhodesia is seen as a none-too-subtle euphemism for "whites can't fight whites in Africa."

Believing Britain had expended in vain the only ammunition it would use against Rhodesia, African leaders may have decided they had little to lose by venting their anger on Britain.

Even leaders who privately doubted the wisdom of alienating British public opinion may have been forced to act under pressure from domestic popular opinion or from power-hungry government colleagues.

There are signs also that the Rhodesian issue is being used in the international rivalry for influence and leadership in Africa.

Breaking relations with Britain — without apparently jeopardizing the supply of British aid—might count heavily in the struggle for pan-African leadership.

Parliamentary Notebook

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—From a spectator's viewpoint, few jobs look easier than that of sergeant-at-arms in the House of Commons.

Lt.-Col. R. J. Currie struts into the mace in and out of the chamber. Several times each session he leads members on a march down the corridors for royal assent in the Senate.

But most of the time he is seen sitting at his desk in the Commons waiting to maintain order. Since assuming office in 1959, Col. Currie hasn't been called on by the Speaker to do this.

Furthermore, some of those papers on his Commons desk are crossword puzzles.

But only a small part of the job is exposed to spectators. When the 53-year-old winner of the Victoria Cross sheds his black ceremonial outfit in his office and wades into his daily chores it becomes clear his position is no push-over.

WORKS LONG DAY

Seldom during a session does he work less than 13 hours a day, and during a recess still has his eight hours of work cut out for him.

Besides maintaining order in the Commons, the sergeant-at-arms is also charged with supervision of the entire Commons protective, restaurant, cleaning and maintenance staffs, the furnishings in members' offices, parking privileges on Parliament Hill, and assorted other jobs.

Under his authority are some 350 employees.

Col. Currie, a former tank commander, gets up to 10 telephone calls a day from MPs with problems to sort out. In an average day he'll also answer a series of office renovations, assign office space to the various parties, confer with the Speaker or the clerk of the House, and study reports from the dozens of supervisors who work under him.

"It's a busy job," says the native of Sunderland, Sask. "The administration work alone would fill an average day.

LIKE BIG HOTEL

"In some ways it's like running a big hotel, except the people don't change that often."

Asked why he was appointed sergeant-at-arms, Col. Currie replied: "The Victoria Cross."

The citation accompanying the cross, for his leadership in the Falaise Gap battle of 1944, said in his "gallant conduct and contempt for danger set a magnificent example to all ranks under his command at all times. He was a major with the South Alberta Regiment.

Col. Currie had established a reputation in administration before being asked by former prime minister Diefenbaker to assume office here. He had been in charge of all equipment purchasing for services in the firms between war's end and 1959.

The deputy sergeant-at-arms, J.-P. Leclerc Grondin, retires; Col. Currie at frequent intervals in the House to free him for administrative work.

RECTOR ENTERTAINS CHOIR

MADOC — The St. John the Baptist choir were entertained by the Rector and his wife at a Christmas dinner in the Parish Hall on Wednesday. Roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, vegetables, mince pies and ice cream were enjoyed by 52 persons. Following the dinner, gifts were presented to Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Thompson and their children, Peter John and Nicola Mary. Choir practice was held in the church for the coming Christmas services, including the nine lessons and carols on December 26th.

J.A. CHRISTMAS PARTY

The St. John the Baptist junior auxiliary held its annual mother and daughter Christmas party in the parish hall. Following games and tea, each J.A. member presented a beautifully embroidered napkin made by herself to her mother. Gifts were exchanged from the Christmas tree.

CHURCH CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY

The construction on the Wesleyan Methodist Church is going ahead, with building of the side wall and placement of the church arches and supports.

WORK CONTINUES AT ARENA

Work continues at the arena for the installation of artificial ice. The foundation for the compressor building has been poured and cement blocks for the walls are being laid. The committee reports the balance of $6,850.000 in the bank leaving $4,500.00 yet to be raised to cover all costs.

Moon Cheese May Really Be Diamonds

LONDON (Reuters) — The first men to land on the moon may find huge quantities of diamonds there, says Prof. Samuel Tolansky, a distinguished British physicist.

Prof. Tolansky believes the shockwaves of lunar explosions may have produced vast quantities of diamonds, or at least of diamond dust, like those found in meteorites which have hit the earth.

He explained in Optima, the quarterly review of the Anglo-American Corporation, the giant South African diamond firm, that synthetic micro-diamonds are factory-produced by subjecting carbon to high temperature and pressure simultaneously.

But, says Prof. Tolansky, the same combination of high temperature and pressure, produced by the shock-wave of an explosion, can create diamonds rapidly. Diamonds, he adds, have been found in meteorites.

Earth is well protected against fierce collisions because of its atmosphere. But since there is virtually no atmosphere on the moon, all approaching meteorites are likely to arrive with violent impact.

The bigger collisions would lead to the familiar shockwave. If carbon was present micro-diamonds would be created in the crater's rim. The professor suggests three possible sources of diamonds: Round-the-rim meteoric space diamonds; internal lunar diamonds; and those created by impact conversion.

Your Car

Do You Blame Weather Or the Car?

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

A car may get by in warm weather despite some minor ignition or fuel inefficiency. But once frigid temperatures set in, things are quite different. That's when hard starting and frequent stalling begin to plague you. Some drivers suffer through the winter in the mistaken belief that such troubles are more or less inevitable when the weather is really cold.

Normally, the cause is neither complicated nor expensive to eliminate. Most often at fault is a failing or over-burdened battery. A lean choke, low carburetor idle speed, water in the gas (tank, fuel line or filter bowl) or a sticking choke seem to be the more common troublemakers as far as the fuel system is concerned.

Sometimes, there's a slight air leak at the carburetor or manifold. In such cases, this leans out the fuel mixture too much for cold engine driving. And, of course, plugs and - or points which aren't in top shape are bound to be handicaps.

From S. B.: "What would be your analysis when the spark plugs on a '64 model foul up rapidly and need cleaning and adjustment (or replacement) every 2,500 to 3,500 miles?"

The car is probably used for short distance, slow speed trips which do not allow the engine to reach a healthy heat and thus minimize plug fouling. Hotter plugs will help.

R. M. asks: "Outside of a loose bob cap, wheel nuts, a brake spring, drum or shoe, what would bring on a front wheel rattle — bearings?" Yes. Loose, scored or pitted wheel bearings are not uncommon causes.

J. S. writes: "After replacing the tail pipe, muffler and exhaust pipe, I'm still getting an exhaust smell in my '60 sedan. My gas mileage hasn't find the cure, even after suggesting these requirements."

If they haven't checked for a cracked exhaust manifold, they certainly should have.

From H. B: "Can very cold weather actually affect a car so that operating parts are almost sealed?"

When the temperature sinks to extremely frigid low, crankcase oil, transmission and axle lubricants can congeal enough to freeze movement temporarily.

Australians Fear Summer Bush Fires

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters) — Australians, looking forward to the approach of their Southern Hemisphere summer, are apprehensive.

For this summer, the danger of bush fires is expected to be acute.

Every year, bush fires wipe out millions of acres of forests, destroy livestock and property, and sometimes take human life.

Damage runs into millions of dollars and, in the case of forests, is incalculable.

In past years, the greatest calamities have occurred in southeastern Australia, notably in Victoria. But New South Wales and other states have also suffered severely.

UPKEEP COSTLY

Because the seasons vary in severity and not every year is a bad bush-fire year, it is not economically sound to maintain always a fire-fighting organization at sufficient strength to deal with the worst possible situation.

Authorities therefore rely on timely warnings of the approach of critical weather conditions to enable them to muster adequate personnel and deploy them to the best advantage.

The federal bureau of meteorology, which has forecasting and observing offices throughout Australia, is able to plot the course of weather systems which can dry out forests and grasslands and to forecast the speed and direction of hot winds which can fan a small outbreak into a major conflagration.

The bureau is also able to give advance warning to landowners, townspeople, and forestry and fire-fighting officers.

Some aspects of the relationship between weather and fires are still not fully understood, although foresters and meteorologists are working to solve the problems.

For example, a large number of fires in central and southern Queensland and northern New South Wales are started by lightning during "dry" thunderstorms.

Meteorologists have found that major fires developed in relatively mild, humid conditions when the wind approached gale force.

Evidence is also accumulating that winds and temperatures in the upper atmosphere play an important part in determining the behaviour of major fires.

BARONET WINS SUIT

HARNISTAPLE, England (CP)—Canadian - born baronet Sir Robert Williams won his case in a Devon court when he refused to pay a municipal bill for clearing a road blocked by a tree fallen from his property. The court upheld his claim not to be responsible for an act of nature. Sir Robert gave up his job as a CNR brakeman at Kamsack, Sask., five years ago to claim the title.

Out of the Shadows
Christ's Lifetime on Earth Spent Mostly in Obscurity

The first 30 years at Jesus' life were virtually unrecorded. From birth to the beginning of his public ministry, He had a low-key, well-ordered life. He lived at home during that time? This is the first in a series of five articles 'n which AP Religion writer George Cornell details what may have happened during those hidden years.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Out of the night, He came. Out of the shadows and the uncertainties, His life emerged. It was unknown, except in its consequences. He was reared and lived mostly in obscurity. Yet He gripped the world.

"If I glorify myself," He said, "my glory is nothing."

A curtain of silence surrounds the time of Jesus on earth. Of His 33 years, there are scarcely more than nine-tenths of His biography is untold. Yet no other figure towers so great in the history of history.

It is a strange contrast. "The last shall be first." He said, "and the first last." He stands as the least of men, in a dim corner of the unmentioned and unnoticed. Yet He rises above every name in the annals of mankind.

Apocalyptic cloak the story—whose beginning is called Christmas. Much of it is cyclical. Its 1,200-mile journey of perhaps a year or more—in wonder and awe at what had happened.

REMAINED IN HAMLET

Months before they could arrive, however, the elderly woodworker, Joseph, and his youthful wife, Mary, obviously had decided to remain in Bethlehem, a small dusty hamlet on a windswept ridge, rather than return at once to Nazareth.

The amazing circumstances had arisen there about her pregnancy, according to ancient non-canonical accounts, and the couple—almost alone in trusting the holy inception — chose to stay away from that strained atmosphere.

Joseph could work in Bethlehem at his carpentry trade and manage some sort of shelter, either of hand-made clay bricks, or preparing one of the grottos along the plateau, where dwelt many of the animals, the common laborers and herdsmen.

Old writings, traced far back into that era, describe Joseph as an aged, hard-working man, a widower when he wed Mary, and her as about 14. The traditions indicate her sister, Salome, came to help them.

The child, circumcised at the age of eight days by the village mohel, was called "Yeshua," or Jesus, a common name meaning the "Salvation of Jehovah." By magic, He would be known as Yeshua ben Joseph, Jesus son of Joseph.

As a male child, and Mary's first-born, he would take on all the obligations and rights as the future head of the family.

DEDICATED TO GOD

At the end of her 40-day period of purification, as fixed in Mosaic law, the couple took the boy to the temple in Jerusalem for His dedication to God.

Although a lamb and turtledove were the prescribed offering for a new son, the poor were permitted to offer only two birds instead, as Joseph, a poor man, did.

For more than a year, the couple apparently resided in Bethlehem, with the child almost entirely in his mother's care. Husbands in those days weren't inclined to tend infants.

Then they would remain a suckling until he was at least two.

But some time before that the Persian astrologers arrived, with their mystic interpretations and their gifts. The word aroused suspicions in the depraved King Herod, whose fear of plots already had wrenched his own household in blood.

He sent troops to destroy all Bethlehem children up to the age of two, a furious onslaught of screaming terror and massacre, yet a not surprising tactic in that region of oppression and darkness.

Warned beforehand in a dream, Joseph had gathered his family in the night, and fled southward toward Egypt, taking the boy, whose origins were framed in bewilderment hardship and violence, into the further desolation of exile.

The mark of the outcast was on Him, from the start.

UN Must Rule on Canadian Proposal to Put Middle East Force on Stable Basis

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations must rule today on a Canadian proposal designed to put the UN emergency force in the Middle East on a more stable financial footing.

The force includes 950 Canadians.

The current session of the General Assembly is scheduled to wind up Tuesday, and the 117-nation organization yas yet to give Secretary - General U Thant authorization to continue in operation the first UN peacekeeping force, set up nine years ago as a result of the Suez crisis.

Introducing the Canadian draft resolution in the assembly's budgetary commitee late Saturday, Canadian delegate Stuart Hensley said:

"It is a compromise and as such it is not completely to the taste of any of us, but fi is our bope that most delegations will be able to support it as the best answer that can be obtained under the difficult circumstances. . . ."

SOVIETS SAY NO

The Soviet Union said shortly after the draft was introduced that it could not support the resolution because the entire question of international peace and security can only be decided in the 11-nation Security Council and not in a committee of the assembly.

The United States and France were expected to abstain and Britain might vote in favor of the draft, but Canada and the seven co-sponsors hoped that despite lack of big-power support enough member nations will throw their weight in favor of the proposal.

The Canadian draft would have the developed nations contribute a total of $14,200,000 toward the operation of the emergency force in 1965, with underdeveloped nations paying $800,000—for a total of $15,000,000. The remaining $1,911,000 of the 1965 budget would come from the $21,000,000 in voluntary contributions already made.

Britain has come up with the biggest voluntary contribution of $10,000,000. Canada pledged $4,860,000.

To make up the portion of the $14,200,000 that the Soviet-bloc countries were certain not to pay, the Canadian draft would have the remainingc developed countries pay this by having their assessments increased by 25 per cent.

CANADA'S SHARE UP

Canada's share of the emergency - force cost amounted to $551,000 for 1965 and this would be increased to help pay for the deficit caused by the refusal of Soviet-bloc countries to share the financial burden. However, the increase would come from the voluntary contribution already made should the draft be passed without amendments.

A special survey team, sent to the Middle East by the secretary - general, returned recently with a report which proposed a reduction in the emergency - force cort by streamlining the entire operation.

This would be accomplished by eliminating the Canadian reconnaissance squadron and by reducing the 4,379 - man emergency force by 620. Canada's contingent under the proposed revision would total 811, with Canada having complete responsibility for signals and transport operations as well as the air unit.

Britons Have Embarked On Dickens of Christmas

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—Britons have scorned the economic Scrooges in their midst and are embarking on a dickens of a Christmas.

Despite a succession of government measures this year to squeeze the consumer and fight economic rot, the populace is spending more this Christmas than ever before.

Currency in circulation is at an all - time record of more than £2,930,000,000 ($8,790,000,000), which represents an increase over the peak period last December equivalent to about $10 for every man woman and child in the United Kingdom.

Withdrawals from national savings accounts last week totalled £61,000,000—up £10,000,000 from the same pre-Christmas week in 1964.

The buying splurge reflects an easy-go trend in the face of national economic problems a that has puzzled and worried financial experts.

The government this year has raised taxes tightened credit, and restrained imports, prices and incomes in an effort to force Britain to live within its means, pay its debts and establish a sound basis for future growth plans.

The squeeze served as a psychological defence that saved the currency from devaluation the last fall, but there has been little outward sign that the measures have blunted consumer demand as planned.

Economics Minister George Brown, concerned about the limited success of attempts to restrain incomes by persuasion, scheduled a meeting today with trade union leaders in what newspapers term a showdown. The government is expected to introduce legislation giving itself more power to hold down wages and prices.

Britons clearly mean to have a merry Christmas, but the New Year could be less happy if the portents are correct.

Canadian Customs Duties Slanted Against British Imports Says Lord Thomson

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—Lord Thomson of Fleet says information he has gathered supports the allegation that "Canadian customs duties have been slanted to discriminate against British imports."

"Canadians must realize that they must buy an equivalent amount of British goods to offset British purchases of Canadian goods," the Canadian-born publisher told more than 500 guests at a testimonial dinner Sunday night for Col. Sidney C. Oland, Maritime brewer, sponsored by the Halifax Stock of Israel Bond Committee.

"It is generally believed in Britain that Canadian customs duties have been slanted to discriminate against British imports. The information I get on the matter certainly supports this allegation. The 'fair market value for home consumption' clause has been used in many ways to, in effect, bar many British products.

"In my opinion, Britain can no longer undertake to pay scarce dollars to Canada for a large unbalance of trade," he said. During 1962-64 Britain bought about $3,600,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, while Canada bought only $1,630,000,000 from the United Kingdom.

Lord Thomson wondered how many Canadians realize that the deficit with Canada "is almost the total amount of British trading deficit for that period."

"This extra money which Britain has to pay Canada for surplus purchases is one of the major causes of Britain's terrible sterling struggles," he said.

Lord Thomson said Britain "piled herself white" to save the world, including Canada, in two world wars and "Canada should do everything it can to help her."

"Canadians should go out of their way to buy British."

He emphasized the need for the smashing of Canadian tariff barriers against British goods with the suggestion that the United Kingdom enter into a trade association with North America if efforts to enter the European Common Market ultimately fail.

"It seems to me that Britain's natural place is with Europe," he said, but if this is impossible "she cannot continue to be left out on her own 'with the Commonwealth'—of which most member nations are so called new nations" without any large trading capacity.

British exports to these nations do not provide immediate cash relief, Lord Thomson said. "Generally speaking, Britain is asked to extend almost unlimited credit for such exports and this type of business creates a very heavy drain on sterling."

He said an economic union of the North Atlantic, primarily including Canada and the United States on the western side of the Atlantic, would "join together the dollar and sterling areas and bring to an end the recurrent sterling difficulties" which have plagued Britain in the past."

A free-trade area could also be negotiated in industrial goods and thereby open new markets in Britain for American and Canadian commodities and also create new large-scale markets for British industry.

Lord Thomson stressed that Britain's natural place is with Europe, but agreed in part with action by President de Gaulle of France in vetoing Britain's entry into the Common Market because British public opinion was still undecided about committing the country to the complete concept of a future Europe.

"The English Channel may be only 21 miles wide at its narrowest point, but it is still a formidable ditch" between Britain and continental thinking and behavior," he said.

Gangs Winning War Hit-run War In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Highly-organized gangs are winning a hit-and-run war with police in Britain's big cities.

In London alone, criminals have netted a $3,000,000 mail haul in audacious, carefully planned raids within six weeks.

Underworld informants say that in at least one raid, there was a link with the $7,000,000 great train robbery of August, 1963. .

Some Scotland Yard detectives are reported to believe that part of the train robbery haul, two-thirds of it still missing, was used to mount last month's $3,000,000 raid on Carrington's, the royal jewellers.

Police are still seeking the thieves who skilfully neutralized the firm's alarm system.

Other raids that have staggered Scotland Yard in quick succession:

—Dec. 3, new relies worth $56,000 stolen from the museum of the Duke of Wellington, at busy Hyde Park Corner during evening rush hour.

—Dec. 11, $252,000 gem haul from Mayfair firm of Bermans.

—Dec. 12, $140,000 haul in antique silver from Bloomsbury firm of Schrubsolers.

—Dec. 15, $84,000 in cash and postage stamps stolen from a London post office.

—Dec. 16, $84,000 worth of diamonds seized from gem merchant Joachim Beck by a thief who jumped him as he left a subway station.

—Dec. 17, $42,000 worth of jewellery and furs stolen by two bandits from the London apartment of businessman Sam Carlton.

The suspicion is growing that apart from the usual gangs that operate protection rackets and other crimes, there is a nucleus of wealthy crooks at the centre of things. This is a new development in British crime.

High-water Mark Said Reached In Soviet Communist Leadership

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS (AP) — There is a strong impression in Moscow among foreign observers, and many Russians as well, that a high - water mark has been reached in Soviet Communist leadership, especially within the country, and that life there will never be the same again.

Outside Russia, market leadership has taken such a battering in recent years that the old faith of Communists among party equals has lost meaning.

The pioneering zeal that swept the Communists from one end of Russia to the other has largely gone. The old Communists still feel it but are tired, and many top leaders are physically ailing. Many of the younger ones simply don't feel it. Party publications virtually admit that. Party officials often concede it in talks with East European colleagues, and even with some Westerners.

What I here remains any disposition among Russians to build a new frontier it doesn't show up in that part of Russia where the frontier is, in Siberia.

An engineer who has spent much of his life out there told this correspondent in Irkutsk that the whole atmosphere has changed.

"Many young people came out here after the war to make homes for themselves. Now they insist that we build homes for them before they come."

TIRED OF HARD LIFE

The hard fact is that many Russians are fed up with the hard life and are increasingly aware everybody lives better than they do, except in the truly depressed countries.

Disenchantment has set in. The mystique of communism, which made Russians advances in Russia until recently, no longer enthrals. It has suffered a severe blow.

Looking back on it, it would appear the great shock to party ascendancy in Russia was administered in 1962. That was the year the big Soviet Rockets installed in Cuba had to be taken out under threat of United States counter - measures that left Cuba bare to the bases.

To observers in Moscow and in several other European capitals Cuba was a disaster. It was a blow to Soviet communism.

If Russians the setback was driven home forcefully the following year when the harvest failed and the country had to buy wheat abroad, especially in Canada, ironic stories circulated.

"Khrushchev is a miracle man," went one story. "He plants wheat in Russia and harvests it in Canada."

And again this year the Communists had to go to capitalist granaries for bread.

TAKE NEW LOOK

A real stock-taking has begun. People, young and old, have begun looking more closely at what they are getting for their risks and deprivations. There are more goods in the shops but the quality is poor and the Russians are aware of it. They have stopped buying the poor stuff, particularly clothes and household equipment, and are clamoring for a better break.

The Russian Marxist experiment, 48 years of it, hasn't worked well enough to please either the Russians or sympathizers outside the country. Too many things that go wrong can't be blamed on the weather or on some local official who hasn't done his job.

Although Russians leaders have long boasted that their country has eliminated unemployment, every North American farmer who visits the big collectives and state farms is staggered by the wastage of manpower. Foreign industrialists find the same true in factories.

The surplus of farm labor exists despite a steady flight to the city for a more interesting life.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, has reported massive absenteeism in factories and a large labor turnover, in many plants up to 30 per cent a year. The paper quoted a steel-plant manager as saying:

"It must be said quite frankly that the primary reason for which people change their places of employment is the unsatisfactory pay for labor."

LEADERS TRY AGAIN

Present Soviet leaders are aware of the slippage, as was Khrushchev before them, and have launched another experiment to try to get things going better and to improve administration.

Among the limited number of Russians who meet freely with Westerners these days there is more apologetic talk than in any time in my six years' experience there. They see, and Westerners see, that many things in the Soviet Union appear to reflect failures or weaknesses that are surprising after all these years.

What is really putting the pressure on the party, and on the government, is the persistent demand for better things in real, wear and read, to ride in, to live in, to sit in, to sleep in. These things have been in limited supply for years and they still are. People dress better than they did six years ago but they want still more and are exerting pressure to get it.

People know they haven't made as much progress in better living as have the people in the East European states, which have had communism only 20 years at most. Eastern European states are getting away from old-style party restrictions based on the Soviet model.

The fight between the Chinese party and the Soviet party has largely wiped out the remaining vestiges of Russia-worship that once was the cornerstone supporting East European communism.

It is increasingly clear to many Western observers, and to a goodly number in Russia itself, that the Soviet Union is being forced to straighten out her relations with the West. This continues true despite Premier Alexei Kosygin's recent bitter outburst against American policy on Germany and action in Viet Nam.

Noose of Terror Being Tightened Around Saigon

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong ranging from youthful saboteurs in Saigon to battle-hardened battalions in the countryside are tightening a noose of terror around Saigon.

The threat at present is mostly psychological. But a massive terror campaign may be near for the capital, which has escaped much of the brutality of the war despite repeated terrorist acts.

No Viet Cong military attempt to seize the city is expected.

Government troops have been able to do little to clear the surrounding countryside. Some vital military installations and tactical areas are considered threatened. One such military area is almost within rifle shot of the U.S. 1st Division headquarters just north of Saigon.

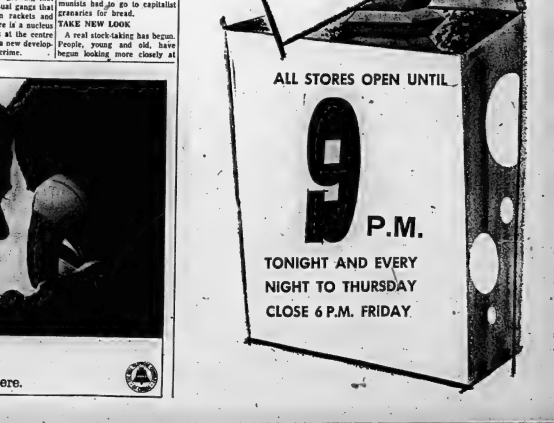
Adding to the problem, rumblings of military discontent with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government have touched off a flurry of coup rumors.

As a further complication, police sources say informers often fear being exposed by Viet Cong agents who have infiltrated the government's version of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The recent campaign of terror in Saigon began with the bombing of the U.S. Embassy Hotel, a U.S. and allied billet.

CURFEW RESULTS

A series of incidents since led to a dusk-to-dawn curfew for U.S. servicemen in Saigon.



Inside the city are four known Viet Cong commando units. They probably total less than 200 members.

The members are parts of Communist cells and subcells and most are unknown to each other. Over-all plans are known only by a top handful. If one cell is badly compromised, the sabotage network does not collapse.

Among out of Saigon into Gia Dinh province, also part of the central military district, are perhaps five Viet Cong district organizations, some with military companies attached.

Recent intelligence reports indicate two Viet Cong battalions have moved into the area just south of Saigon.

Their target could be highly significant. It is the main fuel storage and ammunition dump in Viet Nam 10 miles south of Saigon.

Four Children Die in Fire In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Fire claimed the lives of three at Mr. and Mrs. William Wilkins' four children at their suburban East York home Saturday and the fourth died in hospital here Sunday.

Mrs. Wilkins said Sunday: "I read about the other family but I didn't think it would ever happen to me."

She referred to another tragic family death toll by fire in which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sonier, their three children and Mr. Sonier's brother Stanley died in their Toronto home last Tuesday.

Saturday, Mrs. Wilkins' children, John, 4, Mark, 3, and Penny, 10 months, died in the blaze at their home. Her son Matthew, 2, died in East General Hospital Sunday.

The fire destroyed much of the Wilkins' rented semi - detached brick and frame home Saturday afternoon. Mr. Wilkins was at work when the fire started.

Mrs. Wilkins had twice stayed on a couch in the living room while watching television.

CHILDREN ASLEEP

Upstairs in the front bedroom, the two youngest children were having their afternoon nap. John and Mark were playing in the basement recreation room.

The police arson squad said Sunday they believed the fire started in the basement.

Mrs. Wilkins said she was awakened by smoke but could not find her children. She called the fire department from a neighbor's house.

Firemen were beaten back from the front door by flames but two men managed to climb in a second - storey window. They found Matthew and handed him out of the blaze.

Firemen found the other children dead.

Burial of the four children will be handled by the Red Cross. The Salvation Army has arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins to stay in a hotel until they get other lodging.

Mr. Wilkins, 23, a house painter originally from Saint John, N.B., had been out of work until he got a job driving a truck two weeks ago.

Eighteen Blind Young Singers Without Leader

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eighteen blind young singers from Hong Kong look to a bleak future. Their leader, who had rescued them from orphanages and refugee camps, was critically injured Friday night.

A member of their chorus, plucked nameless as a boy from a Hong Kong street, lay near death.

The leader, Stephen Shao, 47, and the blind chorister, John Chan, 24, were struck by a car Friday night as the group emerged from a Chinese-American church.

Shao suffered a broken hip and internal injuries. Chan had fractures of the skull and limbs.

"The blind singers just don't know what's going to happen to them," says Rev. Calvin Chao, head of the local Chinese for Christ Inc., a Protestant group which helps Chinese students in the United States.

"We're taking care of the boys and girls the best we can," he said. "But they feel lost, without their leader and very worried about John. They can speak only Chinese so there are few people whom they can confide in."

HELPED THE BLIND

The minister said Shao, a musician, decided eight years ago to try to do something for the blind, hopelessly poor children of Hong Kong.

Shao taught the youngsters he gathered from alleys, orphanages and refugee camps to sing and to play Western and Chinese musical instruments. Their repertoire ranges from classical music to popular Western and Chinese folk songs. Some compose their own music.

So skilful did Shao's Hong Kong Blind Chorus become, they were invited to tour Southeast Asia.

Through contributions, Shao got his group to the United States three months ago, hoping to book them throughout the country.

"They were looking forward to such a wonderful Christmas," said the minister. "Now they're drifting again—just as they did when they wandered the streets."

Dead Rat Used to Lure Goldie Home

LONDON (AP) — Goldie, the London Zoo's freedom-loving eagle, was recaptured Sunday with a white rat as bait. The eagle had fled last Wednesday, his second escape this year.

Goldie's recapture by zookeeper Derek Wood meant a loss of hundreds of pounds for many who had bet he'd stay free over Christmas.

Taking extra precautions this time, zoo attendants put the recaptured bird in a special safety aviary, the entrance to which is through another aviary.

Goldie had been showing off for hundreds of "fans" daily, swooping from trees in Regents Park to chase dogs, and he has been a "star" fixture on nightly television news screens.

TOOK BETS

Friday, London bookmaker William Hill accepted bets totalling £300 ($1,500) at odds of 4-to-1 that the eagle would be recaptured before Dec. 24. This was a reversal of earlier reporting that Goldie would spend the holidays aloft.

Again it was food that lured Goldie to recapture. Sunday it was a dead white rat. His first escape, last Feb. 28, ended after 12 days of freedom and lots of publicity when he was lured back into captivity with a dead rabbit.

Keeper Wood came upon Goldie Sunday morning perching about 10 yards from the zoo. The 33 - year - old keeper swung a dead white rat on a rope. As the hungry eagle swooped and seized the rat, Wood managed to grab him.

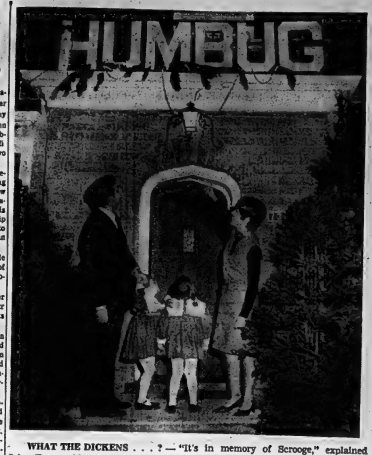
Diefenbaker Not Impressed With Shake-up

NEW YORK (CP)—Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker said Saturday the many changes announced Friday in Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet "were not of any significance, except for one or two additions."

The Opposition leader declined to discuss names during a radio - telephone interview with a reporter of The Canadian Press. Diefenbaker and his wife are aboard the cruise ship Empress of Canada, en route to New York after a Caribbean voyage.

"It was more of a shuffle than anything else," he said of the massive shakeup in the Liberal cabinet.



The former prime minister said he might comment after the Empress of Canada docks in New York Wednesday.

The Diefenbakers arrived in Kingston, Jamaica, Friday, and the Opposition leader called on Acting Prime Minister Donald Sangster, and Governor - General Sir Clifford Campbell during the one-day stopover.

In Kingston, Diefenbaker renewed a suggestion he had made at a press conference aboard ship earlier in the week that a conference of Commonwealth prime ministers be convened at the earliest possible date to discuss the Rhodesian situation.

WOULD BE TRAGEDY

MONTREAL (CP)—In his annual Christmas message, Paul Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, says it would be a tragedy if commercialism should strip Christmas of its sacred character. It is not enough to decorate cribs at the corners of streets and to transform cities into forests of lights, he said. "Our Lord expects us to give an example of that spirit of service which is the mark of true love for our neighbor," he said.

WHAT THE DICKENS . . . ? — "It's in memory of Scrooge," explained John Tames, 36-year-old Toronto father of two. "I've had a bellyful of Christmas commercialism," John, wife and two daughters look proudly at the Christmassy flashing sign above the front door of their home. 'Quiet Diplomacy' at UN Has Won Some Victories

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Two diplomats chat over cocktails in the United Nations delegates' lounge. The secretary-general circulates a secret memorandum. A small group confers in the private office of the Security Council president.

On the surface these events were far from spectacular, but each had a major impact on history.

Out of them came actions which led to the lifting of the Berlin Blockade and a ceasefire in the undeclared war between India and Pakistan.

These are examples of quiet United Nations diplomacy—the vast complex of behind - the-scenes negotiations complementing the more dramatic public confrontations, sometimes called "television diplomacy."

COULD BRING PEACE

It is out of such quiet give and take, such unobtrusive stating of positions, such quiet understandings of the other side that negotiations for an end to the Viet Nam war may emerge.

Although the public views the United Nations primarily as a forum for debate, many veteran UN observers are convinced that the coffee tables in the delegates' lounge have contributed more to peace than the u shaped table in the Security Council.

Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, a former president of the General Assembly, once deplored the fact that the public concept of the world organization came mainly from the debates in the General Assembly and the Security Council.

"Diplomacy by television is not the best way of allaying tensions and cooling national passions," he said. "What is overlooked is that in the great building beside the East River quiet diplomacy proceeds behind the scenes."

Those who frequent the UN's precincts have come to take quiet diplomacy for granted. Each day they see diplomats from the 117 member countries rubbing elbows in the corridors, in the lounges, at receptions and at luncheons and dinners.

The diplomats often do no more than exchange small talk. On other occasions, however, they discuss international problems. Sometimes the results of their talks become known, sometimes they remain cloaked in secrecy.

Each day Secretary-General U Thant, like his predecessors, has a list of diplomatic callers. Usually the subject of their talks remains undisclosed.

And there are innumerable secret meetings of the various blocs on the problems of the moment.

Because the United Nations brings together representatives from all over the world, it is a place where diplomatic encounters can be easily arranged on an informal basis. It has an additional advantage: There is a "third man" available in the person of the secretary-general to prod parties when neither side is willing to take the first step.

Forty or 50 foreign ministers spend a few weeks in New York during General Assembly sessions, primarily because such a visit affords an opportunity for private talks with other diplomats.

It is not unusual for the secretary-general or the Security Council president to get a letter signed by 20 or 40 countries requesting action on some problem. The result of private consultations in the council itself, members often agree in private on a resolution so that their vote will be unanimous. These draft resolutions are the result of days of negotiations.

One of the best examples of successful private negotiation is the handling of the India-Pakistan conflict.

When U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg calling signals as president of the Security Council, two ceasefire resolutions were adopted unanimously and the secretary-general was sent to New Delhi and Rawalpindi on a personal peace mission. Later Goldberg negotiated with Pakistan's Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto the final agreement which ended the fighting.

One of the most ardent advocates of quiet diplomacy was Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general from 1953 until his death Sept. 18, 1961, in an African plane crash. He was on a mission to seek peace in the Congo. Both Trygve Lie, the UN's first secretary-general (1946-53) and Thant also have engaged in quiet diplomacy extensively, and with success.

"Open diplomacy frequently becomes frozen diplomacy," Hammarskjold once said.

The lifting of the Berlin Blockade in 1949 was another great victory for quiet diplomacy—after months of public debate both inside and outside the United Nations.

The behind-the-scenes efforts began in earnest in the fall of 1948 while the General Assembly was meeting in Paris.

Lie was unable to make any progress immediately.

"Some time after our return to Lake Success," Lie recalled, "I mentioned to Jakov A. Malik, the Soviet deputy minister of foreign affairs and permanent delegate to the United Nations, that he might talk to U.S. Ambassador Philip Jessup if the Soviet Union wanted a settlement.

"Some three or four weeks later, word came to me that Prof. Jessup had approached Mr. Malik. Generalissimo Stalin had declared, in answer to a news agency's questions at the end of January, that the Berlin dispute could be settled. His statement said not a word about the ostensible cause of the blockade: The tangle over Berlin in currency. The omission was noticed in Washington, and it prompted Prof. Jessup to take his famous initiative."

Lie said Jessup and Malik met in the delegates' lounge just before a Security Council meeting —"not as the legend has it, over a glass of orange juice"—and Jessup asked whether Stalin's omission had any significance. Malik said he would find out. He consulted the Soviet foreign office and a month later or informed Jessup that the omission was "not accidental."

Malik and Jessup then started a series of private talks at the Soviet delegation's Park Avenue offices. They met once in Lie's home. Agreement finally came May 4, 1949.

Paton Says Order in South Africa Maintained by "This Terrible Fear"

Author Alan Paton, a fi- opponent of South Afri- ca's racial segregation pol icies, was interviewed by Canadian Press reporter Je- rh MacSween at his home in Natal. Here he tells of the deep fear he senses in the republic.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

KLOOF, South Africa (CP)— ader and order are being maintained in South Africa by "this terrible fear," said author-politician Alan Paton.

The words of the 42-year-old auth.. of Cry, the Beloved Country were strangely chilling in the garden of his home in he beautiful Natal countryside, rich with flamboyant camel ias and jacaranda trees.

"Some people will say to you at there is no fear- that if you're a decent chap, there's nothing to worry about here, but I know this fear goes very deep."

Not only opponents of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's Nationalist government are inclined to be fearful, but many supporters of the government also."

"I'm sure that many people who are converted to the government side become the more fierce supporters the more fearful they are."

Leader of South Africa's hard-pressed Liberal party, the soft-faced Paton obviously is not the type to scare easily though his passport was lifted following a visit to Canada and the United States in 1958.

"I was asked at the time whether it was a big blow I said I would rather hold my opinions than my passport. That's my position still."

CONDEMNED APARTHEID

In his North American tour Paton made no bones about his condemnation of apartheid—racial separation—and also spoke on the cruelties of the system which he regards as "the finest blend of idealism and cruelty the world has ever developed."

"And I must confess to you I see no reason why I should be loyal to this Afrikaner National- ist government. It isn't the state, in my opinion.

"If I were to go overseas and try to organize anti-South Afri can action, I think the govern ment would be entitled to deal very severely with me. But I maintain my right as an indi vidual to answer the questions that were put to me."

Asked in Canada what exter nal action could be taken against apartheid, Paton men tioned three things on which South Africa is dependent—gold of which it is a great producer oil, of which it is short, and shipping, on which its trade de pends. He had in mind sanctions or embargo.

"I gave the answer that would be obvious to anyone who knew anything about it," he said.

There's every indication that boycotts—individual actions by countries or individuals—have made no economic difference. The one boycott that has wor ked South Africans the most ealth ,h by no means all of them, is the boycott by English and American playwrights who won't allow their works to be performed here."

RESTRICTION WORKS

As for his own career, Paton does not fe- the passport re was a constricting factor but "what does constrict is that you feel you have other duties to perform that have nothing to do with writing."

"I'm now reaching the stage where I feel I will have to withdraw from public service in that case, I would concen trate on writing."

Perhaps much of Paton's compassion as a writer and as a politician derives from the 13 years he spent as principal of a reformatory for African boys, when he learned much about poverty, squalor and hardship.

Although Paton's party, with its multiracial ideals, has no members in Parliament, he feels Liberalism and allied movements have helped to change the government's mind on some points.

"It used to be considered a disgrace for Nationalists to shake hands with a black man. Now, they've dropped that non sense.

The great emphasis placed by the Institute of Race Rela tions on a living wage—I'm sure, this has helped increase the wages of Africans.

"It's like being beleaguered. You may not be winning any battles—and you may not be able to leave your parts, but that's where your job is at the moment. One must never say these movements have no effect at all."

HAS IT IMPROVED?

Is there more happiness in South Africa now than when Paton was a boy?

"I don't know how you mea sure happiness. I don't think you can measure it. It's the sa- when you ask is there more hatred in this country.

"Hatred doesn't show itself under totalitarian or semi-total- itarian rule. It's too expensive to show hatred. You see what happens in a place like Los Angeles, with people getting killed in race troubles, when all this hatred suddenly erupts.

"So I can't answer those questions.

"If there was any loss in the certitude of the white South Africans that they could com mand the situation, and any corresponding gain of certitude on the part of the African people that they could change the situation, then I really wouldn't like to prophesy what would be the consequences We ourselves, my wife and I, and my friends, too—we don't encounter much hatred."

Verwoerd's separate develop ment plan envisages that the African population will with draw from white areas into "Bantu homelands," one of which, the Transkei, has already been established with a measure of self - governmeut. But at present the tide is the opposite way—the Negro popu lation in white areas is increas ing.

"Dr. Verwoerd has on sev eral occasions made this ex traordinary prophecy that the tide is going to turn in 1978," said Paton. "Nobody knows why To me, it's sheer fantasy.

The idealists who follow Ver woerd are pacified by a thing like the Transkei."

But there were improve ments For one thing, the prin ciple of the rule of law was more observed than in the past.

MORE COURTESY SHOWN

"In other words the white man who brutally assaults or kills a black man hasn't got the same chance he would have in Mississippi or Alabama. Also, I believe the standard of public courtesy has improved, al though courtesy of course does not mean justice. There are certain openings, notably in medicine and the academic world, available to black peo ple that weren't open 20 years ago.

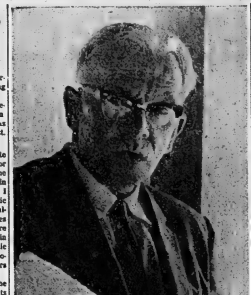
"I wouldn't like to give the impression that nothing gets better."

Comparing the majority Afri kaans-speaking South Africans with the English-speaking peo ple, who make up about 40 per cent of the population, Paton said that "when it comes to wanting to rule the roost, there's not much difference between them."

"But I think that probably English - speaking people would not have tampered with the rule of law in the same way as the Afrikaners did. However, now that these things have been done, English South Africa is inclined to accept them.

"So I'm not suggesting there is any great moral difference between the two."

Paton gave an impression of inflexible confidence combined with a deep awareness of trials ahead not only in his own coun try but elsewhere in Africa. The continent was haunted by a her itage of humiliation.



Europeans, with all their tech nology and scientific education, had gone into these countries and "done exactly what they wanted to do—good and bad."

"There's no doubt that the Europeans who came to Africa treated the Africans in general with something pretty close to contempt. This, I'm sure, in flicted deep wounds.

"I may tell you that many people in this country would regard what I'm saying as pure sentimentality. But I know that it's true. They inflicted deep wounds on the black personality

"Whether the Africans can recover from that as soon as they get independence I don't very much. I think it is going to take generations for this to work out."

Tomorrow: South Africans defend their racial policies.

FREEZE SPACE MEN?

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet scientist suggested Sunday that cosmonauts be frozen to prevent them from aging on years-long trips to remote bodies in space. Nikolai Sirotkin, writing in the Soviet military newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (red star), said this could also be done to extend life on earth. He said experiments with rats give the theory promise.

Ex-union Firebrand Key Figure in Cabinet

MONTREAL (CP)—A nimble mind sending out sparks from under a shock of boyish hair—that's Jean Marchand, ex-union firebrand and now a key figure in the re-organized federal cab inet.

After years of union-building in Quebec, Mr. Marchand, 47, took to federal politics for the November election as part of the Liberal party's "new look" brigade in Quebec.

Id Prime Minister Pearson's reshuffled cabinet the man from Quebec West will head the department of citizenship and immigration.

Later he will take over a new department of manpower.

Manpower and its rights have been Mr Marchand's chief con cern since the early 1940s, when he emerged from the social sci ences faculty of the French-language Laval University in Quebec City.

JOINED UNION

Full of "progressive ideas" he plunged into the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor founded by 1947 was its secretary-general.

With religious barriers to con federation membership melted away, he worked to make the group tightly-knit and militant, and fought many a battle with the then-kingpin of Quebec pro vincial politics, the late Prem ier Maurice Duplessis.

By 1960, with the Union Na tionale leader dead and a Lib eral government of the province in power, Mr. Marchand was president of the confederation, now renamed the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Sparking the CNTU's drive for an ever bigger role in Que bec's quiet revolution gave the dynamic president plenty to do, but he still had time for a run ning verbal duel with Real Caouette, Creditiste Leader.

Mr. Marchand packed the same oratorical wallop as the Creditiste battler—in the grand tradition of French rhetoric.

IS BILINGUAL

Appointment to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism gave Mr. March and new prominence and a chance to test his sharp econo mic wits, in English as well as in his native French.

Mr. Marchand left the com mission last fall, several months after resigning from his post as CNTU president.

In September he joined the Liberal party, a step that made some old union colleagues wince but gave the Liberals in Que bec a needed boost.

Into the Liberal ranks with Mr. Marchand went law profes sor Pierre Elliott Trudeau and ex-editor Gerard Pelletier.

Tabbed as "the three wise men," the trio rode to victory Nov. 8.

Old Saint Nick annually gets the "M. M." (moppets and merchants) Award for the biggest comeback of the year.

Over in Europe where most countries are enjoying the mythical jingle of sleighbells and the literal music of cash registers they took time out to honor an outstanding athlete as the "Sportsman of the Year."

He is Australia's Ron Clarke, who made more records than the Beatles, and won the award in the poll conducted annually by United Press International, world-famous news organization.

If your memory is still clicking on all cylinders you will recall that Clarke, Australia's hope for three or four gold medals in the Tokyo Olympics, went home a very disappointed young athlete.

At 27 when an athlete is supposed to be at the peak of his production capacities, the future did not look too bright for the Melbourne school teacher.

He felt he was not finished — just had one of those poorer years. His potential was there and he became determined to develop it to its full. Grit, guts, spirit and determination paid off for the brilliant Aussie. He "came back" with colors flying over trails of endurance and skill that could remain in the archives for a long time.

His remarkable efforts drew the admiration of the top sportswriters of Europe and that made him their overwhelming choice with 244 votes.

This was 111 votes more than the runner-up, the sensational African policeman, Kipchoge Keino of Kenya.

Three times Clarke cracked the world record for the 5,000 meters. He assaulted the three-mile and 10,000 meters marks twice and twice he established new ones. He set new world figures in the two-mile run; the 20,000 metres and the one-hour run.

He was the first ever to break 13 minutes for the three-mile event with a clocking of 12:52.4 on July 10th.

Kenya's Keino broke into world prominence in late August of last year when he broke the 3,000 meters record with a time of 7:39.06. Three days later he became the first African to achieve a four-minute mile with a blistering 3:54.7.

Just last week the dusky policeman from the veldt lowered his mile mark of 3:53.8 in New Zealand, just two-tenths of a second slower than the world record.

"I'm the Greatest in the World," the egotistic bleat of one Cassius Clay wasn't taken too literally by the European selectors for the title.

They took it with tongue-in-cheek and wads-in-ears for the Great One received only 124 votes for fourth place despite the fact that a lot of British sportswriters who attended the Floyd Patterson slaughter fiasco wrote the world champion was truly that but as yet had not had the proper chance to prove it.

The only other American to finish in the top ten was Randy Matson of Texas, the well known shotputter who ended up in fifth place with 110 votes.

Clarke's overwhelming majority in the ballots was well deserved. The Australian proved that a "poor year" did not mean the end of an athletic career. As was noted he has set world marks that likely will stand for some time—or until he goes out there and creates new ones himself.

Perhaps his best win was the personal victory in the "Determination Stakes." Glory and fame come with the establishment of world marks in any phase of athletics. But Clarke's greatest satisfaction came with the knowledge that he knew he had the potential and gave everything he had to bring it out to the full.

Blues, Habs Stage Ten-Minute Brawl

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers seem to have a knack for getting into scraps on home ice.

The New York-Montreal Canadiens National Hockey League game Sunday was interrupted in the second period by a 10-minute brawl.

New York eventually defeated Montreal 3-2, ending an 11-game winless streak.

In Sunday's other games, Chicago Black Hawks edged Detroit Red Wings 5-4 and Toronto Maple Leafs downed Boston Bruins 3-1.

On Saturday, Montreal edged Boston 2-1, Detroit defeated Chicago 3-1 and Toronto walloped New York 4-0.

Sunday's melee started seven seconds after Rod Gilbert scored New York's second goal at 2:3 of the middle frame. Phil Goyette and Wayne Hillman scored the other Rangers goals, Claude Larose and Dick Duff accounted for Montreal's scoring.

The Rangers' Earl Ingarfield and Ted Harris of Montreal started swinging after a collision along the boards. Vic Hadfield and several New York players on the bench helped Ingarfield by leaning over to reach Harris.

Montreal evened the odds with six players led by Henri Richard and John Ferguson. New York's Arnie Brown and Canadiens' Claude Larose also squared off.

DEALT OUT PENALTIES

Referee Frank Udvari dealt out 64 minutes in penalties after the brawl—32 to each team. Harris, Richard, Hadfield and Ingarfield all drew misconduct penalties.

The NHL rule book provides for an automatic fine of $50.00 for each player who leaves the players' bench to enter an altercation.

On Nov. 21, a brawl involving Emile Francis, general manager of New York who took over as coach recently, fans, and Ranger players erupted in Madison Square Garden over a disputed Detroit goal.

NHL president Clarence Campbell imposed a total of $1,800 in fines against Francis and the players who took part in that fight.

Saturday, Dave Keon and Bob Pulford each scored three goals as the Leafs blasted the Rangers. Eddie Shack and Frank Mahovlich were the other Toronto scorers. For Mahovlich, it was his third consecutive game-winning goal.

Ingarfield scored three for New York and Bob Nevin one.

Shack continued his comeback from a dismal 1964-65 campaign by scoring two goals Sunday night as the Leafs extended Boston's winless streak to 13 games.

Orland Kurtenbach was the other Toronto goal-getter while Parker MacDonald connected for the Bruins.

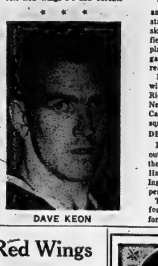
ALMOST TRIPLES OUTPUT

Shack's goals were his 12 and 13th this season. He managed only five goals all last season.

Gilles Tremblay's seventh goal of the season and John Ferguson's sixth accounted for Montreal's scoring Saturday night. Boston's lone goal came from John Bucyk, his 10th of the season.

Andy Bathgate scored a pair of goals and assisted on a third in pacing Detroit over Chicago Saturday. Gordie Howe was the other Red Wing marksmen. Eric Nesterenko scored for Chicago.

Pat Stapleton's second goal of the season with 10 seconds left gave the Black Hawks their victory Sunday night. Bobby Hull with two, Phil Esposito and Nesterenko were the other Chicago scorers.



Detroit's Bruce MacGregor scored three goals. Jimmy Peters, slaying his second NHL game, scored the other Red Wing goal.

Montreal remains on top of the standings with 34 points, two more than the second - place Black Hawks. Detroit and Toronto have 28, New York 19, and Boston 13.

Red Wings Suspend Harris

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League suspended centre Billy Harris Saturday after he declined to be sent to a farm club.

Harris, 30-year-old veteran of 10 seasons in the NHL, came to the Wings this season in a trade with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Jimmy Peters Jr., called up from Memphis Friday, replaced Harris on the roster.

Harris failed to score or get an assist in the Wings' last 14 games He had one goal and four assists this season.

At Windsor, Ont., Harris said Sunday he will make a decision on his hockey future after Christmas.

Harris, suspended after refusing immediate assignment to Detroit farm teams at either Pittsburgh in the American League or Memphis in the Central League, said:

"I'm going to spend Christmas here with the family. Then I'll consider being sent down, perhaps to Memphis. I've been to Pittsburgh in the winter and who'd want to go there?"

He added he was considered retiring from hockey for two years, but would probably finish the season in the Detroit organization. He was traded to Detroit from Toronto Maple Leafs last summer in an eight-player deal.

Colts, Packers Tangle For West. Title

49'ers Pull Upset

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The best quarterback Baltimore Colts had going for them in their last-chance shot at the National Football League's Western Division title was John Brodie of San Francisco 49ers.

Baltimore kept its title chances alive Saturday when converted halfback Tom Matte, son of a former Canadian professional hockey player, and veteran Ed Brown quarterback the Colts to a 20-17 victory over Los Angeles Rams.

Then on Sunday, Brodie capped the finest season of his career by leading the 49ers to a 24-24 tie with Green Bay, leaving the Packers and Colts deadlocked at the top with 10-3-1 won-lost-tied records.

Green Bay had a seven-point lead—and the division title apparently sewed up — with less than two minutes to go. But the 49ers surged back, so now the Packers and Colts will play for the Western Division crown next Sunday at Green Bay, with the winner taking on Cleveland Browns for the league championship Jan. 2.

Brodie's third scoring pass of the day, a 7-yarder to Dave Burke with one minute, seven seconds to play, and Tommy Davis's conversion kick tied it at San Francisco. Each team led twice, with the Packers taking a 21-17 advantage in the final quarter on Jim Taylor's five-yard run and going ahead 24-17 when Chandler Cox kicked a 31-yard field goal with 1:46 left.

But 41 seconds the 49ers got even on Kermit Alexander's kickoff return to the 29, a 15-yard penalty, four Brodie passes, and Davis's kick. The 49ers' quarterback star, in his finest NFL season, completed 34 passes for an amazing 78.5 per cent and 286 yards, and wound up the year with 30 touchdown strikes.

EXTENDS LEAGUE RECORD

Rookie Alexander of Chicago extended his league record with his 22nd touchdown of the season and the record setting title, but Minnesota Vikings beat the Bears 24-17. The loss left the Bears with a 9-5 won-lost record, good for third place in the Western Division.

Cleveland's eastern champion Browns rallied for a 27-24 decision over St. Louis even though they had to play the last half without Jim Brown, who got his 21st touchdown of the year but also got kicked out of the game for fighting.

In other NFL action Don Meredith's passing led Dallas over New York 38-20 and into the Playoff Bowl at Miami; Detroit outscored Philadelphia 36-26, giving the West a 13-1 edge over the East in inter-divisions play this season; and Washington scored three times on Pittsburgh miscues for a 35-14 romp over the Steelers.

Brodie's other scoring passes went to John Crow on a 32-yard play and to Dave Parks, for 13 yards. Boyd Dowler scored Green Bay's first touchdown on a 43-yard pass from Bart Starr in the second quarter and Herb Adderley helped the Packers to a 14-3 lead when he tallied from 13 yards out after intercepting one of Brodie's passes in the third quarter.

Willie Wood's interception of another Brodie aerial led to Chandler's field goal, which seemed to wrap it up for Green Bay, but Brodie and the 49ers had more than enough time to make another comeback.

With first - stringer Johnny Unitas and second-stringer Gary Cuozzo out of action with injuries, the Colts did the job against the Rams with Matte, normally a running back, and Brown, an 11th - hour pickup from Pittsburgh on waivers.

ONLY MATTE ELIGIBLE

Baltimore also put George Shaffner on the active roster as a reserve quarterback for the Rams game. But under league rules Matte is the only Colts' quarterback eligible for the playoff against Green Bay or Detroit. The game, unless they get unanimous consent from the from the other NFL clubs to declare a second quarterback on the active list.

CAPS WINNING RALLY

Rip Hewitson's 35-yard scoring run with an intercepted pass capped a three-touchdown rally in the final quarter that gave Minnesota the victory over the Bears. Sayers went over from the two for his touchdown and finished his brilliant rookie season with 1321 points.

Vince Costello's interception set up a third touchdown pass from Frank Ryan to Tom Hutchinson with 4½ minutes left, enabling the Browns to overtake the Cardinals. Larry Wilson stole three of Ryan's passes and sprinted 95 yards for a touchdown with one of the interceptions.

Brown and defensive end Joe Robb of St. Louis were ejected for fighting just before the first half ended. Before that, the great Cleveland fullback bulled over from the three for his 21st touchdown and totalled 74 yards on 12 carries. He ran off with his eighth rushing title in nine seasons with 1,544 yards.

Dallas' victory over New York left the two clubs tied for second in the East with 7-6-1 records, but the Cowboys beat the Giants twice and thus earned the East spot in the Playoff Bowl for division runners-up.

Meredith hit Olympic flash Bob Hayes with two scoring passes and connected with Buddy Dial for another, while rookie Robert Logan raced 60 yards, after grabbing a blocked field goal attempt, for a key Dallas touchdown.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Nationals dumped in four unanswered goals in the first period and simply outclassed Finland as they powered their way to an easy 10-4 victory in an exhibition hockey game Sunday before 3,500 fans.

Buddy Bodman scored the Jets' single goal at 14:14 of the final period, ruining Russian goalie Viktor Zinger's shutout chances.

The 20-year-old Zinger, new this year with the Russian national team, blocked 31 Spokane shots. Dave Cox of the Jets also turned back 31 shots.

The Russians won their fifth of six games on a tour of Canada and the United States.

Letter To The Sports Editor

RE: HOCKEY EQUIPMENT

Due to the forgetfulness of all youngsters, and hockey players are no exception, all coaches in minor hockey are asked to emphasize to the boys the advisability of marking all their equipment. Unfortunately not too many parents attend with their boys, consequently we don't feel we are getting to the people that count, i.e. the parents.

The Equipment Room of the BMHA is on the right as you enter the arena and at present numerous articles of lost equipment are held there, and these include many boys' equipment along with hockey equipment.

Now, whether some parents may feel their boys' equipment has been stolen, it is probably held for safe keeping in the equipment room and can be claimed when identified.

This is the season when parents are going to spend considerably amounts of good money on their boys and we feel a few words on the subject will not only assist the BMHA, but should be a help to both the boys and their parents.

Yours for Good Sports,
F. Jones,
Equipment Chairman,
Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

CARRIES ON TRADITION

MOSCOW (AP) — Anna Taskina has bagged her 400th bear at 73 years old. Mrs. Taskina took up hunting at the age of 46 because her own family had been great huntsmen but her husband and sons were not interested. She hunts in the Ural Mountains.

Liverpool, Newcastle No Score

LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool, perhaps a little leg-weary after its mid-week European Cup soccer win over Standard Liege in Belgium, was held to a goalless draw at Newcastle in a Saturday English League schedule disrupted by heavy rains.

The tie enabled Burnley, Liverpool's nearest First-Division rival, to narrow the gap to two points. Burnley won a magnificent battle against Leicester City 4-2 after trailing 1-2.

Waterlogged grounds caused the postponement of 14 matches and three other games had to be abandoned because of. atrocious conditions.

Manchester United, reigning league champion, crushed Tottenham Hotspur 5-1 to retain third place.

The position at the top, as the season enters its second half: Liverpool 32 points from 22 games; Burnley 30 points from 21 games; Manchester United 28 points from 21 games; Leeds United, one of the teams hit by the rain, fourth with 25 points but with two matches in hand over Liverpool.

West Ham United, holder of the European Cup Winners' Cup, battled to a creditable 0-0 draw away against Sheffield Wednesday.

Huddersfield Town, scoring two goals in each half without reply from Rotherham, retained its three-point lead over Manchester City at the top of Division II. The City did well to win 2-0 against Crystal Palace.

Scotland enjoyed better weather and in a full program of league matches Rangers retained the Scottish League's First - Division leadership but dropped a point in a 2-2 draw at Clyde.

The Rangers lead neighboring Celtic by two points, but Celtic, which beat challenging Dunfermline 2-0 away from home, has a match in hand on Rangers.

Vancouver Readying For NHL

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks got a new look and a convincing victory during the weekend.

The Western Hockey League team Saturday announced general - manager Max McNab will concentrate on preparing the club for entry into the National League while coach Bert Olmstead assumes a pre-game charge of playing personnel.

Sunday the team blasted Seattle Totems 9-3 on the strength of six unanswered goals in the third period.

In other weekend games Los Angeles Blades won two and moved to fifth place in their bottom - of - the - standings duel with Seattle. Saturday they beat the Totems 3-2 and Sunday they overcame Portland Buckaroos 4-3.

At Sea Francisco Saturday the Seals defeated first - place Victoria Maple Leafs 4-3.

Victoria has 38 points at the top of the standings, Portland is second with 30, Vancouver has 25, San Francisco 22, Los Angeles 20 and Seattle 18.

SERENITY IS KEY

POIRINO, Italy (AP) — The secret of long life is "to accept everything with serenity," says Mrs. Francesca Chiotti, 100 years old in November. "I eat vegetables mostly, a little piece of meat, and drink a glass of good wine at meals. That is why all my life I never saw a doctor."

European Soccer

Crack Milan Team Favored

LONDON (AP)—Forerunners of Hungary is the soccer team with the best chance to topple mighty Internazionale Milan, the crack Italian, squad that has won the European Cup of Champions for two years running.

The Hungarians, after racking up an impressive tally of 16 goals in the first two rounds, have to meet Inter in the quarter - finals.

It could be a tough test for the Milan team, whose form recently has been more convincing than in the last two seasons.

Last week, Inter overcame Dynamo Bucharest on a narrow 3-2 goals aggregate. But it had a fantastic goal to end the Italian team into the last eight.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars await the teams that fight through to the final of the European Cup of Champions next May. The luck of the draw has kept the three giants of the Spanish league — Reals Madrid of Spain and Madrid after United of England, apart in the quarter-finals.

Real Madrid, five times winner, has to meet Anderlecht of Belgium. Benfica Lisbon of Portugal, which has won the trophy twice, is paired against Manchester United.

FRAGILE PEACE BELGRADE

The fourth game is between Sparta Prague and Partizan Belgrade.

All matches are on a home-and-away basis, with the results decided on goals aggregate. They have to be completed by March 18.

British bookies have made International Milan 3-to-1 favorites to win the European Cup for the third year in succession again. Real Madrid, Benfica and Manchester United are rated joint second favorites at 10-1.

British teams appear well placed for a serious challenge for the Cup of European club tournament, the Cup of Cup Winners. Three of them are in the quarter-finals, and the draw has kept them apart.

West Ham of England, the holders, have to play Aufbau Magdeburg of East Germany. Liverpool, winner of the English Cup last season, plays Hovod of Hungary.

Glasgow Celtic, winner of the Scottish Cup, is matched with Dynamo Kiev of the Ukraine. The fourth game is between Atletico Madrid of Spain and Borussia Dortmund of West Germany.

Tennessee, Ole Miss Win Bowls

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defence carried the day for Tennessee and Mississippi in the first major bowl game in U.S. college football during the weekend.

Tulsa's Hurricanes ran into the ground and beat the Mississippi, meanwhile, won a defensive struggle with Auburn 13-7 in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis.

Next up are a pair of all-star games. Auburn could end its season Saturday against Florida in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., and the Blue-Gray battle at Montgomery, Ala.

At Houston Saturday a crowd of 40,000 braved a steady downpour to watch Tennessee turn two fumble recoveries and an interception into touchdowns.

In the Liberty Bowl, Mississippi signal-caller Archie Manning connected on 16 of 29 passes for 185 yards in the second half, the defence tossing quarterback Alex Bowden for losses totaling 45 yards.

Defeat Bears, Reds

Aces Win Weekend Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don Blackburn, Gordon Labossiere and Jean-Guy Gendron are not rated quite good enough for the National Hockey League, but the trio combined to give Quebec the only weekend sweep in the American Hockey League.

Blackburn, who has never been given an NHL trying-out, Labossiere and Gendron, who have played at various intervals, scored two goals each as the Aces defeated Hershey Bears 3-2 Saturday and walloped Providence Reds 7-3 Sunday.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Barons defeated Rochester Americans 3-1 Saturday, while Pittsburgh Hornets shutout Baltimore Clippers 2-0, and Springfield Indians edged Buffalo Bisons 3-2 in overtime.

Sunday, Buffalo defeated Pittsburgh 3-1, Rochester downed Springfield 4-1, and Baltimore defeated Cleveland 4-2.

Gendron and Blackburn scored a goal each Saturday along with team-mate Jim Morrison. Chuck Hamilton and Myron Stankiewicz replied for Hershey.

SPARKS ACES

Labossiere sparked the Aces Sunday with two goals, while Blackburn, Gendron, Simon Nolet, Cleland Murison and Wayne Hicks added the others. Ed Kachur, Jim Bartlett and Butch Barber scored for the Reds.

Bob Eilett scored two goals for Cleveland Saturday, while Tom McCarthy added the other. Stan Smrke was the lone, Rochester marksman.

Duke Harris and Andre Proovost scored the Pittsburgh goals. Randy Miller, Brian Smith and Yves Locas scored the Springfield markers Saturday.

Smrke scored for Rochester again Sunday along with Gene Ehman, Dick Gamble and Larry Jeffrey. Howie Menard replied for Springfield.

Jerry Melnyk scored a pair for Buffalo, while Alain Caron added the other. Pit Martin was the Pittsburgh marksman.

Sandy McGregor contributed a pair of goals to Baltimore's cause, Doug Harvey and Marc Dufour added the others.

Bob Courcy and Cecil Hoskins replied for the Barons.

Chiefs Whip Broncos 45-35

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It was playing his position and I wanted to play it as he would have," said Curt McClinton.

The position McClinton was playing belonged to his roommate and team-mate with Kansas City Chiefs, Mack Hill, who died unexpectedly last Tuesday of complications arising from a knee operation.

And McClinton, shifted from his normal halfback position, scored one touchdown and set up three others by grabbing five passes for 213 yards as the emotionally charged Chiefs outslugged Denver Broncos 45-35 Sunday in an American Football League game.

McClinton scored on an 11-yard touchdown run and set up three other scores with key receptions of 52, 12 and 69 yards en route to a total gain of 328 yards for the game.

While the Chiefs and Broncos closed out their regular season, San Diego Chargers and Buffalo Bills tuned up for the championship game next Sunday, the Chargers defeating Oakland Raiders 24-14 and the Bills dropping a 14-12 decision to New York Jets.

Boston Patriots walloped Houston Oilers 42-14 Saturday as Gino Cappelletti produced 28 points for a season total of 132 while winning the scoring title for the third consecutive year.

Len Dawson completed 11 of 22 passes for 302 yards against the Broncos before turning the quarterbacking over to Pete Beathard and Mike Cain, leaving over McClinton's position, ran short yardage for a pair of touchdowns. John Hadl also passed for three Denver touchdowns and Cookie Gilchrist scored on 44- and one - yard runs.

The Chiefs finished in third place in the AFL West with a 7-5-2 record while the Broncos were last at 4-10.

Recovery of Astronauts Exciting Weekend Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

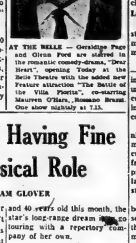
NEW YORK (AP) — Television's really exciting show of the weekend was on the successful recovery of the record-breaking Gemini 7 astronauts.

The Saturday morning live coverage took the carrier Wasp on a pool basis by the networks was as expert and satisfying as it had been for Gemini 6 earlier in the week.

It was a long dive from Saturday morning's return of the space travellers in Sunday night's Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea. In fact, the latter seemed like a comedy-satire.

The special effects of the ABC series are marvellous, particularly the scenes inside that very unconvincing submarine of the future. But the story lines often leave something to be desired (CBS' 20th Century) and this night had a fascinating film account of real life adventures and rescuing more than 1,000 wild animals stranded and starving in flooded jungle areas of Suriname, South America.

Star of the too-short half hour was a bearded young American named John Walsh, who carried out the rescue for the International Society for the Protection of Wild Animals, aided by a native crew.



"Man made this mess," said Walsh, his American accent belied forest of leafless trees. "We just thought we ought to try to do something about it."

Recommended tonight:

Perry Como (NBC), 9-10 EST, holiday program with soprano Robert Peters; Art Linkletter's Hollywood Talent Scouts (CBS, 10-11, return of a summer variety show with guest stars including Debbie Reynolds, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans.

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday — This is the rugged god of pure heart and minor ancestry that pays the title role of Walt Disney's Technicolor adventure, "Old Yeller". The human stars of the thrilling frontier drama are Dorothy McGuire, Fess Parker and Chuck Connors.

AT THE BELLE — Gershitzer Pace and Glenn Ford are shown in the romantic comedy-drama, "Dear Heart", opening Today at the Belle Theatre with the added new Feature attraction "The Battle of the Villa Fiorita", starring Maureen O'Hara, Rossano Brazzi. One show nightly at 7.15.

Julie Harris Having Fine Time in Musical Role

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Whether she jumped or was pushed isn't quite clear, but Julie Harris is having a fine time in her first musical comedy role.

"It's a joy to be playing," she said while trying to be exact about how the latest switch in her career came about.

For quite a while the slim star has been looking toward the song-and-dance stage.

When Julie Andrews left My Fair Lady, Miss Harris asked for an audition. There also was a test for Richard Rodgers. Even though I didn't think it was good enough, and of course, I didn't get either job."

She didn't stop looking or dreaming, however, and started taking voice lessons.

BECAME FRIGHTENED

But when Cy Feuer came in her about a production he and Ernie Martin were planning Nava Scotia each re-united three.

New Brunswick, Manitoba and Alberta each reported no traffic death while Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland and Saskatchewan reported no accidental deaths.

MINK BECOME MENACE

EDINBURGH (CP) — Wild mink are getting wilder, according to the Scottish agricultural board. Animals escape from mink farms and breed quickly, with few natural enemies. Now their indiscriminate killing of wild-song farm animals has become a problem.

Brezhnev Says Crops Recovering

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union's livestock industry, hard hit by a 1963 crop failure, is on its way toward recovery, says Communist Party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev.

Brezhnev told the party's central committee that during the last year "all the livestock populations as well as their productivity have increased." It is "evident," he said, that annual procurements plans for meat, milk, eggs and wool will be overfulfilled for the century as a whole.

The crop failure two years ago resulted in the slaughter of millions of farm animals because there was no feed for them.

Greatest depredations occurred in the hog population, which fell from 70,000,000 at the end of 1962 to 40,900,000 a year later. Sheep, goats and cattle also declined sharply.

Procurement plans for livestock products were not carried out last year because of the inroads resulting from the crop failure.

Late last year, after the overthrow of Premier Nikita Khrushchev, the Soviet leadership announced a series of drastic steps to revitalize the livestock economy.

Crux of the plan was to encourage collective farmers to buy land from private plots. These plots were to be increased in size, with the removal of "administrative restrictions" imposed under Khrushchev.

FEDANS AVAILABLE

Soft loans were provided from state funds, large enough to meet the entire cost of the animals and feed.

Feed grain—825,000 tons of it—was made available to private individuals buying animals under the new plan. State procurement prices on milk were increased in particular encouragement to cattle raisers.

The plan inspired little optimism by the Soviet government that, while private agriculture accounts for only a tiny fraction of total farm area, it produces a disproportionately large percentage of total food-stuffs.

In other words, farmers work better when they work for themselves. They sell products from their private plots in government-operated market places.

Brezhnev, in his speech to the central committee, said the measures had given "a certain dynamic push" to the livestock industry.

During the previous eight months the average milk yield per cow had increased by 625 pounds. Milk, meat and egg purchases had all risen markedly. Brezhnev gave no figures.

Quads Born In New Zealand

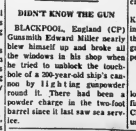
AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — Quadruplets — two boys and two girls—were born here today in the same hospital where quintuplets were born five months ago.

The quads' father, Herbert Dick Rawson, is surgeon at Nelson Hospital in South Island.

The babies were taken to a special care premature unit immediately on birth, and Dr. Algar Warren, medical superintendent of the National Women's Hospital where they were born said medical consultants were a little concerned at their condition.

The mother, Mrs. Sally Rawson, was in satisfactory condition.

The babies weigh from two pounds, 13 ounces to three pounds, six ounces.



The Rawsons have two other children, a girl of five and a boy of four.

One of the first to offer congratulations was Mrs. Shirley Ann Lawson, mother of the quintuplets born here last July 21.

DIDN'T KNOW THE GUN

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) Gunsmith Edward Miller nearly blew himself up and broke all the windows in his shop when he tried to unblock the touchhole of a 200-year-old ship's cannon by lighting gunpowder round it. There had been a powder charge in the two-foot barrel since it last saw sea service.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian police forces must have the standards of their personnel upgraded to keep ahead of highly - organized and efficient crime, Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister, said Sunday.

Crime in Canada is creating a real threat, Mr. Fulton said in an interview. The criminal is intelligent, highly organized and uses the latest technological devices.

Mr. Fulton advocated establishment of a police college to provide extensive training for policemen and enable them to keep one step ahead of the criminal.

Mr. Fulton, who won the Kamloops seat in Parliament in the May, 1963 election, said there should be extended programs available to send RCMP personnel to university.

Elizabeth Hartman Advises Girls to Keep Their Dreams

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — To all those who dream of becoming a movie star, Elizabeth Hartman has a message: you can do it.

She is pretty, though it is sometimey hard to detect because she pulls her hair back in severe style and wears no makeup.

She is talented, as evidenced by her work in A Patch of Blue with Sidney Poitier. The movie about a blind girl who is befriended by a Negro was shown here in general bazzaire. Elizabeth was hailed as a brilliant new star.

She is strong-minded. ("I know what I want, and I am going to get it.")

Miss Hartman was only 19 when she started working at the local playhouse in her home town of Youngstown, Ohio. She continued through high school and after studying drama for a year at Carnegie Tech, decided to tackle New York.

COULDN'T GET PART

"From January to May I scarcely went out of my hotel except for my classes at the Actor's Workshop," she recalled. "I kept writing brave letters home, but my parents could read between the lines."

Elizabeth finally admitted she was beaten. She got a job in a Cleveland theatre and also worked in summer stock at Warren, Ohio.

With letters of recommendation from the Warren theatre, she tried New York once more. Things happened fast; a test for the Warner Brothers ("They tried to glamorize me, and I fought them all the way"); a role in a play which closed out of town; then A Patch of Blue, followed by The Group.

Elizabeth has this advice to girls who would like to repeat her success:

"Stay where you are and work in the local theatre; don't try for broadway or Hollywood until you are ready; want to act very earnestly; keep your dreams."

RCAF To Get Big Share

OTTAWA (CP)—Allocation of defence funds is changing radically with integration of the armed forces.

The emphasis now is on conventional weapons instead of nuclear carriers such as the CF-104 low - level jet bomber.

The RCAF will still be the recipient of the largest share of defence equipment funds but the appropriation for the army will nearly double and that for the navy increase by about 20 per cent.

Officials disclose this breakdown of the five-year, 1965-69, defence equipment account of $1,470,000,000 with percentage allocated to each service (1961-65 percentage in brackets):

	Amount	Percentage
RCAF	$325,000,000	33.7 (32.3)
Navy	$369,000,000	38.4 (22.3)
Army	$336,000,000	22.9 (11.8)
Misc.	$220,000,000	15 (13.5)

Miscellaneous includes research and development projects.

In the five years before the institution of the present plan, the RCAF received more than half of all the funds spent on weapons and equipments.

As a result, the other two services often had to make do with a stripped down and much of it dating from the Second World War.

The defence budget for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1966, will probably be slightly higher than this year's $1,550,000,000.

Officials say the increase will be entirely due to the higher cost of living, which hits the defence department's pocketbook as well as the housewife's purse.

The defence department bid for a 3½ per cent annual increase in its budget to take care of the rising costs of equipment and labor but was allowed only two per cent by the cabinet.

CAN SAVE

Officials now estimate they can make sufficient savings in administration to take care of this difference of ½ per cent.

An amount of ½ per cent appears small when expressed as a percentage but on the current defence budget it comes to more than $25,000,000.

Authorities say that with increased spending on, for example, airlift and army equipment, Canada will be able to make a bigger contribution to NATO's 5,000-man mobile brigade. This country has already committed an infantry battalion of the Black Watch Regiment in this force as well as the necessary airlift.

The force is designed to guard NATO's flanks in Norway on the north and Greece and Turkey on the south.

The NATO ministerial meeting in Paris last week ordered a thorough review of the mobile brigade with the aim of seeing that it is provided with adequate airlift, personnel and finances.

Wilson Says Oil Embargo Essential To Keep Red Troops Out Of Africa

LONDON (AP) — Although a powerful international embargo is building up against rebel Rhodesia, Prime Minister Wilson has warned that Britain will move swiftly to plug "any seepage or leakage" through oil bootleggers.

Wilson told the House of Commons Monday after his return from talks with President Johnson in Washington and Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa that he had been assured of full United States backing for the oil embargo and France and Italy "are cooperating fully" in halting the flow of oil to Rhodesia.

Wilson said it had been urgent to impose the oil ban because of "the immeasurable dangers of outside intervention," and because of "the almost irresistible pressures which are building up for still graver and more far-reaching measures in the United Nations."

In a television interview later, Wilson said one of the dangers of foreign intervention was that "there are some African countries who would like to bring in the red army without blue (United Nations) berets."

He said Britain's "determination and resolution" in dealing with the Rhodesian issue was unswerving.

HE'S OPTIMISTIC

In the Commons debate, Wilson said he believes the embargo will prove effective in bringing Prime Minister Ian Smith's white-minority government to its knees because of the assurances so far received. But he added "there are still important gaps in information from whom we have not had a final answer—and The Netherlands is obviously very important here."

Earlier government sources said assurances of support for the oil embargo also have been received from Belgium, Japan and The Netherlands in addition to those from the United States, France and Italy.

When Wilson previously announced in the House only those countries which have given a formal commitment to support the embargo.

Wilson said Britain will move in swiftly if there is any "seepage or leakage by one or two spies (tangents)—and I gather it is possible for ships to evade the oil trade—for the purpose of defeating laws that have been made."

Wilson refused to reveal what measures the government was prepared to take to block any "seepage and leakage." Asked whether a blockade would be clamped on the ports of Portuguese Mozambique, through which Rhodesia normally gets its oil supplies, the prime minister said there were "certain measures which I do not could be tried first. He did not define them.

CONFLICT POINTS

Wilson said that an oil airlift had begun Sunday to landlocked Zambia as soon as neighboring Rhodesia cut off the flow. But he said the bottleneck was the capacity of airfields in Zambia, not the number of planes available.

The Commons debate also announced that a special airlift

Canada To Aid in Oil Airlift

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Four Canadian planes will join the airlift that will pour supplies into Zambia to offset her broken supply lines from Rhodesia.

Prime Minister Pearson announced Monday that the four-engine Hercules transport planes will join the airlift now being organized by Britain and the United States to help release the economic squeeze being felt by Zambia, a next-door neighbor to Rhodesia.

Zambia got most of her oil supplies from Rhodesia, before the Smith's government cut-off the shipments. Britain has already begun flying in diesel fuel to keep the Zambian mines operating.

Mr. Pearson said the Canadian planes would be ready to go in three or four days, and that the initial arrangements are being made for a one-month participation. He hoped it would not be necessary to extend this.

PLACES EMBARGO

Meanwhile, Canada has placed an embargo on the shipment of Canadian oil in Rhodesia—now has ever been shipped —as economic sanctions against the country's break - away regime continue to tighten. Mr. Pearson told a post - cabinet press conference that the move will prevent any trans - shipments of oil through Canada to Rhodesia.

He said details surrounding the oil lift are still being worked out and it was not known whether Canadian ground crews would be transferred overseas. The bases from which the planes would operate still had to be determined.

The prime minister said the economic sanctions against Rhodesia "are a matter of general" unless friendly countries stepped in with the airlift. While the shortage of oil caused the most immediate concern, other supplies would be flown in as needed, and "if they come from Canada, that's fine."

The Rhodesian issue was one of the main subjects at the cabinet meeting, the first for five new members sworn in Saturday. The subject dominated the prime minister's press conference.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE ON

He said negotiations are still going on in connection with a proposed British Commonwealth meeting, which the prime minister of Nigeria has suggested for Jan. 10 if the conference comes off, said Mr. Pearson, "we'll be there." But the date may not be convenient for some countries.

Air War Nears Port City

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes brought the air war on North Viet Nam closer to Haiphong in the last 24 hours.

A spokesman said they dropped bombs and fired rockets only 12 miles from the country's major port and paid a return call on the Uong Bi power station, which supplies electricity to Haiphong and Hanoi.

The North Vietnamese sent up several missiles against the U.S. Air Force and navy planes but they missed their mark, the spokesman said. The American pilots spotted some MIG-17s over North Viet Nam, but the communist jets did not attack the U.S. planes.

Air force pilots made 52 assaults over the North, dropping 115 tons of 750-pound bombs and firing rockets and cannon as well. Three fighter - bombers were shot down by ground fire, U.S. spokesmen reported. One of the pilots was rescued.

Guerrillas skirmished with three different government militia units four to six miles from south of Da Nang, using mortars and small arms.

A U.S. military spokesman said South Vietnamese troops killed 29 Viet Cong in a search-and - destroy operation nine miles east of Quang Tri, 425 miles northeast of Saigon.

A New York Times dispatch from Saigon said today U.S. Air Force planes have begun a drive to destroy rice crops in some areas under Viet Cong control from the same defoliation chemicals that have been used to destroy the guerrillas' jungle canopy. Officials described the chemical as a non-poisonous weed killer.

Hanoi Gets Rockets From Soviet Union

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today admitted for the first time that it has supplied North Viet Nam with rockets.

The defence ministry newspaper Red Star, said "rockets and fighters made by Soviet people are guarding the skies of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam."

In an editorial calling for world support for the North Vietnamese against United States, it said North Vietnamese had shot down "hundreds of American vultures with Soviet-made anti-aircraft weapons."

The editorial gave no other details of what weapons the Soviet Union has supplied to North Viet Nam.

Soviet leaders have reiterated from time to time that the Kremlin was supporting and would continue to supply North Viet Nam with necessary assistance.

Want None of Their Own

West Germans Seek Bigger Say On Use of A-Bombs in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Germany has publicly stated it seeks no nuclear weapons of its own, and wants at this time only a bigger say in their possible European use.

A West German spokesman announced the position Monday after Chancellor Ludwig Erhard conferred with President Johnson. The two leaders wind up two days of talks today.

State Secretary Karl - Guenther Von Hase said: "Germany, the chancellor stressed, is not interested in national ownership, but asks for closer co-determination and for continued consultation."

Johnson and Erhard met in closed session with only interpreters present, and their spokesmen gave few details of the conversation.

White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said only that they talked about "nuclear policy and the president's efforts to assess the present German position."

There was neither confirmation nor denial of reports that the Germans favor an Atlantic nuclear force under which European nations would share ownership of a 10 - submarine fleet armed with Polaris missiles. The submarines would be under command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The ANF is Britain's alternative to the MLF proposal for a multi-lateral force that would involve NATO control of surface vessels armed with missiles and manned by sailors from NATO countries.

Britain has objected to the mixed manning as unworkable. Its plan would fit in with the Labor government's pre - election pledge to abolish what Prime Minister Wilson once called his nation's "so-called independent, so-called deterrent" (the expensive-to-maintain submarines).

Twelve Die In Jewish Centre Fire

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — A music classroom, gay with holiday song, became a death trap for nine children and three adults Monday night as a sudden flash of fire struck a Jewish community centre in this New York suburb.

The children ranged in age from seven to 11 and included three sets of brothers and sisters. Firemen said the victims apparently fell dead from smoke and fumes.

At least nine persons were injured, but only two were still in hospital today.

One of the adult victims was Lucille Sacks, who had come to pick up her daughter, Sandra, after her music lessons.

Witnesses told police that Mrs. Sacks brought her child to safety but died after she re-entered the building, apparently trying to save her neighbors' children.

"Wherever they find Mrs. Sacks, they'll find my children," said Mrs. Isaku Konoshima, a neighbor and close

UN Delegates Try to Close Assembly Lasting 2 Years

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN delegates pushed wearily-to close the lid tonight on a General Assembly that has plowed through two years of accumulated business and broken a few precedents.

Assembly President Amintore Fanfani was expected to gavel the gruelling session in a close, late tonight" or in the early morning hours, depending on the volume of windup oratory.

It will mean the end of an assembly that had to take time out from current business to clean up financial and housekeeping items untouched during last year's session paralysed by the voting deadlock over peacekeeping finances.

Cutting in on the work schedule of key delegates were Security Council debates on the strife in Cyprus, the Independence declaration of Rhodesia's white-minority government, the India-Pakistan conflict and the situation in Portugal's African territories.

The assembly session saw China's boosters make the strongest showing yet—a 47-47 tie vote—in their 15-year struggle to capture the Chinese seat for Peking.

It also saw the big Afro-Asian group manoeuvre itself into the power role it has been seeking since 1955, when new Asian and African states began flocking into the organization.

Brushing aside U.S. objections, the Afro-Asians Monday night rammed through the 117-national assembly a procedural which in effect junked the long-standing rule that important issues require a two-thirds majority for approval.

Montreal Police Seize 5 Million Sweep Tickets

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal and provincial police seized an estimated total of 5,000,000 Irish Sweepstakes tickets—valued at $17,000,000 — in two raids on suburban Montreal homes Monday night.

A man and a woman were arrested and were to be charged in court today.

Also seized was $100,000 in cash and cheques. Police said the money was to have been sent to sweepstake operators in Ireland by the Montreal distributors.

Provincial police officials described the operation as "definitely the largest lottery raid in the province of Quebec at least—and perhaps in all of Canada."

"I think we have cracked the ring now. I doubt we will have any more trouble for a while," an investigating officer added.

The arrests followed a month of investigations. The two homes raided were reported to have been watched for several days.

The first raid was at Dollard des Ormeaux, near Montreal International airport, where police arrested one man and seized several cartons of tickets.

The five-man combined force then moved on to Lasalle, a mile south of Dollard des Ormeaux. They arrested a woman and seized thousands more tickets and the cheques and cash.

Police said the 5,000,000 tickets were for the February and March runnings of the Irish Sweepstakes.

One officer reported the tickets had recently arrived in Canada from "somewhere in Europe—most probably Ireland."

Also seized were lists of persons suspected of handling the distribution and sale of the tickets.

They said the man and woman will be charged with infringing Article 179 of the Criminal Code of Canada. The article deals with lotteries.

Monday night's raid was called "the largest ever" by police.

Centennial Youth Parliament Hopes Improved

MONTREAL (CP) — The appointment of Jody LaMarsh as secretary of state has given new hope to a 25-year-old former Saskatoon student who has fought an almost three-year battle for nine centennial projects.

In an interview Monday, William Fair, now of Ottawa, said that since Miss LaMarsh has already expressed approval of the youth parliament, perhaps the fact that part of her new portfolio will include Canada's centennial celebrations will lend new strength to the realization of his dream.

Mr. Fair, who was in Montreal in connection with the youth parliament, quoted from a letter, from Miss LaMarsh which he received in early June, 1963, in which Miss LaMarsh states:

"... I should like to thank you for putting forward this suggestion, one of the most worthwhile that has come to my attention."

The plan for a youth parliament has also received support and approval from Prime Minister Pearson, Opposition leader Diefenbaker, all other leaders of parties represented in Parliament, all provincial leaders and lieutenant governors, all members of Parliament who have been asked, most service clubs, businessmen's groups — including the Junior Chamber of Commerce—and from other youth organizations at all levels.

Interest in the centennial youth parliament has also come from many countries which have expressed desire to send observers.

Mr. Fair said his proposal would involve at least hundreds of young people—if not thousands—throughout Canada in a myriad of ways because members would be elected on the basis of existing ridings in January, 1967.

He said that while support for the idea of a youth parliament has been most encouraging and almost overwhelming, it has yet to meet with approval by the centennial commission.

City Aldermen End Year, Hear Industrial Report; Vote Selves Pay Increase

Belleville city council wound up its business for the year last night as members held a lengthy two hour special session at city hall.

Council members heard the annual report of the Belleville Industrial Commission submitted by its chairman J. C. "Pat" Houston and passed a number of recommendations from the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board calling for the preparation of by-laws covering certain zoning changes and to allow "site plan" land development agreements.

Council also bade farewell to six of its present members, who will not be back to city hall next year.

Alderman Ben Corke, Thomas Lally, Joseph Rayerott, George Brown, Frank C. Murray and Don Whalen are leaving municipal life and last night cleaned out their council chamber desks after hearing Mayor J. R. Ellis pay tribute for their service to the city.

HIKE COUNCIL PAY

Mayor Ellis had, particular praise for the work of Alderman Corke during his many years of service to city hall.

Also council members voted themselves a Christmas present by increasing honorariums for both city mayor and aldermen starting next year.

The mayor's honorarium was increased to $4,000, up $700 from the present figure, while aldermen will receive $1,200, up $200 from the present $1,000.

The alderman's honorarium, however, will have to be formally approved by by-law before it becomes effective.

Ald. Jack Pearson brought in the recommendation for the increased honorariums, noting that the figures were a compromise by the committee.

Alderman Frank C. Murray who is retiring this year from council, noted that many centres pay council members a higher honorarium than did Belleville.

He pointed out that with a reduced council next year members would have more work.

He said $4,000 was not excessive for the mayor.

BUY BUILDING LOTS

But Alderman George Brown looked at it from a slightly different light.

He admitted the job of councillor would be harder next year but said the extra "naive" was not the answer.

"When the ratepayers voted for the reduced ten-man council they felt the city would be saved some money," he said. "If the recommendation is approved it will take up all the saving."

The recommendation carried 10-4.

Council also voted to purchase ten building lots in the Coleman Flats area as a site for a city parks board building to house equipment and serve as a parks board office. Cost of the property will be $6,000, expected to be paid for out of special parks board funds set aside for property purchases.

Council appointed two members to the Bay of Quinte Conservation District Board for three-year terms. They are Neil Davidson, Northern Elec. Ltd. and local solicitor, J. D. O'Flynn.

Does Not Pay To Adhere To Policy

There are times when it does not pay (financially, that is) to adhere to policy.

At least this has been indicated to city council which several times in recent years turned down a nominal offer of $1.00 to purchase a small parcel of city-owned land and instead voted to sell it by tender.

Wilson Concrete Ltd. had offered to pay $1.00 for a portion of Lot 24 on Starling Street, and the works committee recommended the offer be accepted.

But it was pointed out that city regulations called for city-owned property to be sold only by tender, this despite the fact it was pointed out that only Wilson Concrete would be interested.

So the offer was refused and council voted to call for tenders. Yesterday council was told that only one tender had been received as a result of the tender advertisement. The offer was for $7.00 from Wilson Concrete.

"How much did the newspaper advertisement cost?" asked Ald Doug Boyle.

"I can't say," replied City Manager J. R. Reynolds, "but it would be considerably more than $7.00."

No Intention Of Rewriting O Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson says he has no intention of sitting down to rewrite the words of O Canada.

At a press conference Monday, a reporter said he recalled that the prime minister had suggested the words of O Canada could be improved.

"I've been singing them for a long time," said Mr. Pearson, although he agreed the words were repetitious.

"But I think I have enough on my hands without rewriting O Canada."

Wrecked Cars His Only Home

Belleville police today told the un-Christmasmike story of a man who was forced to theft to keep warm.

The only fixed address John Patrick Davidson had was in wrecked automobiles, Magistrate T. V. Wills learned after the 36-year-old-man pleaded guilty to stealing bed clothes.

Detective Inspector Harold Reid said Patrick did odd jobs around a wrecker's yard and slept in the junked cars by night.

A few days ago he broke into a nearby house and stole a blanket and comforter.

"John Patrick has apparently slept out all last winter in these wrecks," said the inspector.

"He has no place to stay and he had no money to buy blankets."

Magistrate Wills remanded the man in custody for a week before deciding on a penalty.

"He will least have a warm place for a few days," he commented.

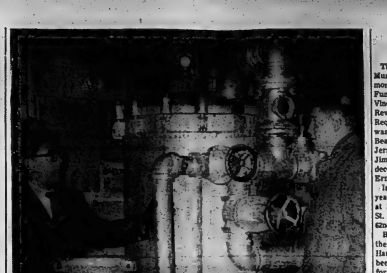
Coolers Made In Hong Kong Contaminated



Belleville Health Officer Dr. McCall Metcalfe today received official confirmation of laboratory tests claiming contamination of certain plastic ice coolers.

A telegram from provincial health authorities added: "Products packaged and packaged in Hong Kong are the only ones implicated to date."

Contamination was reported found in the water inserted in the coolers—individual plastic units partenered after ice cubes which can be re-frozen after use.

Kinsmen Pool Filter System Needs Repairs

The filter system of the Kinsmen Swimming Pool is "shot" according to Mr. Alex Chandler, a swimming pool engineer from Toronto who inspected the local pool yesterday, Jim Clelland, pool manager, explained that the system is 15 years old and will be unusable next summer if it is not repaired. However, he said the repair job would be a waste of money since it is so outdated.

Mr. Chandler made a thorough investigation of the pool equipment and will make recommendations for a new installation. Under present conditions the filter system will not meet the standards set under recent government legislation covering pools, so some renovations must be made by next summer.

Rotarians Sing Yule Carols At Luncheon

Belleville Rotarians sang Christmas carols yesterday, accompanied by bandsmen of the Salvation Army under Deputy Bandmaster Les Price.

Brigadier Bernard Bernat, whose son Don was one of the bandsmen, gave an address on the meaning of Christmas.

He spoke of the three great Christian festivals, Christmas, Easter and Pentecost. They celebrated the birthdays of the Christ, of the Christian faith, and the birth of the Church respectively. All were tied together.

"It was the true Christian spirit and the spirit of Christmas," the deep-down joy of the Christian" said Brigadier Bernat.

He spoke of General Samaritan and said the parable "shows us our neighbor is everywhere and he is a fellow in need."

It had been said that science has made the world a neighborhood. "The church," said Brigadier Bernat, "must make it a brotherhood."

The annual collection among club members for the work of the Salvation Army realized $150.

Rotary president Ernest Burnham presided.

Rented Car Hit by Train, Driver Escapes

Lawyer Says Parents Not Worried About Son

TRENTON — Emphasis was on lawyers for the defense in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday.

Trenton lawyer, Wm. G. Weston, pleaded with Magistrate T. Y. Wills, that "justice be tempered with mercy," when the magistrate considered sentencing a Peterborough man.

Mr. Weston asked his 20-year-old client, Bradley Whyte, had-not had adequate guidance in his youth. Whyte's parents, said Mr. Weston, seemed utterly unconcerned about his problems.

Whyte, charged with attempting to take a vehicle without the owner's permission and with the theft of $1,600 worth of camera equipment, had a record stretching back to 1960.

Acting on Mr. Weston's suggestion, Magistrate Wills asked Probation Officer Dennis Akkins to up-date a pre-sentence report, prepared in 1962, and present it to the court next Tuesday.

The motor vehicle charge was laid against Whyte on Sept. 25, after two men were apprehended in a station wagon on the Salem-Lion parking lot. Later, while Whyte and Ronald Rexford Helm, 18, of Frankford, were being questioned about this incident, free-lance photographer Ed Strome of Frankford reported his camera equipment missing from his car which had been parked in the Queensway Motel lot. The equipment, found intact in bushes near the Queensway, bore Whyte's fingerprints.

In court yesterday, Whyte also faced two charges of passing worthless cheques in Brampton in 1964. He pleaded guilty to all charges.

CONFIRMED ALCOHOLIC

Belleville lawyer, Glenn Deline, said that his client, Helm, was a confirmed alcoholic, but had joined Alcoholics Anonymous since the Red Lion incident.

Helm told the court last week he had regularly scored more than 0.320 worth of liquor each weekend.

Crown Attorney John A. Pringle said that Helm was "a glutton in the worst sense of the word" when it came to alcoholic consumption. Helm's "gargantuan" consumption had led him into trouble, said Mr. Pringle, who called for a suspended sentence on a charge of consuming liquor while under the age of 21, on the condition that Helm continue active participation in A.A.

Helm was given a two-year suspended sentence for his part in the attempted car theft and fined $20 on the liquor count.

Robert Cecil Carr, 21, charged with assault against a local man, Teasdale Airdrie Irick, undertook his own defence, in the best Perry Mason tradition. He endeavored to prove he had been defending himself when he leapt from a car on the night of December 3 and struck Kirkpatrick.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, who said he had "never seen Carr before in his life," contended that the attack had been unprovoked.

Carr was fined $100 and ordered to pay $23 in witness fees.

Shepard, C. Shenuel, John Spencer and William Latour.

The elections were conducted by district commander Gerald Simpson of Brighton, assisted by three Legionnaires from Cobourg and three from Colborne.

New Council Will Meet January 3

TRENTON — The inaugural meeting of Trenton council will be held on January 3, and at this time Mayor James Mac Donald and Councillors C. V. Graham, D. R. Fraser and Douglas Kinney will be sworn into office.

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission will hold its inaugural meeting on January 6, with Commissioner Clifford A. Bailey being sworn into office and by tradition (and the terms of the Act) the school board members elected on December 6 will be sworn into office on or before the second Wednesday in January, which in 1966 will be January 12.

School board members to be sworn this year are George Green, Mrs. Henry Hutchison, T. S. Ketcheson and Douglas Whitley.

headquarters — including air traffic control personnel, signal men and plane servicing staffs —is being flown out to Zambia today by the RAF to speed the turn-around of the fleet of transport planes.

Wilson said the airlift will build rapidly in the next few weeks "but its success will depend on our receiving full cooperation both from Zambia's neighboring African states and from other countries who are in a position to help with the transport of essential supplies to Zambia."

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson announced that Canada will contribute four RCAF planes to the airlift.

Pearson said that Canada will also consider arms sales to Rhodesia. Canada has not been shipping oil to Rhodesia, but the Canadian government acted to thwart any future shipments that might be sought now that some of Rhodesia's major suppliers are taking part in the ban.

City Hall Gets in Tune With Season

Merry Christmas — City Hall!"

That is the cheerful Yuletide manner in which telephone callers at Belleville's city hall are being greeted this week.

And the Christmas greeting is truly spontaneous on the part of the switchboard operator. At least it isn't the result of a directive from the mayor or city manager.

"A good idea," said Mayor J. R. Ellis when he learned that the switchboard operator was giving out with the Christmas greetings "It's good public relations. I wish it had been my idea."

And that the greeting was being given out was also a surprise to City Manager Reynolds.

"It's nice to hear," said the city manager, "someone at the switchboard must have the Christmas spirit."

George Hees Pays $22 Fine For Speeding

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — George Hees, Conservative member of Parliament for Northumberland, paid a $22 fine for speeding on the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway last Thursday.

Mr. Hees, trade minister in the former Diefenbaker government, was stopped at a provincial police radar trap and charged with driving 80 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone near Trenton, 10 miles west of Belleville.

A spokesman for Mr. Hees, who left Sunday for a vacation in England, said Monday the charge was a summons matter which was paid by cheque.

Hugh Murray New President Of Builders

Hugh Murray of Hugh Murray Limited was elected president of the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange Friday, at the December meeting of the Exchange at the Quinte Hotel.

Other officers elected for 1966 were: J. Belanger, first vice-president; M. McGee, second vice-president; V. Trudeau, R. Dean, D. Holmes and W. Dejong directors; and O. F. Bradley, secretary.

In accepting the position of president, Mr. Murray commended out-going president, H. Quincey, for successes achieved during 1965 in stimulating interest and increasing the activity of the exchange. He outlined his aim for 1966.

"First, I will encourage closer liaison among the Exchange and the Home Builders Association and municipal architects and other closely allied organizations.

"The construction industry is the largest industry in Belleville and we should act as big as we are supposed to be".

WANTS MORE MEMBERS

He stated he would strive to maintain the same high standard set by the officers and directors in 1965 and said it was his aim to increase the membership in the Exchange by at least 20 per cent.

Retiring president B. Quincey briefed the members of Exchange on the organization of the Ontario Federation of Construction Associations and stressed the advantages of obtaining membership in this organization. He thanked the members for their support during the past year and asked that they offer the same support to Mr. Murray.

In other business at the meeting, various reports were heard by the committee chairman and Mayor Jack Ellis delivered a brief address.

Deer Cannot Stand on Ice, Rescued by Game Warden

Fortunately Santa Claus' reindeer are more sure-footed than the deer that found its way onto the ice of the Bay at Point Anne yesterday. A fawn of about 7 months and 120 pounds, it would have been a great hindrance to Dasher, Prancer et al, as he found it impossible to stand on the ice.

First spotted by employees of the Canada Cement Company at 8.30 a.m. the deer wisely thrashed about on this ice for several hours until Department of Lands and Forests Game Warden Jim Moore of Napanee arrived on the scene. Fortunately the fawn did not break through the ice.

Mr. Moore slowly inched his way pushing a punt to the frightened animal until he was able to grab it. A rope pulled them back to shore. With the help of several Canada Cement employees, Mr. Moore tied the deer and placed it in the trunk of his car.

Last week another deer was chased into the bay by dogs and swam across to the other side. This one will be taken to Presqu'ile Provincial Park where it is hoped he will remain out of trouble in the future.

Council Approves Four Amending Zoning Bylaws

City council yesterday approved of four Belleville and Suburban Planning Board recommendations calling for by - law amendments with respect to city zoning regulations.

Included was a recommendation calling for a by - law amendment making the downtown area of the city a special commercial zone whereva "site plan" agreements relating to new building development could be made.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said the Ontario Municipal Board had turned down the city's earlier proposal wherein a prospective developer would be given the option of paying $200 for each off - street parking space he was unable to provide.

A resolution will be prepared for submission to the Ontario Legislature requesting amendment of the planning act to enable land developers being given the option of providing parking spaces or paying cash for spaces not provided.

The by - law would provide for special agreements allowing for the rebuilding of burned - out areas in the downtown district.

Council also approved a recommendation for a by-law amendment to establish a new zoning district to allow for construction of Senior Citizens' Housing in the Turnbull street area.

Another recommendation approved calls for a by-law amendment to allow for construction of a service type shopping plaza at the northwest corner of Donald and North Front streets.

The original application of the land developer was referred to the planning board for study and recommendation.

The board recommendation was for construction to be limited for five service type businesses covering approximately one-third of the lot area and for more parking space than was originally proposed, and this was approved by council.

The fourth recommendation of a previous council to approved would fulfill the to change the designation of a parcel of land on Carnifton Road owned by Acme Electric. The designation change was discussed by council in 1961 but was never consummated.

Area Plunged Into Darkness By Overload

Residents of East Belleville living in the Hastings Drive and Montgomery Blvd. area between Herchimer and MacDonald Ave. were plunged into darkness around the supper hour last night as result of a power failure at No. 2 sub station on Edgehill Road.

A utility official said the trouble had been caused by overloading of a relay which opened a main switch. Power was off for a period of about 25 minutes, it was stated.

Government Changes

The appointment of an Ottawa Valley lawyer, J. J. Greene, as Minister of Agriculture, is a curious choice on the part of Prime Minister Pearson.

Little is known about Mr. Greene, and at first sight it would seem his only qualification for such an important cabinet post is that his home riding, Renfrew South, is a farming region.

At least some members of the Commons seem to have misgivings over the appointment. Typical was the comment of Social Credit leader Robert Thompson, who said: "Whether an Ottawa Valley lawyer will make a good minister of agriculture remains to be seen . . ."

That Mr. Greene is a man of ability, however, is evident from Mr. Thompson's added comment that the new minister is "young and personable, and it will be a tremendous challenge to him."

Mr. Greene, 45, is the first agriculture minister from Eastern Canada in 64 years. He replaces Harry Hays who lost his Calgary South seat.

Another interesting development is the creation of a new portfolio, Indian and Northern Affairs under Arthur Laing, minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources in the last government.

Since Indian affairs occasionally came under the aegis of Mr. Laing's former office, although officially they were an adjunct of citizenship and immigration, it will mean they will continue in experienced hands.

However, during the election campaign there were suggestions that Indian Affairs should be made the responsibility of a single ministry. The idea had merit in view of the increasing political awareness being shown by Canada's Indian population these days. Thus it is a little disappointing to see their affairs are being combined once again with another responsibility.

The new Ministry of Manpower, which will take over gradually from the Immigration portfolio, sounds unpleasantly like something out of George Orwell's book, 1984. The title is unfortunate. It would have been better if it had been a combined one, like Immigration and Manpower. A small point perhaps, but a valid one nonetheless. Responsible for this new ministry will be Jean Marchand, of Quebec West.

Viet Nam Tactics

Pictures of U.S. patrols in Viet Nam make it only too clear why the Americans occasionally suffer heavy casualties in ambushes. The men are bunched together too closely.

One picture in U.S. News and World Report shows a U.S. patrol wading through a jungle swamp. Two of the soldiers have cigarets dangling from their lips. We are sure that a cigaret, even in a tightly clenched white-knuckled hand, is a welcome item in the dangerous game of war. Nevertheless, the aroma of tobacco could easily sound the death knell of whole groups, in the event of the Viet Cong being in the vicinity.

The Americans are said to rely greatly on their heavy firepower. Yet the Viet Cong seem to be able to muster very heavy barrrages, too, but seldom offer the Americans much of a target themselves.

The Australians, on the other hand, prefer the stalking tactics used so successfully against the communist guerrillas in Malaya. They maintain absolute silence on patrols, use hand signals only and regard helicopters, flares and the like as absolutely useless.

The U.S. can no more afford high casualties than the Aussies, who have only 1,700 men in Viet Nam. Perhaps, they should give the helicopters a rest for a while, change their tactics and beat the Viet Cong at their own game.

Mr. Lester Shiels

The news of the death in an auto accident of J. Lester (Les) Shiels, of this city, has been received with shock and regret by his many friends here and elsewhere.

Mr. Shiels, former mathematics teacher at Belleville Collegiate, his wife and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ann George, were on their way to visit his son in California when their car was involved in a head-on collision.

Mrs. George, whose home was in California, also died in the accident, which occurred within 300 miles of the home of Mr. Shiels Jr. Mrs. Shiels was injured, but is reported in fair condition in hospital.

A veteran of World War I and a man of diverse interests, Mr. Shiels taught at the Collegiate for 37 years. He was chief cadet instructor at the school and also took an active interest in school sports.

Coming as it does at Christmas time, and while Mr. Shiels and his wife were looking forward to a visit to Australia after visiting their son, the tragedy is all the poignant.

Cool-Cat Camp Coming To Ottawa for New Year Chat

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Dalton K. Camp, National Conservative President and very probably the coolest cat in the Tory High Command, is due in the Chateau Laurier for the New Year holiday for his first face to face chat with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker since the election.

It should be a lively confrontation.

Their previous conferences haven't exactly lacked for drama.

For Dalton Camp has been the figurehead if not perhaps one of the leaders of the union of the young and the older rebel guard in their two-year, so-far unsuccessful "Dump Diefenbaker" campaign.

There hasn't been a National Party rally since the Old Warrior beat back the attempt to throw him out of the leadership and into retirement at the Conservative annual confe rence held in early 1964.

That rally came soon after Prime Minister Pearson's first and nearly disastrous "Sixty Days of Decision" following the late Spring election of '63, precipitated, you'll recall, by the Conservative Cabinet Crisis and the Social Credit toppling of the Diefenbaker minority administration.

It was made memorable by the Old Chief, back to the wall, standing off the Party Rebels with his ringing: "You know where I stand — now tell me where you stand."

For various reasons, the then-threatening election and perhaps Dief's own lack of enthusiasm for another confrontation, the Conservatives skipped their annual rally early this year. Instead, with Dalton Camp setting it up, they convened an extraordinary session of the National Executive, at which the Chief, by the skin of his teeth and not more than two or three votes, managed grimly to hang on to his leadership.

HOW SOON?

They can't reasonably brush off the invitation a second Party rally for a second year running, so it might be guessed that when Dalton Camp and John Diefenbaker meet — and soon — in their first post-election conference, a date for the National Tory pow-wow will be on the agenda.

How does it shape up this time?

Well, the election changed things — but not all that much.

The youth wing and the old rebel guard still want Dief to go. But this time, they'll be no pushing and shoving. This time they'll have to let him fix the retirement schedule and arrange that it can be done in honor.

Food Fads In Britain

Ottawa Journal

Herewith a tasty letter to the London Times:

Sir — We do not eat well as a nation because we have no interest in any dishes other than pastry and starchy sweets. We cook upon butter used in savory cooking, as something rather improper; indeed we do not like anything sweet in savory food. There is always a gasp of horror when I suggest cooking the cherries in the pastry, and cherries now on the market, which are so delicious baked with sugar.

Our young people start out for work utterly with no good breakfast inside them and keep themselves going with coffee and snacks. I am convinced that this is the cause of the permanent cold in the head suffered by the British public, and our bad teeth. However, this is what we like, and nothing will change it. We feel that a rising standard of cooking in England

Fear of Death Can Be Difficult to Overcome

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How does a person overcome fear of death?

My husband's fear of it began with palpitations of the heart which he said started about 10 years ago. The doctor's checkup showed there is nothing wrong, only that he has a nervous condition. The nerve pills he takes don't seem to stop the palpitation. He gets it frequently.

Would you advise him to see a heart specialist, a psychiatrist or ask his doctor for stronger nerve pills? — Mrs. A. B.

* * *

Every doctor encounters this problem from time to time. Some people need help; others don't. The fear of death can be overcome, and I will have more to say about it tomorrow. Perhaps it will help, Mrs. A. B.'s husband, I think it may.

More specifically for him, however, are these suggestions. Any trouble — or supposed trouble — concerning the heart can make anxiety. The anxiety in turn can aggravate the heart situation. It becomes a vicious circle, and the circle needs to be broken somewhere. The more he worries, the more his heart bothers; the more it throbs the more he worries.

Where to break the circle? For one thing the doctor has assured him that his heart is healthy, but he refused to accept this report. Yet he has had palpitation for 10 years now, and nothing has happened. It is time, then, for his own point of mind, that he decide that the doctor knew what he was talking about.

No, I would not suggest asking for stronger nerve pills. Such sedatives often are helpful in calming the overly tense person, but if the nervousness spills out (and as a result, the palpitation) more or stronger sedatives will not necessarily be the answer.

Seeing a heart specialist may help reassure him — but if he wouldn't believe the first doctor, in spite of the evidence of 10 years of continued life, why expect him to believe another? Rather, it would seem to make much more sense to see a psychiatrist, and track down deep-buried instances of anxiety which manifest themselves in this fear of death.

Finally, and this could prove to be important, various factors can influence both his anxieties and the palpitation. Thyroid activity should be checked. Blood pressure, too. What are his habits as to smoking, drinking, eating? Does he get adequate rest, recreation and exercise? Is he interested in theatre, cards, clubs, hobbies? Or has he let himself so engrossed in his fear of death that he feeds his fear by thinking of nothing else? What are conditions, as they may affect his nerves, at home or in his work?

Only he, in the last analysis, can free himself from fear of death, but expert help can make the task easier.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have so much trouble with callus or dead skin around my fingernails. I do good do hard work, so that can't be the cause. — Mrs. C. W.

If I gather what you mean correctly you refer to the small ridge of thickened skin at the edge of the nail, chiefly at the base of the nail. This tends to cling to the nails as it grows out. The skin also can split and be painful.

The best answer is, after a bath or soaking of the hands in warm water, to push this skin back with an orange wood stick. Surplus segments of skin can be carefully trimmed away with manicure scissors. Skin oils or hand lotion will help keep the skin soft.

Mrs. H. C.: No, I don't think this nose-picking is "due to vitamin or mineral lack." I'd just call it a nasty habit that the child ought to break.

Mixed Blessing

Window Slap

The tangle of poles and overhead wires which once disfigured our cities is fast disappearing, and all to the good. Nowadays one can look down broad avenues unmarred by the forest of unsightly poles and wires. There is, of course, a new underbrush of parking meters, traffic signs, lamp posts, and billboards. But that's just progress.

Strictly Personal

Language Is Complex Study

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An editorial I read the other day used the tag-line from the old joke about the Frenchman in the House of Deputies remarking that there is only a small difference between men and women — whereupon another deputy adds up and shouts, "Vive la difference!"

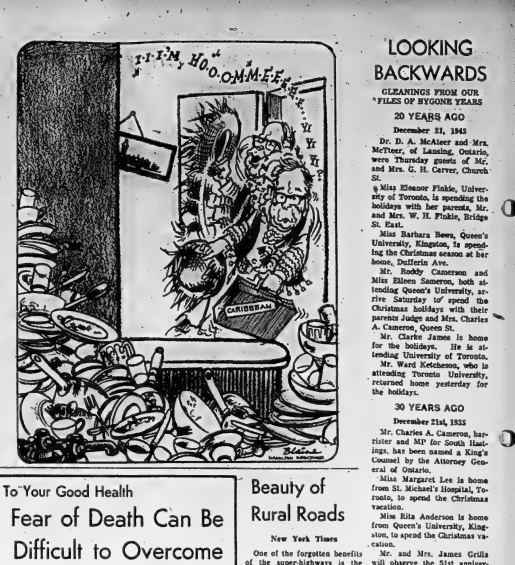
The only thing wrong with this story is the Frenchman would never say it that way. "Vive la difference!" is a wholly English expression. "Vive" in French means only a "sling-fish." The Frenchman would say "Hourrah!" or "Bravo!" or just possibly "Vivat!"

One of the most curious aspects of language is the fact that so many so-called "foreign phrases" are not used in the land of their presumed origin, or are used in a totally different way. Dozens of words we think of as "French" would puzzle a Frenchman if he heard them here.

We use the French word "encore" to call back a performer; the French cry out "Bis!" We use the French phrase "Nom de plume" for someone writing under an assumed name; the French say "Nom de guerre."

"Brassiere" is a French word but it means a child's bodice or vest in French; what we call a "brassiere" is called a "soutien-gorge" in France.

Although "menu" is a reputable French word, the French-man in a restaurant does not ask the waiter for one; he asks only for "la carte." The carte is, indeed, be calls for the "menu" is when he wants to know the menu a prix fixe — which is unexplicably enough, we call "table d'hote."



"Pie a la mode," of course, is totally unknown in France, except through American tourists who seem to believe that "a la mode" is French for "topped with ice cream."

(And perhaps the most horrible Gallic perversion now appearing on American menus is the phrase: "Roast beef with au jus," as though "au jus" were some special kind of juice, instead of simply "with juice.")

"Lingerie" in French refers merely to linens in the bedroom; the latter is generally called "sous-vetements" or "dessous." We say a "double entendre" for a phrase with a dirty meaning, but the French call this a "double sense."

One of the most fascinating examples of change from one language to another is our use of the French word "morale" as in "the morale of the troops." This is utterly unknown in France, where "morale" means "ethics" or "moral faculties." What we call "morale," the French, oddly enough, call "moral," or "etat d'esprit," or "force d'ame."

There's a moral to all this, somewhere, if you're willing to look for it.

Beauty of Rural Roads

New York Times

One of the forgotten benefits of the super-highways is the fact that they take the heavy-burry traffic off the lesser roads and leave the back roads that wander through the woods and over the hills to those who would dawdle and enjoy the country side. There one can stop to look at a tree or a vista, even to get out and walk. There one can pause to watch a bushy-squirrel, or a skein of wild geese honking southward, or a brook meandering across a meadow.

The highways too often seem to lead from traffic jam to traffic jam. But the byways lead to the nearest thing to peace and quiet one can reach on wheels, to the uncomplicated serenity of woods and hills and streams. And they lead back in the land itself where time is measured by seasons and years, not by hours and minutes. Back in hills that were old when man built his first cities, hills that change only on their own terms.

They lead to quiet places where one can see a hollow glowing with the golden candles of autumn larches, to hillstops where the sky is a huge blue bowl, to lowland beaver meadows, to cattail bogs, to brown old farmhouses with blue curls of fragrant wood-smoke at their chimneys. In a sense, these back roads lead to a simpler yesterday, perhaps; but those who seek them out are not searching for the past. They are looking, rather, for the enduring now, the persistent reality of a native tree, uncluttered hill, a sunset.

Justice — At Last

Kitchener Waterloo Record :

The conviction of three members of the Ku Klux Klan by an all-white Alabama jury trying them in connection with the killing of a white Detroit newspaper Viola Liuzzo of Detroit has been greeted as a breakthrough for justice in southern race relations.

Though it is not quite that. It is an indication that the day may be ending when southern whites can count on legal immunity for violence against Negroes.

Regionalism

Windsor Star

Quebec is endeavoring to find ways of ensuring that the number of municipalities is kept to a minimum. Ontario is thinking along the lines of regional governments. Both have a common purpose.

Small municipalities had their place in an age when local problems were few and simple, and close to the people. In this complex modern age, they are not able to do their jobs efficiently.

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — For their rendition of Jingle Bells from outer space, astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford have been made honorary members of the American Federation of Musicians.

Three officials of the federation's Boise local urged the million after listening to the astronauts perform last week.

International officers at Newark, N.J., agreed and forwarded honorary membership cards and scrolls of recognition which were sent on to the Boise local for the astronauts.

The astronauts played Jingle Bells on a harmonica they smuggled aboard their Gemini 6 spacecraft.

Body of Man Shot in Head Found in Car

Provincial police today are investigating the death of a man whose body was found in a car parked on a county road near Bath early today.

Details in the accident are still sketchy but senior OPP officers in Belleville said the man was found with a bullet hole in his head and a .22- calibre rifle on his knees.

His car was parked on the road which links Bath on Highway 33 with Highway 2, and the motor was still running, an officer said.

Provincial Police at Napanee were first called about 1.00 a.m.

Investigations are in charge of Detective Sergeant Lloyd Lole, Belleville OPP District Headquarters.

The Greatest Gift

Saturday, four young children of one family, aged 4, 3, 2 and 10 months, died in a Toronto fire.

Four days earlier, six people of one family died in another fire in that city.

During the weekend, 32 persons died in traffic accidents in Canada, 15 of them in Ontario.

And Christmas is Saturday.

Many more will die between now and then.

Christmas will not be happy for them and their families.

Christmas is a joyous time. A time of sharing, of giving gifts, of families gathering together . . . a happy time.

There is one gift we can all give.

That gift is safety, and it can be shared by motorists and pedestrians and by homemakers for the good of all.

If you are a motorist, share with pedestrians . . .

be alert, be courteous, be careful.

If you are a pedestrian, share with motorists. Cross only at crosswalks. Always look both ways.

Share safety with others and we will all share a happy Christmas together.

Belleville City Police Chief John McLauchlan reminds motorists and pedestrians to pay special attention to safety during the festive season.

"During the holidays," he said, "We often forget to pay attention to our driving. There are so many other things to think about. Have I got Charlie's present yet? What will I get for Susan?"

"Many of the accidents at this time of year are a result of this pre-occupation with various things other than safety. We must all make an effort to slow down, not only our driving speed, but our daily pace.

"During the rush of the year, stores are open late, and the night are longer. Everybody is rushing around in a last-minute haste, often forgetting about safety.

"Youngsters are also more unwary now. Motorists should take extra care to watch out for them and parents should make sure the children are dressed in clothing that makes it easier for the motorists to see them.

"At the moment, we are fortunate as far as the weather is concerned, but this could change and make driving and walking even more hazardous.

Christmas is a time when our emotions hit a high peak, and to have the ecstasy brutally shattered by death or injury is very sad.

Chief McLauchlan says, "We are called upon to deliver many compassionate messages to families. Perhaps their loved ones will be killed or injured, or are missing somewhere. Goodness knows it is bad enough at any time, but at Christmas, it is even more tragic."

In case you think accidents only happen to others, it can only happen to a few people, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics recently issued its 1964 traffic enforcement statistics.

Some of the figures are startling.

In 1964, 4,734 people died on Canadian roads. Of these, 3,267 were drivers and passengers, 1,183 were pedestrians, 122 were cyclists and 162 acted as others.

During the three year period, 1962 - 63 - 64, over 13,000 persons were killed. That means that a total number of persons comparable to the population of Trenton died.

Nearly 100,000 persons were injured non-fatally in Canada in 1964, many of them quite seriously.

There were almost 300,000 property damage traffic accidents with over $100 in damage, and 200,000 reported with $100 damage or less.

Things will be even worse in 1965. .

December is traditionally one of the worst months in Canada for accidents, partly because of the weather, but also because of the holiday.

The holiday brings many people out on the streets. They may be more concerned with thoughts of the coming holiday than where they may be walking. Be careful and watch out for them.

Children, tragically, are especially susceptible to holiday traffic mishaps. They are so wrapped up in the festivities of the season, they often forget to watch for the car coming down the street.

You do their watching for them.

"If you drink, don't drive," is one of the many trite sayings about one of the holiday season's most crucial problems. Though the sayings have been used over and over again, the message they carry is applicable and is, itself, forgotten or ignored by all too many people.

About 33,000 persons were charged either with driving while intoxicated or driving while impaired in Canada in 1964.

Will you be one of those in the statistics?

Fire Chief Ted Poste warns that Christmas trees can, if not properly looked after, be a fire hazard. He said, "A happy Christmas can change in a few seconds to family tragedy in a home where the rules are neglected."

Chief Poste advised everyone to keep their Christmas tree in water and to replenish the water supply at regular intervals. He reminds us all to check electric lighting strings and that only C.S.A. approved lighting sets and non-flammable decorations.

"Be sure the tree is set up well away from such sources of heat as the fireplace, radiators, TV set and that it does not block access to doors or windows in the event of fire.

"Switch off tree lights when leaving home or going to bed."

Fire Chief Poste and Police Chief McLauchlan want everyone to have a happy Christmas. It is not their wish that people should be frightened out of their wits for fear of accidents and thus lose the enjoyment of the season. These two men are aware of the dangers of Christmas. They wish only that you be aware of them. That awareness could safe not only your Christmas, but your life.

There are many things you can give your loved ones for Christmas.

Yes, one gift stands out above all the rest.

That is YOU.

Give your loved ones YOU, safe and sound at home, able to enjoy the wonderful things Christmas has to offer.

After all, people are capable of great feeling for one another.

Accident statistics are not.

friend of Mrs. Sacks in a nearby co-operative apartment house known as Sunset Green.

Later, police said the bodies of Mrs. Sacks, Richard Koocoumas, 10, and his sister Kimiko, 7, were found huddled together in the classroom on the top floor of the four-storey brick structure.

At Sunset Green, tearful neighbors ripped a Santa Claus figure from the front of the building. From the lobby, they removed a menorah, the candelbrum symbolic of Chanukah, the Jewish festival of lights.

It was the third night of Chanukah when the fire broke out in the building which serves both Jewish and non-Jewish citizens as a social and cultural centre.

Fire Chief Andrew Gerioch said it started in an auditorium on the second floor. The auditorium was being renovated and workmen had left about an hour before the fire broke out.

"We haven't any idea what caused it," he said. "We are investigating."

Many of the trapped children huddled coatless on top - floor ledges in 30-degree weather and waited for firemen to rescue them.

A witness said:

"Some of them came out of a window and walked four feet along a ledge to where the aerial ladder was."

Many Industrial Prospects Interviewed by Commission Says Chairman in Report

The annual report of the Belleville Industrial Commission, outlining the work of the commission and what is being done to attract new industry, was given to city council yesterday by its chairman J. C. "Pat" Houston.

Mr. Houston said that in 20 years of operation a number of industrial prospects had been welcomed to the city. Each had been given a tour of the city, shown buildings and industrial sites, residential districts and waterfront suburbs, and had been furnished with all information relevant to their own operations.

A program of personal contacts together with newspaper and trade magazine advertising was being followed in an attempt to sell Belleville, it was stated.

COMMISSIONER PRAISED

Mr. Houston said that in this highly competitive field, personal public relations meant the personality and ability of the city to support the product being promoted.

Belleville's industrial commissioner Ernst Kneisel was highly commended by the commissioners who said Mr. Kneisel had contributed much to the success of the commission.

In the past 18 months the commissioner had interviewed approximately 350 people on all levels of private and public business and had travelled approximately 8,000 miles in drumming up progress for Belleville.

Here there had been achievements.

Mr. Houston said the recently announced location of Consard would ultimately mean employment for about 120 people in Belleville. The Laidlaw Lumber Company's decision to locate a warehousing outlet here was also the result of negotiations and efforts by the commission.

SEVERAL NEGOTIATIONS

GOING

Also the commission had several negotiations going with industries seeking new locations in the province and was hopeful of landing them for Belleville.

Mr. Houston said the commission feeling was that the search for new industry should be correlated with the labor available and the approach had been to work for industry which could draw labor from the present local pool.

The importance of liaison between the commission and city council was stressed. Any suggestions, or criticism should come through council representatives on the commission.

Mr. Houston said it wasn't in the best interests of all concerned to have this transmission done through public media.

"We must all work together," Mr. Houston said. "This is a 'cloak and dagger' business. By its very nature it cannot be publically discussed."

Tells Mother-in-law Husband Unfaithful

DEAR DORIS: My daughter-in-law says my son is unfaithful. She says she has proof of this. Every time she calls me and tells me these stories it upsets me so much that I cannot sleep. He was always a good boy.

DORIS CLARK

Sometimes I am tempted to blow my top and tell her what I think of her. She complains and nags. She will pick a fight for [illegible] reason at all.

She wants him to wash the dishes, put the clothes on the line, bring them in, cook the meals when he is home, etc. etc., and he doesn't like to do these things.

I would like to know what you think of this mess. — READY TO BLOW UP.

DEAR READY: Such things are rarely one-sided, but D.I.L.'s behavior is not designed to be helpful. The phone calls are a way of getting back at her husband by hurting you.

I'd guess all the home routines are her misguided means of possessing her man: and evidence of just how unsure she is of his love.

Trouble is, it's a vicious circle. A person possessed will pull away from those clutches; not love her more.

Next time, in all sincerity, tell her you are greatly concerned for her and would like her to talk things over with a family counsellor. One may be found where you are at the Family Counseling Service of Hastings and Belleville County, 63 Moira Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS: I think you are absolutely wrong in saying that a girl who bears voices needs psychiatric help. I know close relatives who have seen ghosts, and some of my friends too. People have reported seeing me, but never seeing ghosts.

Not long ago some people went through a haunted house in England and filmed the ghosts and they put it on television. I don't believe in ghosts or anything like a monster from the sea, but I do believe in ghosts.

Ask some friends of yours who maybe have seen ghosts or thought they did. I'm sure you'll find they're not fooling you, and they really did see it. — A GHOST BELIEVER.

P.S.: I'm not really a kook, just an average teen.

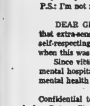
DEAR GHOST BELIEVER: Far be it from me to say that extra-sensory perceptions don't happen. But would any self-respecting ghost inform a girl that her teacher was dead, when this was obviously not the case?



Since visions of hysteria and hallucination populate our mental hospitals, we still have to look into a voice-bearer's mental health first!

Susanna's Family Fare

EASY DOES IT!

Dear Susanna: Here it is the morning of that big dinner party and you are using the festive table with your good dishes and crystal — only to discover a nasty chip or two along the rim of several of your lovely water glasses.

It is far too late to take them to be professionally sanded, but, for the time being, there is something you can do to help yourself . . . do just what I did:

Using the finest sand paper, and an extremely delicate touch, I gently rubbed the edge of the glass until that little jagged bit was eliminated and the entire rim was relatively smooth!

Wash and rinse thoroughly before using. —Mrs. McIntyre

Believe me, my girls, it's not for the faint-hearted to try this on good crystal. But with the emphasis on sanding lightly and politely, and handling with kid gloves all the way, the results are quite remarkable! — Susanna

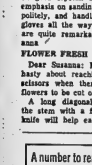
FLOWER FRESH

Dear Susanna: Don't be too hasty about reaching for the scissors when there are fresh flowers to be cut or trimmed.

A long diagonal cut across the stem with a firm, sharp knife will help each flower in the bouquet to breathe more freely when immersed in water. — Mathilda.

BLEACH BOTTLE BOWL

Dear Susanna: Ah, 'tis the season again of church banquets and pot luck suppers where each member is so often requested to bring something — and with this request comes the problem of 'using one's cake plates and salad bowls in the parish hall.



Your suggestion, Susanna, of using large, discarded records covered with foil as cake plates is splendid; and now we have discovered that plastic bleach jugs, washed thoroughly, cut down to size and lined (with saran wrap, foil or wax paper), double nicely as salad bowls.

Arrange the lettuce leaves in place, add the salad, and decorate.

An attractive touch to the bowl is to cut a fringe around the top edge and bend this back to form a petal-like lip. —Mrs. G. B. Ball

Soaking the jug well first inside and out, with very hot water, will facilitate the cutter process. The plastic becomes soft, pliable and willingly workable. — SUSANNA

"PECAN BARS AND SHORTBREAD

Shirley M. L. writes: . . . "try ½ cup granulated sugar (2nd amount), 1¼ teaspoons cinnamon, 4 unbeaten egg whites, confectioners' sugar.

Sift together into a flat-bottomed bowl the flour, salt and ½ cup granulated sugar (1st amount); with pastry blender cut in butter until size of peas, then add yolks and rum flavoring. Pat evenly into 18 x 10" pan or two 8 x 8" pans. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 minutes.

In heavy saucepan, put remaining ¼ cup granulated sugar, pecans, brown sugar, cinnamon and egg whites. Cook, stirring, over low heat until sugars dissolve. Increase heat and cook, stirring, until mixture no longer clings to sides of pan. Spread on baked mixture. Return to oven at 350 deg. 15 minutes. Cool slightly. Cut in 3" x 1" bars. This has a lovely satin finish but if you wish you can dust the bars lightly with confectioners' sugar.

My conscience pricks me because I have not made space for my recipe for Scotch Shortbread yet this year. It was as it I am adding here right now.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD

1 lb. butter,
4 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour,
½ cup unsifted icing or fruit sugar.

Mix these 3 ingredients by hand in large bowl until of rolling out consistency. Roll out to ¼-inch thickness on lightly floured board. Slices of dough will crack, but patiently coax dough into a smooth round. Cut out with lightly floured cutter or various cutters. (I made 33 2½" shortbreads from this amount.) Bake at 225 deg. Fahr. on unbuttered baking sheets about 20 to 25 minutes. Remove as soon as they barely begin to ed with gold. They should not be browned at all.

Gifts Which One Dislikes Can Spoil Christmas Fun

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There are a lot of things right about Christmas.

Such as:

The cheerful sounds and bright colors . . . the fun of decorating the tree and putting the holly wreath on the door . . . the reunion with loved ones . . . the holiness of its mystic meaning . . . the steaming joys of a full table . . . kissing under the mistletoe . . . the great expectations about what presents you will get.

Yes, there are many, many things right about Christmas. But there's one thing wrong about it—receiving as presents exactly the things you don't want.

A fellow can survive the fact he doesn't find his heart's desire wrapped up under the tree on Christmas morning. He can put up with being surprised by unexpected gifts he has no real need for. But what really rubs his spirit raw is to untie half a mile of ribbons and unwind two acres of paper—and find therein something that he actively dislikes.

Actually, it is largely his own fault. Many of us are too shy or bashful to tell Santa Claus what we want. It is too much like begging.

There is nothing wrong, however, in writing Santa a letter, and here is a few-item list of don't-you-dare-bring-me things I sent him.

Muffler Ear Warmers on them. I can always use another muffler or two, even though I have 10 that I can't stand them with fringes.

DIRECTIONS DIFFICULT

Bicycles, tricycles, scooters, wagons, baby horses or dolls houses that come unassembled in crates. If Santa Claus can't understand the directions on how to put them together, neither can I.

Wallets covered with mink fur. Mink bow ties. A mink hammock. (I haven't even got any use for a hammock.)

A lavishly illustrated expensive volume on foreign art, such as, Pictorial Treasures of the Moscow Subway, or Forgotten Masters in American County Courthouses.

Cigarette lighters adorned with glass - encased nude nymphs who shimmy when the flame is lit.

Any fruit cake or country ham, baked in a Brooklyn basement by a defrocked Chinese chef but mailed from "Ma Yancey's olde-fashioned, hand-tended hickory hearth in Corncob, Tenn."

An unctuous greeting card that says: "This season, instead of a present, we are making a gift in your name to a worthy philanthropy—the Society for the Alleviation of Sprue among Indians of the Upper Amazon."

Remember, to keep Christmas merry you don't have to get exactly what you want. The art lies in avoiding getting exactly what you don't want.

Ann Landers

Problem Poodle Has Strudel on Noodle

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will be more sympathetic to our problem than our friends have been. We have mentioned this to a few people and they broke up. We don't think it is funny.

I will come straight to the point and tell you that our poodle, Sir Oliver, is an involuntary drop-out of canine school.

We paid $100 for him and he came to us with the finest registration papers. For some mysterious reason, Sir Oliver cannot be housebroken, nor will he learn to take any other directions.

The head of the canine school we took us ANN LANDERS that he believes the dog has a neurological problem and it is useless to invest any more money to train him.

My husband says he does not want a dog around that is not housebroken. I have become so attached to Sir Oliver that I hate to think of giving him to a farmer as my husband suggests. Do you think there is a chance that if I work diligently with Sir Oliver I can teach him some manners? — DISCOURAGED.

DEAR DISCOURAGED: The head of the canine school is a better authority on this than I am. If he says your poodle has a little strudel in his noodle, I think you should take his word for it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has become friendly with a woman who works in a non-office. He raved about what a swell "guy" Mabel is and insisted that we invite her and her husband to dinner.

I finally agreed. That was last spring. Mabel doesn't look like a guy to me. She looks plenty female. Her husband is a dumb duck.

Recently Mabel had to be hospitalized for an old back injury. My husband and I went to see her twice. The third time I told him if he wanted to go, O.K., but not to ask me to spend my evening with Mabel. He has continued to visit her, and he always takes one of our sons along.

Mabel is young enough to be my husband's daughter and I honestly don't feel I should be entertaining her. Also, we have a family of boys and he has always wanted a daughter.

Please don't tell me to wake up and smell the coffee as I have read that subject in your column six times this year. I need something more definite to go on. Do you think there's some hanky-panky going on or not? — UNCERTAIN.

DEAR UNCERTAIN: A man who is interested in hanky-panky doesn't take his wife and children along. Don't make any accusations or you may build a problem where none exists.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There is a certain boy I will call Pete. He is in my home room class (we are both high school sophomores) and he called me for a date in October and I went out with him. Pete was not short, every thing changed since and I've run out of excuses. Would it be terrible to tell him that I'm not going with him again and to stop calling? I need your help, Annie. — ICKED-POO.

DEAR POO: Don't destroy the poor guy. He sweet and tell him why you don't like him. You have a couple of girls who are not dated up, and then give him the names of a few not-so popular dances who might enjoy Pete's company.

Yugoslavia Abortions Rise to Alarming Point

By GERALD MILLER

BELGRADE (AP)—A movement is under way in Yugoslavia to encourage wider use of artificial contraception as the best means of birth control. The reason: Abortions have risen to a point officials regard as alarming.

The situation is much the same throughout Eastern Europe. Every Communist country except East Germany permits abortion. Throughout the area, static national population figures attest to a general practice of birth control.

Experts here cite economic conditions as main factors. They say many couples are reluctant to lower their living standards with the expense of children.

New apartments, jokingly referred to as "birth-controlling apartments," are frequently too small and cramped for comfortable family living.

Many women work to bring in a second income and cannot care for children. Domestic help is practically non-existent. In Serbia, Yugoslavia's most populous province, with 8,000,000 people, medical estimates put the number of abortions at about 400,000 annually, one half of them legal.

Free legal abortions are given at women's clinics for a variety of medical, social and psychological reasons. Any possibility of physical or mental danger in having a child will suffice. But the most frequent reasons listed for abortions are housing and work problems.

Even though abortion is legal, red tape sometimes causes delays. Moreover, many unmarried girls who become pregnant are ashamed to make it a matter of public record. Thus, there is a market for illegal abortions.

Doctors dealing with the problem report that a certain percentage of abortions produces sterility and that as many as 60 per cent of women who undergo abortions suffer complications.

HAVE TROUBLE

An analysis of sick leave taken by women workers in Belgrade showed that 25 per cent took time off the job because of post - abortion consequences.

Both doctors and government authorities say that for economic and medical reasons, to protect the health of women and encourage better family planning, abortions should be replaced by other birth control methods.

Various contraceptive devices including pills, are available in Yugoslavia, but doctors complain that in general, women show little interest in using them. To counter this, medical groups are striving to set up more birth control information centres throughout the country, and to make contraceptive information available at all women's clinics.

Mother's Helper

MAKE a big chunk of your children's rooms before Christmas. Mend and broken things, extras, outgrown books, and closets—to make room for December 25! Do it alone. Watchers won't allow anything removed. In fact, you'll better think your findings out of sight for good or they may reappear suddenly, fished out of the trash barrel! Male Capped After Course At Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Being the only male among 32 nursing assistants "capped" at suburban Scarborough General Hospital Monday didn't bother 18-year-old Joseph Desrosiers of Kapuskasing, Ont.

He quit a job in a paper mill to take the 10-month course, which he hopes will lead to a career in some job related to nursing.

The decision to enter a field where a man could stick out like a sore thumb was made, he said, when he started thinking about doing something worthwhile in life.

He lives in the interns' quarters at the hospital and will receive a nursing assistant's diploma in July.

Will Light Red Candle On Saturday

OTTAWA (CP)—When Mrs. Darrell Halford-Watkins of Aylmer, Que., lights a red candle at 3 o'clock Christmas Day, she will be one of thousands around the world doing the same thing.

Mrs. Halford - Watkins, who emigrated to Canada in 1947, said the idea originated 10 years ago as a family custom when her sister in England suggested the ceremony as a means of linking the absent members of the family.

The idea was passed on and extended to many parts of the world and the International Christmas Candle Club came into being. The club now has members in England, Canada, the U.S., Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea, the West Indies and parts of Europe.

There are no fees, rules or regulations. All one has to do is light a red candle at the appointed hour, send out thoughts of goodwill to other candle-lighters and make a silent prayer for world peace.

Woman Office Employee Again Fired

TORONTO (CP)—A woman office employee of the independent Teamsters' Union (Ind.) who early this month was dismissed and rehired, said Monday she has been dismissed again as a result of a disagreement with the local.

Gillian Green said she was dismissed by Office Manager John Haughey under an article between the local and the Office Employees' International Union (CLC) dealing with gross misconduct.

Miss Green and Louise McKay were dismissed Dec. 5 for taking an extended lunch break during which they identified records for one of the warring factions within the local. They were later rehired.

The local now is under international trusteeship.

Mr. Haughey was not immediately available for comment.

U.C.W. Meetings

SCOTT'S U. C. W.

St. SIDNEY — Mrs. Edison Sine opened her home for the Christmas meeting of Scott's U.C.W. and a beautifully decorated Christmas tree presented a suitable background.

Nine members were present. Mrs. Sine opened the meeting with a Christmas hymn. Mrs. R. Dafoe reported sending a Christ-box to the Victor mission in Toronto, and a bale overseas. A plan for the monthly dinners for 1964 and place of meetings was drawn up.

The Christmas story from Matthew I was read giving the story of the lineage of Jesus. Mrs. Marley Sine discussed the true meaning of Christmas. "If as Christians we live up to Him, whose name we bear, His joy, concern, strength and love will be seen in us and passed on to others, not only at Christmas but all year round," she said.

After a closing prayer a dessert tea was served and a social time enjoyed by all.
